

Interactive English Fluency Builder

A master transcript book for vocabulary, pronunciation, grammar, writing, listening, and speaking practice

749 Interactive English lessons

Edited from the compiled auto-generated transcripts

Transcript wording is preserved. Caption fragments have been reflowed into paragraphs, spacing and redundant punctuation have been cleaned, and metadata tables have been removed. Each chapter retains a clickable link to its original YouTube lesson.

Yellow highlights mark vocabulary and expressions explicitly introduced in the transcript.

Contents

1. 1-HOUR LESSON - C2 Vocab Every Serious Learner Must Know
2. 1-HOUR LESSON - Improve Your Writing (Academic, Professional, & Descriptive)
3. 1-HOUR LESSON - Learn Over 100 English Phrasal Verbs
4. 1-HOUR PRONUNCIATION LESSON | 100+ Words to Fine-tune Your Pronunciation
5. 1-HOUR VOCABULARY LESSON - Descriptive Words & Phrases to be More Accurate & Precise
6. 1-HOUR VOCABULARY LESSON | 100 Phrases for Casual Conversation
7. 100 Collocations Native Speakers Use in Academic Discussions
8. 100 Most Common Words in English | YOU NEED TO KNOW THESE WORDS
9. 10 Adjectives to Help You Sound Like a SUPER GENIUS | Advanced Vocabulary
10. 10 Advanced Adjectives to Help You Sound More Intelligent
11. 10 Advanced Adjectives to Help You Sound Smarter
12. 10 Advanced Adverbs to Help You Sound Smarter
13. 10 Advanced Nouns to Help You Sound Smarter
14. 10 Advanced Verbs to Help You Sound Smarter
15. 10 Brand Names that Became Common Words
16. 10 Common Slang Words Americans Say All the Time
17. 10 Common Words You' (PROBABLY) Mispronounce
18. 10 Dessert Idioms (YUM!) to Help Improve Your Fluency
19. 10 Difficult Words to Pronounce in English
20. 10 Food Words that Are Difficult to Pronounce in English
21. 10 Useful Slang Words that ALL Americans Know
22. 10 Useful Tips to Help You Become an Excellent Writer
23. 10 WORDS ENGLISH HAS TAKEN FROM FRENCH, GERMAN, & SPANISH
24. 10 Words English Learners Often Mispronounce
25. 12 BAD Words to IMPROVE YOUR VOCABULARY
26. 12 Beautiful Words to Help Build Your Vocabulary
27. 12 English Words that People Say WRONG | Pronunciation Lesson
28. 12 GOOD Words to IMPROVE YOUR VOCABULARY
29. 12 Powerful Phrases to Talk About Personality Without Sounding Boring!
30. 13 Scary Words | Useful Vocabulary Lesson
31. 15 Advanced Adjectives to Describe People and Build Your Vocabulary
32. 15 Advanced Phrases w/ HAVE, DO & MAKE to Boost Your Proficiency
33. 15 Useful Words to Say You're HAPPY
34. 16 Useful Words & Phrases to Describe People
35. 17 Education Idioms & Phrases | Build your informal vocabulary
36. 17 Super Useful Ways to Become FLUENT FAST
37. 17 Writing Tips That Will Help You Write Like a Pro!
38. 1 HOUR LESSON - Advanced Grammar In Use
39. 1 HOUR LESSON - Useful Idioms & Expressions to Build Your Vocabulary
40. 20+ ANIMAL GROUP NAMES | Useful Vocabulary Lesson
41. 20 Advanced Nouns to Describe People
42. 20 POSITIVE PHRASAL VERBS TO SURVIVE 2020
43. 225 Useful Collocations You MUST Know | 1-Hour Vocabulary Masterclass
44. 25 Academic English Words You MUST Know | Great for University, IELTS, and TOEFL
45. 25 Academic English Words You Should Know | Great for University, IELTS, or TOEFL
46. 25 Academic Words You Need to Know | Perfect for University, IELTS, or TOEFL
47. 25 Academic Words You Should Know for University, IELTS, and TOEFL
48. 25 Advanced Adjectives to Describe Places
49. 25 Grammar Rules on When to Use THE

- 50. 25 Jobs & Occupations | Advanced English Vocabulary
- 51. 25 Jobs & Occupations | Vocabulary Lesson (Live-Stream)
- 52. 25 Most Common Adjectives You NEED to Know
- 53. 25 Most Common English Verbs You NEED to Know
- 54. 25 Most Common Nouns in English | Words You Need to Know
- 55. 25 Super Useful Phrases You Will Use Again and Again
- 56. 25 Useful Words that You Should NOT Mispronounce
- 57. 25 Ways to Say "Thank you" in English
- 58. 25 Words Learners Mispronounce | American Pronunciation + Vocabulary
- 59. 3-WORD PHRASAL VERBS THAT ARE GOOD TO KNOW
- 60. 3-WORD PHRASAL VERBS | Build Your Vocabulary
- 61. 3-WORD PHRASES VERBS to Supercharge Your Vocabulary
- 62. 30+ Ways to Use the Word ASS | American Expressions
- 63. 30 Contractions to Help You Speak Faster
- 64. 33 Useful Collocations to Build Your Vocabulary
- 65. 35 Essential Vocabulary Words for Flying
- 66. 3 Advanced English Phrases Native Speakers Use All the Time!
- 67. 3 American Idioms Might Surprise You
- 68. 3 Awesome Online Resources for English Learners
- 69. 3 EFFECTIVE WAYS TO IMPROVE YOUR SPEAKING
- 70. 3 Grammar Mistakes Advanced Learners Often Make
- 71. 3 Words You Need to Know for a Doctor's Checkup
- 72. 40 Super Useful Phrases to Show that You Care
- 73. 4 Important Phrasal Verbs with CHECK | Vocabulary Lesson
- 74. 4 Things You Won't Learn in an English Textbook
- 75. 50 American Idioms in 60 Minutes | Sound Instantly More Fluent!
- 76. 50 Collocations to QUICKLY Build Your Vocabulary in 2025
- 77. 50 Idioms Native Speakers Use Daily | 60 Minutes to Sound American
- 78. 50 Super Useful Phrasal Verbs to Build Your Vocabulary
- 79. 50 Useful Collocations with TAKE | Build Your Vocabulary
- 80. 5 Advanced Expressions in Spoken English
- 81. 5 Adverbs Native Speakers Use Daily Fix Your Pronunciation!
- 82. 5 BIZARRE WORDS w/ SPELLING & PRONUNCIATION THAT DO NOT MATCH
- 83. 5 Common GRAMMAR MISTAKES English Learners Often Make
- 84. 5 Effective Tips to Become a Confident Speaker
- 85. 5 Phrasal Verbs with GET | Useful Grammar Lesson
- 86. 5 SUPER LONG WORDS...VERY DIFFICULT TO PRONOUNCE
- 87. 5 TRICKY WORDS TO PRONOUNCE IN ENGLISH
- 88. 5 Tricky Grammar Rules You Need to Remember
- 89. 5 Useful Phrasal Verbs with CHECK to Improve Your English
- 90. 5 Useful Tips on How to Learn & Improve Your English
- 91. 5 Useful Verbs You May Be Mispronouncing...
- 92. 5 Useful Ways to Improve Your English Fluency
- 93. 5 WORDS w/ CRAZY SPELLING & DIFFICULT PRONUNCIATION
- 94. 5 Ways on How to Achieve English Fluency
- 95. 6 Ways to Improve Your Fluency & Become a Better Speaker
- 96. 75 ADVANCED COLLOCATIONS | Supercharge Your Vocab (B2, C1, & C2 Phrases)
- 97. 75 Difficult Words to Pronounce (Fine-tune Your Pronunciation)
- 98. 7 Creative Ways to Get More SPEAKING Practice
- 99. 7 Grammar Mistakes You Should Definitely Correct
- 100. 7 Super-Useful Expressions with the Word BRIDGE
- 101. 7 Super Useful Idioms to Improve Your Fluency

- 102. 7 Things Americans Don't Really Say & What You Should Say Instead
- 103. 8 Common Writing Mistakes (AND HOW TO FIX THEM)
- 104. 8 Types of NOUNS | Improve Your Grammar
- 105. 8 Useful Proverbs to Offer Advice | ADVANCED EXPRESSIONS
- 106. 8 Ways to Say "JOIN" | Build Your Vocabulary
- 107. 8 Words Native Speakers Don't Say & What You Should Say Instead
- 108. A, AN, THE, or NO ARTICLE | English Grammar Quiz
- 109. ACHIEVE ENGLISH FLUENCY | Here are 5 useful tips...
- 110. ADVANCED AMERICAN PHRASES YOU NEED TO KNOW
- 111. ADVANCED BANKING VOCABULARY | Words and phrases you need to know
- 112. ADVANCED COURTROOM VOCABULARY | Incredibly Useful Words & Phrases
- 113. ADVANCED DENTAL VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know
- 114. ADVANCED DRIVING VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you need to know
- 115. ADVANCED FLYING VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you need to know
- 116. ADVANCED HEALTH VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you need to know
- 117. ADVANCED HOSPITAL VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know
- 118. ADVANCED MILITARY VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know
- 119. ADVANCED PHARMACY VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know
- 120. ADVANCED SCIENCE VOCABULARY | Words & Phrases You Should Know
- 121. ADVANCED SPRING VOCABULARY | Words and phrases you need to know
- 122. ADVANCED VERBS FOR WORK | Vocabulary Lesson
- 123. ADVANCED VOCABULARY QUIZ LESSON (Live-Stream)
- 124. ADVANCED VOCABULARY QUIZ | Do You Know These Words?
- 125. ADVANCED VOCAB FOR 2026! Words & Phrases You Should Know
- 126. ADVANCED WORDS, PHRASES, & IDIOMS | Useful Gambling Vocabulary
- 127. ADVERB CLAUSES | All the Grammar You Need to Know
- 128. ADVERB VOCABULARY QUIZ | Advanced English Words
- 129. ADVICE for English Teachers & English Learners + Vocabulary
- 130. AMERICAN ENGLISH ACCENT TRAINING (Speak Naturally & Easily)
- 131. AMERICAN FAST SPEECH (Boost your speaking fluency & listening comprehension)
- 132. AMERICAN FAST SPEECH (Improve your speaking fluency & listening comprehension)
- 133. AMERICAN IDIOMS Important phrases you need to know
- 134. AMERICAN IDIOM #QUIZ 3 Idioms to Build Your Vocabulary
- 135. AMERICAN SLANG WORDS QUIZ LESSON
- 136. ANIMAL GROUPS...Do you know these collective nouns? #interactiveenglish #shorts
- 137. ANSWERING YOUR DIFFICULT GRAMMAR QUESTIONS
- 138. AUTUMN IDIOMS & EXPRESSIONS IN ENGLISH
- 139. A Complete Advanced English Makeover: 5 Hours, 250+ Words, Native-Level Vocabulary!
- 140. A Proven Way to Effectively Build Your Vocabulary | CHUNKING
- 141. A vs. AN - Learn this ONE rule | Articles in English
- 142. Abbreviations & Acronyms to Build Your Vocabulary
- 143. Accent & Pronunciation Training | 25 Sentences to Enhance Your Fluency
- 144. Advanced (C1) #Idiom | TO FALL FLAT
- 145. Advanced (C1) #Idiom | to set foot in (some place)
- 146. Advanced (C1) Adjectives to Build Your Vocabulary
- 147. Advanced (C1) Idioms to Strengthen Your Vocabulary
- 148. Advanced (C1) Phrases That Will Transform Your Speaking Skills
- 149. Advanced (C1) Phrases to Strengthen Your Vocabulary
- 150. Advanced (C1) Verbs to Level Up Your Vocabulary
- 151. Advanced (C1) Vocabulary MASTERCLASS in 60 Minutes
- 152. Advanced (C2) Nouns to Build Your Vocabulary
- 153. Advanced (C2) Nouns to SUPERCHARGE Your Vocabulary

- 154. Advanced (C2) Phrasal Verbs to Sound Fluent | Speak Smarter, Not Harder
- 155. Advanced (C2) Phrases to Build Your Vocabulary
- 156. Advanced (C2) Verbs to Build Your Vocabulary
- 157. Advanced (C2) Vocabulary in 60 Minutes | Phrases, Verbs, Nouns, and Adjectives You Should Know
- 158. Advanced (everyday) Idioms that You Should Know for 2024
- 159. Advanced Adjectives (C2) to Build Your Vocabulary
- 160. Advanced Adjectives to Build Your Vocabulary
- 161. Advanced Adjectives to Describe Personality & Behavior
- 162. Advanced Adjectives to Impress Your Friends | Build Your Vocabulary
- 163. Advanced American Idioms | LIVE QUIZ LESSON
- 164. Advanced American Idioms | QUIZ LESSON
- 165. Advanced Business Vocab to Help you Speak Naturally & Professionally
- 166. Advanced Color Vocabulary to Brighten Up Your Conversations
- 167. Advanced English #Idiom | to pick up the slack
- 168. Advanced English Grammar that Will BLOW YOUR MIND
- 169. Advanced English Vocabulary You'll Actually Use (C2 Level)
- 170. Advanced English Vocabulary | Quiz Lesson
- 171. Advanced English in Under 2 Minutes Try These Phrases
- 172. Advanced Expressions (C1 + C2) to Build Your Vocabulary
- 173. Advanced Expressions (C2) to Build Your Vocabulary
- 174. Advanced Expressions You NEED TO KNOW | Speak Like a Pro
- 175. Advanced Grammar Quiz (ONLY 2% CAN PASS THIS TEST)
- 176. Advanced Grammar Quiz That Will BLOW YOUR MIND
- 177. Advanced Grammar in 60 Minutes (Improve Your English Fluency)
- 178. Advanced Idioms (C1-C2) to Build Your Vocabulary
- 179. Advanced Irregular Verbs You Need to Know
- 180. Advanced Listening & Speaking Activity | Practice English on Your Own
- 181. Advanced Listening & Speaking Practice | Transportation
- 182. Advanced Phrasal Verbs Natives Use That Textbooks DON'T Teach
- 183. Advanced Phrasal Verbs for Everyday Conversation
- 184. Advanced Phrasal Verbs with UP
- 185. Advanced Phrases (C2) to Build Your Vocabulary
- 186. Advanced Phrases That Will Change the Way You Communicate
- 187. Advanced Verbs (C2) to Build Your Vocabulary
- 188. Advanced Verbs to Describe the Way Things Move
- 189. Advanced Vocabulary (slang) that You Should Know for 2023
- 190. Advanced Vocabulary (slang) that You Should Know for 2024
- 191. Advanced Vocabulary About the Housing Crisis | Read & Put Words in Context
- 192. Advanced Vocabulary Lesson | Take the Quiz & Learn New Words
- 193. Advanced Vocabulary Talking About University Life
- 194. Advanced Vocabulary for Talking About Babies
- 195. Advanced Vocabulary in 30 Minutes (Descriptive words you should know)
- 196. Advanced Vocabulary in 60 Minutes (Precise words you need to know!)
- 197. Advanced Vocabulary that will BLOW YOUR MIND
- 198. Advanced Vocabulary to Describe People (like politicians)
- 199. Advanced Vocabulary to Talk About the ECONOMY
- 200. Advanced Vocabulary to Understand American Politics
- 201. Advice to achieve your fluency goals in 2021 | Interactive Q&A with Wes
- 202. Amazing Vocabulary Vlog in the Big Apple (New York City)
- 203. American Accent Workout Repeat These Sentences Every Day!
- 204. American Accent Workout Linking, Reductions & Real Dialogues
- 205. American Culture Quiz (ONLY 3% CAN PASS THIS TEST)

- 206. American English Pronunciation for Intermediate to Advanced Learners
- 207. American Idioms & Expressions | English Quiz Lesson
- 208. American Slang vs. Informal Vocab vs. Formal Vocab | English Class #Shorts
- 209. Americans Try to Guess British Idioms
- 210. Answering ALL Your Questions about English | Q&A w/ Interactive English
- 211. Are You Making These Common GRAMMAR MISTAKES?
- 212. As Soon As You Learn Adverb Clauses, Your English Will Instantly Improve!
- 213. Ask me ANYTHING about learning English | Q&A w/ Wes
- 214. Athletic Words about Sports & the Olympics that You Need to Know
- 215. Avoid Saying "I disagree." | Use these phrases to build your vocabulary
- 216. Avoid Saying ...UM...ER...UH #interactiveenglish #shorts
- 217. Awesome Listening & Speaking Practice | Transportation
- 218. BEACH or BITCH? | How to Pronounce These Words Correctly
- 219. BEAUTIFUL IDIOMS & EXPRESSIONS ABOUT ART
- 220. BECOME FLUENT IN 2020 | 7 Things You Need to Do
- 221. BINOMIAL PAIRS QUIZ | Useful & Important Phrases
- 222. BORROW vs LEND | Confusing English Words
- 223. BRITISH and AMERICAN Idioms to Improve Your English
- 224. BUSINESS ENGLISH | Quiz for Working Professionals
- 225. Become Fluent in English | You MUST do these 3 things...
- 226. Brilliant Business Phrases You Should Know for Work
- 227. Build Academic Vocabulary and Practice: SIGNIFICANT
- 228. Build Your English Vocabulary PROCESS (Word of the Day)
- 229. CAT'S OUT OF THE BAG | Simple & Easy English Idiom
- 230. CAUSATIVE VERBS - Have, Get, Make, Let, Help | Super Important Grammar
- 231. CHALLENGING RIDDLES IN ENGLISH | Critical Thinking Lesson
- 232. CLEAR THE AIR | Advanced (C2) #Idiom to Build Your Vocabulary
- 233. COLLECTIVE NOUN QUIZ Can you name these groups of people? #interactiveenglish #shorts
- 234. COMMONLY CONFUSED WORDS IN ENGLISH | Prefixes Un- vs Dis- | Build English Vocabulary
- 235. COMMON ACRONYMS IN AMERICAN ENGLISH
- 236. COMMON TONGUE TWISTERS | Practice Your English Pronunciation
- 237. CONFUSING ENGLISH WORDS....EVEN FOR NATIVE-SPEAKERS
- 238. CONFUSING GRAMMAR IN ENGLISH | Advanced Quiz Lesson
- 239. CONFUSING WORDS FOR ENGLISH LEARNERS
- 240. CONFUSING WORDS IN ENGLISH (Even for native speakers!)
- 241. CONFUSING WORDS IN ENGLISH | Vocabulary Quiz Lesson
- 242. COOKING PHRASAL VERBS Build Your Vocabulary
- 243. COPY MY AMERICAN ACCENT! (How to 100% Improve Your Speaking Fluency)
- 244. CORRECTING GRAMMAR MISTAKES (Lesson Notes Included)
- 245. CORRECT YOUR GRAMMAR MISTAKES (Lesson Notes Included)
- 246. Can I say "I'M L VING IT"? | Stative verbs in the continuous tense? (Advanced Grammar)
- 247. Can You Say These Words Right? Identical Spelling, Different Sounds!
- 248. Can you become fluent in 3 months? | Natural Conversation + Vocabulary
- 249. Can you correctly pronounce these 3 words? (mischievous, choir, veterinarian)
- 250. Can you solve these RIDDLES?
- 251. Casual WORK EXPRESSIONS to Sound More Natural & Professional
- 252. Collective Nouns to Describe People | Vocabulary Lesson
- 253. Collocations to Emphatically Build Your Vocabulary (B2 + C1 + C2)
- 254. Collocations to Quickly & Effectively Build Your Vocabulary
- 255. Collocations to Supercharge Your Vocabulary (B2 + C1 + C2)
- 256. Collocations w/ Make, Have, Take, Give | Supercharge Your Vocab
- 257. Common Expressions Using the Word BABY

- 258. Common Expressions to Sound More American
- 259. Common Grammar Problems | Tricky Prepositions
- 260. Common Idioms & Expressions with the Word OUTSIDE
- 261. Common Work Expressions That You Need to Know
- 262. Common verbs followed by GERUNDS or INFINITIVES
- 263. Confusing Grammar in English | Lesson for Advanced Learners
- 264. Confusing Phrasal Verbs with Similar Meanings | Improve English Fluency
- 265. Confusing Words You Need to Know | Improve Your Fluency
- 266. Correct Your Grammar Mistakes | Lesson for Beginner, Intermediate, & Advanced Learners
- 267. Correcting Celebrity Twitter Mistakes | Grammar Lesson
- 268. DESCRIBING GRAPHS IN ENGLISH | Great for IELTS, TOEFL, or Business Presentations
- 269. DIFFERENT WAYS TO SAY "GO AWAY!"
- 270. DON'T SAY THIS! You Should Say This Instead. | Upgrade Your Small Talk
- 271. Descriptive (C2) Verbs that will Supercharge Your Vocabulary!
- 272. Descriptive Collocations to Give Your Vocabulary a BOOST
- 273. Descriptive Nouns to Talk about Profession, Personality, or Characteristics
- 274. Different Ways to Say "I'm Busy" Build Your Vocabulary
- 275. Different Ways to Say "Sorry!" | Useful English Expressions
- 276. Different Ways to Say "Thank You!" | Useful English Expressions
- 277. Different Ways to Say "Yes" & "No" | Useful English Expressions
- 278. Different Ways to Say "You're Welcome" | Useful English Expressions
- 279. Difficult Words to Pronounce in English
- 280. Do You Make These English Mistakes When Speaking?
- 281. Do You Want to Reduce Your English Accent?
- 282. Does having an accent matter? | Natural English Conversation + Vocabulary
- 283. Don't Always Say 'I THINK' | Useful Phrases to Build Your Vocabulary
- 284. EMOJI SENTENCE GUESSING GAME
- 285. ENGLISH SPEAKERS USE THESE EXPRESSIONS ALL THE TIME | Binomial Pairs
- 286. ENGLISH WORDS THAT ARE ACTUALLY ITALIAN #interactiveenglish #shorts
- 287. EPONYMOUS ADJECTIVES | Advanced Vocabulary You Probably Don't Know
- 288. EXERCISE PHRASAL VERBS Build Your Vocabulary
- 289. Easy & Important Word Stress Rules for Better Pronunciation
- 290. English Idioms That Will Blow Your Mind
- 291. English Phrases They Never Taught You in School
- 292. English spelling is crazy! Let me tell you why ...
- 293. English words that are actually German #interactiveenglish #shorts
- 294. Euphemisms That Native Speakers Use All the Time
- 295. Euphemisms in English that You Need to Know
- 296. Everyday Words & Phrases You REALLY Must Know
- 297. Exercise Vocabulary | Important Words for Working Out
- 298. Expressions Native Speakers Use ALL THE TIME | Binomial Pairs
- 299. FAKE NEWS! | True Misconceptions about Learning English
- 300. FAMOUS MOVIE QUOTES EXPLAINED | Improve Your English Fluency
- 301. FAST SPEECH in the United States (Speak smoothly & naturally)
- 302. FIND YOUR MISTAKES Learn How to Correct Yourself
- 303. FRANKENWORDS: They're alive! (blended words quiz)
- 304. FUN vs FUNNY | Confusing Words in English
- 305. Fall Idioms to Help Build Your Vocabulary
- 306. Famous Movie Quotes that Americans LOVE to Use
- 307. Favorite Words of the Holiday Season | Year in Review
- 308. Fine-Tune Your Pronunciation - 25 Advanced Words with Silent Letters
- 309. Fluency Hack: Using Comparatives & Superlatives to Sound More Native

- 310. Fun Animal Idioms to Improve Your English
- 311. Fun Halloween Vocabulary...Don't be afraid. Watch & learn.
- 312. Future of Work Vocabulary You MUST Know in the Age of AI!
- 313. GO OUT Has 8 Different Meanings Phrasal Verb Lesson
- 314. GRAMMAR QUIZ | 15 Questions for Intermediate to Advanced Learners
- 315. GRASPING AT STRAWS | Advanced #Idiom
- 316. Gerunds vs Infinitives | Advanced Grammar Lesson
- 317. Ghostly Halloween Idioms That Will Scare You Stiff
- 318. Grammar Quiz - prepositions, verb tenses, adverbs, & more
- 319. Grammar Quiz on English Articles | A - An - The - No Article
- 320. Greet People Like a Native Speaker | Pronunciation Lesson
- 321. HALLOWEEN VOCABULARY & IDIOMS QUIZ
- 322. HAVE YOUR WORK CUT OUT FOR YOU | Advanced #Idiom to SUPERCHARGE Your Vocabulary
- 323. HOW TO EXPRESS THAT YOU'RE ANGRY
- 324. HOW TO GIVE A GREAT PRESENTATION
- 325. HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR ENGLISH IN 2019
- 326. HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR LISTENING SKILLS
- 327. HOW TO PRACTICE SPEAKING ENGLISH ON YOUR OWN
- 328. HOW TO SPEAK WITH A STANDARD AMERICAN ACCENT
- 329. Halloween English Lesson | Pronunciation + Culture + Vocabulary
- 330. Help Support Free English Education
- 331. Helpful Dating Phrasal Verbs about Love & Relationships
- 332. Helpful Study Tips to Improve Your English Skills
- 333. Heteronyms to Build Your Vocabulary & Improve Speaking Fluency
- 334. Homonyms & Homophones to Build Vocabulary
- 335. Hot Summer Idioms to Burn Into Your Vocabulary
- 336. How I Became FLUENT in English...
- 337. How Important is Grammar to Becoming Fluent
- 338. How good are your listening skills? | Comprehension Quiz
- 339. How long does it take to learn English? | Natural Conversation + Vocabulary
- 340. How to Be MORE Polite in English | Common Phrases to Navigate the Culture
- 341. How to Describe Yourself in a Job Interview | 20 Awesome Adjectives
- 342. How to Dramatically Improve Your Grammar
- 343. How to Find & Correct Your Grammar Mistakes
- 344. How to Improve Your Reading Skills
- 345. How to Improve Your Speaking Fluency | Q&A w/ Interactive English
- 346. How to Listen for Details & Improve Your Skills
- 347. How to Listen for Inferences | Improve Your Listening Fluency
- 348. How to Listen to New Vocabulary & Understand the Meaning
- 349. How to Overcome Your Anxiety and Fear of Speaking
- 350. How to Pronounce -ED Words Correctly | Speak English
- 351. How to Pronounce -ed Endings | Improve Your Pronunciation
- 352. How to Pronounce 25 Famous Brand Names in English
- 353. How to Pronounce the R & L Sounds Like a Native Speaker
- 354. How to Quickly & Effectively Build Your Vocabulary
- 355. How to Read New Vocabulary & Understand the Meaning
- 356. How to Say Useful and Difficult Numbers in English
- 357. How to Speak Fast & Sound Natural - Copy My American Accent
- 358. How to Speak with Different American Accents
- 359. How to Speak with a Southern Accent | American English
- 360. How to Start a Conversation | 3 Things You Need to Remember
- 361. How to Use Everyday Idioms | Bird's Eye View

- 362. How to Use Mixed Conditionals | Advanced English Grammar
- 363. How to Use Modal Verbs | Should - Could - Would
- 364. How to Use Social Media to Learn English (Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, Snapchat)
- 365. How to Use the 1st Conditional | Grammar Lesson
- 366. How to Use the 2nd Conditional | Useful Grammar Lesson
- 367. How to Use the Definite Article (THE) & Zero Article (X) | Grammar Lesson
- 368. How to Use the Past Perfect | Advanced Grammar Lesson
- 369. How to Use the Present Perfect | Advanced Grammar Lesson
- 370. How to Use the Word LIKE in English
- 371. How to Use the Word SO | Everything You Need to Know
- 372. How to Use the Word OF
- 373. How to Use the Zero Conditional | English Grammar Lesson
- 374. How to Write Formal & Informal Messages
- 375. How to pronounce the longest word in English #interactiveenglish #shorts
- 376. IDENTIFY THE MAIN IDEA | Practice Your Listening Skills
- 377. IDIOMS to Express Hope & Inspiration | Vocabulary Lesson
- 378. IELTS Listening Practice for Advanced Learners
- 379. IMPROVE YOUR LISTENING | Check out these summer songs...
- 380. IN / ON / AT - How do I use prepositions of place?
- 381. IT DOESN'T DO IT JUSTICE. (Advanced C2 Phrase) #interactiveenglish #shorts
- 382. Idioms for Casual Conversation (improve your speaking fluency)
- 383. Idioms for Everyday Conversation (develop your speaking fluency)
- 384. If I Had Known This... I Would Sound Fluent in English!
- 385. If You ACE This Quiz, Your English is Excellent!
- 386. If You Want to Succeed at Work, Learn These English Idioms
- 387. Important Christmas Vocabulary | English Cultural Lesson
- 388. Important Phrasal Verbs for When You Get Sick
- 389. Important Phrasal Verbs for Work and School
- 390. Important Travel Idioms So You Don't Miss the Boat
- 391. Impressive B2 Vocab That Makes You Stand Out
- 392. Improve Your Listening Skills to Effectively Learn English | Live-Lesson
- 393. Improve Your Listening to Easily Understand Fast Speakers
- 394. Improve Your Speaking Fluency | 11 Ways to Get More Practice
- 395. Improve your Speaking and Conversation Skills with me
- 396. Innuendos in English | Examples to Improve Your Comprehension
- 397. Intermediate Listening & Speaking Activity | Describe Words Around the Home
- 398. Intermediate to Advanced Grammar (B1 - C2) + Lesson Notes
- 399. Key Word Transformation Quiz | How to change sentences?
- 400. LEARN -ED & -ING ADJECTIVE ENDINGS | Advanced Grammar Lesson
- 401. LEARN ALL 12 VERB TENSES IN ENGLISH
- 402. LEARN ANIMAL VOCABULARY AT THE ZOO
- 403. LEARN SUBJECT-VERB AGREEMENT | Advanced Grammar
- 404. LEARN THE FUTURE TENSE | Will + (Be) Going To
- 405. LISTENING & SPEAKING ACTIVITY | Speak English on Your Own
- 406. LISTEN & LEARN | Build Vocabulary, Identify Key Details, Make Inferences
- 407. LIVE ENGLISH LESSON | Q&A with Wes, Ioana, and Emi
- 408. LIVE ENGLISH Q&A ANSWERING YOUR QUESTIONS
- 409. LIVE: Q&A with Interactive English + Big Announcement
- 410. LOSE YOUR HEAD | Advanced (C1) #Idiom to Build Your #Vocabulary
- 411. LOVE VOCABULARY | Words and phrases you need to know
- 412. Learn & Practice English with Listening Games | Fun Activity for Learners
- 413. Learn All 12 Verb Tenses + Mini-quiz | Grammar You Need to Know

- 414. Learn Awesome English Vocabulary....at IKEA!
- 415. Learn English & Stay Motivated
- 416. Learn English with Friends - Ross & Rachel Sex Tape | Improve Your Listening
- 417. Learn Future Time Clauses Correctly | Advanced Grammar
- 418. Learn Ordinal Numbers in English
- 419. Learn THIS - THAT - THESE - THOSE | Demonstrative Pronouns & Adjectives
- 420. Learn Tag Questions to Improve Your Fluency | Advanced Grammar
- 421. Learn Thanksgiving Vocabulary | Fun English Lesson
- 422. Learn Useful English Vocabulary Ignorant
- 423. Learn Vocabulary in Barcelona with Interactive English in Barcelona | Travel VLOG
- 424. Learn Vocabulary in Dubrovnik with Interactive English | Travel VLOG
- 425. Learn about July 4th in English | Vocabulary + American Culture
- 426. Learn the Difference...TOO vs ENOUGH | Grammar Lesson
- 427. Learn the SCHWA SOUND /ə/ the Most Common Sound in English
- 428. Learn to Use ACTIVE and PASSIVE VOICE | Advanced Grammar Lesson
- 429. Learn to Use SHADOWING and Improve Your Pronunciation
- 430. Learning English On Your Own?... NO PROBLEM | How to Practice By Yourself
- 431. Level Up Your English in Under 3 Minutes (B2 Adjectives)
- 432. Level Up Your English: Smart Ways to Describe Someone's Appearance
- 433. Listening & Speaking GAME | Advanced Vocabulary Naming People
- 434. Listening & Speaking GAME | Intermediate Vocabulary Describing People
- 435. Listening and Speaking GAME | Words that Describe People (Beginner)
- 436. Listening and Speaking Game | Guessing Transportation Words (Intermediate)
- 437. Live English Lesson to Improve Your Fluency | Q&A Conversation
- 438. MANY, MUCH, A LOT OF, & LOTS OF | Grammar Deep Dive with Common Quantifiers
- 439. MASTERING QUESTIONS (everything you need to know)
- 440. MASTER the American Accent with 9 Simple Words
- 441. MINIMAL PAIRS | Helpful Pronunciation Practice to Improve Your Fluency
- 442. Make Sure You Learn These Useful Clothing Phrasal Verbs
- 443. Make Your English More Impressive with These 12+ Letter Words
- 444. Make vs Do | How to Build Your Vocabulary with Useful Collocations
- 445. Master This DIFFICULT GRAMMAR to Improve Your Fluency
- 446. Military Idioms & Expressions that YOU Can Use
- 447. Minimal Pairs | Useful Pronunciation Practice
- 448. Money Idioms & Expressions to Build Your Vocabulary
- 449. Most Difficult Poem to Say in English | THE CHAOS
- 450. NEW ENGLISH WORDS FROM 2021 | Build Your Vocabulary
- 451. NEW ENGLISH WORDS TO ADD TO YOUR VOCABULARY | QUIZ LESSON
- 452. NEW WORDS from 2020 | Vocabulary Year in Review
- 453. NOUNS + PREPOSITIONS | Learn These Phrases
- 454. NOW YOU CAN SPEAK ENGLISH DIRECTLY WITH ME | Check out Speak Up!
- 455. Native Speakers Will Be Impressed If You Say These
- 456. Nature Idioms & Expressions for Everyday Conversation
- 457. New Year's Resolutions | Listening, Vocabulary, & MORE...
- 458. New Year's Vocabulary | Useful Words to Celebrate the New Year
- 459. Only Advanced Learners Can Score 10/10 on This Verb Tense Quiz
- 460. Our Favorite Places to Visit in the United States | Natural Conversation
- 461. PERPLEXING GRAMMAR Mistakes That Are Holding You Back
- 462. PICK UP has 20 Different Meanings | Phrasal Verb Vocabulary
- 463. POLITICAL VOCABULARY Advanced Words & Phrases You Should Know
- 464. POPULAR AMERICAN SLANG (Millennials & Gen Z)
- 465. PREPOSITIONS OF PLACE - IN, ON, AT | Quiz Lesson

- 466. PREPOSITIONS QUIZ | Advanced English Grammar
- 467. PREPOSITIONS THAT FOLLOW VERBS | Advanced Grammar
- 468. PREPOSITIONS that follow ADJECTIVES | Advanced Grammar
- 469. PREPOSITION QUIZ | How advanced is your grammar?
- 470. PRONUNCIATION & EMPHASIS LESSON | Interactive Quiz
- 471. PRONUNCIATION HACKS | Speak with the American accent
- 472. PUNS IN ENGLISH | Examples of a Play on Words
- 473. Phrasal Verb Quiz | Advanced Grammar & Vocabulary
- 474. Phrasal Verbs Q&A with Interactive English
- 475. Phrases Native Speakers Use ALL THE TIME | Binomial Pairs
- 476. Phrases for Casual Conversation (improve your speaking fluency)
- 477. Phrases to Fine-Tune Your Speaking Fluency
- 478. Phrases with IN, ON, and AT to Greatly Improve Your English Accuracy
- 479. Polite Ways to Express Sympathy in the Event of a Tragedy
- 480. Popular American Slang That People Always Use
- 481. Popular English Proverbs to Sound Like a Native Speaker
- 482. Popular Internet & Computer Symbols to Improve Your Vocabulary
- 483. Practice & Improve your English!
- 484. Practice PREPOSITIONS in English | Advanced Grammar Lesson
- 485. Present Perfect vs Present Perfect Continuous | When to use each so that you don't make mistakes
- 486. Present Simple vs Present Continuous | How to Improve Your Grammar
- 487. Professional Writing for Business, University, IELTS, TOEFL
- 488. Pronounce 25 Major US Cities Just Like an American
- 489. Pronounce the 50 US States Just Like an American
- 490. Pronounce these Famous Brands with the American Accent
- 491. Pronunciation English Lesson | Q&A w/ Interactive English
- 492. Pronunciation Q&A Lesson | You ask and I'll tell you how to say it
- 493. Q&A About Learning English, Life Updates, and More
- 494. Q&A Live-Lesson with Interactive English | You ask, I'll answer...
- 495. QUANTIFIERS for Non-count Food Nouns | Grammar Quiz
- 496. READING + VOCABULARY LESSON | Immigration in the US
- 497. READING QUIZ Learn Vocabulary & Answer Questions about the Cheetah
- 498. READING YOUR POSITIVE COMMENTS | Share the Love
- 499. READ FASTER IN ENGLISH | Become a Speed Reader
- 500. ROMANTIC PHRASAL VERBS FOR LOVE & RELATIONSHIPS
- 501. Reading + Vocabulary Lesson | EARTHQUAKES
- 502. Reading + Vocabulary Lesson | HELP FIGHT HUNGER
- 503. Reading + Vocabulary Lesson | Mental Health
- 504. Reading + Vocabulary Lesson | Protecting the Environment
- 505. Reading + Vocabulary Lesson | Vaccines
- 506. Reading Mean and Nasty Comments... And Laughing at Them
- 507. Reported Speech vs Direct Speech | Advanced Grammar Lesson
- 508. Rhythm & Flow in English | Thought Groups, Word Stress, & Connected Speech
- 509. Riddles in English | Improve Your Comprehension
- 510. SAY vs TELL | Confusing Words in English
- 511. SENTENCES in English | Everything you need to know about TYPE & STRUCTURE
- 512. SEXUAL INNUENDOS How to understand these suggestive remarks....
- 513. SHOPPING PHRASAL VERBS TO IMPROVE FLUENCY
- 514. SHOULD HAVE | COULD HAVE | WOULD HAVE - Modals of Lost Opportunity
- 515. SLANG from All Over the United States
- 516. SOME vs ANY | Commonly Confused Grammar
- 517. SONGS TO IMPROVE YOUR LISTENING FLUENCY

- 518. SOUND LIKE YOU'RE FROM THE US! 1-Hour Deep-Dive into American Accent, Pronunciation, & Culture
- 519. SPEAKING ACTIVITY Practice using descriptive vocabulary
- 520. SPEAK FAST (and clearly) like an American
- 521. SPEAK FAST (and easily) like an American
- 522. SPEAK FAST LIKE AN AMERICAN #shorts #americanenglish
- 523. SPRING IDIOMS & EXPRESSIONS TO BRIGHTEN UP YOUR DAY
- 524. START USING THESE REDUCTIONS - gonna, wanna, hafta, gimme, lemme
- 525. STOP Making This Common Grammar Mistake!
- 526. STOP Mispronouncing These 5 Verbs! Quick Pronunciation Fix
- 527. STOP SAYING BAD Use these 46 words & phrases instead
- 528. STOP SAYING GOOD! Use these 77 words & phrases instead...
- 529. STOP SAYING UM, AH, ER, LIKE... | Avoid Using Fillers for Effective Speaking
- 530. STOP TRANSLATING from English to Your Native Language
- 531. STOP USING THIS VOCABULARY Use these words & phrases instead...
- 532. STOP Using VERY & Use These 54 AMAZING Alternatives!
- 533. SUFFIXES to Help You Grow Your Vocabulary
- 534. SUPER-USEFUL ADVERBS | Take the quiz to become an adverb all-star!
- 535. SUPER ADVANCED VOCABULARY | Descriptive words to be more precise
- 536. SUPER CONFUSING WORDS | 1-Hour Vocabulary Lesson
- 537. SUPER CONFUSING WORDS | Learn slight nuances to improve your vocabulary
- 538. SUPER IMPORTANT EXPRESSIONS | Clichés in Spoken English
- 539. SUPER USEFUL IDIOMS | Talk about Friends & Family
- 540. SUPER USEFUL PHRASAL VERBS w/ FALL | Build Your Vocabulary
- 541. SUPER USEFUL PHRASAL VERBS w/ SPRING | Build Your Vocabulary
- 542. SUPER USEFUL PHRASES | Binomial Pair Quiz
- 543. SUPER USEFUL PHRASES | Build Your Vocabulary | Ways to Say "Happening Soon"
- 544. SUPER USEFUL PHRASES | Expressing Ability vs Inability
- 545. SUPER USEFUL PHRASES | Ways to Express Ability vs Inability
- 546. Say this dialogue if you want to speak like a CHAMP
- 547. Silent Letters (K & W) | Learn English Pronunciation & Spelling
- 548. Similar Spelling, Wildly Different Sounds English Makes NO Sense!
- 549. Slang, Informal, and Formal Vocabulary | English Class
- 550. Slang, Informal, and Formal Words in English | #Vocabulary Class #Shorts
- 551. Sound Fluent in English - Use These (C1) Phrases Like a Native!
- 552. Sound Fluent with These Advanced English Phrases
- 553. Sound Like a Native: Advanced Idioms You NEED to Know
- 554. Sound More American FAST: Master Connected Speech in 45 Minutes!
- 555. Sound Natural, Not Textbook! Advanced English Phrases Explained
- 556. Sound Professional with these Advanced Verbs | Build Your Vocabulary
- 557. Sound Smarter Instantly with These B2 Words
- 558. Speak English Smoothly: Rhythm, Flow & Fast Speech Tricks
- 559. Speak FAST (and naturally) like an American
- 560. Speak FAST (and smooth) like an American
- 561. Speak Fluent Office English: Advanced Idioms for the Workplace
- 562. Speak Like a Leader: Advanced Phrases Every Professional Must Know
- 563. Speak Like a Native Compelling Vocabulary You MUST Know
- 564. Speak Like a Native Powerful Vocabulary You MUST Know
- 565. Speak Like a Native Powerful Vocabulary You Should Know
- 566. Speak Like a Pro Advanced Phrases ESL Learners Should Know
- 567. Speak Like an American: Accent & Pronunciation Training
- 568. Speak Naturally & Easily Using Contractions
- 569. Speak Quickly & Naturally by LINKING These Common Words

- 570. Speak Quickly & Naturally “go to the” | Fast Speech in American English
- 571. St. Patrick's Day English Lesson | Pronunciation + Culture + Vocabulary
- 572. Start READING to Start Improve Your English | Reading Comprehension Quiz (La Tomatina)
- 573. Stop Confusing These Words | Advanced Vocabulary + Quiz
- 574. Stop Putting Adjectives in the Wrong Order
- 575. Stop Saying Everything Is INTERESTING | Build Your Vocabulary with Advanced Synonyms
- 576. Stop Translating! Learn This B1 Vocabulary to Speak with Confidence
- 577. Stop Translating in Your Head | Start Thinking in English
- 578. Stop Using Basic English! Speak Like a Pro with These Advanced Phrases
- 579. Summer Idioms to Help You Beat the Heat
- 580. Super Advanced Vocabulary that will BLOW YOUR MIND
- 581. Super Confusing Words for English Learners | BUILD YOUR VOCABULARY
- 582. Super Confusing Words? | Useful HOMONYMS explained
- 583. Super Descriptive Adjectives to Build Your Vocabulary
- 584. Super USEFUL EXPRESSIONS for your next conversation (30-minute Lesson)
- 585. Super Useful American Expressions | Build Your Vocabulary
- 586. Super Useful Idioms & Expressions w/ SPEAK or TALK
- 587. Super Useful Idioms & Expressions | Learn American English
- 588. Super Useful Idioms & Phrases for the US Election
- 589. Super Useful Phrasal Verbs for Everyday English
- 590. Super Useful Phrases for Advanced English Speakers
- 591. Super Useful SPEAKING Phrases to Build Your Vocabulary
- 592. Super Useful Stock Market Vocabulary | Words & Phrases You Need to Know
- 593. Super Useful Weather Phrasal Verbs
- 594. Surprising Things about Americans & Living in the USA
- 595. TAKE THE IDIOM QUIZ | COMMON & USEFUL AMERICAN IDIOMS
- 596. TAKE UP Has 6 Different Meanings Phrasal Verb Lesson
- 597. THANKSGIVING PHRASES + COLLOCATIONS | Build Your Holiday Vocabulary
- 598. THAT, WHICH, WHO? Important Relative Pronouns You Need to Know
- 599. THE SHORTEST WORD IN ENGLISH #shorts
- 600. TOP 10 REASONS TO LEARN ENGLISH
- 601. TRAVEL VOCABULARY - Useful words & phrases for your next trip
- 602. TRICKY GRAMMAR QUIZ | MANY ENGLISH LEARNERS GET CONFUSED
- 603. TRICKY VERB TENSES Advanced Grammar Quiz
- 604. TRY LISTENING FOR KEY DETAILS | Advanced Practice Lesson
- 605. Take This Advanced Vocabulary Quiz | Learn New Words
- 606. Take Your SPEAKING FLUENCY to the NEXT LEVEL
- 607. Take the CONDITIONALS QUIZ | Advanced Grammar
- 608. Take vs Have | How to Build Vocabulary with Useful Collocations
- 609. The 3rd Conditional EASILY EXPLAINED | English Grammar Lesson
- 610. The BEST BOOKS for Beginner, Intermediate, & Advanced Learners
- 611. The BEST BOOKS for learning English
- 612. The BEST Listening & Speaking Activity | Practice English on Your Own
- 613. The BEST Ways to Greatly Improve Your Fluency in 2021 & Beyond
- 614. The Health Vocab Native Speakers Use Every Day (Advanced Words & Phrases)
- 615. The MOST DIFFICULT Tongue Twister #interactiveenglish
- 616. The Many Things We're Thankful For | HAPPY THANKSGIVING
- 617. The Names of Different Nationalities | Learn English Demonyms
- 618. The SECRETS to Understanding American FAST SPEECH
- 619. The TRUTH about Becoming Fluent in English
- 620. The Ultimate Philanthropy: Giving Billions of Dollars Away | Reading + Vocabulary
- 621. The Word ANTICIPATE | Build Useful English Vocabulary

- 622. Things You Should NOT Say to Women (in English)
- 623. Think You're Fluent? This English Grammar Quiz Will Test You!
- 624. Think Your English Is Advanced? Prove It in This Grammar Challenge!
- 625. This is why your English teachers encourage you to make mistakes...
- 626. Try This! 5 Tricky English Adjectives Every Learner Should Master
- 627. UNLOCK THE AMERICAN ACCENT | Useful Pronunciation Tips
- 628. USEFUL HALLOWEEN VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know
- 629. USEFUL LISTENING SKILLS | Main Idea - Key Details - Make Inferences - Interpret Meaning
- 630. USEFUL RESTAURANT VOCABULARY YOU NEED TO KNOW
- 631. USE CONTEXT CLUES TO UNDERSTAND NEW VOCABULARY
- 632. US Election Aftermath (What happens now?) | Reading + Vocabulary
- 633. US Regional Vocabulary You Need to Know (+ Lesson Notes)
- 634. Understand EVERYTHING in English | Improve Your Listening
- 635. Unlock Your English Fluency with These Speaking Hacks
- 636. Unlock the American Accent: Speak Smooth, Natural English Now!
- 637. Upper-Intermediate (B2) Expressions | Strengthen Your Vocabulary
- 638. Upper-Intermediate (B2) Phrases to Build Your Vocabulary
- 639. Upper-Intermediate (B2) Phrases to Supercharge Your Vocabulary
- 640. Upper-Intermediate B2 Vocabulary Every Fluent Speaker Knows
- 641. Upper-Intermediate Phrases (B1 + B2) You Definitely Need to Know
- 642. Use CONTEXT CLUES to Build Your Vocabulary
- 643. Use PREFIXES to Build Your Vocabulary
- 644. Use These (B2) Phrases to Instantly Sound More Fluent!
- 645. Use These Advanced English Phrases to Sound Like a Native
- 646. Used to vs Use to | Confusing Grammar You Should Know
- 647. Useful (C1) #Collocations with BROADEN
- 648. Useful Adverb Collocations to Build Your Vocabulary
- 649. Useful Beach Vocabulary to Improve Your Fluency
- 650. Useful Business Expressions to Sound More Professional
- 651. Useful COLLOCATIONS in English (+ Lesson Notes)
- 652. Useful Christmas Collocations #shorts #interactiveenglish
- 653. Useful Collocations to Greatly Improve Your English
- 654. Useful English Expressions w/ BABY #learnenglish #shorts
- 655. Useful English Expressions | Rain, Rain, Rain
- 656. Useful Expressions & Idioms All About HOME
- 657. Useful Expressions to Tell a Great Story | Time Order Words
- 658. Useful Food Idioms for Delicious English Fun
- 659. Useful Games to Help Practice & Improve Your English
- 660. Useful Idioms You Absolutely NEED TO KNOW for 2025
- 661. Useful Idioms in 60 minutes | Greatly Improve Your Vocabulary
- 662. Useful Idioms with the word TRAIN
- 663. Useful LOVE Idioms to Improve Your Fluency
- 664. Useful Listening & Speaking Activity | Describe Words Around the Home
- 665. Useful Listening Phrasal Verbs to Improve Your Fluency
- 666. Useful Pet Idioms to Improve Your English Fluency
- 667. Useful Phrasal Verbs to Easily Talk about Clothing
- 668. Useful Phrasal Verbs with GET | Vocabulary Lesson
- 669. Useful Phrases to Express Your Opinion | Build Your Vocabulary
- 670. Useful Phrases to Say "I'm tired." | Build Your Vocabulary
- 671. Useful Proverbs to Share WISDOM | Advanced Expressions
- 672. Useful Proverbs to Share WISDOM | Build Your Vocabulary
- 673. Useful SPEAKING Phrases to Build Your Vocabulary

- 674. Useful Shopping Idioms So You Can Shop Till You Drop
- 675. Useful Shopping Phrasal Verbs to Improve Your English
- 676. Useful Signposts to Improve Your Listening Comprehension & Speaking Skills
- 677. Useful Speaking Phrasal Verbs for Better Communication
- 678. Useful Speaking Tips to Help You Prepare for the IELTS
- 679. Useful Speaking Tips to Improve Your Fluency
- 680. Useful Sport Idioms to Improve Your English
- 681. Useful Study Phrasal Verbs to Improve Fluency
- 682. Useful TRAVEL PHRASES That You Need to Know
- 683. Useful Technology Phrasal Verbs for Surfing the Internet
- 684. Useful Time Expressions to Help Improve Your Fluency
- 685. Useful Tips on How to Build the Perfect Resume or CV
- 686. Useful Tongue Twisters to Help You Practice Pronunciation
- 687. Useful Verbs to Talk about the SPRING
- 688. Useful Vocabulary for Job Performance (Lesson Notes Included)
- 689. Useful Vocabulary for Social Media (Facebook, Instagram, & Twitter)
- 690. Useful Vocabulary to Talk About Sounds | ONOMATOPOEIA
- 691. Useful Vocabulary to Understand the US Election | Trump vs Biden 2020
- 692. Useful Water Phrases to Build Your Vocabulary
- 693. Useful Weather Idioms to Build Your Vocabulary
- 694. Useful Winter Expressions to Build Your Vocabulary
- 695. Useful Words & Synonyms on How to Say You're SAD
- 696. Useful Words to Say Things Are Cheap and Expensive
- 697. Useful World Cup Idioms for Your Vocabulary Goals
- 698. Using Pictures to Improve Your English
- 699. Using Subtitles to Enhance Your English Skills
- 700. Using the Past Tense | Learn the Simple Past, Past Continuous, & Present Perfect
- 701. VERB TENSE QUIZ | Grammar Lesson for Intermediate to Advanced Learners
- 702. VERB TENSE QUIZ | Advanced Grammar Lesson
- 703. VOCABULARY Q&A LESSON w/ INTERACTIVE ENGLISH
- 704. VOCABULARY TO HELP YOU UNDERSTAND THE PANDEMIC
- 705. Valentine's Day | Discussion of Useful Words & Phrases
- 706. Vocabulary - however, nevertheless, nonetheless, in addition, moreover, furthermore
- 707. Vocabulary About the Economy | Read and Put New Words In Context
- 708. Vocabulary Challenge | What do you call this place?
- 709. WAYS TO SAY "I'M SICK" | Learn these Super Useful Phrases
- 710. WEIRD & STRANGE IDIOMS | Supercharge Your English Fluency
- 711. WHERE TO PLACE ADVERBS? | ADVANCED ENGLISH GRAMMAR
- 712. WILL vs GOING TO | Learn to correctly talk about the future
- 713. WORD OF THE YEAR (2010 - Present) | Advanced Vocabulary
- 714. Walk the Path to Achieving English Fluency
- 715. Want to Sound Fluent? Advanced Words Native Speakers Actually Use!
- 716. Weird, Strange, and Fascinating Expressions | English Tautologies
- 717. What's going on with US protests, Black Lives Matter, & George Floyd | Reading + Vocabulary
- 718. What's the most difficult language skill to learn? | Natural Conversation + Vocabulary
- 719. What We Do NOT Miss About America | Interactive English Cultural Lesson
- 720. What We Miss About America | Interactive English Cultural Lesson
- 721. What it's like to live outside the US | Natural Conversation + Vocabulary
- 722. What to Say & What NOT to Say When a Woman is Pregnant
- 723. Who Are You? | Fun Q&A with Interactive English
- 724. Why English is SO hard to learn? | + Lesson Notes
- 725. Why It's Difficult to Understand Movies, TV, or Music | Improve Your Listening

- 726. Why You Should Learn Other Languages | Natural Conversation + Vocabulary
- 727. Why learn another language? | Natural Conversation + Vocabulary
- 728. Why we created a Interactive English | Natural Conversation + Vocabulary
- 729. Winter Words, Idioms, and Expressions to Help Your Fluency
- 730. Write Smarter, Not Harder | 7 Tips to Instantly Improve Your Academic Writing
- 731. You're definitely fluent if you can change these. | Advanced (C1 + C2) Grammar
- 732. YouTube Vocabulary that You Need to Know
- 733. You are DEFINITELY FLUENT if you can change these.
- 734. You are FLUENT in Thanksgiving if you can answer these
- 735. You are obviously fluent in English if you can understand these
- 736. You have certainly achieved fluency if you can change these. | Advanced Grammar (B2 - C2)
- 737. You know YOU'RE FLUENT when ... | English Fluency Test
- 738. Your English grammar is EXCELLENT if you can answer these
- 739. Your Path to Speaking Confidently, Clearly, & Effectively
- 740. Your listening skills are EXCELLENT if you understand AMERICAN FAST SPEECH
- 741. ONLINE ENGLISH LESSON | Q&A with Interactive English
- 742. LIVE ENGLISH LESSON Q&A with Interactive English
- 743. 35 Creative Ways to Write SAID | Make Your Writing POP
- 744. FLUENCY TEST | What is your level of English?
- 745. CRIME VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you need to know
- 746. LIVE ENGLISH LESSON | Q&A with Interactive English
- 747. LIVE ENGLISH Q&A LESSON | Interactive English
- 748. LIVE English Lesson | Q&A Session
- 749. DON'T MAKE THESE GRAMMAR MISTAKES THAT EVEN NATIVE SPEAKERS MAKE

LESSON 1 OF 749

1-HOUR LESSON - C2 Vocab Every Serious Learner Must Know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Let's take your advanced vocabulary to the moon like a rocket because I am going to teach you some super useful advanced C2 level words and phrases. And if you are someone who enjoys building your vocabulary, please subscribe, turn on notifications. That way I can become your teacher. My name is Wes. The channel is interactive English. It is all about helping you reach your fluency goals. So, this vocabulary is at a C2 level, which is Cambridge's highest level of proficiency, which means that well, these words and phrases will definitely help you be more descriptive and precise. So, let's go ahead and get started with some C2 phrases. So, I am going to teach you these advanced phrases. I'll tell you the meaning. I'll give you some context as to how they're used. And I'm going to teach you the pronunciation because if you're going to use these phrases, you want to make sure that you are saying them correctly. So, let's face it, building your vocabulary is extremely important. And let's face it is the first phrase that I would like to teach you. So, this phrase is used to say that something is true and cannot be denied or it is said before something that is true but unpleasant. And just keep in mind that you're really going to use this phrase at the beginning of a statement. So to give you some context, let's look at a few memes. Let's face it, you laugh at anything I say. This is true and undeniable. Or let's face it, you're the reason I drink. In this case, it's true and unpleasant. Or let's face it, memes are a childish way to communicate and debate ideas. This is also true, but they do make for some great examples. Now, when it comes to pronouncing this phrase, and you want to make sure you're saying these words together instead of pronouncing the words individually, one thing to keep in mind is that linking may occur. And this often happens when the final sound of one word is a consonant sound and the beginning sound of the next word is a vowel sound. So, let's face it. The final consonant sound in face may get linked with the vowel sound in it. And it's going to sound like face it. It's almost like we're carrying that consonant sound over to the next syllable. Face it. Let's face it. You know, let's face it. If you would like to continue building your vocabulary, well, then you need to subscribe, turn on notifications. That way, I can become your teacher. And the next C2 phrase that I want to teach you is few and far between. It means not happening or existing very often. And you would say that something is few and far between. So it it's often going to follow the verb to be. And typically it's going to come at the end of a statement. In this town, good workers are few and far between. This winter snowy days have been few and far between. And that's true. It's been a rather mild winter. Or I could say, "Miracles are few and far between." In each of these sentences, the phrase follows the verb to be and comes at the end of the statement. As for pronunciation, the very first thing that I want to point out is that the word and may get reduced to n. And this is common in spoken English. And and keep in mind, it's also an unstressed sound. N. Now, it begins with a vowel sound. and the word before ends in a consonant sound. So once again, linking may occur. Few, few and far between. And reductions, they're quite common. And in this case, it allows us to just say the phrase quickly. Few and far between. Few and far between. Just listen for it.

All I'm saying is that the really good guys are few and far between.

The wealthy families in the countryside are few and far between.

Friends, close friends are few and far between. The next one that I have for you is fall into place. And this is when things are happening in a satisfactory way without any problems. So it really does have a positive connotation. And often you're referring to several things that are going on. And you could say everything is falling into place. So let's say that we're working on a project and toward the end everyone is completing their work on time. The numbers are adding up. people are working well together and we're going to finish well before the deadline. So in that case I could say as we got toward the end of the project everything was falling into place. When you pronounce this phrase keep in mind linking will often occur. sound in fall with the beginning vowel sound in into fall into. Fall into fall into place. You know say it with me.

Ted's stepdad and I have separated.

Oh my god.

It's for the best. Well, thank you, but uh we think it'd be better if we left.

Not because of last night. It's for the best. I think that pronouncing this phrase, it's not too difficult for the best. The only thing that I would tell you to keep in mind is that the article 'the', it is the weak 'the', and you're using the schwa sound, that uh sound, because it comes before a word that begins with a consonant sound. For the best. For the best. The next phrase is conflict of interest. And you may be thinking, wait a second, I have heard this phrase. and that is because it describes a situation that is quite common. So this phrase is very useful and we're talking about describing a situation in which someone cannot make a fair decision because they will be affected by the result. So let's just say that I am going to judge a contest for children and my daughter is one of the participants. Do you think that I am a fair judge or would you say that I have a conflict of interest because this is my daughter. I would love to see her win. So perhaps I'm not capable of making a fair decision in this case. And you would say, "Look, Wes, you clearly have a conflict of interest. And I'm sure that you can think of someone that you know who has had a conflict of interest because like I said, this is a very common and useful phrase. For pronunciation, there is some more linking going on. We can actually link all three of these words together. We can link that final consonant sound in conflict with the beginning vowel sound in of conflict of. And then we can link that consonant sound with the beginning vowel sound in interest.

Conflict of interest. Conflict of interest. And one thing I want to point out with that preposition of whenever you see this word linking often occurs such as in this phrase conflict of interest. Then we have the phrase something dawn on someone and this means to understand or realize something for the first time. I was about to pay for the groceries when it suddenly dawned on me that I forgot my wallet and I just realized it. All of a sudden, it dawns on me. And there are some great collocations with this phrase. You could say something suddenly dawn on someone or something finally dawn on someone. And when you're pronouncing this phrase, there's more linking. You can link the final consonant sound in dawn with the vowel sound in on dawn on. However, I think people may often use this phrase in the past tense in which they're going to say dawned on. And and that can be a little trickier because of the repetition when we're linking something dawned on me or dawned on him or dawned on her. And you hear that repetition dawned on. Our next phrase is to crack down on something or crack down on someone. And it just means to take strong action to stop something. And in order to show you this phrase being used in context, I have some news headlines that I'd like to share with you. Washington bill aims to crack down on street racing. Three things we know about Netflix's efforts to crack down on password sharing. Something that I'm not too happy about. The Supreme Court might not crack down on big tech after all.

And when you pronounce this phrase, more linking may occur. We can link the final consonant sound in down with the vowel sound in on. crack down on. And I think this is a little easier to say than the other one. Something dawned on someone. But linking, it's very common. It allows us to connect these words and say these phrases easily and smoothly. Crack down on in the blink of an eye. This is our next phrase and it means extremely quickly. And it really makes sense because when you blink, well, that that's pretty fast. Now, you're likely going to use this phrase at either the beginning of a statement, in the blink of an eye, something happened. Or you'll use it at the end of a statement.

Something happened in the blink of an eye. This phrase may often get used when referring to time or maybe someone is just suddenly gone. And instead of saying something happened very quickly, I would just switch it out. Something happened in the blink of an eye. Now, I have been married for, let me do the math, 6 years now. And I could say that, well, this time has passed quickly. 6 years have gone by in the blink of an eye. For pronunciation, we're going to use that weak 'the' with the schwa sound. And then link those final four words, the blink of an eye. And once again, it's like we're we're just carrying that final consonant sound over to the next syllable. Blink of an eye.

the blink of an eye. And the next phrase, I really like this one, but in it just means to interrupt. And really, you would be interrupting a conversation, a discussion, or just getting involved in someone else's business. And you might hear someone use this phrase if they're telling another person to stop doing this. Don't butt in. Just make sure my idiot interns don't screw up. You're the IB Heep. Don't butt in. vowel sounds. I am going to say this as a flap t and it's going to sound more like a soft d. But in can link that flap t with the vowel sound in in but in. Hey hey hey don't butt in. Then there's the phrase by all means.

This is used to give permission like you're just saying yes certainly. And often you may use this as a standalone statement. Uh you're responding to someone's question.

Could I borrow this book? By all means. Can I make a suggestion? By all means. Perhaps you are asking me, would you like me to hit the like button? And I would say, well, yeah, by all means, please go ahead, hit that like button. By all means. When it comes to the pronunciation of this phrase and someone is speaking quickly, they may use intrusion to link the two vowel sounds in the words by and all. By all. And intrusion is when you're adding either a slight w sound or a slight y sound. And that then allows us to link two vowels. And we're gonna use a slight Y sound which comes after front vowel sounds like I. So, by all means. And you hear that slight Y sound. By all. By all means. Then we have the phrase behind closed doors.

This refers to a situation that is hidden or kept secret from the public without an audience or crowd watching. And again, this is a situation that is common. So, I think this is a very useful phrase. People may often use this phrase when referring to government or business decisions that are kept secret. We didn't want the public to know. So, the decision was made behind closed doors. And yeah, secrecy, it's not a good thing. When pronouncing this phrase, elision may occur. is when certain sounds get removed. And I'm talking about the t or duh sounds when they come between two consonants. So, think about the word handsome. that D, it comes between two consonants. It elides. We don't hear it with our phrase. Both of the D sounds in behind and closed, they're going to elide. They come between two consonant sounds and and it's like they get muted and you just don't really hear it. Behind closed doors. Behind closed doors. Once again, just listen for it. I heard about a third fight between you and Apollo.

Behind closed doors. How did he know to choose them? Everything happened behind closed doors. What's going on? There's been people whispering behind closed doors.

So, we just talked about secrecy with the phrase behind closed doors. Now, let's go in the other direction and talk about the phrase come to light. This refers to facts that become known publicly. And once again, there are useful collocations with this phrase. We could say that new evidence comes to light or new facts may come to light or new details may come to light. I could say recently new details came to light showing how the decision was made behind closed doors. And it's like this secret information became known publicly. When you pronounce this phrase, it's pretty straightforward. The only thing that I would like to point out is the word to. when you're stressing it, it's pronounced just like I said to. But there is another accepted form of pronunciation and that is when it's unstressed and it's going to sound more like t. And if somebody is saying this phrase quickly, they may not stress that word and it's going to sound like come to light. Come to light. Some new evidence comes to light. Now, for a little review. I I know that this lesson has gone by in the blink of an eye, but by all means, please watch another video lesson because let's face it, great vocabulary lessons like this one are few and far between. And I I am a firm believer that if you keep practicing and you keep learning a little bit each and every day, when it comes to improving your English, everything's just going to fall right into place. So, I I think I need to wrap things up and and say goodbye. It's for the best. I hope that you enjoyed that last bit of review. It's always good to to hear how the vocabulary is used in context. I'm going to keep trying to do that as we go through the lesson, but right now, I want to switch gears and I want to teach you some incredibly useful C2 verbs. And I say incredibly useful because verbs are so important. They are like the heart of every statement, thought, and opinion. They provide us with invaluable information. So, without further ado, here are some essential C2 verbs. Let's learn some advanced C2 verbs. And I'm going to get right to the point and we'll begin with our first verb, which is to linger. So, this verb actually has two different meanings. The first one is to continue to exist. So if I were sick and I have a cold, I could say that it is still lingering. And in this case, you may often hear it being used in the continuous tense with that adverb still. That's a good adverb verb collocation. Something is still lingering. How's your cold? Unfortunately, it's still lingering. It also means to take longer than usual to leave. And in this case, you may be talking about a person or group of people. Some customers lingered for a while after the shop closed and and they just took longer than usual to leave. When you pronounce this verb, it has two syllables. The stress is on that first syllable, linger. But I want to focus on that ng because it can be a little confusing. Look at these two words. They are not rhyming words. Singer, you only have that ing sound. Whereas linger, you have the ing plus that g sound afterwards. Linger. It's similar to the word finger. These are rhyming words. Linger. Finger.

Any of you wish to seek counseling due to lingering trauma.

And we can link the final consonant sound in dole with the beginning vowel sound in out. And this is when linking commonly occurs. Linking a final consonant sound with a beginning vowel sound. And it just helps us make a smooth transition from one word to the next. Dole out. Dole out. Then we have the verb pinpoint. It also has two meanings. The first one is to find or say the exact position in space or time of something. I may ask you the question, can you pinpoint our location on the map? Because I just want to know where we are. It also means to discover or describe the exact facts of something. I could tell you doctors could not pinpoint the cause of his illness. So, in this case, they just could not describe the facts of his illness. For pronunciation, the verb has two syllables. The stress is on that first syllable, pinpoint. And I'd also like to point out that final T. It's really a stop T. It's pretty subtle. Pinpoint.

And the next one that I have for you is plague. This means to cause worry, pain, or difficulty to someone or something over a period of time. And often you may follow this verb with the preposition by. You have been plagued by something. I could tell you that well my athletic career has been plagued by back injuries. And to be honest, I've never really had much of an athletic career. That's not really true. But yes, over the years I have been plagued by back injuries. That part is unfortunately true. When it comes to pronunciation, the spelling and pronunciation don't really look like they match. But that final gue, it's going to be pronounced with an aspirated g sound, plague. But often people may use this verb as well, the past participle, in which case it's going to end with the final d sound. And those consonants that can be a difficult combination that plagued. Plagued.

You've been plagued by something.

I'm plagued by an internal struggle.

If you would just use the bucket, you'd be so much more comfortable.

Sunrise Bay was a coastal community plagued by a centuries old curse.

Next is the verb prescribe. And this is a very useful verb because it's when a doctor says what kind of treatment someone should have. And it's very specific because we're really talking about someone's health. And there are some common collocations with this verb because a doctor may prescribe some medicine or prescribe some pills or prescribe some rest or even prescribe some painkillers. Now, this verb has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable. Prescribe. And that first syllable, even though it's spelled p r e, it has a p sound because it's unstressed. Prescribe. Say it with me. Prescribe. Excellent. Then we have the verb utter. This means to say something or just make a sound with your voice. So sometimes it can be interchangeable with say except that it's a bit more formal and not as commonly used. Maybe I tell you he sat through the meeting without uttering a word. And that's a good collocation with this verb without uttering a word. Now to talk about the difference between utter and say is that well u is not always clear. She uttered something through the car window but I didn't understand what she was saying. It wasn't clear but I could tell she was making some sounds with her voice and uttered something. For pronunciation the verb has two syllables. The stress is on that first syllable utter. But what I'd really like to point out is that T, I am going to pronounce it as a flap T. It's going to sound like a soft D. And this is pretty common with the American accent when the T comes between two vowel sounds. There are many words we can say with the flap T, like water, better, udder. Just just listen for it.

It was him. He uttered something.

Oh, I'm sorry. I uttered.

You think you're funny, don't you, bro?

It is the truth. uttered with his own lips. [music] What she said? Hasn't uttered another syllable.

*Then we have the verb curb. And to curb something means to control or limit something that is not wanted. And you would try to curb something. And in order to show you how this verb is used in context, once again, I have some news headlines for you. This phone helped me curb my screen addiction. Syria agrees to curb drug trade in meeting with Arab ministers. Brazil orders Google to curb campaign against fake news law. And when you pronounce this verb, it's pretty simple and straightforward. There's just one syllable, curb. But that u has more of an vowel sound. Curb. To curb something. Then there's lure. This means to persuade someone to do something or go somewhere by offering them something exciting. And often you may follow this verb with the preposition into or to.

The employees were lured into working over the weekend with the promise of overtime. Or universities try to lure the top academics to their school.

They always set those things to pay out more so they can lure people into the casino. Tyler and I feel due to Marie's attempt to lure him to your house. trying to lure him.

Oh, very clever, Simpson. Luring our bees to your sugar and selling them back to us at an inflated price. You're on to what now? Simpson, you diabolical.

When you pronounce this verb, just make sure that you are saying that diff thong because that u it's going to sound like a combination of vowel sounds.

Lure. Say it with me. Lure. Lure. Good. Then there's indulge. And I really like this verb. It means to allow yourself or some other person to have something enjoyable, especially more than what's good for you. So you may follow this verb with the preposition in and you indulge in something. Late at night, sometimes I get a little hungry and I probably shouldn't eat anything, but I like to indulge in sweets and I'll have some cookies or chocolate. And often you may use this verb when talking about food and you indulge in something and you have more than what's really good for you. For pronunciation, there are two syllables. The stress is on that second syllable and that g has more of a J sound. Indulge. Indulge. What do you like to indulge in? Let me know in the comments. Then there's delegate. This means to give a job, duty, or right to someone so they can do it for you. And this verb is often used in the context of work because you can't do everything. So you may delegate certain responsibilities to other people. And you may also say that a boss or supervisor is good at delegating and they tell others what they need to do. Or perhaps someone is bad at delegating because they try to do everything themselves and yeah that may not be a good situation. So this is a very useful verb when talking about work. This verb has three syllables. The stress is on that first syllable. Delegate. Now, don't confuse this with the noun because that third syllable is pronounced differently when you say the noun delegate. With the verb, you're going to use that long a sound delegate. Now, I'd also like to point out that when you use this verb in the continuous tense, it's going to change from a stop t to a flap

t, at least with the American accent. And you'd say that someone is delegating something. And you're going to use that flap T. Once again, just listen for it. I'm delegating. He's delegating. Don't shy away from delegating.

Reconcile. Great verb. This means to find a way in which two situations or beliefs that are opposed to each other can agree or exist together. And you could hear somebody say something like, "We need to reconcile our differences." That's a great collocation with this verb. The boys appear [music] to have reconciled their differences.

A rose and her daughter have reconciled their differences. That's why it's important for you to reconcile your differences. You could also reconcile something with something. I could say research is being done to reconcile the world's population growth with sustainability. So these two things, they seem opposed, but we need to reconcile them and find a way for them to exist together. Growth and sustainability. For pronunciation, the verb has three syllables. The stress is on that first syllable. And keep in mind that the c has more of an s sound. Reconcile. Reconcile. And then there's loathe, which is a pretty powerful verb because it means to hate someone or something. So loathe, just like hate, it's a strong word, so be careful how you're using it. But of course, there are probably things that I'm sure you loathe. I know there are things that I loathe, like I loathe sitting at an airport when my flight has been delayed.

or I loathe anchovies. I just don't like eating them. Or I loathe driving in really bad weather conditions. For pronunciation, it's just the one syllable, but make sure you're using that voice th at the end. Loath. Let's say it together. Loath. Loath. Nice. Now, for a little review. I'm sure that you do not loathe building your vocabulary and I hope that I can lure you into watching another video lesson because even though I'm not a doctor, that is what I would prescribe in order for you to develop your English fluency. And I to be honest, I know it's not good to watch a lot of videos and be in front of a screen, but in this case, of course, I think it's okay for you to indulge a little bit and watch many different video lessons. I have a lot on this channel, especially vocabulary lessons in which you will find me doling have you not already hit the like button?" Okay, it's just the only example that I can think of, but I promise I'm not going to mention it again. For pronunciation, just keep in mind that the article 'the', we're actually going to use the stronger form 'the', because it comes before a word that begins with a vowel sound. Typically, the article comes before words that begin with a consonant and we say that weaker 'the', but I'm sure you already knew that because you're on the ball. We can also link the final consonant sound in end with the beginning vowel sound in of. End of. At the end of your rope. At the end of your rope. I hate to do this, but uh kind of at the end of my rope. I need to borrow some money. I was at the end of my rope. The financial pressure was crazy.

You're not giving me a lot of direction here. I'm at the end of my rope.

To the bitter end. This is a great idiom. It means until something is finished. And it's not always interchangeable with that meaning. If I'm eating something, I could say, "Yeah, I'm going to eat my food until it is finished." I wouldn't say, "I'm going to eat my food until the bitter end." That just sounds really awkward. So, you're really going to use this idiom when talking about an outcome that may not always be the one that you want, but you're going to keep going. We may not meet the deadline, but we're going to work to the bitter end. You're just going to keep fighting. And fight is a verb that's often used with this idiom. It's a common collocation to fight to the bitter end. Let me show you.

Southampton boss vows to fight to the bitter end. Youngsville police chief will fight until the bitter end in proposed investigation. Nurses warn of more strike dates in January as they fight to the bitter end. For pronunciation, there are a couple of weak words that I'd like to point out. So, the weak to is going to sound like t and the weak article 'the'. And then we can link the final consonant sound in bitter with the beginning vowel sound in end. Bitter end. So, it's going to sound like to the bitter end. Say it with me. To the bitter end. To fight to the bitter end. Excellent. The next idiom is to get off on the right or wrong foot. And this just means to make a successful or unsuccessful start in something. Now, it's more common to use it in the negative and say that something got off on the wrong foot. The team did not get along, so the project got off on the wrong foot. It's also commonly used when talking about relationships. Two people meet each other. Doesn't go well. It's unsuccessful. It got off on the wrong foot. Why are you being so nice to me all of a sudden? I'm sorry we got off on the wrong foot.

We got off on the wrong foot here. And I believe it's cuz we're just too damn similar. You do? Absolutely. Let's pronounce this idiom. And once again, linking may occur. You can see just how common this is in spoken English. So, we can link the phrase get off on. Just keep in mind that the final T in get, once again, I'm from the US, so I will pronounce it as a flap T. Get off on. Get off on. Get off on the right foot. Get off on the wrong foot. And then there's over the top. This means too extreme and not suitable or exaggerated. So something that's too extreme. She was supposed to buy me a small present, but her gift was way over the top. And that is a great word to emphasize this idiom. Way over the top. For something that may be exaggerated, I could say it was supposed to be a friendly competition, but his performance was a bit over the top. And that's another good word you can use with this idiom. A bit over the top. For pronunciation, there's not really much to say about this idiom.

You're just going to say these three words one right after the other. Over the top. It was our fault. Our acting was way over the top.

What are you talking about? We were totally believable. This is like secret agent stuff. I think a safe room is a bit over the top.

But Ed thought with the two little ones, you can never be too cautious. What do you think of my news? Bit over the top. This just means very early in the morning. Usually the time when the sun first appears. So, it's a great way to emphasize that you're up really early. I could say, "This morning, I got up at the crack of dawn." Or, "We'll have to get up at the crack of dawn for our flight." I hate it when that happens. Or, "My grandfather has been up since the crack of dawn." I tried to present this idiom with some different verb tenses. When pronouncing it, there are a couple of things going on. There are some overlapping sounds and this is basically when your tongue is in the same position. So at your tongue is going to come up and block the air with that stop t. But then you're just going to release right into that voiced th in the atthe. Atthe. And then we can link the final consonant sound in crack with the vowel sound in of crack of at the crack of dawn. Have you ever gotten up at the crack of dawn? let me know down in the comments. And then there's change of heart.

This is when you change your opinion or the way you feel about something. Basically like a reversal in your attitude. And there are three things that I want to point out when it comes to this idiom. Number one, overwhelmingly you will use this with the verb have to have a change of heart.

Number two, I want to stress that this idiom really involves feelings. So, you're not always going to use it anytime you just change your mind. So, if I told you, "Look, this morning I was going to make pancakes, but then I had a change of heart and I decided to cook some eggs instead." You're not really going to use this idiom in that context. I don't have deep feelings when it comes to eggs or pancakes. But if I were to say something like, "She was going to sell her grandmother's necklace, but she had a sudden change of heart." In this case, she has stronger feelings when it comes to this necklace. It's more meaningful. And that's also a good collocation with this idiom, a sudden change of heart. Number three, notice that because you're talking about a change in your opinion or the way you feel.

Most of the time, people are going to use this in the past tense. So, you would say that someone had a change of heart or they had a sudden change of heart. For pronunciation, once again, more linking. phrase change of had a change of heart and then you could say it easily and naturally just like that. Someone had a change of heart. I know that I am giving you a ton of information and I do not expect you to memorize all of these words and phrases. I think one of the primary goals of a long detailed lesson like this is just to get exposure. You hear this vocabulary, you see the meaning, you get a variety of examples.

You're learning them passively and then hopefully you can then go out and use them actively. This is really the initial building blocks of developing your skills and really going to help you reach your fluency goals. So, let's continue with some more descriptive words and I want to teach you some important C2. Now, let's learn some advanced C2 nouns to help you supercharge your vocabulary and be a little more precise when you're having a conversation. Now, building your vocabulary, it's not always easy. It requires a lot of time and perseverance. And I want to start with that noun that I just mentioned, perseverance. This refers to a continued effort to do or achieve something even when it is difficult or takes a long time. And this has a positive connotation. It's a good thing. Often, you may use this when talking about things that are hard to do. As you know, learning a language takes a lot of time and energy, and you need perseverance. I said creative writing is hard.

Oh, yeah. Yeah. Perseverance, Steve.

It's all about perseverance.

For pronunciation, this word has four syllables, and the stress is on that third syllable, perseverance. And the second and fourth syllable have that unstressed schwa sound. Sounds like uh perseverance. And it's good to practice these words because sometimes people tend to avoid these longer words because they're a bit more difficult to pronounce. Perseverance. And if you are someone who likes to learn new words and phrases, please subscribe to the channel. It shows perseverance and that way I can become your teacher. My name is Wes. The channel is Interactive English. It's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals. And as we go through the lesson, I'm going to tell you the meaning of each word. I'll talk a little bit about how it's used in context, and I'll go over the pronunciation so you can say them just like a native speaker.

And the next noun that I have for you is one that I really like, and that is workaholic. This noun refers to a person who works a lot and actually finds it difficult not to work. And you may be able to relate to this noun. I don't really think that I'm a workaholic, even though sometimes I feel like I work a little too much and I'm constantly thinking about new lessons. But what I really wanted to point out with this word is that suffix, the h o l i c at the end of the word. Because this suffix means that you are addicted to something. I'm sure that you may be familiar with the word alcoholic. In this case, a workaholic. It's like you're saying that someone is addicted to work. And this is a fun way to play around with the language because maybe you like to go shopping. Are you a shopaholic? Do you read a lot? Maybe you're a bookaholic. I drink a lot of milk. So, someone might say, "I'm a milkaholic." But let's not forget the reason why we're talking about this suffix is for all of you who love to work, you may be a workaholic.

This is your wedding weekend. I'm marrying a real workaholic. You do know that. Yeah, but isn't that what you want in a partner? Homie, workaholic is probably your best aolic ever, but you need to relax.

workaholic. But let me let you in on a little secret. It's a syllable stress rule because when a word ends in IC, the stress is often going to be on the second to last syllable. It's a good little rule to keep in mind so that you can easily pronounce words like workaholic. The next word that I have for you is hierarchy. This is a system or organization in which people or things are arranged according to importance. And this is a word that we can actually visualize using a chart. So think about a company. It has a hierarchy. Who's at the top? The most important position. Well, that would be the CEO. And then according to this chart, below the CEO, we have the marketing manager and the IT manager.

And then there are people below them. So, this is a chart detailing the company's hierarchy. To give you a better idea as to how this word is used in context, let's look at some news headlines. Is organizational hierarchy getting in the way of innovation? Support for legacy admissions is rooted in racial hierarchy. Maslow's hierarchy of needs, examples, and explanation. and his hierarchy of needs describes different levels of the human experience. It's very interesting stuff. But you know what else is interesting? That's the pronunciation of this noun because it's another long word. Hierarchy. There are four syllables. The stress is on that first syllable and the second syllable. You do hear that schwah sound. Hierarchy. It's a little easier when we slow it down. Hierarchy. And then we can speed it up. Say it with me.

Hierarchy. Excellent. The next word, bias. This is when you support or oppose someone or something in an unfair way because you are influenced by your personal opinions. And there are some useful collocations with this noun. You could have a bias towards or against someone or something. And then there are some adjective noun collocations like having a strong bias or an unconscious bias, stereotypes that you're unaware of. Or you may hear somebody talk about confirmation bias when you seek out information to support the views you already have. I'm getting a little tired of this bias against the leaders of our industry. I thought I had an awareness to issues, ways of living, unconscious bias, like all of it.

And your country owes you a debt of gratitude, Dr. Ryan. But even you can agree that a confirmation bias is a dangerous thing. When pronouncing this word, it's pretty simple and straightforward. There are two syllables. The stress is on that first syllable. Bias. Then we have the word scrutiny. This is the careful and detailed examination of something in order to get more information about it. And there's a useful phrase which is to come under scrutiny. And then you can use this phrase with some common adjective noun collocations and say that something comes under close scrutiny or it comes under intense scrutiny or additional scrutiny or constant scrutiny. There are quite a few collocations with this noun and they're all great to know. For pronunciation, the stress is on the first syllable, scrutiny. But I want to take a moment to talk to you about the glottle T versus a true T because if you listen to some online dictionaries, you may hear this scrutiny. And you hear the true T, but I'm from the US and with the American accent, when the T is followed by an N sound, people may pronounce it with a glottle T. And the the sound comes from the throat, your vocal cords are closing and that's stopping the flow of air. So when you hear me say words like mountain, certain, scrutiny, you hear that glottle t scrutiny. Just listen for it.

Now Dutton's office is under intense scrutiny for its use of force in multiple gun battles. If your customers come under scrutiny, abalonia, your business comes under scrutiny. The next word is concession.

This is when something is allowed or given up in order to end a disagreement. So if we disagree on something and we need to come to a compromise, you may make a concession and I may also have to make a concession. And that is a common collocation with this noun to make a concession. I understand that you like things a certain way and I'm willing to make some concessions, but you have to be open to compromise.

Right. That's reasonable. But surely those rules changed the moment they invited television into the coronation. That was their right. And a huge concession to what? Popular interests. I am aware that I will have to make some concessions. Concessions? Yes, concessions.

When pronouncing this noun, there are three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable. Concession. And another syllable stress rule for you is that when a word ends in s i o n, the stress is going to come on the syllable before it. So that second to last syllable, concession. Another good rule to keep in mind. Next is the noun remorse. This is a feeling of sadness and being sorry for something you have done. And there are some useful phrases with this noun. to feel remorse for something or to feel no remorse for something or to be filled with remorse. So, let me show you some examples, some funny memes when someone might feel remorse. So, you might feel remorse when those were the droids you were looking for. You might feel remorse when you feel guilty for not studying and you are still not studying. You might feel remorse when you buy a new phone just before they announce an upgraded model.

Maybe not. They're snobs. They're such snobs. Your understanding of politics is limited to who won the election on Sesame Street.

Can you believe the snob? It also refers to a person who has extremely high standards and is not satisfied with things that ordinary people like. And you may hear this noun being used with an adjective when talking about food or drink, but not always. And it does still have a negative connotation even though you could use it playfully if you say that someone is a coffee snob or a wine snob or a pizza snob or even an art snob. For this person, it must be the finest quality and then you could say that they are a snob. A lot easier. Yeah, I'm a bit of a coffee snob. Now, the key to a perfect latte is in the temperature of the steamed milk. I'm going to unveil the duchess and watch every art world snob in town drool all over her. For pronunciation, it's pretty simple and straightforward. Just the one syllable snob. Try not to be a snob. Unless you are an English lesson snob and you only want the highest quality lessons, then yeah, you're in the right place. Then we have the word exile. This refers to someone who has to leave their home country and go live in another country, often for political reasons. And there are some useful phrases with this noun. You could say someone goes into exile or someone is in exile. After the overthrow of the government, the former president went into exile. Or currently the deposed leaders are living in exile in the neighboring country. To go into exile or to be in exile into exile. I must go. Failed. I have.

You know the meaning of that word.

Refugee driven from my home in exile.

One who could reclaim the throne of Gondor. He turned from that path a long time ago.

He's chosen exile.

This noun has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. Exile.

I will never make you leave this channel and go into exile. In fact, I want the opposite. I want I want you to stay. I want to keep you here. Then we have the word narrative. This is a word that I think is becoming more commonly used. It refers to a story or a particular way of explaining or understanding events. But let's talk about how this word is used because even though it's basically a synonym for the word story, it's not really used interchangeably. I could say my friend likes to read love stories. I'm not really going to say my friend likes to read love narratives. These days this word is used when talking about the story or the events that they would like others to believe and that is their narrative. Let me give you the interactive English narrative.

So I think that this is the best channel to build your vocabulary and reach your fluency goals. I say that in practically every lesson. That is the narrative that I would like you to believe. Let me show you some more news headlines so you can see how this word is used in context. New January 6 videos praised by Republicans. Narrative has crumbled. Notre Dame offense still has time to change the narrative. And stocks holding majority of recent gains fuels bullish narrative. For pronunciation, there are three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. Narrative.

Now, when you hear me say the word, I am going to pronounce that final T as a flap T. It's going to sound like a soft D. This is common with the American accent. When the T comes between two vowel sounds, narrative. You hear that that soft D. Narrative. Then we have the word xenophobia. This refers to an extreme dislike or fear of foreigners, their customs, their traditions, their religion. And it's a word that may often be used as an adjective as well, xenophobic. But with this word, I want to highlight another suffix. This time, phobia. It comes from the Greek word phobos, meaning fear. So, whenever you see or hear phobia at the end of a word, you know it's referring to the fear of something. Arachnophobia is the fear of spiders. Claustrophobia is the fear of being confined in a small space.

Glossophobia is the fear of public speaking. And this is one that I didn't know before this lesson. So, I'm learning new words each and every day. So, there are many different words describing different fears using phobia. But the noun that I want you to remember is xenophobia. And when pronouncing this noun, it can be a little challenging. It's a longer word and the spelling and the pronunciation don't really match up. The word has five syllables and the stress is on the third syllable. Xenophobia.

Now, there are two accepted pronunciations for this noun. You could say xenophobia like I've been saying or xenophobia. Either one is okay. Both are accepted. The only difference is that short e or long e in the first syllable. xenophobia versus xenophobia. The other thing I want you to keep in mind is, of course, that X at the beginning of the noun. It has a z sound. xenophobia. Then we have the word influx. This means the arrival of a lot of people or things at the same time. And often you're going to follow this noun with the preposition of an influx of something. The town experienced an influx of tourists this summer. Or the business needs an influx of money or it may not survive. When pronouncing this word, there are two syllables. the stress is on that first syllable. But one thing I want to say is that this noun will generally follow an article either 'the' or an. And if we have the phrase an influx of, then linking may occur. And linking is when we connect the final consonant sound of one word with the beginning vowel sound of the next word. So it's going to sound like an influx of. An influx of. Just listen for it. Wendy has identified a casino and hotel in northwest Missouri that needs an influx of cash to survive.

One day, Carl, an influx of hormones that we can't control will overpower our better judgment and drive us to pursue the female species against our will.

And now for a little review. I think it is great that you want to build your vocabulary, but I want to remind you that you will need perseverance because to be honest, it can be difficult to find the time. You may have to make some concessions in order to reach your fluency goals. And I know some people may be thinking, look, do I really need to become a vocabulary snob and learn all these advanced words? Is my English really going to come under intense scrutiny? Probably not. It's entirely up to you. But personally, and I know that I have a bias, I think it's worth it to have a robust vocabulary. I think it's going to help you both personally and professionally. At least that's the narrative that I am trying to tell. So, I should really wrap things up and get going. But don't worry, I I'm not going to go into exile. I will be back soon with another lesson. What can I say? I'm a workaholic. I know that we covered a lot this past hour and I truly hope that you learned something new. Remember, building vocabulary takes time, and I hope that this lesson will be a great resource when it comes to learning C2 vocabulary. If you enjoyed the lesson and you actually did learn something new, you can let me know by hitting that like button. As always, thanks so much for watching and I will see you next time. So long.

LESSON 2 OF 749

1-HOUR LESSON - Improve Your Writing (Academic, Professional, & Descriptive)

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I want to help you develop your overall writing skills and that is why I put together this 1hour Mega lesson covering a variety of topics we're going to talk about tips to write professionally I'm going to help you write more descriptive by teaching you many different reporting verbs we're going to improve your academic writing as well as look at some common writing mistakes so this lesson it has it all and if you are someone who would like to improve your writing skills Please Subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals so let's begin with some useful writing tips especially when it comes to writing professionally here are 13 tips to help you write professionally and what we're going to do is we're going to start with the big picture which is an idiom that means like the entire view of a situation or issue and then we're going to try to narrow it down to your actual writing so the first tip that I have for you the first thing that I want you to do is understand your purpose so it's a very simple question that needs to be answered what is the purpose of your writing now in general there are four major types of writing it could be a narrative and you're telling a story maybe it's descriptive and you're trying to capture an event or perhaps expository you're giving facts and information or even persuasive and you want to influence someone's opinion now whatever ever your purpose is you just need to have one because without it your writing is going to lack Direction it's like trying to understand what is your purpose for being here right now you would like to improve your writing skills the next tip that I have for you is that you need to know your audience who is going to be reading your writing is it your boss your teacher your peers your colleagues or or just the public in general because once you know your audience then that's going to help you choose your style and in a nutshell which is another idiom I'm giving you some idioms in this lesson it really means in the fewest possible words in a nutshell when I'm talking about style I'm really referring to formal or informal writing so if we're talking about formal writing you should avoid idioms slang just those colloquial Expressions you're also going to want to use more complex structures which I'll get into a little bit later with informal writing well then the rules are relaxed you can use some of those colloquial Expressions but because we're talking about writing professionally I really want to focus on helping you develop your formal writing style this is the style that you need to use if you'd like to appear professional you want people to take you seriously so that is the big picture now let's talk about your actual writing when you put pen to the paper or or even your hands to the keyboard so the next tip that I I have for you is that you need to organize your ideas this is so important I don't want you just to think about this I want you to write it down start with uh brainstorming use that information to develop an outline and when I say develop and outline I want you to develop a comprehensive outline don't just write down a few words write down complete thoughts because when you do this it's going to help your writing have cohesion and unity when I say cohesion I'm just talking about your sentences are logically ordered unity means that your paragraphs are centered around one idea so when you organize your ideas and you write this down it's going to make sure that your writing has cohesion and unity it's very important the next thing that I want you to do which can be a little challenging I'm not going to lie and that is find your voice and when I say find your voice it it's really referring to the words that you use the way that you write your sentences think of voice like your your fingerprint when it comes to writing that maybe you forgot to write your name but somebody reads your writing they know that it's you because of your words because of your sentences now when I say find your voice that means that I I don't want you to think about well how would somebody else write this and present these ideas or what are the words that my audience probably wants to hear you need to discover what is unique about the way you present the topic use your words your sentences be authentic people appreciate originality and I I mentioned that this can be challenging and if you're having trouble finding your voice I think the best thing that you can do is just to write as much as you can and you can start by writing to me down below in the comments but once again if you're putting together that comprehensive outline this is something that should start to be reflected in your outline when you're organizing your ideas something else that should be reflected in your outline is your tone you need to establish a tone and there are many examples of this tone could be aggressive or humorous nostalgic cheerful sad and what this really does is it shows your attitude about a topic no matter what topic you have you can have different tones but you need to be consistent you don't want to switch between an aggressive tone to a cheerful one humorous back to aggressive all right writing is not a roller coaster don't think about it like that think about it more like you're traveling down the straight road moving from one idea to the next going from one paragraph to the next which then takes me to my next tip is that you need to organize your paragraphs so I talk to you about organizing your ideas and then you can take a closer look at those ideas and make sure that each paragraph is organized with a topic sentence with supporting sentences and then wrapped up with a conclusion and this is a structure that you can follow over and over and over especially if your purpose is you're writing something that's descriptive or persuasive or even expository and just to emphasize how important this is when you organize your paragraphs it is the easiest and most effective way to convey your ideas something else that's going to help you move smoothly down that road of ideas is that you need to take full advantage of transition words and phrases so these are words and phrases that will allow you to effortlessly and seamlessly move from one idea to the next now there are many transition words and phrases out there I think it's very useful vocabulary for you to learn but just to give you an example if I want to add information I could use in addition if I want to contrast different ideas I could use however if I want to start out and say well this idea is very important I could begin with first and foremost and then share my idea now what this does is it makes it so much easier for the reader to follow along not to mention it's going to help you sound more professional because you're going to sound like you know what you're talking about my next tip is that you need to vary your sentence structures so when I talked about formal writing I said that you'll use more complex structures and this is part of what I was talking about so you have four different sentence structures you have simple sentences compound sentences complex sentences and compound complex sentences and I've given you some examples here so you can see what the sentences are like but when you vary your sentence structures it's going to make your writing a lot more engaging people are going to want to continue reading because if you're using too much of one structure if you're only using simple sentences it's just going to sound really choppy if you're only using compound sentences well then it may sound a bit repetitive when you vary sentence structures it's going to create a nice Rhythm and flow to your writing and and this is probably something that that you're not going to be able to do the first time it's likely something that you can do and develop when you proofread you may go through and find a couple of simple sentences that you can turn into a compound sentence or maybe you'll add a dependent clause and create a complex sentence and then you'll be developing that Rhythm and flow as well as finding your voice and this leads me into my next tip which is to keep simple especially at first use the vocabulary that you already know if you're writing a rough draft don't stop and analyze everything use your outline keep it simple find your voice and then when you're done you can go back and proofread it and really fine-tune some of those words and sentences and proofreading is what I want to talk to you about next because I want you to effectively correct your own mistakes so when you're writing I think many of you are going to use computer and you need to use those programs to your advantage because if you're using something like word it will tell you if something is misspelled or perhaps there's a problem with the grammar use these programs to your advantage now if you're just going through and proof reading on your own what I would suggest you do is look for one mistake at a time don't try to look for all the problems at once so you could start with punctuation read through your writing and only look for punctuation mistakes and then go through it again and only look for spelling mistakes go through it again and only look for word choice and maybe change some of those words so what you end up doing is that you proofread your writing multiple times and the more you do this the more you go through it you're likely to find some mistakes you'll make some changes to make your writing better another tip that I have for you is to get others to look at your writing it's always good to have a second set of eyes because people may find spelling mistakes or grammar mistakes that you did not see before it's also good to get feedback in regard to the content but one thing I would tell you is that remember just because somebody gives you feedback about the content that doesn't mean that you have to accept it you can take it into consideration and then decide whether or not you would like to make the changes because remember it's your writing it's your voice and then I think it is very helpful for you to maintain healthy writing habits and there are two things that I think you should be doing a little bit each and every day first I think you should read regularly this is going to help you distinguish between different writing styles you'll get a feel for how someone else's writing is organized you'll also be able to see how people use transition words and phrases as well as varying their sentences and how that makes their writing more engaging I also want you to write regularly and this is something you can do writing in a journal each and every day or like I said you can write to me down below in those comments it's going to help you develop and find your voice you'll also be able to explore different purposes in writing as well as writing to different audiences in addition you'll be able to practice correcting your own writing now that you have these useful tips to keep in mind

let's talk about vocabulary because writing is a productive skill which means vocabulary is important and I want to help you write more descriptively when you're telling a story because often there's going to be dialogue and I want to teach you many different reporting verbs that you can use instead of just always using the word said so let's look at different reporting verbs to help you be more descriptive let's talk about some creative ways that you can say the word said so why is this important well first it allows you to be more descriptive it's also going to keep the reader attention because these words are are just more engaging they're more captivating and you will avoid redundancies because you don't want to keep saying he said she said we said they said you need to mix it up so let

let's begin and say that you would like to persuade someone to do something or think something here are some verbs to help make your writing more descriptive you could use pleaded and this is when you're making an urgent or emotional request uh like don't leave he pleaded this is very similar to the next one which is begged except I I feel like begged is probably a little stronger than pleaded but once again this is a strong way to make an urgent request I want a balloon the child begged so in this case it's just more descriptive I'm capturing that feeling I want a balloon the child begged this is something that uh well yeah my child told me last week you can also use intreated which means to try hard to persuade someone to do something now this verb it's probably not as common as these others however it's still very useful because it's specific and if I want to capture sure a direct quote I could say if you help me with the presentation then I'll work your weekend shift for you he intreated and then we have the verb implored this means to ask someone to do something or not to do something in a very sincere and emotional way think about this situation say that a woman gets pulled over by the police for speeding and and she's getting ready to get a ticket so she says please don't give me a speeding ticket she implored so she's imploring the police officer not to give her a ticket and doing this in a sincere way and of course I had to include the picture of that dog because I think this is a good association with these verbs because dogs May plead for things or beg for things or implore their owners to do something let's continue with some more verbs if you'd like to persuade someone you could use beseeched which means to ask for something in a way that that shows you need it very much I need this raise he beseeched his boss now this is not the most common verb in the world but once again it helps you get that variety same with the next verb cajoled this means to persuade someone to do something that they might not want to do and you're you're persuading them by just talking pleasantly and nicely like please please pretty please say yes she could so this is a good reporting verb that I could use if I want to capture my little girl's direct speech if she wants something and I maybe I don't want to give it to her she might cajo me into giving it to her please pretty please the next two verbs I think are definitely more common insisted this means to say something firmly especially when others either disagree just oppose what you're saying I want to see my client the lawyer insisted so in this context I it makes me think of a situation in which somebody is asking more than once and then they start insisting the next verb I think is a similar but it's a bit stronger demanded this means to ask for something forcefully and really in a way that you don't expect to be refused I want to know another candy the child demanded so again I'm yeah I just I can't help but give many examples with children I have little girl so again these are these are things that I hear and this helps capture the mood and switch things up a little bit so you can avoid those redundancies so if you are wanting to express happiness or excitement there are some great verbs that you can use such as gushed this means to express a positive feeling especially praise but doing so in a way that it may not seem sincere perhaps they're doing it a little too much so if I'm writing a story and my character is just praising someone over and over and he says you look amazing he gushed right that that tells the reader that perhaps they're they're going a bit overboard it's a little too much and maybe the other person does not find it all that sincere then we have cheered which is to give a loud shout of approval or encouragement we won she cheered all right really expressing that happiness and I think this verb is commonly used it in the context of maybe a competition and you're really trying to encourage others then we have the verb touted it means to advertise talk about or praise something repeatedly and you're really you're doing this because you want the other person to accept what you're saying or maybe even buy something you won't find another car like this the salesman touted so in this case it's like well the salesman's really proud of the car they're really happy about it and they're kind of advertising it they're praising it yeah you won't find another car like this so this is a good verb for that context then we have these three verbs which are somewhat similar but also Express happiness and in all of the examples they really provide that extra bit of information to show you that well that something is funny like laughed it means that you are smiling and making sounds you believe that this is a funny situation I knew it was you she laughed we also have the verb chortled which is not as commonly used it means to laugh and really just showing some satisfaction did you hear the news she chortled giving that extra information that this news is funny it's satisfying and then there the verb giggled this means to laugh repeatedly in in kind of an uncontrolled way I think it's perhaps not as strong as saying laugh but again this is something we all do giggle we all giggle from time to time where did you get that hat he giggled I'm telling you that this hat maybe it looks a little funny which is why he giggled here are some more verbs proclaimed this means to announce something officially especially something that is positive this is the start of a new beginning he proclaimed another verb announced which means to make something known or to tell people something officially we got engaged she announced all right really happy news there's also the verb declared and this means to announce something clearly firmly officially publicly uh I could say we made it to the finals the coach declared so with each of these verbs they they may be used interchangeably depending on the context but it's still good to get that variety let's move from happiness to sadness if you want to show that you are upset about something there are many different verbs that you could use like pouted this is when you want to show that you are annoyed and you you're pushing your lips together and really pushing out your lower lip like M and and you're just unhappy happy about something I want some ice cream the child pouted you can also use the verb complained which is very common it just means that that you're saying that something is wrong or or just not satisfactory we don't want to work over the weekend the employees complained all right it's not a good situation I would complain about it as well if you want to emphasize that sadness you could use a verb like sobbed it means to cry noisily and you're really taking these deep breaths so think about this situation if someone says I work so hard on this project and now it has been destroyed in a matter of seconds she sobbed you could also use cried which means you are well producing tears and expressing that strong emotion she told me it was over he cried and really conveying that sadness let's keep it going with some more sad verbs keep building your writing vocabulary with verbs like lamented and this means that you are expressing sadness and really just feeling sorry about something and I think that's a key part of it just feeling sorry maybe a little bit of regret I should never have accepted the offer he lamented you could also use the verb sneered when talking about someone or something in an unkind way that shows no respect is that the best you can do she sneered so it's not a good thing to sneer at someone but it it does it really captures that emotion wind is making that long high sad sound I'm sure you can think of someone from your life who has whined before my ice cream melted the boy whined you're really sad and upset about this and then there's the verb bemoan this means to complain or Express sadness about something great verb to use from time to time our department has to lay some people off the manager bemoan all right the manager's not happy about this situation bemoaning this situation now let's raise the noise level and talk about well if somebody's being loud you could use verbs such as shouted this means to to speak in a loud voice especially when you're in a situation that well it's very noisy around you and you want others to hear so you have to shout we won they shouted so in this context I I feel like the atmosphere is very noisy and he's very excited and just shouting this we won we also have the verb exclaimed which means to shout something suddenly because of surprise fear or pleasure that's not fair she exclaimed in this situation makes me think well perhaps she's a little surprised that's not fair and then there's bellowed which is to shout in a loud voice who's there he bellowed tells the reader that wow this this is a very loud voice when someone Bellows let's move on with some more loud verbs like yelled this means to shout and make a loud noise because you're angry you're in pain maybe you're excited get out she yelled in this case uh makes me think she's not happy and I should probably get out then there's the verb screamed which is similar to yelled you may use these verbs interchangeably but let me give you a different context if um people say help us they screamed and in this situation they are screaming for help and then there's the verb hollered this means to shout loudly pass me the ball he hollered and and you really want to get someone else's attention when you're hollering at them pass me the ball let's now bring the noise level down a little bit and talk about some verbs that you can use if you want to say someone's trying to be quiet like this verb right here murmured murmured just means to say something very quietly I love you the boy murmured and in this context it makes me think that well the boy is a little shy perhaps he doesn't want the other person to hear it but he really just still feels the need to say it and he murmurs this then we have the verb muttered it means to speak quietly in a low voice so that it's not easy to hear and and when I think about this verb muttered I think that people do this because they don't really want the other person to hear what they're saying it could perhaps cause an argument so if we are in a classroom and maybe a teacher gets angry and they call a student lazy and the student's a little upset you're the lazy one the student muttered and they say it in that low voice because they don't necessarily want the teacher to hear and that's why you would mutter something and this verb is also used in the phrase to mutter something under someone's breath which has the same meaning you're speaking softly it's not easy to hear because you don't really want the other person to hear and you mutter something something under your breath then there's mumbled which means to speak quietly and in a way that's not easy to understand so to give you an example of someone mumbling uh I could say I can't believe they he mumbled and you're like wait wait what was that last part I can't believe they he mumbled so when I'm mumbling it's kind of like you're just trailing off and you just don't understand what someone's saying cuz it's like they're trailing off it becomes quieter and they may be mixing some sounds together and you're like wait what was that can you say that again and then there's whispered okay if somebody's really trying to be quiet whispered it means that you are speaking quietly really so only the person next to you or close to you can hear what you're saying and you would whisper something don't tell anyone she whispered so this is a very common and a great verb to use if you really want to show that somebody's trying to be quiet so I just gave you many different verbs that you can use instead of saying the verb said these are very useful reporting verbs that that'll really help you improve your writing they're more descriptive they're more precise and it's just going to make your writing that much more captivating I know I just gave you a lot of vocabulary and I do not expect you to memorize all of it the goal is just to be aware that there are many different reporting verbs that you can use to help you be more descriptive now I want to switch gears from descriptive writing to academic writing and I know I've talked to you about different tips to help you write professionally but I really want to do a deep dive to help you improve your academic writing skills and it doesn't matter if you're a student or a working professional this information will help I want to talk to you about some very useful tips that's going to help you immensely improve your writing really it's going to help you greatly improve your academic writing and develop those skills and I know that when I say academic writing you may think of University which is where a lot of academic writing is done but this is also very important in a more professional setting a business setting so these tips will help so let's begin with the first tip and I think this one is very important which is why I've put it at the very beginning and that is to be concise and what it means to be concise is that you are stating the information clearly and you are using as few words as possible so really you just avoid wasting words and I think this applies to so many different things so let me give you an example uh with these video lessons before a long time ago when I first started doing these lessons I thought that well the longer I could make them then that would just make it better and more people would be watching them but what I realized after once I started doing this is that I shouldn't be trying to make the lessons longer I should try to give you the information I should try to teach you the lesson and then whenever it's finished then well that's how long the lesson is and and that's the same with your writing you should be concise State the information and try to use as few words as possible because why say something in 10 words when you could say it in five and one way that you can do that that that's going to help you be precise is to use action verbs so let me give you some sentences so that you know what I mean a simple way that you can avoid using too many words is to stay away from the ti n words and I'm not saying that you should never use these but really just keep this in mind because it will help you cut down on unnecessary words so if I were to say the report provided an explanation for these unusual results you see that Tio N word explanation well can just make that an action verb and say the report explained these unusual results I've said the same thing it's more concise I've used fewer words and and you're still saying the information clearly another reason why it's very important to be concise is because it's going to help whoever it is that's reading your writing it's going to help them more easily understand what you're trying to say the final thing that I'll say about this is that you should try to use the vocabulary that you already know

I think quite often people will try to look up words that are more difficult that sound more academic intelligent and and they put that into their paper even if it's a word that maybe you don't even know try to avoid doing that use the vocabulary that you already know it's going to help you say things clearly and be concise the next tip that I have for you is to organize your paper this is going to help you carefully structure your writing and all all you need to do is create an outline it's as simple as that and I cannot emphasize this enough because often I think many people will just skip this part of the writing process I used to teach I and Iz is a proficiency exam and part of the exam you have to write and it is timed and I would work with students to help them try to achieve a high Mark and what I take a little bit of time create an outline organize your paper and think about how your writing should be structured my next tip is that you should avoid contractions idioms and other colloquial Expressions simply because they're very informal and writing in general writing is more formal and academic writing is definitely more formal so let's have a look at some informal language like contractions instead of writing its write it is instead of writing could have write could have or instead of writing theirs write their has I I'll also include phrasal verbs in this because they can also be a bit informal and in that case instead of if you were to say like put up with use a more specific verb like endure or or tolerate instead of saying check out you could use a verb like view or consult so not only are you using more formal language but you're also you're also being more concise you're using fewer words and as far as idioms go just just please avoid them look at these two sentences right here collecting data was easy and efficient or collecting data was a piece of cake it just uh just reading it is a bit awkward and the same goes for colloquial Expressions if you you if I were to write something like the scientist had trouble finishing the experiment but no biggie if they didn't finish they could just go back to the drawing board and I the colloquial expressions like saying something is well no biggie it's no big deal or I use that idiom go back to the drawing board not only does this informal language sound unprofessional but it's probably going to seem strange to the person who's reading it so please avoid contractions idioms and these other colloquial phrases the next tip is that you should vary your sentence structures and this is going to help you avoid chopiness and if you're unsure what that means I'm going to tell you a little story and I think it will make more sense but let's get into some more details about sentence structure so there are four basic sentence structures you have simple sentences this is one independent clause so if I'm going to tell you a story about my day I could say I woke up late this morning it's a simple sentence we also have compound sentences which is when you have two or more independent clauses so continuing the story I could say I immediately went to the kitchen and I made myself a cup of coffee a complex sentence is when you have one independent clause plus one or more dependent clauses after I finished my coffee I got ready for work then we have compound complex sentences which is when you have two or more independent clauses Plus one or more dependent clauses and let's continue when I looked at my watch I realized I was running late so I ran out the door and jumped in my car so let's review our story using all of those different sentence structures I woke up late this morning I immediately went to the kitchen and I made myself a cup of coffee after I finished my coffee I got ready for work when I looked at my watch I realized I was running late so I ran out the door and jumped in my car if we were to change this and just use simple sentences the story is going to sound well it's going to sound very choppy if I say I woke up late this morning I immediately went to the kitchen I made myself a cup of coffee I finished my coffee I got ready for work I looked at my watch I realized I was running late I ran out the door I jumped in my car all right it's it sounds more like a children's book and it's definitely not academic writing so when you vary your sentence structure it's going to help your writing have a nice Rhythm and flow and to be perfectly honest when you are writing you may not analyze each sentence and and really look at the sentence structure this is more likely something that you will notice and you'll be able to get a feel for it as you reread your writing so when you reread you'll be able to get a better sense if there is some chopiness and you need to adjust some of your sentence structures my next tip is to use the active voice and that is because the active voice it just gives more clarity

now I'm not I'm not saying that you should never use the passive voice it really depends on what you're writing if you writing some scientific paper then yes it's likely you may have some passive sentences but in general overall most of your sentences should be active so let's compare the active and passive if I were to say archaeologists conducted a study of the newly Unearthed artifacts this is an active sentence it has nine words and if we compare it to the Passive A study was conducted of the newly Unearthed artifacts you see that the issue is that well in the passive we don't know who conducted the study now we could add that to the end of the sentence and I could say by archaeologist but now I have 11 words why say something in 11 words when I could say it in nine so again it's about being more concise so just keep in mind that most of your sentences are going to be in the active voice the next tip is to avoid repetition try to use a variety of words because it's going to make your writing more captivating use precise language if possible and try to avoid words like very because words like that are often overused now in writing one one way to avoid repetition is when it comes to transition words these transition words are when you can well add information perhaps you're moving from one idea to the next but when you're writing transition words it's easy to repeat them let's take the word also this is a word that's commonly use to add more information but you do not always need to use this word because there are other words that have the same meaning so instead of saying the crisis caused severe economic damage companies were forced to downsize and many people lost their job also Banks were forced to

Titan lending practices which meant small businesses had a difficult time accessing money also the local government proved ineffective in offering relief we can just remove also to replace with some other words like in addition and furthermore and it's going to sound much better so we have also in addition furthermore moreover besides there are a variety of words that you can use when you're talking about these transition words the good news is that well repetition is pretty easy to spot when you reread your writing you should be able to identify if you continuously use the same word again and again and again and really unless you're writing a poem there is no good reason to continuously repeat words over and over just remember this famous saying when you avoid repetition your writing Won't Suck actually it's not a famous saying I just made it up right now but the message the lesson is still relevant avoid repetition the next tip and I really want to emphasize this is proofread and the reason why I say I want to emphasize this is because it's another step in the writing process that some people tend to skip and the reason why it's so important to proof read is because you're able to do some of the things that I've already talked about you're able to get a feel for the sentence structure that you use you're able to spot some of the words that you may have repeated most of you are probably proofreading because you want to correct mistakes so in that case I have a bonus tip for you and that is read backwards go to the very last sentence read that one try to look for mistakes go to the next to the last sentence read that one look for mistakes and just continue reading backwards until you get to the beginning and the reason for that is because you're you're really isolating the sentence and you're able to look for spelling mistakes uh grammar mistakes punctuation and in short when you read backwards you're focusing more on the text and not the ideas so proofread forward from beginning to end if you want to get a feel for the Rhythm and flow of your writing make sure that your ideas are logically ordered as well as check for repetition proof read backward if you want to really focus on the text and check for grammatical errors and most importantly just make sure that you proofread and do not skip this step so I hope that you found these tips and suggestions useful because I definitely think this will help you immensely improve your academic writing so let's practice some of the things that we've been talking about in this lesson and the way that I would like to practice is by correcting some common writing mistakes now I'm sure that you may have heard the expression practice makes perfect so let's do that right now I want to talk to you about some common writing mistakes and see if you can identify them but most importantly I also want to talk about how you can fix these mistakes and really just try to avoid them all together this uh well these are the directions so I am going to give you a sample writing and I want you to read the sentences read what I have for you and see if you can identify all three mistakes so in each writing sample there are three mistakes but not only that I also want you to identify the common writing mistake like what is the overall problem what is the overall issue and that's really going to help you try to go through your own writing and tell you what to look for some of the things to keep in mind to help you improve your writing and help you correct some of those mistakes so let's just jump in I think as we go through this you'll you'll get what I'm talking about so the first one is this right here this little writing sample so I'll I'll read this as is I'll give you a moment to think about what are some of the mistakes write them in the chat and then we'll talk about the overall problem so here is the first writing sample neither John nor Mary are at school today John is a good friend who always asks for help I am happy to give my friend a hand from time to time however Mary usually tells me that he don't need my help and should do his own work so in this in these sentences right here there are three mistakes and I want you to think about well what are the mistakes and all of all of these mistakes are similar I think the one thing that stands out which you can probably see is that he don't let me show you all three and we'll talk about the general well topic the category so what I'm really referring to the three mistakes and what they have in common is that they all deal with subject verb agreement so the first sentence there's that first mistake neither John nor Mary is at school today when you're talking about that phrase neither or nor if we have a singular subject in which case JN is singular Mary is singular we're going to use a singular verb neither John nor Mary is at school today and if it were a plural subject like neither children nor adults then you could use that plural verb the next sentence John is a good friend of mine who always ask for help we need that S at the end so who who is referring to John in this case again it's singular John ask who ask and then down there at the bottom however Mary usually tells me that he don't this is a common mistake that I I see in writing but also in spoken English when people want to use that negative and they're talking about he or she and I'll hear people go to and and use don't instead of doesn't so just something to keep in mind but the first Common mistake that I often see when it comes to writing is just subject verb agreement do the does the subject agree with the verb and that's something you should look through as you go through your writing to make sure that they do agree the next one please let me know when you're ready to this case you see that past participle Ben so that tells you right there there that we're talking about the present perfect tense it's been a difficult time for both of us and then that last sentence uh to be honest I don't know if I can forgive you for your many mistakes in this case we're talking about your the possessive form y u r what do you think I never really check weather forecast luckily a friend told me it was going to rain tomorrow I made sure to bring an umbrella when our group of friends traveled to the Yos National park there are three mistakes they're all the same but once again the they have this in common one thing that I think is also a challenge when you're looking at someone else's writing it can be a little easier when you're going back through your own writing it it's actually a little more challenging the three mistakes in this sample right here they all have to do with articles here are the the mistakes mes it's just we're talking about article misuse and when I say articles I'm talking about a andth or just no article and not using an article so I never really check uh the weather forecast you could use the article a in this case but mostly when talking about the weather you're referring to the specific weather where you are so I think it's preferable to use the I made sure to bring an umbrella an umbrella all right we're going to use that article an instead of a an umbrella when our group of friends travel um travel to not the yosan national park it should be no article and that last one when talking about no article we're talking about a national park we don't use an article before that so the next one see if you can find the three mistakes he spent much of his time studying Finance because he was interested with economics perhaps it came naturally because he was great in math he understood that people's H spending habits depended to their income what are the mistakes in this writing sample and you know what is the category what category of mistakes am I referring to what I'm referring to the mistakes the overall category is just the wrong preposition so so that first sentence he spent much of his time studying Finance because he was interested in economics if you're using that adjective interested you're going to say you're interested in something perhaps it came naturally because he was great at math great at something you're good at something and then finally he understood that people spending habits depended not depended to it depended on their in income so something depends on something else one thing that I'll say with these prepositions which can be tricky is that sometimes more than one preposition may be used the reason why I'm pointing this now out now is because I want you to look at that phrase great at math and again I think in just general conversation colloquial speech you may hear someone use the preposition in when talking about a subject oh he's is great in math but if you want a point of reference and I wanted to share this site with you and I've talked about it before andram viewer this is a good way to try to understand the language and understand which words or phrases are more commonly used good at math good in math and looking at the graph right there you can see that good at math is more frequently used every day I get get up and go for a run I usually took the same route yesterday however I decide to go jogging in the Hills nearby I had never been there before I really enjoy seeing the beautiful Forest perhaps I will do it again tomorrow so this actually goes back to what I was talking about before when I feel like in that one sample number three I had made a mistake and again the other thing is making mistakes it's it's natural it's going to happen and I I think it is especially difficult when you are proofreading your own writing when other people are doing it I think it can be a little easier and you're able to spot some of those things mistakes because they're not your words we're talking about changing tenses and even in that sample before I made a mistake in terms of talking about the future and then kind of switching to the past and this is a mistake that people not only make in writing even whether you're an English learner or a native speaker it's a mistake that people make and spoken English as well when they're telling a story so every day we're talking about a routine a habit we're going to use the present simple I go for a I get up and go for a run we're continuing with the present simple in that next sentence talking about what you usually do this is your routine your habit I usually take the same route the next sentence you see that word that time word right there yesterday that tells you that we're talking about the past yesterday however I decided with that Ed ending to go jogging in the Hills I had never been there before I really enjoyed seeing the beautiful Forest we're going to use the past tense because once again in the previous sentence I had just said well I never been there before so it's not something you regularly do that you enjoy uh and that you're familiar with we're talking about again a finished action in the past and then the next sentence we switch to the Future because we have that time word tomorrow perhaps I'll do it again uh tomorrow think about those time words when talking about yesterday or a few days ago tomorrow at the moment and those are indicators as to which verb tense you should be using then here is sample number six after going to the dentist I learned that I have three cavities the dentist said you need to take better care of your teeth he requested that I floss regularly and I should come in for a cleaning once every six months even as I was reading that hopefully just listening to it you might think that it sounded a little off what are the mistakes and it is the same

next one the dentist said comma and this is in quotes you need to take better care of your teeth this is I feel like this is what my dentist would say says to me when I go there uh so again the dentist said said is that reporting verb before you say you give that direct quote those quotations you need a comma there the dentist said comma you need to take better care of your teeth he requested that I floss regularly comma and I should come in for a cleaning once every 6 months that is a compound sentence you have two two independent clauses joined by that conjunction and often they're joined by And or but so in this case and but you need a comma before that conjunction sample seven her colleague was late to the meeting she was attempting to purchase some time in hopes that he would arrive clearly she was not prepared to make the presentation on her own this would certainly have a negative effect on their upcoming work evaluations so identify the mistakes and then think about well what category would this fall under some of these may be a little more difficult than others but I think if you find one you can start searching for those others so the three mistakes are right here all right right we're talking about the wrong word you're just using the wrong word a lot of times this happens with collocations words that are frequently used together the first mistake uh in that second sentence she was attempting instead of purchasing sometime we're talking about the phrase to buy sometime and buy and purchase they're generally synonyms but in this case you it's a fixed phrase to buy time which means to delay or you're trying to avoid doing something you're trying to buy some time

so that's why I said think about the situation she's in this meeting she's trying to buy time because her colleague's not there clearly she was not prepared to give the presentation on her own or do the presentation now what makes this tricky is when talking about a presentation I just mentioned collocations you could use use the verb make give or do depending on the context so let me be a little clearer to make a presentation would really be creating the presentation if you're talking about give in that case you're really referring to presenting and you're actually in front of your audience speaking and you are giving the presentation with the verb do it can really refer to either one who's going to do the presentation like give the presentation or you could say who's going to do the presentation as in make it and create it it makes sense why some of these simple mistakes are made when it comes to these collocations it can be a little confusing and then at the end there this would certainly have a negative effect effect with an e is a noun so that is what we need there a negative effect with an e a effect with an a this is a verb to affect something so effect and effect they're commonly confused words different parts of speech the next one see if you can find all three mistakes I think one of them will definitely be easy to spot so I'll I'll read it for you dear sir or Madam I'm writing to let you know that I submitted the pro proposal in the nick of time time the project should be a piece of cake so I believe it will be completed within a week my team is going to work hard to make sure the project is finished in a timely manner okay what three mistakes do you see with this writing sample right here as I said one I think is pretty obvious and hopefully maybe that'll help you identify the other two if I want to give you a little bit of a hint think about that very first line Dear Sir or madam what is that telling you if somebody begins a letter or an email Dear Sir or Madam Dear Sir or Madam should tell you that this is a formal message it is either a formal letter or it is a formal email and because of that you really should avoid you using informal language Dear Sir or Madam this is a formal message a formal email I am writing to let you know that I submitted the proposal in the nick of time is an idiom and if you're writing an in a formal uh email or letter I would recommend avoiding idioms altogether they're more casual so instead of you you submitted the proposal in the nick of time I submitted the proposal before the deadline there are other phrases that you could use to finish that sentence but I would get rid of in the nick of time the project should be a piece of cake once again piece of cake is an idiom I would avoid it if you're writing something that's a little more formal so instead of a piece of cake maybe you could use simple and straightforward or just one of those the project should be straightforward so I believe it will be completed within a week and then that last sentence my team is going to instead of writing the reduction you need to spell out the full form going to my team is going to work hard to make sure the project is finished in a timely manner now even if I'm reading this and I see going to the full form in my mind I'm saying gonna I'm changing that to the reduction my team is going to work hard to make sure the project is finished on time but I would certainly avoid writing reductions sometimes I I know I say that and sometimes you may see it if somebody's writing a text message or perhaps like song lyrics and you see people spell out these reductions it's very informal but the problem that I notice is that when people start writing these reductions it then carries over into more formal writing which can look really unprofessional if it's something for work or or School you definitely want to avoid using those reductions so just keep that in mind this informal language and I just want you to keep these things in mind and as you're proof rating these are the things that I want you to look out for so it's really difficult especially if you're reading your own writing to track down all of the mistakes but one problem that I notice is that people will write something and they they tend not to proof re it all and I would definitely recommend it whether you're writing an email or even just a an informal letter it's just a good habit to get into now I I know that I just gave you a lot of information this past hour and I I hope that you really think about some of the things that we've talked about you can go back and rewatch parts of the lesson

because I really think that will help when it comes to improving your writing skills it is something that's going to take time it's going to take practice so if you enjoyed this lesson and learned something new please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 3 OF 749

1-HOUR LESSON - Learn Over 100 English Phrasal Verbs

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

buckle up that's a phrasal verb because I have a monster vocabulary lesson for you to help you level up your skills there's another one in this lesson I'm going to teach you over a hundred different phrasal verbs that's right over a hundred so it's a lot of information to soak in and there's another phrasal verb so you can see we use phrasal verbs all the time and if you are someone who enjoys building your vocabulary Please Subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English and it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals and I I know phrasal verbs can be a bit tricky so I've grouped them into different categories I'm going to tell you the meaning and give you a lot of different examples so you can see how they're used in context are you ready

game on listen up because today I am going to teach you some very useful phrasal verbs we use phrasal verbs all the time they are so common in everyday conversation and today I'm going to teach you some phrasal verbs that are related to listening these are listening phrasal verbs and the first one that I have for you is listen up I said it at the very very very beginning of this lesson and all it means is to listen carefully it's just you're telling somebody or a group of people to listen carefully so when I think about this phrasal verb being used I think about maybe a coach talk to a group of players they might want to get their attention and tell them hey everybody listen up what I'm about to say is very important or maybe a teacher would say it to a group of students they want the students to pay attention and they tell everybody listen up listen up no one mention Richard roer again up I don't have to tell you what this game means listen up I'm hearing a lot of Whispers and rumors all right listen up listen up the next listening phrasal verb I have for you is to listen in now when you listen in you are secretly listening to their conversation you are secretly listening to what they're saying we can also make this a three-word phrasal verb with the preposition on and listen in on someone looks like Gary and Gertie are about to get briefed on the ukata assignment we should listen in I can only assume that you're listening in you've been listening in on our conversation tell the FBI agents listening in on this call then we have hear about so to hear about something or maybe you hear about someone is is just to receive information about this thing or or person did you hear about what people are saying in the comments you you should go check out those comments and and while you're down there just write us a comment because we love hearing from you how do you know you hear about people who are worth hearing about how did you hear about that oh how did you hear about us the next phrasal verb is he from and you you hear from someone now this phrasal verb has three different meanings the first meaning would just be you are receiving a a phone call or a message or maybe even an email from another person did you hear from your friend which would just be like okay did they call you did they write you did you hear from them will I hear from you did you hear from the doctor did you hear from your friend you hear from Bobby did you hear from Superman the next meaning is just to listen to a person or or even a group of people talk about a particular topic for example maybe the School faculty is going to hear from the students about some issue that's going on at the University you would hear from these people now we shall hear from tonight's featured guest as we begin our service we will now hear from her daughter and finally it means that I if somebody's angry then then you're just going to tell some other person about it I think it's often used in the context somebody's angry and they say You're going to hear from my lawyer I'm going to tell my lawyer about this thing that I am angry about or maybe somebody didn't apologize to to you and you say you know I if he doesn't apologize then then he's going to hear from me I'm going to let him know about this thing you have two weeks otherwise you'll hear from my lawyer but you'll hear from my attorneys in the morning you'll be hearing from me Sherlock you will be hearing from me Mr Scott okay well I can be very very persistent then we have to hear someone out and when you hear someone out then you are just listening to this person you are listening to what they have to say and and you let them finish you are not going to interrupt this person because you are hearing them out I think people frequently use it when you're you're maybe having an intense conversation or a discussion with somebody and and you want this person to listen to you and you just tell them look hear me out listen to what I have to say hear me out before you say or do anything just hear me out out just hear me out it's called hinkly Cold Storage just hear me out now hear me out all right they're playing cards and um and I read his hand blind and I hope all of you hear me out and listen to the lesson until the very end because you ever hear of it now I won't hear of it Mo you're a fabulous cat then we have pickup now the phrasal verb pickup has many different meanings I just want to talk to you about the meaning that's related to listening so to pick something up is just to to hear a sound you could also pick up a scent as well but when it comes to listening you would pick pick up a sound and what I think about is somebody who who's trying to listen carefully maybe they have their headphones on and they're trying to hear listen in on a conversation and oh are are you picking anything up have you have you picked up the sound can you hear anything or maybe you're trying to listen to things happening in in outer space and you're trying to pick up some sounds you're trying to pick something up try the scanner see if you can pick up it wor cap I can handle it it's all

yours the scanners pick up anything reported immediately I tried to get a fix on Alpha centur according to Will's calculations picked this up instead how about we talk about that other thing transmission Abdul picked up on his little radio the next listening phrasal verb is tune in and to tune in means to listen to and watch a a TV show or maybe a news broadcast or or even a video Lesson I really appreciate it that that all of you tune in to our video lessons and and hear me out I am really grateful for that thank you tune in next week for the exciting conclusion here if you've tuned in for wnyx's regularly scheduled can you tune in to the cockpit frequency yeah why the next phrasal verb and this is probably my favorite one on this list is to tune out and when you tune out you just you stop paying attention you stop listening and you can tune someone out or you could tune some something out and you're you're just not listening to this thing or this person anymore and I really hope that you are not tuning me out right now because you've heard about something else exciting going on don't don't don't worry about that just stay with me I want you to hear me out all the way until the end children okay tune out okay cuz some some secrets are coming out all right the adult ones look when usually when Amy complains about her co-workers I just tune her out it's just one more shift just tune her out and she'll eventually leave you alone and then we have well this is not a phrasal verb it's just an expression but but I liked it so I thought I would throw it in there and it is to hang on to someone's word often I think the the entire expression would be to hang on to someone's every word and that just means you are listening very carefully to what someone is saying because somebody is saying something that is so exciting it is so captivating that you just want to listen to every single word that this person is saying and you are hanging on to every word but he hangs on your every word oh I'm asking I'm telling you take that responsibility seriously I guess it's because we all want to believe that what we do is very important that people hang under our every word I'm now the leader of thousands of people they all hang on my every word so listen up now that you've tuned in to this lesson and you've heard me out now I want to hear from you and I want you to write to me in the comments fall phrasal verbs and I I'm not really talking about The Fall season I'm talking about phrasal verbs that all have the word fall and phrasal verbs can be confusing for a couple of different reasons you have the verb followed by a preposition and when that preposition changes well the meaning is likely going to change and phrasal verbs many of them have multiple meanings as well and as we go through the lesson I will talk to you about that and the one thing that I will really try to do as I teach you these different phrasal verbs is to give you some context and talk about well how you might often hear people use these phrasal verbs or how you can use them if you're having a conversation with someone else let's start with our first phrasal verb our first fall phrasal verb which is to fall apart and if you say that something falls apart it's really it just means

it's breaking into many pieces or you could use it to refer to something that's that's break in general so maybe you you build something it breaks into many pieces you could say Well it it fell apart or if I have something like uh maybe a table somebody could say well yeah this table it's really old it's falling apart it's not literally breaking into all these different pieces you're really just saying it's kind of breaking down in general it's not it's not working very well you need a new table because this one is falling apart well we could use the extra money and this house is falling apart then we have fall behind and this means that you you fail to do something fast enough or on time or even that you're you're just able to maintain some level so uh I think people often use this with work and maybe they have a project and they have other things that they need to do and you could say yeah I'm I'm falling behind with my work or in in the context of Education especially when you're talking about trying to maintain a certain level if you're having difficulty in a class and you feel like all the other students are getting ahead of you then you could say well the class is so difficult I I think I'm starting to fall behind and I'm not able to maintain a certain level fall behind spring session should end you'd be expected to tut to him so he doesn't fall behind in that respect your classroom experience may actually be of use fall through this phrasal verb means that something is just not going to happen and I think quite often we use this to talk about plans we have things that we want to do we hope that they happen but if they don't then you could or floor and you could use this to talk about a person or a thing now it is a little similar but also different than fall over which really means in that case that something is well falling on its side that when it was vertical so if I were to use them maybe interchangeably I could say I tripped and fell down it's the same is like well I tripped and fell over because I'm no longer standing and I'm on my side if I were to say something like I hung a painting and yesterday it fell down because it's probably falling to the ground or floor you're not going to use fall over in that case and because of that I think it's so much more common to use fall down fall down An Elevator Shaft what the hell does this mean I fall down An Elevator Shaft uh I don't know I just bring the Scripts still it's good to be a little more specific depending on the context if you want to say something is on its side it's not vertical anymore it fell over what you doing down there I fell over what you fell over I didn't do it on purpose well come on then and then we have fall off which has a couple of different meaning so the first one is that something becomes detached or separated from something else I hung a painting and then the next day it fell off the wall and often I think people will say what what this thing is falling from you could say the leaves are going to fall off the tree what do we do when we fall off the horse we get back on the next meaning of fall off is when the rate or quality of something is becoming slower or smaller and often I think you may use it in this context when when talking about business and you could say that well sales are starting to fall off it's becoming slower or maybe maybe new memberships have been falling off recently and hi so you can use fall off in that that context of business do you have anything you want to add the next phrasal verb is fall out it also has a couple of different meanings that I want to teach you the first one is that well to come out of something by Falling you could say that that something falls out the window the second meaning of Fallout is to become loose and separate from your head or mouth so think about it this way you could say that somebody's hair is falling out or maybe you have a tooth it's a little loose and then it falls out so in this case when talking about well like hair or teeth you're not going to use fall off you will use fall out Mrs Simpson there's no physical reason why your hair should be falling out then we have fall four also two meanings the first one is that well you you develop up romantic feelings for someone and you could say if somebody were say well I'm I'm falling for him or I'm falling for her they're talking about developing those romantic feelings my God you're falling for him I am not the second meaning is to be tricked or fooled by something and a very I think a common expression you might hear in a TV show or movie is like oh I I fell for the oldest trick in the book and that just means that you were tricked or deceived by something that you you should have known better because it happens quite often the ring I can't believe you fell for the oldest trick in the book and then there's fall into also a couple of different meanings the first one is that well you go into something like somebody falls into the pool or you could also say that you suddenly have a condition and you might fall into a coma hey Michael did you fall into a COI pond uh I can't really hear you I I think we sort of have a bad connection Jen did Michael fall into a koi pond like the cabin depressurized and fell into a coma or something oh I'm I'm fine sit sit and then there are some useful idioms that have this phrasal verb uh you could say that something falls into place that things happen in a satisfactory way without any problems and things just fall into place doing this mall tour and he came here to our Mall it was like everything was finally falling into place you know like it was um fake you could also use the idiom to fall in someone's lap and when something falls into your lap it really refers to well something happens in an unexpected way that you were not planning for you weren't trying to get this it just it just falls into your lap and you're often referring to something that's positive something desirable maybe you could say well I wasn't looking for a new job but this opportunity just fell into my lap it's up to you to make the best of it and it's not like opportunity is just going to fall into your lap I hope that you found this lesson useful I hope you learned something new and that you can well now go out there and try to use some of these phrasal verbs in everyday conversation they are pretty common they are very useful and I hope that it it you understand it a bit better talking about some of the context in which we use these different phrasal verbs I want to teach you 20 different phrasal verbs that have all positive meanings and I think because I'm already telling you that all of these phrasal verbs have a positive meaning I think that will make them a little bit easier to understand and possibly remember because you can connect it to that feeling the first phrasal verb that I have for you is believe in and this just means to feel confident about something or someone often I think we use it when we're talking about a person and you might say that you believe in someone for example you all want to improve your English and I truly I believe in you I feel that if you keep working hard and practicing and watching these video lessons I believe in you and I think that you will achieve your fluency goals then we have a three-word phrasal verb which is brush up on and typically you would say that you're going to brush up on something which means that you are going to improve your knowledge or skill in well in something that you have learned before but you've kind of forgotten let's say that you studied English in the past you forgotten a little bit but you're going to improve your knowledge and you are going to brush up on your skills read some books brush up on your history the quiz Monday brush up on chapters three and four yeah I need to House break I new police dog plus it couldn't hurt Ralph either brush up on the fundamentals get along this is a very common phrasal verb and it's used to talk about two or more people that are just friendly with each other and I think it's very important that everyone try to get along next is the phrasal verb get over you get over something and what this is talking about is that you return to a normal state of health or happiness after some bad experience and you might get over an illness or perhaps you get over a bad breakup and you just return to your normal State then we have the phrasal verb get through and to get through something means that you are trying to survive it you're trying to endure it and then you will you will reach the end and everything will be better and often I think you would use this phrasal verb if you want to offer some encouragement some support and you might hear somebody say look you're you're going to get through this I believe in you you're going to get through this just get through today I'll be there tomorrow afternoon but we're just going to have to find a way to get through this get through this together next is go beyond and to go beyond just means to be more than or do more than what is expected and often you may hear people use it with this expression to go above and beyond that if you do more than what is expected of you then somebody might say that you you just went above and beyond then we have goof off or goof around they mean the same thing and it pretty much means to to avoid doing something and kind maybe you're wasting time and I've included them in this lesson about staying positive because when you are dealing with some type of really bad experience I think all of us need to relax a little bit and it can be helpful to goof off or or goof around and it just helps us it it could help you get through the day are we going to be goofing off like this every day uh we're not goofing off but what they really want is an excuse to goof off and not study for finals I can goof around JD I I can goof around hard this says they only pay you 100 bucks a week yeah but all I really do is goof around all day then we have help out and I think often you may find a pronoun between the verb and the preposition to help someone out and this means that you are just you're doing some work for somebody else or maybe you're giving them some money and you are helping a person out you guys you can help me out if you want and hit that like button down below then we have the phrasal verb keep at and if you keep at something if somebody tells you to keep at it they just want you to continue working at something and I think often this is really a little more encouraging that if somebody's thinking about giving up and they're thinking about quitting and you want them to stay positive and and really get through it you might tell them look I I believe in you you just need to keep at it then we have the phrasal verb keep up which is very similar if somebody tells you hey keep it up then they're telling you to continue working and maintain the effort that you're putting in or perhaps you're you're doing a great job and they want you to continue doing a good job and they may tell you to to keep it up so that's a little bit of a slight difference I think if somebody's going to tell you to keep at it then I think they want to encourage you if maybe you're having a difficult time or if you're doing well and they want you to continue doing well and working they may tell you to to keep it up keep up the good work CL there's too much at stake I can't just write Superman off we need him you're right we should keep at it no

I should keep at it hey R your Department's killing baby hey my pleasure my treasure keep it up then we have light up and to light up is just to look happy and often I think people may use it to describe someone's face and they would say oh like uh her face just lit up that she became very happy or maybe somebody might use the Expression to light up the room that is somebody's presence that they enter and maybe you say they just light up the room they make everyone happy then we have look forward to it is a three-word phrasal verb and it means to feel very excited about something that that's going to happen in the future for example I look forward to 2021 I look forward to the tournament forward to tomorrow night I look forward to your call I look forward to meeting her look up this phrasal verb means to become better and often I think you would hear somebody say something like things are looking up things are becoming better they're starting to look up next is the phrasal verb pay off and if something pays off then it results in success for example uh people might say well hard work pays off if you work really hard then then it's going to pay off it's going to result in success then we have the phrasal verb pull through and pull through is talking about someone who becomes well again after a serious illness and if somebody is very ill they're in the hospital you want them to pull through and become well again next is the phrasal verb settle down and that means to become well familiar with a place and just be happy about it often I think people might use it when they're they're talking about the future or something like that and they'd say later on in life I just want to settle down and have a family and just enjoy life we'll claim our land and then we'll marry and finally settle down you do want to settle down don't you Shah yes so want to settle down I will say you know Kyle used to be just like us hanging out drinking and stuff but he seems happier that he's settled down then we have sort out which means that you are dealing with a problem in a successful way so so if you have a problem you might tell somebody that you know I just need to sort this out I need to deal with it successfully I'm going to sort it out because you want to stay positive I I really hope that you sort out all of your problems then we have the phrasal verb straighten up and if you say that someone straightens up it it's a positive phrasal verb because it means that they are behaving well after behaving poorly so if somebody has maybe they have some problems they have some issues you might tell that person to straighten up and you'd say I I really want you to straighten up I want you to behave well you really you should sort out all your problems go settle down and just try to be happy and work hard and in the end it's all going to pay off work through this phrasal verb means that you're trying to manage a problem that has different parts so it could be a problem that is a little complicated and you could say that you're you're trying to work through it you want to work through it so that afterwards everything is better then we have the phrasal verb work up and if you are trying to work your way up it means you're you're trying to make progress and typically I think you're you're trying to achieve some type of level or position for example you may hear people talk about the phrase to work your way up the corporate ladder you're you're trying to improve and make progress in the company and and work your way up the ladder who doesn't love shopping I know I do but you know what's even better than shopping shopping phrasal verbs it's coming up welcome welcome welcome to our lesson today I have a super fun one we are talking about shopping phrasal verbs of course these are very useful phrasal verbs because we have to go shopping all the time we need food we need clothes and that is why these verbs will come in very very handy because we can use them all the time so let's begin first one is sell out so this means they sell out it means they don't have it any longer that the store doesn't have something anymore and it's not available to buy and many times we use it with of they sell out of something so maybe you go to the store and they have sold out of mushrooms it happened to me the other day they sold out of hummus or eggs or something this is also a very common word to use with um different events for example like a show or a concert yes from Milan you said it was in the store no no no we we sold out we've had to order some more oh you know what I can check for you it's sold out yeah sorry about that that's a bummer two tickets for let me guess look who's oning that's right sold out oh

number two is try out and this just means to test something to see if you like it and of course this is going to be more of applicable to shopping trips that involve clothes or shoes because you want to test those items out before you buy them I want to try out these running shoes before I run the marathon number three is pickup and this just means to buy or grab something from the store when you pick something up from the store you're not spending a long time in there you are just grabbing what you need and leaving easy as that I'm here to pick up some delicados Jenny just you know she wants me to pick up some stuff on the way home we can pick up some things at the mall oh could you pick me up some panty hose maybe you could pick me up some underwear number four is almost like number three but slightly different it's pick out not pick up pick out and it has a completely different meaning it just means to choose this is why phrasal verbs are so complicated is because you switch the preposition and suddenly the meaning changes but pick out means to choose one thing avocado I don't know how to pick out an avocado I need you to help me pick out what to wear which women pay her to pick out their clothes go in there pick something out so we can go I thought I was just going to be picking out a chair number five is markdown and this one's among my favorite ones because uh when stores Mark something down it means they reduce it in price which calls for happy dance Happy dance they mark down the prices yeah that's I'm sorry about that that's really what it means the price goes down it's marked down I love this dress and they marked it down 50% and everything is marked down the shoes were just marked down from 155 look at this it's $85 marked down from $600 that dress is $66.95 marked down from 10 number six is to look around and this one can also be fun it just means to browse around without a plan you don't have a shopping plan you're not there to just go in buy something and get out you're just looking around you want to see what they have ooh maybe you can get a new dress oh maybe some new shoes it doesn't matter you don't have a plan you're just looking around I'm not buying anything today I'm just looking around number seven is to shop around and when you shop around you compare prices between two or more stores and we usually do this with more expensive items uh like a TV or a computer or a means to kind of spend money wastefully every month I blow $30 on a gym membership that I never use number 10 is take back and it means to return something to the store now I think Wes will agree that I do this a lot or I used to do this a lot if it's defective or it doesn't fit right many times we can take it back so you guys want me to take this back I'm thinking of taking it back to the thrift store actually the other thing is if you don't like anything takes it right back I don't return fruit so in the comments write down the answer to one of these questions what do you like to shop round four have you ever blown money on something when have you taken something back let us know we are going to study study phrasal verbs we are going to talk about phrasal verbs but phrasal verbs that are related to study so that's what I meant when I said we are going to study study phrasal verbs so the first phrasal verb that I have for you is think through and this just means to carefully consider the the possible outcomes of of some situation and you might say you know I just I just need to think it through you need to think something through and really consider it before you make a decision I just want you to think it through still thinking things through what is there to Think Through just try and think things through let's think this thing through logically I don't want to decide just yet I really want to consider things you want to think it through it's always good to think things through before you make a decision the next phrasal verb is pick up and you can pick up something or you can pick something up and it just means to learn something and often I think we use it when we're talking about a language or a musical instrument or even an activity so for example I would say that I am trying to pick up Romanian right now I am trying to learn Romanian and many of you are trying to pick English up which is why you're here you can't just walk up to those guys you have to get out there and learn the moves get into their head pick up the speech picked up English faster than I could teach it I got bored I thought I'd pick up a new language we'll be back I've never seen anyone pick it up that quickly do you have a special tool for these if it has to do with my hands I usually pick it up really quickly the next phrasal verb is a pretty common one and that is cheat on you cheat on something and this just means to act deceptively or unfairly when you are completing a task so you can cheat on a quiz you could cheat on a test or cheat cheat on an exam I don't recommend that you cheat on anything at school but you know it does happen from time to time to cheat on something what you cheating on your conversion test when I was a kid I always played by the rules I never cheated on a test I regret to announce that someone in this class cheated on yesterday's exam then we have a three-word phrasal verb read up on and when you read up on something then you are increasing your knowledge about a topic by reading about it so you might read up on History if you want to learn more about that you might read up on a person if you were trying to find out more information about them you would read up on something I read up on my history thanks for the tip this will all be on next week's midterm so I suggest you read up on it I've been reading up on your family's culture so I've been reading up on this whole Iraq war situation then we have go through and this is a great study phrasal verb because when you go through something it just means that you are scrutinizing it you are looking at it very carefully so you might go through a paper or you might go through a report that you wrote and you're looking for mistakes so when you go through something you are looking at it carefully I I always hope that you guys go through the comments and read them because it's another great way to practice English and practice your reading skills and as well as learn more about each other I could go through the Panama papers uh we have to go through those documents I took the liberty of going through your address book we still have the books of fuan to go through then we have two phrasal verbs that that actually have the same meaning and those phrasal verbs are hand in or turn in so when you hand in something or you turn in something it it just means that you submit something you you give it to the teacher you hand in your homework you turn in the paper you hand in the essay you turn in your presentation so when you hand in or turn in something you are just giving it to either your teacher or Professor you realize what would happen if I hand in my homework in your handwriting anyone failing to turn in any homework assignment will be penalized one point off their final grade hey I want to email you my paper before I hand it in it's the first paper she's had to turn in she's bound to fter a little the next study phrasal verb is fall behind and and this is a good one even though it's it's not a good thing you don't want to fall behind because when you fall behind it means that you are not current or up todate with some information or even some task and you're really lacking in comparison to the other students so when you fall behind it's not a good thing but sometimes it happens and you know you might say yeah I I just fell behind or I've fallen behind boyss are falling behind in every subject you need to make school more challenging or else my son will fall behind we're falling way behind you haven't exactly been helping is there any company that doesn't have a product in production and I hope that you guys have not fallen behind and that you understand every one of these phrasal verbs but if you have fallen a little behind that's okay because then you can just go through the lesson again and again and again until you have picked up every single one of these phrasal verbs and I'm just going to keep saying them and repeating them over and over because that's just another great way for you to remember them the next phrasal verb is drop out and when you drop out that means that that you leave an activity or a program without completing it and often people use it and they talk about dropping out of school when you drop out of school you just leave and you don't complete it everything else I failed dropped out of school so you're dropping out no I'm going to public school you dropped out of college I uh heard you dropped out of school I went to University for a year as well before I dropped out so I'm a quitter don't drop out of school I I definitely don't recommend it I think you should work hard and turn in everything that your teacher ask you to at least that's what I would want from my students I always want them to hand in their assignments the next phrasal verb is hand out and this is a common study phrasal verb because you hear it a lot in the classroom to hand something out just means to distribute something you are passing something to the other students in the class so often times teachers would hand out an assignment or they would hand out a test or they'd hand out a quiz or yeah most of the stuff that they hand out it's it's not stuff that Learners are excited to get nobody wants a quiz or a test but but we got to do them and as long as you read up on all the information then then you should be fine it's true I've been handing out assignments and the kids turn them in and everything what kind of homework are they handing out in the first grade why don't you hand out the schedules that means we have to hand out the preparedness pack the next study phrasal verb is catch on and to catch on means that you understand what is meant or that you understand how to do something so maybe somebody might have a difficult time catching on and they have trouble understanding some material and you're not going anywhere of course not I'm already there you'll cat John but all our professionals have college degrees catch on pretty quick you've got to wait until your contracts are up I I get it you catch on slow you'll fit right in here I'm sure that you guys catch on quickly and you understood these phrasal verbs but if you didn't catch on that's okay just go through the lesson again and just think it through think through these phrasal verbs and try to understand them maybe you might want to read up on them so you have a better understanding and hopefully the fact that I've been repeating all of these phrasal verbs helps you remember their meaning a little bit better I have a very important lesson for you because I think just about all of us we like to travel and if you are traveling in another country it's a there's a pretty good chance you may be speaking English and if you get sick and you go to the doctor then you you will need to explain to them in English what is happening so I want to teach you some common phrasal verbs that you can use if you are talking to a doctor a friend a family member and you're trying to explain to them how you feel I if you're sick or maybe you think that you're getting sick so the first phrasal verb that I have for you is a three-word phrasal verb and it is come down with and you'd say that you are coming down with something and this means that you are are starting to become ill usually with a particular disease that is not too serious so overwhelmingly I think you would use this phrasal verb when perhaps talking about a cold and you'd say that oh I I think I'm starting to come down with a cold or maybe you you feel really sick and you go to the doctor and you say I think I think I came down with the flu or maybe you just don't know why you are sick or or you don't know what you have and you could say well I I'm just I'm coming down with something I don't know what it is but I'm going to go to the doctor and I'm going to tell them look I think I'm coming down with something I need your help so to come down with means that you are starting to get ill and again it's usually something that is not too serious to come down with sure you're not coming down with a cold yeah I think I came down with the flu Peter's come down with something I thinks he caught it from the rats then we have the phrasal verb burn up and when you're talking about sickness burn up means that you are just you're you're very hot and typically this is because you have a fever so perhaps somebody comes to you and they say wow you know I'm you know I think I might have a fever this is when you might you could put your hand on their forehead and feel it and if it feels very hot you would tell them you'd say wow you're you're burning up you definitely have a fever because you're burning up like crap yeah burning up yeah you're burning up got hotter places in my forehead let's stick with the preposition up right now and uh this next phrasal verb I I think is very common it's something that happens to all of us and I don't think anybody likes it and that is to throw up and when someone throw grows up it just means that they vomit so if you go to the doctor and you want to tell them that that you are sick and that you vomited you could just say yeah you know

last night I threw up I don't know what's wrong I I I definitely think I'm coming down with something but if you throw up then then you just vomit another phrasal verb that is somewhat related but it is definitely different and that is cough up and when you cough something up it's talking about well liquid that may be in your lungs and and you're just coughing and you might cough something up so if you have a severe cold I think it's quite possible that you would cough some of that stuff up in your lungs and it's not a very pleasant feeling and then you'd want to spit it out if you are coughing up something like mucus if you are coughing up something like blood then that may be very serious and you would definitely want to go to the doctor and tell them you know I'm I'm coughing up blood what do you think the problem is cough up I think I'm going to cough up a furrow glad I've been coughing all day I feel like I'm about to cough up a lung no you should quit that's bad for you didn't you hear what I just said I saw you cough up blood another phrasal verb with up is puff up and this just means that that you're describing something that is starting to swell or enlarge and you could say that it is puffing up maybe if you are like me and you get bad allergies then you might maybe your cheeks would start to puff up or your eyes could puff up a little bit and they can start to swell and this phrasal verb I I really do think if you have allergies and you have a reaction to something there is a possibility that that something will start to puff up so if you want to describe it and and say that something is swelling it is enlarging you could say that it's puffing up there you go little guy I'm not scared of him but you know it's an allergic thing my whole face could pop up my ankles will swell my eyes will puff up I look just like the Pillsbury dough boy then we have another phrasal verb using the preposition up and that is flare up and if you say that something flares up or it is flaring up then you're talking about a condition that has returned and usually uh if if somebody has a condition uh it may go away over time but then it returns it comes back and you could then say well it's starting to flare up and especially if it's noticeable if you can see this and maybe you're talking about your skin you could say well you know something happens I have this condition and it

it's starting to flare up again and perhaps you need to go to the doctor and get some medication because your condition it's starting to flare up honey I thought you'd be I think my symptoms are flaring up yeah but most of the time it won't even be an issue it only really flares up during periods of great stress would you rather me say hey guys my irritable bowel syndrome is flaring up the next phrasal verb is break out and this just means to start suddenly and often I I think again you probably would be referring to something that that's going on with your skin that you can actually see but maybe you don't know what it is and you would go to the doctor and just tell them like look I I'm just I just started to break out I don't know what's going on I I don't know how to describe it I don't know what it is it happened suddenly I just started breaking out and perhaps it could be an allergic reaction to something maybe maybe it was something you ate and then suddenly you just started breaking out next is actually well this this is a good phrasal verb when you think about sickness and and that is fight off because this is something that we all want to do we want to fight off a cold because we want to stay healthy so to fight something off just means that you are trying to resist this this disease this illness and you are fighting it off maybe you are eating really healthy you're you're getting a lot of vitamin C and because of that you can say well I'm just I'm trying to fight trying to fight something off so I think most of the time people would use this phrasal verb

if they are starting to feel a little sick and that's when people kind of spring into action and then they try to fight off the illness but why do you need the meds if you're not sick to fight off the cold symptoms that my healthy body is exhibiting I can fight off whatever stupid illness this pizza may or may not have had all right I'm in perfect control of my body we use your brain to fight off rabies then we have get over which well this one too this is another positive phrasal verb when you think about sickness because when you get over something it means that you have recovered from this illness or disease and and you got over it so when you get over something then you you are starting to feel healthy again because you have recovered from this sickness and I think it's quite common to use this when talking about well a cold and you could say I was starting to come down with a cold but I was really trying to fight it off and I I got a little sick but because I was fighting it off I got over it really quickly and that is good news if you get over a cold or any illness for that matter Sheldon you don't get over the flu in half an hour I'm just getting over a cold I finally got over my seasickness next is the phrasal verb pass out and if somebody passes out then it just means that they lose Consciousness and there well there are many reasons why a person might pass out but it could happen if you are severely sick and you are just you have a really bad fever your head is burning up you can't fight it off any longer and you're you're so tired and you might just pass out and and you become unconscious so to pass out is to become unconscious I got sick go outside pass out I'm fine I just pass out sometimes did you not listen to my messages I told you I I got locked in a storage room I don't know I got sick and passed out then if we want to say the opposite of pass out we can use well one of three phrasal verbs come to come around or come round and all of them they mean the same thing it just means to regain Consciousness so if you are really sick you're burning up and then you pass out a little later on you you might come to and regain Consciousness and uh hopefully whatever sickness you have you will get over it quickly and as always I will just try to continue using these phrasal verbs again and again because I I think that will just help you better understand their meaning then we have put on and this just means to receive some medical treatment but I I think there is more of a specific use because you would talk about it when you go to the doctor and they tell you they say okay you this is is what you need to take and then later on you might tell somebody else well the doctor put me on this medication the doctor put me on whatever it is they tell you that you need to take so they would put you on some medication and in that case they are giving you medical treatment to put on but my doctor put me right on a new round of chemo which is why I've been so tired lately doctors put me on medication to stop the seizures did they put you on medication better medical marijuana it's genius now I know sickness it is a very serious topic but I I want to end it on a lighter note so I could say that I hope that all of you learned some new phrasal verbs and that they may help you now or in the future if you have to go to the doctor and try to explain what's going on today I'm going to talk to you about phrasal verbs that deal with speaking let's start with the verb talk and the first phrase verb I have for you and possibly the most common is talk to talk to someone and when you talk to someone you are directly speaking to another person I have to talk to someone are you talking to me I suppose that you could also talk to something as well talk to the hand probably just talking to a tree right now you've been talking to my are those two are falling in love I'm talking to a dog most of the time we're talking about another person you talk to someone this is very similar to another phrasal verb talk with and they're basically interchangeable you are speaking directly with another person talk to talk with come and talk with me I've talked with the others well it was very nice talking with you the only difference is that talking with it it really implies that there is another person you're you're having a conversation with so for example I could talk to myself in the mirror I wouldn't really say talk with because there's no other person involved so that's why I think it's a little more common to talk to someone or something the next phrasal verb using talk is to talk someone up notice that someone goes in between the verb and the preposition and when you talk someone up then you are just speaking very enthusiastic basically about this person so if you're in a group of friends you can talk him up you can talk her up maybe you could talk me up and tell everyone about interactive English another good example is like in in a job interview you go in there and you want to talk yourself up because you want to show them that you're the best to talk someone up no I was talking you up you shouldn't have been talking me up you should have been taken care of I talked you up okay she's so well read good because I've got so many people I want you to meet I'm talking you up like crazy here another phrasal verb which is not so good is to talk back to someone talk back and this means that you are replying to someone in a rude Manner and you're not being polite so for example if there's a conversation and and somebody tells you to do something and you don't want to and you're angry you might talk back to this person often you hear it in situations like children talk back to their parents maybe employees sometimes talk back to their boss but when you're talking back to someone you are not being very nice and more often than not you should be polite in these situations but instead you're talking back don't talk back to your dad D you talk back to a senior ranking officer he's not listening he's hostile he's talking back don't talk that now let's look at speak because there are several phrasal verbs using this verb the first one I want to talk to you about is speak up and this just means to raise your voice and and make it a little louder so often if you're having a conversation somebody might ask you to speak up because they can't really hear you well they don't know what you're saying you might hear this when talking on the phone because there's other noises and maybe it's difficult to understand somebody so they might say hey hey could you please speak up a little you speak up please please come on speak up could you speak up Mr Roberts is he well speak up George I can't hear you yeah what say speak up I can't hear you with that bubble down we can change this meaning completely by adding another preposition to make it a three-word phrasal verb and that is speak up for someone speak up for and if you are speaking up for someone then you are just defending this person so you may want to defend this person because they're they're being attacked and you want to speak up for him or speak up for her or maybe even speak up for yourself if we don't speak up for them who will you can't speak up for us at least speak up for yourself is the Peacekeeper on me for speaking up for you and and miss brookheimer and I uh are here today as Patriots uh speaking up for the common citizen now we can remove up and make it a two-word phrasal verb once again with another new meaning speak for someone and when you speak for someone you you're basically representing this person's beliefs this person's opinion you are speaking for this other person often it's used in some context where there's a group of people and you might say you know I speak for everyone when I say this opinion or this belief so for example I could say I think I speak for everyone when I say you should hit that like button I speak for this family but I know I speak for everyone I speak for the trees and I think I speak for everyone when I say you shall be missed oh and I think I speak for everyone here when I say thank you for taking us in another phrasal verb which is so so so common is this one right here and that is shut up now this phrasal verb is important because it does have a couple of different meanings the first one which I think most of us probably think of is firmly or angrily telling someone to be quiet you don't want this person talking anymore you want them to close their mouth you don't want any more sounds coming out you might tell them shut up shut up shut up shut up the other way that that this phrasal verb is used is kind of to express disbelief so somebody says something that is outrageous that you can't believe it and you might just say no shut up shut up really shut up so in this case it's not really used to be rude or mean you're basically expressing your disbelief you you can't believe what you're hearing shut up shut up shut up you and Beth shut up what happened who is somebody that you would like to talk to have you ever talked someone up have you ever talked back to someone or has anyone ever talked back to you write to us in the comments practice using these phrasal verbs because to be perfectly honest that is the best way to remember the meaning and really understand how to use them today I want to talk to you about some useful phrasal verbs that you may use every day phrasal verbs that are related to the computer to the internet to technology in general which is why I said you may use these every day because we use the computer all the time so so the first phrasal verb that I want to talk to you about well actually a couple of phrasal verbs that have the same meaning is log in and sign in and what this means is just to access a computer or even a site using a name and a password when you first start using the computer you may need to log in and then if you perhaps want to go to a website you might have to sign into that website Anonymous 821 signed into multiple accounts and standing by I logged into hitman's computer and flooded it with taii pornography then we have to click on and that just means to move the mouse over to an application to a link and then you select it you click on the application or you click on the link just click on the enchanted boots to put them on I don't know can I see them in another color just click on them next we have scroll up and scroll down and this just means to move to the top or bottom of a site or a text so for example if if you're using a document you might need to scroll down to find more information or keep reading or maybe if you miss something then you would scroll back up okay wait a minute what happens if you scroll down how about if you scroll up you can also scroll through a site or a document and this just means to go through it to go up and down usually because you're looking for some specific specific information and you are scrolling through the site in order to find the information that you need I will take a silent face Journey as I scroll through this comment section and scroll through the onscreen menu you should scroll through the pictures on my husband's phone to back up and often times you're talking about backing up your computer or backing up your hard drive and this just means to keep an extra copy of information for safe keeping every now and then I need to back up my computer I need to save that information in case something happens or maybe you say you're going to back up your hard drive which is where the information is stored and you are going to back everything up because you definitely don't want to lose it it's always smart to back up your computer every time it's triggered I get a text like a Google alert I don't even know what you're talking about mhm you know he backs up his hard drive every night right what are you doing backing up the hard drive it's a good habit to get into next is hack into and when somebody hacks into another computer or even a site then that just means they are illegally accessing a computer or they're illegally connecting to some kind of network so it's not a good thing I I hope that you are not trying to hack into someone else's computer in order to steal information but this is a phrasal verb that you may definitely hear if you're watching a movie or a TV show and somebody's trying to illegally access some information they may hack into the computer or May maybe hack into the network he hacked into our system he hacked into her computer wait I'm hacking into the phone's camera now there that's it that's a live stream Monica hacked into our server okay please don't tell me that you hacked into enr's system I won't tell you that well did you hack into it or not Sheldon that computer is used for National def hacking into it is a federal crime then we have the phrasal verb run out of and this just means to decrease the supply of something when talking about Compu Compu it's common to hear someone say that they are running out of space they use the computer all the time and they're storing all this information photos and they begin to run out of space now this is a phrasal verb that you can use in a variety of different context but it has the same meaning for example you might run out of gas if you're driving a car or maybe here at home I might run out of milk which is true I am running out of milk so I need to go to the store the supply is decreasing but when you're talking about a computer people would say they're running out of space apparently the net has run out of web space and they don't have enough bites left to have my name now if you're trying to create more space you might use the phrasal verb free up and you're trying to free up space and make it available so that you can continue to save photos and other information on the computer you need to free up some space we can also use this phrasal verb in a variety of other situations that as well for example you may need to free up some of your time and make it available so that you can do other things but when talking about computers it's all about the the space that you have the memory most of the time people free up space by deleting things but just make sure that's why it's good to back everything up so you don't lose anything you're making a choice to destroy it to never see it again you choose to delete because you need to free up space because you don't want it anymore next is the phrasal verb pop up to pop up which means just to suddenly appear so I

I think it's normal nowadays if you are using the internet uh that that an advertisement will will suddenly pop up and it just appears so this is a phrasal verb to pop up but it can also be used as a noun because that advertisement the one that pops up is referred to as a popup it's called a popup but the action to popup is a phrasal verb and I keep saying pop up so many times I hope that this is not confusing yeah except when you update the software a little window pops up and you click okay they actually go inside there but I've Seen Those ads pop up on my screen then we have opt in and opt out and this just means to choose to receive messages so if you opt in then you are saying yes I will receive some messages if you change your mind and say I don't want to receive any messages any longer then you can opt out opt in opt out what value can we offer now to user to entice them to download the app and opt into our Network this is the butt Whisperer 9000 cushion track walk side path must liability opt out button keep them coming and drill serent mode we also have the phrasal verb filter out and this just means to remove unwanted email messages so if you receive emails that that you don't want you're not interested in these messages then you may try to filter them out so that you just don't receive them anymore Google always filters out my emails I think I'm a lot and when we said someone should probably help Eric by filtering out any negative comments he mentioned you by name then we have three phrasal verbs that mean well they all mean the same thing so this should be easy and that is turn off shut down and power off and it just means to to end a session on the computer and you just stop using it so if you're not going to use the computer anymore you can turn it off or maybe you'll shut it down or perhaps you'll power it off you can use any one of these three in my personal opinion I think turn off is probably the most common followed by shut down and then power off it's still used but I don't think it's as commonly used and I'm probably going to hear from a bunch of people in the comments say I always say power off I love using that one you can use any of them don't worry about it they all mean the same thing turn off shut down power off turn off the computer and come downstairs I'm going to need your gimbal angles Jack before you shut down the computer energy probe shut down Alex shut down power off then we have plug in which is a phrasal verb specifically talking about plugging a power cable into a socket plug in so if you need to charge your battery then you're going to need to plug it into a socket so that you can continue to use the computer I don't I don't think your computer's plugged in I'm sorry guys what are you doing plugging in your computer then we have print out and if you are printing something out then you are making a copy of something from the computer most of the time it's talking about a document you open up a document and you want to have that that hard copy so then you will need to print it out print out look I've got your advert here I printed it out I've printed out some review I've been craving studes all day I'll print out some menus then we have set up and to set something up just means to install a new program or perhaps even assemble a computer I don't think that most of us are assembling our own computers and it's like oh I have to set up my computer you might say that in the context of you have a new computer and you need to move all your information from the old computer to the new computer and all of your programs in that case you could say you know I need to set it up I need to get everything ready so I can start using it again but you will see this phrasal verb when you start using a a new program for the first time you will need to set it up on your computer you install it you set it up and then you can start using it we set up a voice activation system on your computer I am going to need so much help setting up my computer I'm like a total Grandma then we have keep up with and this is probably my favorite phrasal verb because I I think it applies to me this is used when talking about techn ology because what it means is to maintain the same level of something and often I think it's talking about like knowledge or changes and it really applies to technology because often people well people like me might say you know with so many changes happening and and it's moving so fast it's difficult to keep up with all of these changes it's difficult to keep up with all of these updates on the computer it's difficult to keep up with with all of these different forms of social media so if you're like me then yes it may be difficult to keep up with all of these changes I've been trying to keep up with her but I'm an old ass what do you like about Ryan Ryan keeps up with all the latest technology Trends and he's very honest with me about when I put on weight and I hope that that you have no problem keeping up with our lessons because you don't have to sign in to anything in order to watch our lessons now there may be an advertisement that pops up from time to time and and you may have to watch it but but that's just about it and I'm just trying to use these phrasal verbs again and again because that's just going to help you remember their meaning if you enjoyed this lesson and learned something new please hit that like button and as always thanks so much for watching and I'll see you next time

LESSON 4 OF 749

1-HOUR PRONUNCIATION LESSON | 100+ Words to Fine-tune Your Pronunciation

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I want to help you improve and develop your pronunciation skills and that is why I put together this onehour Mega lesson going over some difficult and tricky words to pronounce and we're going to cover a variety of topics and if you are someone who would like to improve your pronunciation Please Subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is West the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals so let's get the pronunciation ball rolling with some useful and difficult words to pronounce 10 words that Learners often mispronounce and I want to tell you how to say these words correctly now keep in mind that I am from the United States so I'm going to be sharing with you the American pronunciation of these words so I'll tell you the word and give you the pronunciation I will show you both the phonetic spelling as well as the IPA I'm also going to tell you the meaning of the word so that you can better understand how and when the word is used and finally I would encourage you to repeat these words after me as we go through each one say them out loud practice speaking practice your pronunciation because that is the best way to improve so the first word I have for you is subtle this word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable subtle say it with me subtle what this word means is it's something that is well not noticeable or not obvious in any way but what is obvious is why this word is often mispronounced and it's because of that b it is a silent letter a silent be you are not going to hear it subtle also remember I'm from the United States so that t I'm really saying a flap T which almost sounds like a very soft D sound it's a very subtle sound subtle subtle then we have segue this word also has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable segue segue it just means a smooth transition you may segue from one topic to the next and make a smooth transition the reason why this word you know people have trouble with it is because of that spelling that second syllable is pronounced way segue the next word that I have for you is epitome this word has four syllables and the stress is on that second syllable that that pit epitome and what this means is that that something is the perfect example of of some group maybe you could say that you have a plate of fruit and vegetables and you could say wow this is the epitome of a healthy meal it is a perfect example of that the reason why this word uh people have some trouble with this word is because of that third and fourth syllable that third syllable you have the schah that uh sound and that final syllable it's just me that long e so that o spelling it is really pronounced a me epitomy epitome so let's practice say the word with me this is good shadowing practice epitome epitome something is the epitome of something else then we have candidate and this word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable candidate now the reason why I think uh this word can be a little confusing is because I will be honest with you I think there are quite a few people out there that kind of just eliminate that D even though the word it does have that D sound candidate candidate also that that final syllable some people may say it with a d and others may say it with a dit candidate I say it more with a dit candidate candidate and well what a candidate is it's a person who wants to be elected for a certain position so this is a word that you will you will hear a lot of if you happen to follow well politics in any country in in the US it it is a word if you are following us politics this is a word that you may hear a lot that somebody is the candidate the candidate say it with me candidate and then say it as fast as you can candidate candidate candidate candidate cand okay all right all right that's enough let's let's move on to the next word literally now this word has four syllables and the stress is on that first syllable that third syllable it it has that schah that uh literally and when somebody uses this word it's talking about well it's saying that something is word for word that that that is the way it is literally now I I think one reason why some Learners have trouble with it is because of that L and R you you have quite a few of those letters in this one word literally say it with me literally again you because I am from the United States I say this word more with that flap T sound so that t in the middle it's going to sound like a a soft D sound it is a subtle D sound literally literally and the next word that I have for you I literally forgot what the next word is let me get it for you the next word is MeMe so I think this is a great

I think they are mocking that dog it's quite funny this is a meme the next word is Debut it has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable and the a debut is just the first appearance of something or or even someone debut the reason why I think this word is often mispronounced is because you're you're not going to hear that that t at the end of the word it's almost that second syllable you're just you're just saying the letter youu you debut debut for example I could say that I made my debut on YouTube in 2017 it's been about it's been about three years exactly wow time flies the next word is albeit this word has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable albeit albe it and this word just means it's the same as although albeit I could say that well maybe I I really want a vacation and I take one I say well it was a very relaxing allbe it short vacation albeit one way that I think well one way to think about this word to help you pronounce it is that you can really break this word into those three syllables and pronounce the word the the the way it looks all be it allbe it allbe it the next word is resume this word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable so I'm talking about the noun resume and what that is it's it's just your CV it is a written account of your your personal work experience your education resume but I think Learners quite quite often confuse it with the verb resume which has two syllables and the stress is on the second syllable resume but we're talking about the your resume my resume maybe somebody needs to update their resume so be careful because if you are talking about the noun you want to say resume next is my favorite word on the list and that is kibos this word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable and I just like saying it with a lot of emphasis and energy kibos to put the kibos on something and what this word means is just to to put an end to something to put the kibos on something you are putting an end to this thing so I could say well I'm going to put the kibos on your plans I'm going to put an end to it so make sure that you if you want to try to use this word to use it with that phrase put the kibos on something but keep in mind this is a very informal expression it's not something you're going to hear in everyday English it's just a fun word so I wanted to share it with you but if if you hear it or you you see this word when reading a story it's pronounced kibos to put the kibos on something I really hope that you you thought this lesson was the epitome of a wonderful pronunciation lesson and I well I hope that you reward me which is a subtle hint for you to hit that like button

let's now transition to a topic that we talk about regularly food or at least I talk about it regularly but because this is often discussed in spoken English you want to make sure that you are pronouncing different food words correctly if you are out at a restaurant or even over at a friend's house therefore I've put together a group of food words that are commonly mispronounced I'm going to talk about 10 10 words 10 food words that are difficult to pronounce now they may be difficult because of the way they're spelled or the way that the syllable is stressed and what we're going to do is I'm going to tell you the word and repeat it again and again and again so you can hear the correct pronunciation I will tell you how many syllables the word has and which one is stressed in addition I will give you the phonetic spelling so that you you can see how the pronunciation is really spelled and I'll just give you a little information about the food in general mostly my opinion just to spice things up so let's begin the first word is zucchini zucchini this word has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable that key and that's where it confuses people because of this spelling that that CCH just has that key sound zucchini zucchini you could say it with me zucchini now I am somebody who really doesn't have to worry about the pronunciation of this word because I don't like zucchini I don't really eat zucchini I'm never asking for zucchini I'm never talking with people about zucchini except for right now but now you know how to say it if you ever want to ask for it zucchini what the hell is that my zucchini canzero zucchini so zucchini it's kind of leaving a bad taste in my mouth right now so let's just move on to the next word which is salmon this is a very popular fish word word it has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable salmon that second syllable has has that schah sound it's an unstressed syllable salmon and the reason why this word is commonly mispronounced is because of that L this is a silent l so you can forget about it get rid of it when you're saying the word and you would just ask for salmon what would you like for dinner I'd like some salmon if you like salmon just let me know let me know in the comments the next word is a great one simply because I think it just tastes really really good because it's butter sugar milk cooked together to give you caramel and the pronunciation it can be debatable a little bit there are several pronunciations for this word I think that that all of them are acceptable even though I'm sure some people would be like no no no there's only just one way to say it but I'm going to tell you all three ways to say caramel first you should know that the word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable that second syllable is going to have awah sound and that final syllable is where you might hear a different pronunciation people might say caramal and that mul is that third syllable or you might hear people say caramel and Mel so it's a difference between M and Mel caramel caramel and those are very similar and I think if you're just having a conversation and you say either one of those nobody's really going to think about it but another pronunciation which is I think becoming more popular in North America just in North America is making it a two-syllable word and dropping that second syllable and omitting that schwa sound and people would just say caramel I say caramel even though I I think many other English speakers would say caramel or caramel so now you know how to pronounce all of these different variations of caramel or caramel or caramel you you decide caramels it's good it's caramel I love caramel apples she can't eat caramel try the caramel it's delicious next is quinoa now you're probably looking at this word and the way it's spelled and you're thinking what the heck now the reason is is because this is not a word from the US or the UK or Canada Australia South Africa or other English-speaking countries quinoa is a tall crop that you mainly find in Peru Bolivia or Chile but the word does have two syllables the stress is on that first syllable quinoa now you might hear it pronounced with three syllables kinoa in which case the stress would be on that second syllable kinoa and that final syllable would just be that schwa uh kinoa or quinoa again I don't have a problem with this word because I'm never using it even though quinoa I've heard it's very healthy I I don't really eat it that often but in case you like quinoa now you know how to pronounce it so let's just move on to the next word which is a drink we're we're switching it up a little we're going to throw a drink in there and that drink is a daiquiri daiquiri has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable Dai this word can be confusing because that that Qi can throw people off it takes on that k sound so you have

D that second syllable also has the schwa daiquiri and this drink is a cocktail of rum lemon or lime and sugar it's usually also served with with some type of fruit fun fact the daiquiri cocktail was invented by an American mining engineer who got the name from a beach in Cuba and then he introduced the drink to New York City and from there the rest is history so if you like Fruity cocktails then you might want to try a daiquiri I'm not a big fan of dairies I think they're they're too sugary you haven't tried my daiquiri how do you say banana daiquiri banana daiquiri another round of daies the next word is one of my favorites guacamole it is mashed avocados with with lemon or lime juice and you you can put it on on bread you can use it as a dip it's just it it's wonderful I love guacamole and it has four syllables and the stress is on that third syllable now I am saying it like many Americans Say guacamole now it is a Spanish word and in Spanish the correct pronunciation would be guacamole guacamole so just just know that the correct pronunciation would be guacamole even though if you if you travel to the US you might hear a lot of English speakers saying guacamole oh guacamole I thought it was guacamole I used to like guacamole now I don't like guacamole holy moly that was a lot of guacamole next we have a cheese a cheese from Italy parmesan it has three syllables and the stress you might hear it on that first syllable parmesan or you could hear it on that third syllable and people would say parmesan I tend to stress it I'm trying to think parmesan I I think I end up stressing it on that first syllable one reason this word can be a little confusing is because that s has a z sound Parmesan

Parmesan I'd like some parmesan cheese I grew up in the southeast of the US and there you might hear people say parmesan I don't know where it came from but just an FYI if you're there you might hear people say yes I would like some Parmesan but I would encourage you just to say Parmesan Parmesan cheese you want some Parmesan cheese on there also from the great State of Wisconsin an aged parmesan next is artichoke this food has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable artichoke it is a vegetable uh common I think in the Mediterranean some people like artichokes I am not a big fan of artichokes now the word sounds similar to the way it's spelled the one thing I would tell you about this word is that when you say it in English that R it's not a strong R it's very soft artichoke in some cases it may sound like people are dropping that art Al together but I I think you'll slightly hear it artichoke I don't even know what that is artichoke know that you secretly love artichokes again another food that I don't have to worry about pronouncing artichokes now that I think about it all of the words that I don't have to worry about pronouncing are vegetables that's not good next is the word cinnamon which is a spice a delicious spice this spice has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable cinnamon notice that c is going to have an S sound and it's followed by the schwa cinnamon cinnamon I it's great I love cinnamon rolls those are very delicious if you never tried them you should ask for some cinnamon rolls it's not a vegetable not a healthy food but it's it's good cinnamon takes a backseat to no bka people love cinnamon

it should be on tables and restaurants along with salt and pepper and our last word I save the best for last because this is my favorite food on the list and that is filet mignon this food is actually two words and the stress is on the second syllable for each word filet Mignon now you might be wondering about why is it pronounced this way because of the spelling well this is a French word fet mignon it's a steak it's delicious it's juicy succulent savory who I really would like to have a fet mignon right about now I thought I was making a fet minan in honor of Paige being home I made your favorite dinner filet M just because you can have filet Minon doesn't mean that you have to settle for fast food now that you know how to say these food words correctly I want to hear from you so in the comments

write to me let me know what is your favorite food one thing that I want you to keep in mind is that we're we're taking our time going through these words and practicing your pronunciation and I want to remind you to do that say the words out loud work on your pronunciation and with that in mind I want to look at some common words that are sometimes misprounced these are words that you probably already know but I still want you to practice say the words out loud because most of the time when I hear a pronunciation mistake it's not always with some long very Advanced word that is not often used most pronunciation mistakes that I hear are with common words that you use in everyday English so let's practice some of these common words that are sometimes misprounced this is a really good lesson today we have 10 words they're very common words but they're also a little bit difficult to pronounce some because they're a little long others because they have a whole bunch of vowel sounds thrown in there so it can be a little bit confusing number one is exhausted this is a really really common word exhausted it means tired the X sound sounds like a like a g like a g sound we say exhausted the other reason why this word is difficult is because the H is silent so when you see it just ignore the H and it's exhausted and the third reason why this word is hard to pronounce is because of the Ed at the end in this case we say it uh it's exhausted say stay with me exhausted she was exhausted but couldn't sleep number two Brewery yeah that's right you heard me right it's it's hard to say so if you don't know what a brewery is it is where um people brew beer this one even just saying it it's obvious why it's why it's difficult to pronounce and that is because of the r sounds R it's very very faint a very soft R sound which in itself could be a very difficult uh sound to pronounce the second reason why this can be difficult is because uh right after the first syllable we have awah sound which is a shortened vowel sound and of course in the the third syllable you have the another R sound which is a little bit more pronounced than the first sound Brew Brewery when you say it they all kind of mash together Brewery say it with me Brewery we took a tour of the brewery this is true Wes and I took a tour of a brewery a few years back and it was a lot of fun Brewery the third word is a little bit long which makes it difficult to say uh this word is Antarctica basically what you have to do is you have to kind of break it down when you say it you can start with the first syllable which is an the second syllable is Arc keep in mind that for this word the stress is on the second syllable put it all together and you get Antarctica Antarctica say it with me Antarctica now say it really fast Antarctica Antarctica Antarctica see it's hard don't do it don't say it fast it's really cold in Antarctica number four phenomenon this one is hard because it's long but it's not that hard if you break it apart now we we can break up this word in four syllables first of all the ph sound uh it makes an F sound it's a f so we have fomon the third syllable is a sh say with me phenomenon the Aurora Borealis is an amazing phenomenon number five specific now this word can be difficult because of that middle syllable the C makes an S sound

now I know a lot of English language Learners May mispronounce the I sound it is not e it's not specific it's a short I sound so we say specific specific say it after me specific you got it say it again specific he needs specific directions in order to fix the boat number six another long word temperature now if you look up this word you will see that it technically has four syllables temperature but I think most people pronounce it with only three syllables so we have to kind of shorten everything we end up saying temperature in the second syllable we drop the e completely and we add awah temperature the T and U together are pronounced as a CH sound say it with me now temperature temperature the temperature was around 25° and the Sun was shining number seven rural this is a hard one oh gosh you guys I'm sorry I'm sorry for doing this to you the r sounds do make the words difficult and this one especially in the first syllable we have R and then in the second we have a r and of course there's a schah in the second syllable it's very fast you have to be kind of fast with it so say it with me please rural rural before moving to the city he lived in a rural area number eight choir now this is a short word but it is difficult to say for a few different reasons first of all the CH together in this case does not make a CH sound for example the word Channel makes a CH sound but not in this case CH sound together is a c c sound the second reason is that the o sound is is an A so put it all together and you get choir choir my mom sings in the church choir number nine is literature and this word is a little bit difficult because it's long first of all of course you have the L and rs which make this word even more difficult we have the r and the schwas sound and the T and U don't make a two sound or t sound

they make a CH sound just like in temperature so we have literature say it after me literature literature my favorite subject in school was Russian literature number 10 is squirrel I used to have a theory that the word squirrel is cute in every language so I'm kind of curious uh please in the comments let me know how do you say squirrel in your Lang language does it sound cute but the word squirrel whether you believe me that it's cute or not it's it can be a little bit harder to pronounce is just two syllables and it goes like this squir and then the second one oh squirrel there's just a schw sound squirrel so let's say it together squirrel so cute when I was in college I would often stop to feed the squirrels on campus okay okay so now that I've told you the words that I think are difficult to pronounce I want to hear from you in the comments please let me know what other words do you find difficult to pronounce so far we've talked about quite a few individual words now we want to teach you some words that are very specific and what I mean is that we're going to teach you how to pronounce 25 brand names in American English and I want to be very clear about that because we are going to give you the American pronunciation of these brand names and if a brand is not from the US which some of them are not the pronunciation in the United States may sound different than the original name Americans like me May bastardize the pronunciation and in case you're unfamiliar with this word to bastardize something which may be used when talking about language and pronunciation it means to change something in a way that fails to represent the values and qualities that it is intended to represent this may happen with language when pronouncing certain landmarks or cities or or in this case popular brand names so I I wanted to give you that disclaimer but let's go ahead and begin we're going to talk about brand names and how to pronounce them so a while back we received a comment from somebody who asked I hope you guys can create a video that will teach us how to say some Brands correctly and that is exactly what we're going to do today keep in mind that a lot of these brands are not from English-speaking countries and that means that Americans like me will take the name and the pronunciation that it is intended to be and we will bastardize it and mispronounce it and then it just becomes you know mainstream so we'll explain a little more as we go along but right now um let's begin number one Ikea I I think that anybody who is not from Sweden possibly pronounces this wrong because in Sweden they they say if I eeka um and even maybe I still might be mispronouncing it but if you're in the US or or Britain I think most people pronounce it Ikea and that's what they understand Ikea yeah get you some end tables and some of them $5 lamps man so if you were to say I'm going shopping today I got this new stuff from EA people in America would be like where is that okay number two Nutella uh correctly it's Nutella and that's how I say it because I love it and it's my favorite but Americans like West will say Nutella it's similar but there's a little Nutella is my favorite brand so far because of all the chocolate of course she even has a shirt number three Coke

now this is perhaps one of the most famous brands in the world and most of us I think know how to pronounce it but make sure that you are saying it with the long o sound Coke we had a student a while back who pronounced it with the short o and kept saying all right that means something different it is slang in English for I remember he was telling us a story that he went out to a restaurant and the waitress asked him what would you like to drink and he said I would like some and it it it just yeah in the end he eventually did get his Coke so everything worked out and I'm pretty sure he's pronouncing it correctly now this is you know is very innocent mistake but and this is how pronunciation um can cause a lot of confusion um among different people give me oh please give me I want a

it's Coke number four Tommy Hilfiger uh because this is a name uh I think people may mispronounce the last uh the the last name the first name I think is easy Tommy everyone knows that but Hill figure might be a little bit more confusing so that's how you pronounce it Tommy hillfigure number five hunde or as I think a lot of Americans say Hyundai and this one it's Hyundai or Honda hyi it's this is a Korean brand so again it takes on very different pronunciation I'm not really sure why but that's just the way it is number six Nike uh now I've heard people say Nike before uh they dro the E which kind of makes sense if you think about it what it looks like it looks like but it's not uh it's actually Nike uh from the old Greek goddess actually Nike and because it's an American company I guess this is the correct pronunciation looks like Nike but we say Nike number seven Adidas uh this is a German company and it's actually a port Mano which is the combination of two words so you have ai which is the nickname of Adolf and dos from dsler Adolf dsler who is the person who started all this Adidas so if you're looking for this shoe it's Adidas number eight Sephora uh with this word just make sure you know that the pH makes an F sound Sephora this is one of Yana's favorite Brands oh yeah I could live there number nine Porsche so in the US a lot of people either say Porsche or even shorten it and say Porsche but apparently the the company even made a video as to how pronounce this a while back PA posha posha posha posha I think in the US if you said you want to buy a posha people would probably ask you what that is again I think a lot of native English speakers would say Porsche or Porsche we don't drive a posha or a pors or a Porsche number 10 Louis Vuitton and in French it's Louie vuon I don't said it wrong how how does that go again I don't know say it again vuon okay Lou vuon but I would say Louis Vuitton because but I I don't know the French I'm not French either so I'm Louis vuon anyway it's Louis Vuitton yeah many Native English speakers would say Louis Vuitton my very own Louis Vuitton number 11 Samsung it's a Korean company so I think the the correct pronunciation technically would be Samsung but a lot of people English native English speakers um would say pronounce it Sam and not Sam so they'd say Samsung but if you did say Samsung um people will still know what you're talking about what kind of phone do you have I have a Samsung what kind of phone do you have I have an iPhone number 12 um Versace now uh the correct pronunciation in Italian is ver a but if you're talking to somebody who is uh a native English speaker and you want them to understand you you'd say Versace there you go the e at the end Versace mhm do you have a Versace no too expensive number 13 is a car company and it is pronounced chevret I'm not really sure the history behind uh this word the spelling is not necessarily like it sounds especially the T at the end uh it's not pronounced so we just say Chevrolet um or Chevy yeah or you could say Chevy for for short um not Chevrolet number 14 Stella Arta uh or you can just yeah it's it's pretty good you can just say Stella um but I mean I think it's pretty close to the actual French pronunciation Stella Ora yeah so Stella Stella Stella yeah so if you want a beer it's a Stella artoa or a Stella [Music] mhm Stella Arta number 15 Adobe so this is a word that many of you might know from computers and it's pronounced Adobe so the first a is the schwaha sound and the e at the end is the long e sound it's not Adobe it's not Adobe it's Adobe or adobe I gu Adobe not B just Adobe I can see people see that please don't ignore me like I was just some update from Adobe number 16 abber cromie and Fitch uh now this is a really long name so it's uh mispronounced many times uh but that's the correct pronunciation actually Wes I think says Finch but it's not Finch it's abian Fitch I used to but from now on no more uh the tea silent so keep that in mind and in Fitch abber cromie and fit number 17 uh Volkswagen um this is a German car company so I think in German they would pronounce it uh folks swagen is that pretty good yeah I think so in the US uh a lot of native uh English speakers would say Volkswagen so you'd hear that that W sound in there Volkswagen Volkswagen is that's how they say it what like the back of a Volkswagen Volkswagen have you ever had one no I like the buggies the old like 60s number 18 anthropology uh now this is French sounding so um I've heard people say anthropology uh or something but it's anthropology it's an American company uh so it's anthropology it just looks fancy do you shop there no it's so expensive like one thing is like $400 number 19 Huawei this is a company from China who pronunciation again not like it sounds I think a lot of people would say huawe they would pronounce the

the H even though I think it might just be Huawei and I should probably know this because boom I have a Huawei he's very proud of it I am very proud of my hu now let's see if they'll be able to pronounce it how would you pronounce this word ho H who are we Hawai think this was okay this was it was it did it does the job most of the time time number 20 Levis um this is actually another one of my favorite Brands um because they're classic um jeans and it's just they fit really well uh but it's not a levy or Levy stra or it's just Levis number 21 for all you beer lovers out there Budweiser you can find it all over the world uh but the correct pronunciation is Budweiser or I guess you could shorten it and say bud can I help you yes I'd like a Budweiser please number 22 H&M uh now H&M is different in each country I think so I know in Romania for example some people say hash andm um because yeah yeah okay H&M in English so if you want to find the store and we all know we love H&M because it's cheap and trendy there you go that's where you go h& M just pronouncing the two letters as they are in the English alphabet yep number 23 Jack Daniels uh this is a whiskey brand so if you're out and you want to get some whiskey it is pronounced Jack Daniels I know I've heard some people depending on where they are like in East Asia Daniel but Daniel Jack Daniels or you could just say Jack yeah Jack and Coke yeah Jack and Coke or if you would like Jack Jack and Jack and no you don't want to say Jack and or if you'd like ice in the drink you could say I'd like some jack on the Rocks which is another expression for you ice on the Rocks two Jack Daniels one on the rocks and a h number 24 nesle uh now this is another European company and I think correctly it's Nestle but um Americans will pronounce it Nestle Nestle yeah Nestle again you don't pronounce the T Nestle Nestle Nestle good good chocolate stuff win this one and there's Nestle Quick for everyone quick Nestle Quick I got to have you Nestle Quick number 25 Corona this is a beer from Mexico so the pronunciation Corona a lot of native English speakers would just say Corona Corona coronaa Corona so if you'd like to try a

Mexican beer you can order a Corona more a COR going man myself now what we'd like you to do is write and tell us your favorite brand in the comments below let's continue with another more American pronunciation lesson and this time we're we're really going to focus on the United States because I want to teach you how to correctly pronounce all of the US states and I think this is helpful if you're planning to travel to the US or you're just having a conversation and talking about about the us but there are 50 states and some of them are often discussed in conversation so let's learn how to pronounce all of the state names correctly I think many of you out there may be familiar with the different states in the US but do you know how to pronounce them all correctly I'm from the US Secrets out and the reason I'm telling you this is because often when I tell people I'm from the United States people will ask where you know a a lot of people around the world are are confident with geography in the US

they're familiar with many of the different states but from time to time as we're we're talking about the US and places to visit and places that people may have been or they want to go I I may hear them talk about a state and they'll they'll have a slight mispronunciation maybe they're stressing the wrong syllable or or they're just saying it incorrectly so I thought today would be a good time to talk about each state and show you how to pronounce them correctly so I'm going to tell you the state I am going to tell you how many syllables each word has I will show you the phonetic spelling and the IPA version as well so all of that means that by the end of this lesson you will be able to say each and every state perfectly the first state and I'm I'm just going to go through these alphabetically is Alabama it has four syllables and the stress is on that third syllable that bam Alabama and if you're in Alabama you might hear people pronounce it with a rather strong southern accent Alabama I was actually born in Alabama no it's true I was I've lived in quite a few of these states so I'll let you know the next state is Alaska it has three syllables the stresses on that second syllable that final syllable just has that schah Alaska it is a beautiful state if you love the outdoors I highly recommend it I worked up there for the summer it's gorgeous then we have Arizona it has four syllables the stress is on that third syllable Arizona zo zo zo Arizona not much to say about Arizona except it's hot next is Arkansas three syllables stresses on that first syllable Arkansas this is a common one that that people have a little trouble with because again don't don't think of the spelling don't try and pronounce it based on the spelling you could get all screwed up that final syllable sof saw Arkansas next is the most populous state and that is California it has four syllables stresses on that third syllable California sometimes if you're very cool you just shorten it to two syllables and just say c c you know I used to live in Cali I've just been informed that nobody cool says that then we have Colorado this state has four syllables the stress is on that third syllable even though it's rad it's Colorado not R Colorado the Rocky Mountains beautiful state I did my University there University of Colorado go Buffs next is Connecticut

this is another one where the the spelling can can throw off the pronunciation A little bit if if you're trying to say it how it's spelled but Connecticut has four syllables the stress is on that second syllable Connecticut Connecticut I also used to live in Connecticut now that I think about it I've I've lived in quite a few of these states next is Delaware has three syllables stresses on that first syllable Delaware I don't know anything about Delaware I've never been there I've never lived there so let's just move on to the next date Florida it also has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable Florida it's the Sunshine State my parents live there now known for its beautiful beaches Florida next is Georgia two syllables stress on that first syllable Georgia or again if you're in the South if you're in Georgia people might say Georgia I also used to live in Georgia Atlanta Georgia I'm sure people are like wait that's not how we say it in Georgia it's just Georgia my Southern accent's pretty bad then we have a state that I would like to live in and I think many people romanticize this state it's our only Island state Hawaii has three syllables stresses on that second syllable Hawaii and again the spelling can can throw off the pronunciation A little bit but yeah just remember Hawaii then we have Idaho has three syllables stress is on that first syllable Idaho Idaho when I think of Idaho I think of potatoes that's what the state's known for Idaho potatoes then there's Illinois also three syllables but the stress is on the third syllable Illinois again the spelling and the pronunciation can get a little crazy that last syllable that final syllable noi Illinois the next State Indiana has four syllables stress is on that third syllable Indiana I think many people might be familiar with this famous movie Indiana Jones not really have anything to do with the state just the name so let's just move on to the next one which is Iowa Iowa has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable Iowa again Iowa spelling pronunciation a little crazy IA that second syllable has that schw Iowa and when I think of Iowa I think of corn because there's a lot of corn in Iowa the next state is Kansas the great state of Kansas two syllables stresses on that first syllable Kansas and what I have to say about Kansas is nothing really I drove through there once it it was a long drive so let's just keep driving on through to the next state which is Kentucky this word has three syllables stress is on that second syllable Kentucky Kentucky the next date Louisiana it has five syllables the stress is on that fourth syllable that an Louisiana and when I think of Louisiana I I start thinking of food I think of that gumbo Louisiana known for their gumbo and while we're on the topic of food our next state Maine has one syllable just one main Maine I also think of food I think of lobster when I think of Maine and then again let's just keep going Maryland this state has three syllables the stress is on that first syllable Maryland it's not Mary you don't really hear that why it's just Maryland also think of food crab Maryland has great crab then we come to Massachusetts not a food State well actually no no that's not true there is New England clam chowder there which is pretty amazing in Massachusetts they also have four syllables and the stress is on that third syllable that chew Massachusetts when I think of Massachusetts you know how people from each state have names like if you're from Georgia then you're Georgian if you're from California then you're Californian if you're from Massachusetts

then you're a masshole I don't know why I always I always laugh at that joke I guess if you're from Massachusetts you probably don't think it's funny then we have Michigan the state has three syllables stress is on that first syllable Michigan and very close to Michigan is Minnesota four syllables stress is on that third syllable that so that second syllable just the schwat Minnesota there's also a pretty distinct accent in Minnesota Minnesota Minnesota gosh I am just terrible at accents Minnesota Minnesota okay I'm just going to I just

let's just move on then we have Mississippi this state has four syllables the stress is on that third syllable that second one's just that schah Mississippi Mississippi after Mississippi is Missouri this state has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable Missouri Missouri that s is going to have more of that z sound Missouri then we have Montana three syllables stresses on that second syllable Montana Montana another beautiful state gorgeous Mountains Montana near there is Nebraska three syllables stress is also on that second syllable Nebraska Nebraska not really mountains in Nebraska sorry next we have Nevada it has three syllables stress is on that second syllable Nevada and when people think of Nevada I think most of us think of Las Vegas Sin City gambling Nevada next is New Hampshire two words three syllables the stress is going to be on that first syllable in the second word looking at Hampshire now that last syllable it's not sh it's not like Frodo in the Shire it's sure New Hampshire New Hampshire I also for a very short time lived in New Hampshire Live Free or Die that's what it says on the license plate check it out next we have New Jersey three syllables stress is on well the first syllable of the second word that J New Jersey New Jersey again a state that I think probably has a more distinct accent Jersey a lot of times people will just say that second word just Jersey where are you from Jersey Jersey Jersey from Jersey I apologize for these terrible accents but let's just move on next is New Mexico four syllables again the stress is on that first syllable of the second word New Mexico Mexico New Mexico don't know what to say about New Mexico except yes it's very hot then another very well-known state New York two syllables stress is on that second syllable that second word New York often when people think of New York they may think of New York City first so sometimes people need to clarify that no I'm talking about New York state New York State the state of New York then we have North Carolina this state has five syllables but Carolina the stress is going to be on that the third syllable in that word Carolina Carolina North Carolina another state with a more distinct accent all my relatives and my parents they're from North Carolina North Carolina North Carolina oh goodness I'm going to get raked over the coals for my accent then we have North Dakota four syllables but Dakota has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable Dakota North Dakota then Ohio three syllables stresses on that second syllable Ohio Ohio let's just keep these O's going with Oklahoma this state has four syllables and the stress is on that third syllable Oklahoma you can hear it emphasiz that hom Oklahoma I don't know why I think of Cowboys next is Oregon three syllables stresses on that first syllable Oregon that last syllable sounds like gun because it's un stress so it's just organ then we have the great state of Pennsylvania has four syllables stress is on that third syllable Pennsylvania Pennsylvania and also I did I used to live in Pennsylvania not bad that's all I that's all I have to say then we have Rhode Island three syllables stresses on that will the first syllable of the second word Island Road Island and no rad Island it is not an island it's just called Rhode Island then we have South Carolina these words together have five syllables but the stress is going to be on that second word that Carolina that

Vermont Vermont next is Virginia three syllables stress is on that second syllable Virginia Virginia and an expression with this state people say Virginia's for lovers don't know why not a sure exactly what it means but I guess Virginia's for lovers then we have Washington three syllables stresses on that first syllable Washington sometimes people may confuse it with the capital Washington DC which is not a state it is a district district of Colombia next is West Virginia this state has four syllables but again the stress is on that second word that Virginia is on that second syllable West Virginia if you say it quickly you really almost don't hear that T at the end it almost sounds like you're saying my name West Virginia then we have Wisconsin this state has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable that con Wisconsin people think of Wisconsin they think of cheese it is the cheese State finally there is Wyoming also has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable Wyoming Wyoming there you have it that is the pronunciation of each state so now that you have all this information you can say each and every state perfectly so you just learned over a hundred different words and I know it's a lot to take in but the more you hear these words and practice saying them you're going to greatly reduce the possibility of making even a slight mistake so if you enjoyed this Mega pronunciation lesson you can let me know by hitting the like button as always thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 5 OF 749

1-HOUR VOCABULARY LESSON - Descriptive Words & Phrases to be More Accurate & Precise

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I want to teach you some advanced vocabulary to help you be more accurate and precise when you're describing people, places, or even the way that you move. So, if you are someone who enjoys building your vocabulary, please subscribe, turn on notifications, that way I can become your teacher. My name is West, the channel is Interactive English. It's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals. So, in this hour-long mega lesson, I'm going to teach you many different adjectives, nouns, and verbs to help you be more descriptive. Before we begin, I want to make a quick announcement because if you would like to practice and improve your speaking skills, check out the link down below in the description if you would like to learn more about my speaking course. It's all about trying to help you speak confidently, speak clearly, and speak naturally. Each week there is a different speaking topic. You will learn vocabulary related to that topic.

We warm up with either pronunciation or connected speech. Uh we do a lot of different engaging speaking activities, and I'll try to teach you some of the language nuances like when to use certain words and phrases. Let's go ahead and begin and learn many descriptive words to help you build your vocabulary. Let's talk about some advanced adjectives that you can use to describe places. And let's go ahead and begin and talk about some words you can use to describe like well, the landscape, mountains, beaches, uh lakes. So, the first word that I have for you is serene. It just means calm and peaceful. So, in this case, it's like you're saying that the landscape looks undisturbed. It's very calm. It's very peaceful. I could say when driving through the countryside, the landscape appeared serene. Now, you you can use this word to describe other things. You could say a person looks serene. And so,

I I just want you to know that yes, these adjectives are very useful. You can use them to describe different places, different things. I just want to give you something to associate each word with. So, the next word that I have for you is stunning. And if you're describing some some something you see, the landscape as stunning, it means it's extremely beautiful. So, this word is often used with the word view, and you might talk about a stunning view. I could say that if you go to Yosemite National Park, there are so many stunning views. And this is true. I would highly recommend you visit Yosemite if you ever travel to the US.

Picturesque. This means that something is visually attractive. So, that suffix on the end there, that e s q u e, it means like or resembling. So, in this case, you're it's like you're saying something looks like or resembles a picture or a painting. And I could say the view from the mountaintop was picturesque. It looked like it belonged maybe on a postcard. The next adjective is desolate. Desolate, if you're describing a place as desolate, it means empty and not attractive. And this this definitely has more of a negative connotation. So, I might think of the desert. It's very empty. It's not a place that that I want to spend a lot of time, so I could describe it as desolate. Or I could say after the fire, the forest looked desolate and lifeless.

It was empty. It's unattractive. It's desolate. Then we have the word unspoiled. This is a great word. Now now spoiled means something is ruined, so that has a negative connotation. So, unspoiled has a positive connotation, and you're saying that something is beautiful because it has not been damaged or ruined by by people or development. And you could describe some land as unspoiled. I could say the rainforest is unspoiled, which is what makes it so unique. And the next word is pristine. Pristine means well, in very good condition. And often people may use this with the word condition. Something is in pristine condition. But if we're talking about a place, I would think that well, this place is well-kept.

There's no trash. And when I think of the word pristine, I would think of Japan. If you've ever been there and you even you drive outside the city, it looks pristine. There there is no trash. It's really well-maintained, and it's looks in very good condition. Next, I want I want to talk to you about words that you can use to describe the atmosphere of a place. These are great adjectives to talk about well, the mood or the feeling of a place like tranquil. So, tranquil means well, peaceful and calm, really without any noise. It's very similar to serene, but in my opinion, serene would more often be used to talk about the way a place looks, whereas tranquil really captures like that feeling of calm and peacefulness. I could say I traveled to this picturesque beach with stunning views, and it was so tranquil. It was just very calm and and or a room. So, I could say that I stayed in a small hotel along the coast with a homely atmosphere. And then we have the word bustling. Bustling means very active and busy, and you could think of uh big cities. Big cities have an atmosphere that is bustling. For example, Times Square in New York City is always bustling with tourists. All right? Just has that atmosphere, that busy mood, that busy feeling. And speaking of cities, let's talk about some adjectives that you can use to describe cities or towns like renowned. So, if you say that a city or town is renowned for something, it means that it's famous for something. And you're typically going to follow this adjective with the word for. I could say that Paris is renowned for the Eiffel Tower. All right? People think of this landmark when they think of Paris. Or Italy is renowned for pizza. I think connecting it with food, this is a great way to use this adjective. A place is renowned for some food. Cosmopolitan is a great adjective. It means including people from many different countries. So, Hong Kong is a cosmopolitan city. New York City is a cosmopolitan city. Then we have walkable. And I included this one because I like places that are walkable. I like to walk. It means that a place is well, easy or safe to walk in. And you have that suffix that a b l e, which means able to do. You're able to walk. And I think often you're going to use this adjective and say that maybe a place is easily walkable or it's not walkable. I could say the city had many pedestrian streets, so it was easily walkable. And then there's overcrowded, which means containing too many people or things. And if you're going to use it to describe a place, you're probably referring to too many people. And it's a great word for adding emphasis instead of just saying a place is crowded. I remember traveling to Dubrovnik, Croatia. It's a beautiful city, but the old town was definitely overcrowded.

Next is spacious. This is a word that I really like, and it just means large with a lot of open space. And if you describe a city or town as spacious, perhaps you're talking about well, like the streets or just the layout. Maybe there are a lot of parks, and it makes it feel like it's spacious. Uh parts of New York City are overcrowded, but if you go to Central Park, it is a spacious area. Another great adjective is charming. It just means pleasant or attractive. And maybe when traveling, I could say I discovered this charming little street that was very spacious and not overcrowded. And this is a little different than charming because it means attractive because of being old-fashioned. So, maybe I could tell you that I walked down this charming cobblestone street that had these quaint little cafes on both sides. And now let's talk about describing buildings, structures, or landmarks with adjectives like iconic.

And iconic means very famous or popular, and it's often referring to the symbol of something. And you may even use this word with landmark and talk about an landmark. So, if you travel to Sydney, Australia, the Opera House is an iconic landmark. And then there's contemporary, which means belonging to the present. And often you're going to use this adjective to talk about, well, the architecture, the way that buildings or homes look. So, I could say that well, Dubai is a very modern city with contemporary architecture. And I'm really talking about the way the buildings look. Majestic. It means beautiful, powerful, and causing great admiration. And you could describe a structure as majestic. I could say the London Tower Bridge is majestic. The Golden Gate Bridge is majestic. The Liberty Bridge in Budapest, right outside my door, is majestic. And those are just some examples. You don't have to describe only bridges as majestic. Now, let's talk about some adjectives that are, well, not so good, like gaudy. So, if you say that, well, a building or a structure looks gaudy, then you're really saying that it's just unpleasantly bright or showy. So, I think that Las Vegas has some gaudy hotels and casinos. I know some others might think that they look majestic, but I think they look a little gaudy. There's another useful adjective, dilapidated, which means old and in poor condition. So, think of like a building that's well, it's starting to fall apart. So, if I said that the neighborhood was abandoned a long time ago, and now the buildings are dilapidated. And then I have a few words to talk about, well, just like a general location when referring to some place, like out of the way. And if you say that some place is out of the way, it means that it's, well, just far away from where people usually live or go. And yeah, yes, you're probably referring to like a building or structure, like a restaurant. Uh I could say, "We ate at this out of the way restaurant, but the food was really great." I'm really saying that the location was just far away from where people usually go. And then I have an idiom, which is also an adjective phrase, and that is off the beaten path. Or you could say off the beaten track. Both of them are okay. And this just means that a place is, well, not known or popular. And typically you're going to use this in a positive sense. I could tell you that I went hiking in Corcovado National Park in Costa Rica.

It There were not many people around. It was off the beaten path. And I really like that. And then we have godforsaken. And you would use this adjective to describe a place that is, well, unattractive and contains nothing interesting or pleasant. And often you may use it with the word place, and you talk about a godforsaken place. And the other thing I would say is You might use this like in the moment, like you to express your temporary feeling about a place. Perhaps you're having a bad day, you're frustrated, and you feel that just Yes, some place is just a godforsaken place. Disney World is usually overcrowded. And if I were there, I'd probably think, I just want to get out of this godforsaken place. There are too many people. It's too hot." Yeah, I just It just sounds like a godforsaken place to me. I want to teach you some new verbs, and they are Well, they're kind of advanced verbs, but they're all about movement. These are verbs that you can use to describe different types of movement. And what I've done is that I've put them in categories to help you better understand the meaning of the verb, but also give you an idea as to when you might use these verbs. So, let's begin with walking and running. If you're talking about that movement, walking and running, there are different verbs that you can use. You can use strut. And if somebody is strutting, it's talking about the way somebody is walking, and it is more of a very confident walk, perhaps even an arrogant walk as well.

And you could say that that they are strutting. The next one is stagger. And to stagger means to walk with great difficulty, almost as if you are about to fall over. And often I think you would use this verb in the present tense, like you're talking about something that's happening right now, and you would say, "He is staggering" or "She is staggering." And also, I think it's commonly used when referring to somebody who who maybe has had too much to drink. They've had a lot to drink. They don't really have a lot of control over what they're doing, and they're walking with great difficulty, then you could say that this person is staggering. Then we have the verb to bolt. And this is just to move really fast, uh almost like a run. And you might bolt to get somewhere. For example, I I often would use this if I'm talking about trying to get to an airplane, and I'm late. And I might say, "Wow, I I bolted to the airplane. I was running behind, and I had to run. I bolted to that airplane." The next verb is slip. And this is talking about moving that you're you're moving quietly so that somebody doesn't notice you. And often you're going to follow this verb with a preposition. So, you might slip by someone or slip past someone. Both of those mean the same thing. You're just trying to get by this person without being noticed. You could also slip inside or slip outside of some place. Maybe you forgot something at work, and you don't want your boss to see you. You might slip inside the office and get whatever you need to get, and then you're going to need to slip outside because you don't want anybody to see you. And then we have the verb to drag one's feet. Now, this is an idiom, and it means that you are moving reluctantly. You're moving slowly, but you really don't want to be moving forward, and you could say, "Well, you know, you're you're dragging your feet." So, for example, let's say that, well, maybe you and I we're traveling somewhere, and we're late. We need to get to the gate, and I'm like, "Okay, we need We need to go. We need to bolt to that airplane." But you just want to take your time a little bit. Maybe you're like, "Hey, let's go. Let's go get a snack before we get on the airplane." Maybe I'll say, "Hey, you know, stop dragging your feet. We need to go. We need to bolt." Now, this idiom can also be used in other situations as well.

It doesn't always have to be talking about movement. It could be referring to progress as well. you have some work that you need to do, but you're trying to avoid doing it, you are procrastinating, you could also say then that you're you're dragging your feet. That you're trying to avoid working on some project. You don't want to do it. I think we've all been there before. But maybe your your colleague, your co-worker, or even your boss might come over and tell you, "Look, you need to finish this project. Stop dragging your feet." Now, let's talk about some verbs that you can use if you're driving or flying. You're in the car, you're in the plane. And well, one thing we could say is hitchhike, to hitchhike.

And this means that you get a free ride with someone in in a vehicle. you're talking about driving. You're You're on the road. You're standing on the road. You got your thumb out, and you are trying to hitchhike to some location, and perhaps somebody would stop and pick you up to hitchhike. Now, I think I don't think it's as common nowadays. In some places people might even say it's dangerous. But just so you know, in case you see somebody doing it on the side of the road, they are trying to hitchhike. Another verb, which I think is very common nowadays, is carpool, to carpool with someone or carpool with others, because it refers to traveling by car in a small group, either to protect the environment or just to save money. Perhaps save on using gas. And And people will carpool to work, or they will carpool to school, and they'll ride together in a small group to carpool. Then we have the verb leapfrog. And this just means to take turns moving ahead of each other. So, I think you would use this to describe a situation in which you are driving, maybe on the interstate. One person is passing the other, and then they pass you back, and then you pass them again, and back and forth you go. And you could refer to this situation, and you are leapfrogging each other, to leapfrog. And I think this This happens when people perhaps are driving on an interstate, and you want to pass a car, and you go in front, and then you're like, "Okay, I'm in front now." And then next thing you know, they pass you. They just leapfrog you, and then you want to pass them again. That is the situation in which you might use this verb or or hear somebody talking about it, to leapfrog. Then there's the verb swerve, to swerve. And you could use this if talking about driving or flying. And what it means is it's a sudden change in direction, especially

and you could say that it is gliding. It is just a smooth continuous motion. Now, we could also say slither. And this is talking about moving by sliding and twisting. And I almost always I would think of a snake. And you would say that the snake slithers. That is how snakes move. They twist, they slide, and they slither. Or you could use the word wobble. I think of well, I think of a penguin because it's talking about like moving you're like going back and forth from side to side. And you're walking with you're walking in a way that shows that there is poor balance. Because when penguins walk, they do they kind of shake and they almost look like they're about to fall over. They don't have very good balance and you could then say that they look like they are wobbling.

They're just wobbling along. And that is that's how they move. Then we have the verb gallop, which I think is often used to describe the way a horse moves because it refers to an animal who is running and all four feet are off the ground at the same time. They're running. The horse is galloping. And then there is the verb wiggle. And I've included this verb because I think you could use it with if you're holding an animal. And you're holding the animal and maybe the animal does not want to be held. So, it's going to start wiggling. It's going to move back and forth from side to side, up and down. And they're just these really small quick movements because maybe the animal is trying to escape. Perhaps you're holding a puppy and the puppy wants to get down and it just starts wiggling, to wiggle. Now, let's talk about some verbs that you can use to well, talk about situations. So, in this case, it's not really always going to be a physical movement that you're referring to. But, we're talking about a situation that you may need to move in one way or another. Let me give you some examples about what I'm talking about. So, the first one I have for you is approach, to approach. And this just means to get nearer and nearer to someone or something. Now, we could use this verb to describe some actual physical distance, some situation. I could say, well, hey, we are approaching our final destination. We are getting nearer and nearer to this destination. But, you could also use it if there is some problem or situation that you don't know how to solve. And you could say something like, okay, how are we going to approach this issue? How are we going to get closer to it? And in that case, you could use the word approach. How are we going to approach this issue? How are we going to approach this problem?

What is our plan? What are we going to do because we need to well, get closer to it in order to solve it or or remedy some situation. How are you going to approach this? Then we have the verb circumvent. And what it means to circumvent something is to basically avoid something, usually in a clever way. You're trying to go around some type of obstacle. For example, maybe well, a situation that all of us have is well, we have to pay taxes. And perhaps there is some type of tax we want to avoid. We want to get around this. And you might try to circumvent the tax law. And I could say, well, we discovered this new way to circumvent the tax laws and we don't have to pay this tax. So, if you want to circumvent something, you're just trying to avoid it. You're trying to go around it in some clever way. And then we have the verb smuggle. To smuggle something is to move something secretly. And often I think you're we're talking about something illegal. So, you might hear it being used in the context of drugs. People might smuggle drugs. You could also smuggle other people. But, in either case, you're talking about moving something secretly and yes, it's often illegal to smuggle. Next is lag. And this just means that well, you're making slow progress and it's usually behind some other people. So, in that case, it's quite often that you would follow this verb with the preposition behind, to lag behind someone or or you're lagging behind. You're making slow progress and well, you're behind everyone else. You are lagging. And then we have the verb spiral, which it means that something some situation, it's getting worse and worse. And it's becoming more difficult to control. And quite often you would probably hear that entire phrase and you'd say that some situation, it is spiraling out of control. That's that's not a good thing. You don't want any situation to spiral out of control. So, I hope this lesson was easy to follow. I hope it was easy to understand these verbs by breaking them into these different categories because that is the way I wanted to approach this lesson. That that is how I wanted to approach this situation. Because the next time that you see someone moving, I hope you'll be able to identify that. If you see somebody strutting or maybe you see them staggering or perhaps you see somebody on the road hitchhiking, you'll be able to associate that movement with the correct verb so that you can more accurately express your thoughts, opinions, and ideas. As always, I would encourage you to listen for these verbs, try to identify them if you're reading something or even use them in conversation if you happen to be talking about the way something moves. I want to teach you 20 different nouns to help you describe people.

And these nouns would describe somebody's well, their profession or their personality or even their characteristics. And we talk about these nouns, again, I want you to try to associate these words with a person that you know. Let's begin with with profession. Maybe somebody's job, do for work or maybe even a position that they have for their work.

And we will begin with the noun amateur. And if you say that someone is an amateur, it means that they they do some type of hobby or activity for fun. They are not a professional. This is not how they make a living. They don't typically get paid for it and you could say that he or she is an amateur. The next noun is a tutor.

Now, this noun it it's talking about education because it's a person who will help a child study outside of school in order to give them extra help. And you would say that that this person is a tutor. Maybe in math, in science, even in English. Anybody could have a tutor. Mostly we're talking about children, but it could be a high school student, a university student, even an adult could have a tutor if they want extra help.

Now, let's stick with education and the next noun is a scholar. This is talking about a person who studies a subject in great detail, especially in university. And if they they study it for a long time and they know it very well, you could say that they are a scholar. Amy is a decorated scholar. She forged a successful career in journalism. Jimmy's met a new young lady. Brenda, she's really something. Road scholar. Impressive. I just got a What I see. What you getting? A man of letters. Is your goal The next noun is well, it's actually two nouns that mean the same thing and that is big fish or you could say a big wig. And in either case, it's talking about a person who is powerful and important.

And it usually refers to a position within a company. And maybe you're talking about the boss and they are the big wig. Or perhaps somebody else in the company and you say, wow, you know, this person they're they're a big fish, all right? They're a very important, influential, and powerful person. A big fish or a big wig. Well, I wish I'm off to my first day as a corporate big wig. And we have information that a mobster by the name of Marco Ochoa to Paris about 6 months ago. He's the one who's big fish. Then we have the noun one's right hand. And if you're talking about well, one's right hand, you're not you're not really talking about the hand. You're talking about a person who supports someone else, usually at work. And you could say, well, you know, he's my right hand or she's my right hand. She's always helping me get stuff done and she supports my work. One's right hand. You may also use this as well, another noun and people might say a right hand man. And if somebody is like the right hand man, then that is the person who would help somebody else, especially at their work, a right hand man. Then Then have the word valedictorian. Why am I having such trouble with this word? Then we have the word valedictorian. And this is talking about the the person, really the student who has the highest grades at the end of high school. So, when high school finishes, the person with the highest grades, that person is the valedictorian. And typically they will give a speech at the the graduating ceremony when school finishes.

Now, I I don't know if this is the same for all high school schools all over the world, but especially in the United States, the the person with the highest grades, they are called the valedictorian, and they would give a speech when when at the graduating ceremony. Valedictorian. I was not the valedictorian. That is okay, but it's a word that you may hear if you're watching a TV show or movie and they're talking about somebody who was very smart in high school, they did very well, and he or she was the valedictorian. Valedictorian. So, right now, I'm the best student. I'm going to be the velociraptor. You trying to say valedictorian? Now, let's talk about nouns that are related to someone's personality. Kind of the talking about the type of person that that they are. So, you could say that somebody is a dilettante. And this is talking about a person who is very interested in a subject, but doesn't really have a deep understanding of it.

And I think all of us can relate to this that we might be interested in some area of study or or something in general, whether it's cars, fashion, computers, and we know about it because we're interested in it, but we don't really have a a deep understanding because, well, maybe it's not uh our job. And you could say that that, you know, we are just dilettantes in that regard. So, for example, maybe somebody they're very interested in politics, and you could say they are a political dilettante. They're interested in learning about it, but it's not their job, and, you know, they don't have a a very deep understanding of it. Dilettante. Then we have the noun aficionado. And this is actually a a Spanish word that that means fan. But an aficionado is a person who is very interested and enthusiastic uh in in learning about some topic. And you say, "Wow, you know, I am really a soccer aficionado. I love it." Or I am a cigar aficionado. There's actually a a magazine about cigars called aficionado. And I could say that all of you are vocabulary aficionados because you are interested and enthusiastic about learning new words and phrases. And you are not dilettantes because you have a deeper understanding of these words. You're an aficionado. Then we have the word confidant. And if you say that somebody is a confidant, it is a person that you really trust and you are willing to share your feelings and secrets with that person. You could say that that he is my confidant. That he is the person that I will tell secrets to. Or for Well, for me, I'd really say my wife. She is my confidant. If I have some problems, some secrets, and I I just need to tell somebody, I need some help, she is my confidant and I will tell her. Maybe not all the secrets.

But but most of them. You need to choose her to be your vice presidential candidate. No. I chose you as a trusted confidant. A confidant of mine has told me that when he goes, Sansa Stark goes with him. Your heart is true. You're a pal and a confidant. Then we have the noun proponent. And this is talking about a person who speaks publicly in support of some plan or action. And you might often follow this word with the preposition of that that he is a proponent of some issue. She is a proponent of saving the dolphins. That she wants to publicly support it and talk to others about it. She's a proponent of saving the dolphins. I think all of us are are probably a proponent of something. If you think about something that you believe in, that you want to support, then you could say you are a proponent of this thing. The next noun I have for you is a guru. And a guru is it's more of a spiritual leader if you're thinking about like Hinduism, but it it's also somebody who is kind of a teacher as well. And you may hear this word used in that context. It makes me think of somebody who is wise and very spiritual, and they want to help others and teach others, and you could say that they are a guru. Then we have the noun gourmet. And if somebody is a a gourmet, then it means that they know a lot about food. They're very knowledgeable about food, and they typically like to eat fancy and expensive food, and this person is a gourmet. I like it better than tuna helper myself. Don't you, Clark? You're the gourmet around here, Ed. What else did Lance tell you about me?

You're a real gourmet. Oh, yeah? These sandwiches are delicious, Mrs. Elton. You really are a gourmet. Next is the noun humanitarian. And if you say that somebody is a humanitarian, it means that they are interested in in helping other people, especially people who may be suffering in some way. And they may be donating money, donating clothes. They they are involved in some type of activity, and you could say, "Well, you know, this person, they're a great person. They're a humanitarian." Personally, I think all of us should be humanitarians, and and we should try to give back and help others who are in need. Now, let's talk about nouns that pretty much refer to people's characteristics. They're they're their emotions, their behaviors. And you could say that somebody is, well, a coward.

And this is well, it's not good to be called a coward because it's talking about a person who is typically afraid of a lot of things. They're they're very scared. Somebody who is not brave, you could say that this person is a coward. We could also say that someone is an introvert. And if somebody is an introvert, it means that they are not very social. They're often quiet, a bit reserved. They typically may like to be left alone and have time to themselves. And you could say that this person is an introvert. Now, the opposite of an introvert is an extrovert. And this is somebody who, well, is very social. They like to go out a lot. They like to meet all different types of people, and typically they're very talkative, and you would say that they are an extrovert. I think if you were to think of yourself, like, for example, I, I think I can be both.

Sometimes I am more of an introvert, and other times I might be more of an extrovert, and I like to to go out and try to meet people, and I'm a little more social. Introvert and extrovert. Zelda was the sunny, fun-loving extrovert. Look at my pumpkin, Mr. Peanutbutter. My pumpkin's throwing up because Halloween encourages excessive consumption of refined sugar at a time when obesity rates are sky-high. Then we have the noun perfectionist. And if you say that somebody is a perfectionist, it means that that this person thinks that, well, everything needs to be perfect. That they will not stop until they believe everything is perfect, and you would say that that he or she is a perfectionist. Now, a word a noun that is a little similar to that, but it's still different would be someone who is a purist. And if you describe someone as a purist, it means that that this person believes that things should be done in the traditional way. That we should follow the rules. We shouldn't do them in some other way. Follow tradition, and you could describe this person and say that they are a purist. Yeah, triple twist. Nice work. You sure this was done by hand? Yeah, she's a real purist. Hate those guys. As a Sesame Street purist, I don't think Elmo usually tells passing women that they have a sweet bumper. Repeat, is it a trophy sauna? Purist, getting off on the undiluted experience. And then we have the noun whiz. And if you describe somebody and say that, well, this person, they are a whiz, it means that they are highly intelligent and and very smart in some area or or some expertise. For example, you could say that somebody is a math whiz. They're very good at math. They're very intelligent when it comes to math. They're a math whiz. I could say that, you know, all of you, you are a vocabulary whiz. You are watching these lessons, you're learning new words and phrases, and this going to help you improve your overall English fluency.

You are a vocabulary whiz. I want to teach you some useful and advanced adjectives that you can use to describe people. And this is a great lesson because, well, we talk about people all the time. We describe ourselves. We also talk about our friends, our families, our colleagues. So, many of these adjectives really describe someone's personality. Now, when we use adjectives, often we might use them before the noun, in which case they are called attributive adjectives, or they might follow a linking verb, in which case they are a predicate adjective. As we go through these, I will tell you which ones I think are more common as an attributive adjective before the noun, or those that I think are commonly found in the predicate and would follow a linking verb.

So, let's begin with overzealous. which means that someone is showing a little too much eagerness or enthusiasm. Almost to the point where well, you you find it a little strange that they are this eager or they're this enthusiastic about something. So, you could describe that person as being overzealous. So, this is an adjective that you can use either before a noun or it can follow a linking verb. Either one. So, you might describe people and say somebody has overzealous parents. They're showing a lot of enthusiasm for their kids. They're Yeah, her her parents are very overzealous. Perhaps Perhaps when when our little girl gets older, maybe maybe I will be an overzealous parent and I will be so enthusiastic about everything she does.

Or maybe you have some overzealous colleagues that anything that happens, they're always enthusiastic, perhaps they're always eager to do things, and you might think, well, they're a little overzealous. I imagine that you guys are overzealous students, that you are so excited to build and learn new vocabulary. During the concert, some overzealous fans ran onto the stage. Next is tenacious. This adjective means that somebody is just not giving up, perhaps stubbornly, that they just absolutely refuse to give up, even though maybe maybe they should. Now, when I think of this word, I actually think it's used in more of a positive manner when you describe somebody as tenacious and they are not giving up, they refuse to give up, they're being very stubborn, but it they should keep going. It is a good thing that they don't give up in that sense. If you want to say, you know, well, you know, she is a tenacious student.

Even though he's short, he always gives a tenacious effort. Then we have candid. And if you say that someone is candid, then basically you're just saying that this person is truthful and that they are honest. So, we can use this adjective and describe someone and say that they are a candid person or perhaps they give a candid response to a question. Personally, I think it's maybe more common to follow the linking verb to be and you would describe somebody that he is candid or she is candid. They are truthful and honest. And if you're describing somebody in that way, it's almost like you're trying to say, well, this person can be believed. We can trust this person because they are candid and they give candid responses.

And I guess I just I'm just going to keep using the word candid again and again so that it helps you remember the meaning. This candid photo shows some of the poor living conditions surrounding the city. Next is facetious. And this is one of my favorite adjectives. Now, the first thing that I want to point out is the pronunciation because looking at this adjective, it you may not be pronounced the way that it's spelled, facetious. That first syllable is going to have that schwa, that fa, and we're just basically going to pronounce the letter C, fa-ce-cious, facetious. And what it means is that somebody is joking and they're not being serious and perhaps in an appropriate way. In a in a sense, they should be serious, but they're joking around, they are being facetious. And I think it's commonly used just like that, that in some kind of situation, you're talking to somebody else and you're joking with this person, perhaps they don't know about it and you have to tell them and say, look, I'm being facetious. I'm joking. I'm not being serious. So, that is a phrase that that you might often hear with this word, somebody actually having to tell the other person say, wait, I'm being facetious.

Or maybe you could say that of another person. If somebody doesn't understand that this person is joking, you say, well, look, he's being facetious. She's being facetious. Sometimes it's hard to take my boss seriously because he's always being facetious. Then we have the word obtuse. Now, this is not a good adjective. You don't want to be called obtuse because what it means is that somebody is lacking in intelligence and maybe they're a bit slow to understand. And you would often use it with the linking verb to be and say that someone is obtuse, that that they are slow to understand and you could describe that person say, yeah, you know, he's a bit obtuse. He's slow to understand. He doesn't He's not a very smart person. They're obtuse. Or if there's a situation and somebody it's like they don't want to hear the truth and they're trying to to deny it and they don't want to listen and you could say, well, they are being obtuse, that they refuse to believe what is obvious, what is sensible, but they they just don't want to believe it. They're being obtuse.

Sometimes my uncle can be so obtuse. He refuses to listen to anyone. Next is the word boorish. And again, this it's not a great adjective. You don't want to be referred to as a boorish person because it means that someone is rude or insensitive. And often I think it's used before the noun behavior. And this is a commonly used collocation and you might describe somebody's behavior as boorish, their boorish behavior. It's rude, it's insensitive, they may exhibit boorish behavior. Keep in mind that this adjective is unrelated to the word boring. That is a very common adjective, but they have different meanings. If somebody is boorish, they are rude or insensitive, boorish behavior.

just I want to get out of there. I can't relax. I'm jittery. The boy was so jittery, he had a tough time staying seated. Then we have capricious. Now, with this one again, let's first look at the pronunciation. That first syllable has the schwa sound, that uh sound, and then the PRI is just pronounced as pre, ca-pri-cious, capricious. And what this means is that someone or something is impulsive or unpredictable. So, you could use this adjective and say that, well, the weather is capricious, it's unpredictable, you don't know what's going to happen. Or if you describe a person as capricious, it makes me think of somebody who maybe they make a decision and then they change their mind almost immediately and want to do something else. And then they change their mind again and want to do something completely different. You could say that they are capricious. Or maybe a person is a capricious shopper.

Capricious shopper. Capricious shopper. That's hard to say. Capricious shopper. Capricious shopper. Capricious shopper. I I I actually would just say that that person is capricious, that they are impulsive, they are unpredictable, and you might describe them as capricious. Because of his capricious nature, he couldn't commit to chewing just one thing. Then we have the adjective gullible. And this just means that a person is easily persuaded to believe something. Essentially, they just believe whatever you tell them. They are gullible. It often follows that verb to be. And I think we've all met people before in our lives who are pretty gullible. Whatever you tell them, they they just believe you. So, this is a great example of when if you are being facetious, they are not going to understand that you're joking, they will believe you because they're gullible, and then you would have to tell them, look, I'm being facetious.

I'm not being serious. I think it's also used to describe somebody in a temporary situation because let's be honest, we've all been gullible at one point or another. So, in that case, I think of perhaps somebody is trying to trick somebody else or maybe there is some sort of scam and for some reason, you fall for it, you're not thinking clearly, you could say, you know, I you know, I was just gullible. I don't know why I believed this thing, but I did. I was gullible. I couldn't believe I fell for this internet scam. I was so gullible. Then we have adamant. And this adjective means that a person is refusing to change their mind or be persuaded. Often I think this adjective is followed by the preposition about. You are adamant about something that you just refuse to believe anything else. And often I think of maybe some sort of cause that a person is fighting for. They are very passionate about this cause and you could say they are adamant about this thing. I am adamant about protecting the environment. Uh I am adamant about teaching you guys vocabulary. I refuse to believe that you will not learn and build your vocabulary. I am adamant about teaching it to you. I think we can all think of different things that we are adamant about that we we just want this thing to happen. We won't be persuaded otherwise. You are adamant about something. The doctor was adamant she have surgery immediately. Then we have feckless. And this is used to describe a person who is weak or or ineffective and just really lacking in the strength of character. That this person is feckless. And I think it might be also used to describe somebody's personality or their traits. For example, you might say that someone is a feckless leader. They are an ineffective leader because they they lack that strong character. They are feckless.

The coach's feckless leadership led the team to their worst record in school history. So I want to be honest. I I want to be candid with you that when you are building your vocabulary, I hope that two adjectives that I could use to describe you would be overzealous. That you are just eager to learn new words and that that you're tenacious too. That you are not going to give up for whatever reason. So that is what I hope for and I am absolutely not being facetious when I say that. I'd also like you to do a little bit of an association trick right now. Try to associate these words with somebody that you know because that's going to help you better the meaning and actually retain that information and you won't forget it. I'm going to teach you some different words and phrases that you can use so that that you can be very specific if you want to talk about another person and describe their personality, their behavior. So there are different adjectives and and nouns that we can use to describe people and I want to start with some adjectives. So the first word that I have for you is charismatic.

other people and they can easily get people's attention. Just because you say that someone is charismatic, that does not mean that it's a good thing. It sounds like a good thing and it can be a compliment, but it does not always mean that the person you're talking about it is a good person. It's really just their behavior, the way they act. They have that influence and and they can easily get people's attention well, because of the way they talk, the way they speak and you could say that yes, this person is charismatic. The most popular scandal-free athletes of all time. He's heroic. He's charismatic and he's retiring. The charismatic guy promising to make America great again. You're the most remarkable person I know.

You mean to tell me this all happened cuz you were messing with the shadow man? He was very charismatic. Then we have the word chatty. And if somebody is chatty, it just means that well, they like to talk a lot. Usually in a very friendly and informal way. You could say he or she is chatty. Now the one thing I would say about this word is that it's often used to make an observation about someone else. You you wouldn't often hear people say that oh, I'm so chatty. It's not really it's not necessarily a good or a bad thing, but you would use it more to make an observation and talk about the way somebody else is acting that they are talking a lot. And you could use it to describe a person's uh somebody's personality. You could say that he or she is a chatty person. But you could also use it to describe maybe somebody's temporary behavior because if a person just doesn't usually talk a lot and then suddenly one day they're very talkative, you could tell them well, you're you're a bit chatty today.

What was I saying? She's so chatty. Maybe my parents are right. Maybe I'd be better off with an Indian girl. Something wrong? Boy, someone's in a chatty mood. But you can start with clearing those empties. Great. I'll get right on it. Not very chatty today, are you? I don't know. Is there something you wanted to talk about? And the next word that I have for you, the next adjective is surly. And this just means that someone is not very friendly and they're often in a bad mood. Let me show you a picture which really captures this word. Right here. All right. Now we would often use these words to describe people, but you could use them to describe animals as well. This picture, it is a perfect example of surly because that that is one surly cat.

Sometimes you can come off a little surly. What? I'm not surly. Well, that's it. She gets very surly when you disobey a direct order. We're a different breed and also you're surly, suspicious, you don't play well with others. Then we have the phrase level-headed. And if you describe someone as level-headed, it means that that this person it is calm and they're able to easily deal with difficult situations. And I think this is that's definitely a good thing if somebody calls you level-headed. I think that all of us probably want to be level-headed and and think that we can solve difficult situations and remain calm. How nice so nice. Everyone's so chill and you're all level-headed.

Okay, first of all, women don't like to be called dame. Second, women appreciate calm, uh level-headed and uh responsible. Mom, I'm not stoned. I'm completely fine. In fact, I'm more clear and level-headed than I've ever been. Then we have the phrase easygoing. And this is used to describe someone who is well, they're very relaxed and they they don't easily get worried or upset. And you could say that well, this person, they're just they're just easygoing. Nothing bothers them. They don't worry about anything because they're easygoing. The voice thought I was pretty easygoing, you know. Sounded like I have the big issues. Disappointed with you, Margo. But you seem so easygoing. Thought you'd let me try on a dress. What can I say?

I'm an easygoing girl. Next is absent-minded. And this phrase is used to describe someone who easily forgets things or they're just not really paying attention to the things that are happening around them. And you could say that this person is a little absent-minded. I think it happens to all of us. I forget things from time to time and yeah, I would say that I can be absent-minded. Waving goodbye with an absent-minded smile. Thought you'd know about it. And so we do. Of course we do. I'm sorry. I was being absent-minded. Oh yes. Oh yes, of course. She isn't old dear, but a little absent-minded. Then I have a couple of phrases that I'm going to put them together and that is above average and below average. And these phrases are used to describe uh someone that is well, higher or lower or better or worse than the usual amount or level. So you would use these phrases just to be a little more specific about your opinion as to this person's perhaps their ability. And you could say that that somebody is a below average tennis player. Or maybe I I guess I would like to think that I am an above average English teacher. That's what I'd like to think. But it's these are great phrases that you can use when you want to describe maybe even your own ability or talk about somebody else's ability, above average or below average. Wow. With above average height comes above average responsibility. Until then, how does Keep bringing him his below average pancakes and soggy bacon. Do you think I'm an idiot? No, I'd say you possess above average intelligence. Corporal Dawson was given a below average rating.

Committed a crime. Then we have the adjective grumpy. And if you say that someone is grumpy, it means that they are easily annoyed and maybe they're usually complaining. They're always they're complaining about something. You could say gosh, you're you're always so grumpy. And to give you another example, let's just bring up another cat. Here, this is a picture of a grumpy cat.

Now let's switch and talk about some nouns that can be used to describe people. And the first one because we just talked about someone who may be grumpy is a grump. All right. We can use this word as a noun as well. And a grump is a person who's not a very friendly person and that it's somebody who usually is complaining about something. You could say that this person is a Grump or you could have a little fun with the word and throw the adjective and noun together and say that somebody is a grumpy Grump. They are really complaining a lot. They're a grumpy Grump. Stanley Hudson is a Grump. Everybody knows that. Miss Mullins is out today so we have Mr. Cooper teach us biology.

win but then they suddenly do. They they suddenly do win and you could say that this person wow, they were a dark horse but they won the competition. So often it is used in that context when talking about some competition. Ooh, a dark horse candidate. Late entry to the race. But what's this? I don't know. A dark horse is challenging Gagne. Any contestants with his mention it? Maybe. He's kind of the dark horse in the running. So here it is one more time the dark horse for this year's Christmas number one Christmas is all around. Thank you, Billy. Then we have the phrase black sheep which refers to a person who embarrasses a group or a family because they're they're different in some way and perhaps they've done something they've gotten into trouble or they've done something wrong and because of that and they've embarrassed the family, you could say that he or she is a black sheep. Now it does not always have to mean that that they've done something wrong. It could just be that that they're just different in some way and maybe everybody else thinks it's a little strange. I think within all families there is somebody maybe a brother, sister, aunt, uncle, cousin who is a little different from everyone else and maybe other people think that that it's a little strange, you could say that that this person is a black sheep. Third brother in the middle. Gary I had him. He's the black sheep. A drunk. Do you know what is a black sheep? No. It's like when you're different to everyone else. The cones are like family, Neil. Maybe they're about to become the black sheep. Everybody thinks I'm the black sheep. I'll show them what a black sheep can do. Then we have the phrase know-it-all and this refers to a person that just they think they know everything and you could describe them and say that he or she is a know-it-all. And this is a phrase that it's you wouldn't use it as a compliment. So it's not something you would say about yourself but if somebody else they they're not being very humble and they're they're being a little too proud, they think they're so smart, you could tell them and say oh, you're such a know-it-all. Which means you're not taking your sin toward like you should. You're such a know-it-all. She's so rigid and demanding. Or she's a complete know-it-all. Hey. It's me. The know-it-all. What are you doing here? Next is the phrase wise guy and this refers to a person who is trying to be clever in a way that's a little annoying. So typically you would say this to a person not really to be very mean to them but really just kind of call them out on the way they are behaving, the way they're acting.

They're trying to be clever but they're really being a little annoying. It's you're such you're such a wise guy. Stop stop being such a wise guy. I'm the delivery right here. I ordered a bad pepperoni. You're a wise guy. Okay. Okay. Hey, who's the wise guy? Hey. Hey, does this look like a petting zoo to you, huh? Okay. All right, wise guy. You just earned a time out. Then we have the phrase stick-in-the-mud and this is this is one of my favorite phrases. Uh it's it's a noun that's used to describe somebody who is old-fashioned and they just kind of want to avoid having fun. If somebody does not like to have fun and they're kind of ruining it for everyone else, you could say that they are a stick-in-the-mud. Typically if somebody is a a surly person and maybe they're just complaining because they're so grumpy, you could tell them that that they are a stick-in-the-mud as well. Why don't we all take a few pictures, have a few laughs? Jeez, Eddie. Why are you a stick-in-the-mud?

You were a stick-in-the-mud when we judged that beauty pageant and you're being a stick-in-the-mud now. I am not a stick-in-the-mud. I just want to stop a party from happening. Then we have the phrase yes-man and this is talking about a person who is always trying to please a superior and they are saying things and doing things in order to please that person. I I I think it's often used in the context of work because if somebody is always trying to make their boss happy and whatever their boss asks them to do, they just say yes. Andy's a yes-man. Not all the time. Sometimes I'll say I don't like something, he says he doesn't like it either. It's very presidential of me, don't you think? Absolutely. You're not turning into a yes-man, are you? I'm becoming a corporate yes-man. I'm like, yes, Mr. George Bush. Whatever you say, Mr. George Bush. Then we have the word sitter. Now this noun refers to someone who who takes care of someone else. Now I I think the word is shortened. Typically it's used to refer to a babysitter. A babysitter, someone who takes care and looks after a baby. But it could be shortened to just a sitter. You can also use this with other nouns as well. For example, you could say that somebody is a house sitter and they are taking care and looking after another person's house. Or perhaps they are a dog sitter or a cat sitter and they are taking care of somebody else's pets. A babysitter, a house sitter, a cat sitter, a dog sitter, a pet sitter. I think that's about it for for for sitters. Three cities in six days, my head is just pounding. I'm not ready for a dinner party.

I already got a sitter. Can't cancel her? So what you're saying is if I can get an acceptable babysitter here before you leave, I can go patrol. Babysitter, I'm 14. I'm old enough to be a babysitter. And thank you for reminding me. I can't find a freaking cat sitter. I'm not going. Chad's regular dog sitter is ill. I wonder if he know enough to go to my brother's place. I'm Paris. Maybe they have a house sitter. So I hope you learned some new words and phrases and I'm sure that you will remember them because you are not absent-minded. You you are a very level-headed person. You will remember these words and phrases and I I hope that you can use them. If you're having a conversation, maybe you're feeling a little chatty and you're talking to other people and you can practice using these words and phrases and just tell them how much you know but maybe they will think that you are a know-it-all. All right. If you enjoyed the lesson, please hit that like button. As always, thanks so much for watching and I'll see you next time.

LESSON 6 OF 749

1-HOUR VOCABULARY LESSON | 100 Phrases for Casual Conversation

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today I have a special treat for you because we have a special guest teacher Jennifer from J Forest English is going to join me and we have created a master class to help you supercharge your vocabulary welcome Jennifer it's great to be here Wes today you're going to expand your vocabulary with phrases you can use in casual conversations to sound fluent and natural you'll learn important collocations common phrasal verbs and other useful phrases

let's get started and first Jennifer is going to teach you 15 useful collocations that you can definitely use when you're talking to friends family members colleagues really anyone so let's begin let's do something fun you'll learn these collocations by completing a quiz you'll see a sentence on the screen with a blank and you need to choose the correct word in 5 seconds after you'll learn the correct C location see an example sentence and listen to natives using the collocation in real speech are you ready question one he promised he wouldn't lie but he decided to his promise the correct answer is B to break a promise this means to fail to do what one has promised to to do 5 years ago I promised to post a new English lesson every week on my YouTube channel and I haven't broken that promise let's listen to some real world examples if I break a promise I have done something wrong even if the consequences of breaking the promise are slightly better than the consequences of keeping the promise you break a promise with God you're sinning and we'll break our promise it doesn't really matter question two a great handshake can leave a impression the correct answer is a A Lasting Impression this is an effect feeling or memory that remains in one's mind for a long time so hopefully after this lesson you might say this lesson left a lasting impression on me which means you remember all these new collocations the pronunciation and everything you've learned and if you enjoy this lesson and you want to have me as your English teacher in addition to Wes then make sure you subscribe to my channel j4 is English where like I said I post new lessons just like this to help you become fluent every single week week let's listen to some real world examples and the thing that left a longlasting impression on me was how the people I met in South Africa could Envision a better future for themselves and their country now that's honesty and integrity and it's also why faas performances left such a lasting impression a simple act of kindness can make a lasting impression and make a huge difference in a person's life question three she has a work load this month and needs extra help the correct answer is c a heavy workload I hear a lot of students say a big workload but the correct collocation is heavy a heavy workload and of course this is a large amount of work you might say it's hard to study English because of of my heavy workload let's listen to some real world examples how does she juggle all that heavy workload and be president of the sorority the number one um hindrance to good teaching is heavy workload it's definitely been a pretty heavy workload question four after finishing the project she finally has a workload the correct answer is C the opposite of heavy which means big is light which means a small amount of work so hopefully you say now that I have a light workload I can watch all your lessons let's listen to some real world examples the workload was so light to do compositor based operations compared to doing layout and paint that we can now fit it comfortably inside the 60 frames a second budget to lighten your workload question five to succeed you need to be proactive and initiative the correct answer is a and take initiative if you take initiative it means you're the first to take action to achieve a goal or to solve a problem for example he took initi itive to find a speaking partner and that's exactly what you need to do there are people everywhere who want to practice speaking but you need to take initiative to find one let's listen to some real world examples who are going to take an initiative not just do the minimum daily requirement people expect you to do things on your own here they expect you to take initiative they're thinking that person doesn't take initiative I guess they're not really a leader how are you doing so far with this quiz question six the campaign started slow but began to momentum the correct answer is B to gain momentum this means to progress or move forward at an increasing Pace as my English fluency and confidence grew I gained momentum in my career so your success in your career increased at a faster and faster Pace that's what fluent English can help you accomplish on them question eight in order to pass the inspection our products need to stand standards the correct answer is B to meet standards if you meet a standard this means you reach the expected level of quality or requirements this is often used with products or Services all products must meet safety standards before being sold let's listen to some real world examples how often do judges not meet standards and we're going to close places that uh don't meet standards and which are harmful to people they don't have to meet standards and that is very very dangerous question nine The Proposal was accepted by an majority of the team the correct answer is is a an overwhelming majority this means a very large percentage or proportion there isn't a specific number but I would personally say it would be 75% or more to be considered an overwhelming majority maybe an overwhelming majority of students 75% or more prefer learning English online what do you think let's listen to some real world examples the overwhelming majority they work really hard doing really important stuff and the overwhelming majority said no and many Nebraskans I believe a overwhelming majority believe the death penalty is a part of that Public Safety focus of which I firmly believe in question 10 we had a discussion about the project challenges the correct answer is c a Frank discussion is one that is open honest and straightforward for example we need to have a Frank discussion about the client's expectations let's listen to some real world examples having Frank detailed and honest discussions on how you'll handle joint versus solo finances will guarantee that there won't be any surprise once you're married and I thought it was a good and and useful and Frank discussion and so uh our focus is on having a Frank discussion raising issues where we have concerns and of course looking for ways and places where we can work together you're doing a great job think of everything that you're learning let's keep going question 11 he decided to responsibility for his actions the correct answer is a to take responsibility this is when you accept responsibility for example you could be frank you could be honest and open and straightforward to be frank and say I take full responsibility for the project delay this a very mature thing to do

let's listen to some real world examples training Afghan forces take responsibility for their own security he said someone you has to take responsibility we must take responsibility now for our role in this crisis a crisis in which the origins can be traced back to the onset of the anthropos scene era question 12 the board will approval for the new policy next week the correct answer is B to Grant approval this means to officially agree to or allow something the team needs to wait until the director grants approval

let's listen to some real world examples the queen must Grant her approval before the Gown can even start being made he added the ministry will quickly Grant approval if companies apply for an extension in working hours to expend domestic production question 13 both parties finally reached a agreement the correct answer is a a mutual agreement this is one that all people involved there could be two people five people or 12 people but all people involved except we reached a mutual agreement to reduce the budget everyone agreed yes let's reduce the budget let's listen to some real world examples it's a mutual agreement in a group that you will put the welfare of the group you will put the safety of everyone in the group above your own and we talked about issues by mutual agreement that practice helped me a great deal because I came to understand Ronald Reagan this mutual agreement between the parent and child was a really nice cooperative strategy but somehow it just wasn't working for them question 14 the project had a influence on the younger team members the correct answer is b a positive influence is of course one that leads to improvements you might say learning English has had a positive influence on my life because it has helped you gain momentum remember remember that one to gain momentum let's listen to some real world examples she is a role model A positive influence and has a powerful ability to motivate others we're going to be positive influence to everybody around us talking about being a positive influence in their communities uh making a difference

question 15 by introducing this new feature the company gained a advantage the correct answer is B competitive the adjective form a competitive Advantage is something that allows someone a person or even a company a team to outperform to perform better than others again you might say being fluent in English gives you a competitive advantage in today's global world do you agree with that let's listen to some real world examples it's going to be competitive Advantage for us and one of the things we decided was how do how can we reinvent the office leverage your sources of unfair competitive Advantage but make sure you reinvent yourself before disruption leaves you with no other option but to do so what really is a company's most competitive Advantage it's people we know this amazing job learning these important collocations share your score in the comments and now Wes is going to teach you 15 important phrases with make do and have let's make the most of it and keep building your vocabulary and we'll begin with a phrase that I just mentioned to make the most of this means to take full advantage of something because it's not going to last long so generally this refers to some sort of opportunity maybe it's a beautiful day outside and I say well you should make the most of it or perhaps you're in New York City for only a couple of days and you want to make the most of it you want to build your vocabulary so you're watching this video you should make the most of it hit the like button write to me in the comments it's not going to last forever we'll show your people how to use this land properly how to make the most of it on a ticking clock make the most of it well

we have a few minutes right now let's make the most of it then there's make do with this means to use what is available although it's really not enough or even what you wanted so there are many situations that you can use this phrase maybe you need a knife but only a fork is available and you say yes I'll make do with the fork or perhaps you're trying to go somewhere and you can get there faster by car but a bike is the only thing that's available and you say I'll make do with it here are some news headlines so you can get a better idea as to how this phrase is used in context we need two pools in this town Orangeville residents make do with Tony rose pool closure the gender pension Gap even after work ends women must make do with less as Louisiana a school seek to prevent school shootings some make do with limited resources let's have a look at some more examples I'll just make do with no assistance no don't just give up maybe you haven't found the right person yet they're not going to go back to the way they were you make do with what's left I can't find any baking soda going have to make do with Colgate then we have to make amends this means to do something to show that you're sorry for your bad behavior in the past so in this case it is a little similar to make up let's make up let's make amends the difference is that when you're going to use make amends it really means that you are actually doing or offering something to to show that you're sorry so if my wife is upset with me I may buy her some flowers in order to make amends I thought this was a fun little saying make amends real quick Karma does not joke around and yes I I do think it's always better to make amends even though it it doesn't always happen I've been making amends you weren't amending you were avenging step nine of Narcotics Anonymous I'm here to make amends so I've been going through the 12 steps what are you up to now uh step nine yeah making amends I seek to make amends to pay for what I've done make a point of this is used to emphasize something or highlight a situation so one thing I want you to keep in mind is that you're often going to follow this phrase with a Jaren I could say I make a point of calling my parents once a week and I just maybe want to highlight that or to give you a business example maybe I could say we need to make a point of offering our employees professional development opportunities and you just want to emphasize that this is important you know I make a point of never interfering in your personal affairs the folk Thrive around here make a point of easing their neighbor burden seem somewhat familiar have I threatened you before I make a point of avoiding familiarity with pirates then we have the phrase make peace with and you can make peace with someone or make peace with something and they really have two different meanings so when you make peace with someone it means that you need to stop fighting or disagreeing with someone and start working and living happily together so let's say that two people are fighting or arguing and I say you need to make peace with each other reach out and take it make peace with the lisce make peace with your sister amen make peace with yourself now when you make peace with something that means that you start to accept something that was worrying or annoying you and I could say uh well I made peace with the fact that I would never become a professional basketball player even though that's what I wanted when I was younger but I made peace with that a long time ago it's not going to change just make peace with it you know I've had to make peace with the fact that probably never going to get genuine accountability let's continue with more phrases but this time I want to teach you some useful phrases with the verb do and we will start with the phrase do a number on this means to harm someone or something and it really does have a negative connotation perhaps I say that well I went in for a cleaning but the dentist did a number on my teeth and in that case I'm referring to physical harm but you could also use this when referring to any type of harm like psychological harm perhaps I say after getting out of the relationship she did not trust anyone her ex really did a number on her here are some more examples boy did your mother do a number on you I haven't worn a bathing suit in public like ever Chrissa really did a number on you huh this is more than just a one night stand this lady's going to do a number on you m I appreciate the concern next is the phrase to do one's part and this means to to do what one is responsible for doing or is able to do so when I was younger I was supposed to help clean around the home and sometimes my parents didn't think that I was doing that and they would tell me you're not doing your part when it comes to protecting the environment I like to think that I'm I'm trying to do my part and that's also why I thought this was a funny little joke I'm doing my part to conserve water by drinking wine instead trust me we literally have no extra money so do your part sign your time card he will not know just do your part congratulation 9 million socially conscious and unified citizens all just stepping up and doing their part to do your own thing I really like this phrase because it means that you're going to do what you want without worrying what anyone else thinks of you so I think it has a positive connotation and I would encourage you to do your own thing don't worry what others think I know I am going to do my own thing and I'm going to continue doing my own thing so you should also do your own thing and

I'm just going to keep saying that phrase do your own thing I'm not in hoodie and the Blowfish anymore y'all doing my own thing Just Do Your Own Thing get your own life yeah I mean you do Your Own Thing comfortable with yourself no thank you I'm doing my own thing this year then we have the phrase do your best this is a great phrase because it's so common and it just means to make the greatest effort that you possibly can and you would often use this to encourage someone I could say I want you to study hard and do your best on the exam or even though the team lost everyone did their best do your best it's all anybody can ask for I can do it just do your best that go do your best it's not too late for you to become a person of substance Russell please get my son home safely so we just talked about do your best now I want to talk about do your worst you you would think that these phrases are exact opposites because of best and worst but that not really if you tell someone do your worst it just means to do the most unpleasant or harmful thing that you can so we're not talking about effort like in do your best we're talking about harm so you may often use this when there's some sort of Confrontation or competition perhaps someone is telling you that they're going to destroy your reputation and you say I'm not afraid of you do your worst and you're really challenging someone do your worst all right Monday do your worst I've lost track of the number of times I've been killed so go ahead do your worst so if you need to do your worst do your worst you've got the address the hotel I'll be here waiting I am going to do my part and continue teaching you some useful phrases but this time with the verb have and the first phrase that I want to teach you is to have a onrack mind this means to think about one particular thing and nothing else now sometimes you may hear people use this phrase as more of a sexual innuendo suggesting that a guy has a onrack mind and is only thinking about sex but that's not always the case and to give you some more context here are some news headlines you have a one-track mind which is why multitasking is sabotaging your productivity Kristoff Ire and maybe I'm mispronouncing the name this person is a French Sprinter and they say at the start lineup you have a onrack mind and finally you don't have to have a onrack mind to study law now let's look at some video examples using this phrase oh and then games know something you have a one track mind I don't care just as long as it takes me where I want to go I have a one track mind don't I my one track mind is telling me that I'm hungry no why not because my ex-girlfriend's getting married Jesus you got a one track mind it's always Caitlyn Caitlyn Caitlyn next is have an in with this means to establish a connection with someone in a position of authority and often I think this phrase is kind of related to networking maybe you try to meet someone especially someone in a position of authority you try to establish a connection so that perhaps in the future you have an in with this person and it doesn't have to be someone with immense power power it could just be a regular person who perhaps because of their job

they have power in specific situations I could say I'll be able to get us into the concert because I have an inn with the security guard he's an old friend from high school here are some more examples maybe have an inn with a big client that we could get our foot in the door oh I have an inn with the manager I delivered his baby and even better I have an end with the owner oh yeah we work together then there's the phrase to have feelings this is another common phrase and it's used to say that you feel pleased and not pleased at the same time perhaps I ask you what do you think about the new employee policy and you say h i have mixed feelings about it I thought this was a fun example because there's a popular slogan I love New York you see it on t-shirts with a heart but I think maybe this t-shirt is a little more accurate I have mixed feelings about New York let's have a look at some more examples mixed feelings about being a parent I have mixed feelings about doing interviews I have mixed feelings honestly about Christmas how's that possible share the same blood the same mixed feelings towards B to have a presence of mind and really you would have a presence of mind to do something this refers to the ability to make good decisions and react quickly and calmly

in a difficult situation or an emergency it's another way of saying that you were able to think quickly and make a good decision when when the fire started she had the presence of mind to grab the fire extinguisher now I always like to inspire you so here are some inspirational quotes using this phrase presence of mind in all things I counsel be aware of thyself before all else it's very deep most important was to remain focused and always have a presence of mind I hope that you have the presence of mind to write to me in the comments it's not necessarily an emergency but a good decision at least have the presence of mind to act civilized usually when someone has the presence of mind to ask themselves if they're going crazy it suggests they're not if I had lost my temper would I have had the presence of mine to leave my card and my insurance information then there's to have your hands tied this is used to say that someone is unable to act freely because something like a law or rule prevents it let's say that you would like my help and I would like to help help you but for some reason I can't I might say sorry my hands are tied here are some more news headlines so you can get a better feel as to how this phrase is used in context fast food is targeting youths but local leaders have their hands tied border patrol agents have their hands tied priests fleas country with teen Valentine but police may have their hands tied let's have a look at some video examples totally disregard that last voicemail because you obviously have your hands tied good luck since his death my hands have been tied but I believe the universe has given us a gift you can't reward her for that my hands are tied so now Jennifer is going to teach you 15 common phrasal verbs which is incredibly helpful because we use phrasal verbs all the time in casual conversation remember that phrasal verbs have multiple meanings depending on context so I'll show you the phrasal verb and then I'll give you an example sentence so you can see how that phrasal verb is being used our first phrasal verb pull off I know the team can pull it off pull off do you know this one in this context to pull off means to succeed in doing something difficult or unexpected for example getting a high mark on your iel is challenging but I know you'll pull it off so not notice here I know you'll pull it off here it means I know you'll succeed at getting a high mark on your ey outs how about this one if you have a great teacher I know I'll pull it off

maybe that's something you would say I know I'll pull it off I will be successful if I have a great teacher and I hope I'm that great teacher for you if you agree with that put that's right that's right I'll pull it off with Jennifer's help put that's right in the comments now let's listen to some real world examples using this phrasal verb is it something you really managed to pull off or does the Middle East really still have us kind of sucked in so how did Ukraine pull off such a stunning attack it requires a bit of confidence to pull off our next phrasal verb take off Sarah's online store really took off do you know what this means take off this means to become successful or popular for example my YouTube channel didn't take off at first it wasn't successful or popular at first but I was persistent and consistent and eventually it took off eventually it became successful I could also say and eventually I pulled it off I pulled it off and in this case it represents creating and growing a successful YouTube channel or I could say to you if you're consistent your English fluency and confidence will take off do you agree with that well put that's right that's right put that's right in the comments now let's listen to some real world examples using this phrasal verb just at the point where your career is starting to take off you're taking on seniority after the trial she was able to move away to Florence and that's where we really see her career kind of take off but once you look at that 10year Mark and Beyond that's where things really start to take off next put off she put off scheduling her IELTS do you know what put off means this means to delay or post postpone doing something she put off scheduling her ILS until she mastered phrasal verbs now this means she'll schedule her ey outs once she Masters phrasal verbs you might say let's put off the meeting let's delay the meeting until after the long weekend or your husband or roommate might ask you are we still cleaning out the garage this weekend and you can say h let's put it off until winter let's delay it until winter let's listen to some real world examples do you put off writing a paper until the last minute just an idea being put off for a better time that never came Funnies and I think it's such a waste when people just put off their vacation or travel plans now next turn around how did you turn around your online store do you know what this means to turn around this means to take a business plan or

system from not successful to successful for example the new manager turned the marketing department around so to turn something around to take the marketing department from not successful too successful or she turned around her speaking skills by practicing speaking every day and you can add to this and say her excellent communication skills helped her career take off become successful let's listen to some real world examples I'm hoping we can turn it around accommodation that has turned the business turned it around our economy in Peril we turned it around our next phrasal verb call off do you know why the meeting was called off do you know what this means to call off this means to cancel something that was planned or scheduled for example the company had to call off the conference cancel the conference because of the hurricane now let's compare this sentence to One with put off remember put off means delay the company had to put off the conference because of the hurricane do you know the difference between these two sentences in the first example with call off the conference will not happen it is cancelled but in the second example with put off the conference will happen but at a later date or you could say she called off her birthday party when she got sick she cancelled it she didn't put it off she called it off let's listen to some real world examples at as violence they began to receive threats to call off their events after 2 hours the mams call off their attack and Retreat so we decided to call off the wedding at the last minute how are you doing with these phrasal verbs so far our next phrasal verb to catch up on I I spent the whole day catching up on emails do you know what this means to catch up on this means to do something that you haven't been able to do recently for example I need to catch up on your lessons maybe you say that to me or to your teacher or your piano instructor this means you haven't been able to review the lessons recently so now you have many lessons to review and you need to catch up on them you need to watch all the lessons you haven't reviewed or you could say this weekend I caught up on my chores I did all the chores I haven't been able to do because I was too busy doing other things so I put them off but this weekend I caught up on them let's listen to some real world examples anyone that wants to catch up on that the story can go back and watch their original issue which they should do anyway because it feels like a way to catch up on social media or read something let's have this down

paed catch up an email go home at a regular time our next phrasal verb

blurred out I can't believe I blurred that out in front of my boss do you know what this means to blurred out this is when you say something suddenly without thinking often something that shouldn't have been said for example let's say you're in a meeting and you're discussing a strategy or a goal and you say there's no way we'll pull that off there's no way we'll be successful and then later in the meeting you can say oh why did I blurt that out I have such a big mouth so this is an expression to have a big mouth someone who has a big mouth often says things they shouldn't say because they don't think before they speak so people with big mouths often blurt things out or maybe your coworker is looking for a new job but it was a secret but then you say to your coworker I accidentally blurred it out that you're looking for a new job so you said it suddenly without thinking let's listen to some real world examples further when girls blur out without answers without raising their hands one of you so what's your story can you just blurt out a 30 second story his first reflex was not to blurt out what was going on next comb through do you have time to comb through this report do you know what this means to comb through and notice that b is silent comb comb through this means to analyze or review something carefully and completely before you submit your CV you should comb through it to make sure there are no errors that's always good advice or I comb through this entire textbook to prepare for my eye outs you reviewed it entirely and completely she spent the whole afternoon combing through old family photos to create a scrapbook let's listen to some real world examples NASA kind of comb through our data so I went back to my staff was comb through this um go comb through their website next skim through I only had enough time to skim through the report do you know what this means to skim through this means to review something quickly without going into detail so you can think of it as the opposite of comb through for example the consultant has an impressive background but I only skimmed through his proposal I didn't read it fully she skimmed through the recipe to make sure she had all the ingredients so she looked at it quickly not fully let's listen to some real world examples can't sort of skim through it and I'm just going to skim through hit couple of the highlights read the class syllabus skim through textbooks and review all the materials next gloss over over the consultant glossed over the budget increase do you know what this means to gloss over this means to briefly mention something without going into detail and you do this often to avoid discussing it thoroughly for example the manager glossed over the consultant's rude comment so how could he gloss over this rude comment maybe he's in the middle of a meeting and he says to the consultant who remember said something rude he says to him I appreciate your perspective anyway let's review the upcoming conference so he mentioned it briefly but then he quickly moved on to something else because he didn't want to spend time reviewing that negative comment how about this one my brother always glosses over why his girlfriend doesn't come to family gatherings he mentions it quickly but then moves on to a different topic on purpose because he doesn't want to discuss it he glosses over it let's listen to some real world

examples love this stuff so I didn't want to gloss over anything in the early days I would gloss over my family's experience I'll have to gloss over or admit many formal details next pan out the speaker we wanted didn't pan out do you know what this means to pan out this means to have a successful outcome the strategy didn't pan out this means the strategy wasn't successful didn't have a successful outcome so we need to revise our approach or you could say to your spouse or roommate or family member let's see how our kitchen Renault pans out before we start the Bal bathroom Renault is short for renovation so you're renovating your kitchen let's see how it pans out let's see how successful it is before we start another Renault another renovation let's listen to some real world examples another reason why this learning styles Theory doesn't pan out and in that way in case there were any failures in case things didn't pan out

we're excited to see how the metrics of those pan out our next phrasal verb drift off I think I drifted off during the presentation do you know what this means to drift off this means to gradually become less focused or to fall asleep unintentionally not on purpose often while engaged in another activity here's a real example sometimes I drift off when my husband starts talking about his work now in this case I don't fall asleep but I gradually stop paying attention to my husband and I start just paying attention to other things we have another expression my mind wanders I drift off because my husband's work is very technical and often I don't really understand what he's saying so I drift off you could also say I must have drifted off during the movie now this could mean that you stopped paying attention to the movie and you started paying attention to other things or quite likely you fell asleep during the movie and you didn't even realize that it ended and hours later you're asleep on your couch and the movie is over and you had no idea you drifted off let's listen to some real world examples listen to the sound of the ocean as you slowly Drift Off to Sleep it might feel nice for a while to drift off into past memories eventually Henry began to drift off for the last time next dip into we had to dip into our emergency fund to make payroll do you understand this one to dip into this means to spend a portion of a reserve or saving often temporarily so you have this Reserve or SA saving and if you dip into it you take a portion some of that money out so this is used specifically with spending money for example the company had to dip into its emergency fund so take a portion of that fund to cover the unexpected expenses or we had to dip into our savings to cover the cost of the car repair let's listen to some real world examples the house had initially proposed a $2,700 payout but couldn't muster the votes required to dip into savings to pay for it but there are other proposals to dip into it one for a school Lo construction fund and therefore I don't need to dip into my savings our next phrasal verb pick up I pick up a lot of English Expressions by watching TV do you know what this means in this context pickup means to learn something informally or casually often through exposure rather than instruction so right now you're not picking up these phrasal verbs I'm teaching them to you this is formal instruction but if you're watching a TV show and you hear the speaker say a phrasal verb in speech and you learn the meaning of that phrasal verb from that TV show you just picked up that phrasal verb which is a great way to learn or maybe you have a great skill you know how to code and someone asks you did you take coding classes and you say no I just picked it up over the years so you were exposed to coding and you just learned it gradually from being exposed to it you didn't take formal classes or have formal instruction let's listen to some real world examples to

LinkedIn learning more than ever to pick up new skills find people with similar hobbies and pick come new interest it's not uncommon for humans to pick up new accents how about this phrasal verb shake off if you make a mistake just shake it off do you know this one if you're a Taylor Swift fan you probably do shake off this means to get rid of something such as a problem or a mistake and move on from it so you can imagine the problem is right here and you just Shake It Off shake it off this is commonly used in sports the coach might say to the team we're down three points which means we're losing by three points we're down three points we need to Shake It Off and play better than ever so this means not let the fact that we're losing affect us we need to forget about it and play better than ever or you could say I know I made a few grammar mistakes during my spoken exam but I just shook them off and I passed which is a great reminder that you can make mistakes and still pull it off still be successful and they shake off criticism with a flip of the wig so my challenge is that we share and we shake off those narratives it had developed a reputation as the king of knockoffs and it couldn't shake the reputation of being a copycat so how did you do with those phrasal verbs share your score in the comments and now Wes is going to teach you 50 different collocations to help you speak more easily and naturally I am going to teach you 50 different collocations and if you don't know what a collocation is it is a word or phrase that is often followed by another word or phrase and there are many different types of collocations but in today's lesson I want to teach you 50 different adjective noun collocations so all of these phrases are adjectives that are commonly followed by different nouns so let's begin with our first collocation using the adjective high and you might hear people talk about high school this is a time period in a person's education you have middle school high school and then University or maybe somebody's talking about High Ground in which case you need to get to a higher or elevated position maybe there's a flood and somebody says we we need to get to high ground or high tech this just means advanced technology and you could say wow this this stuff it's it's really high-tech the technology is Advanced or somebody could have high standards it and that means that they just want the best for themselves and you could say

well I have really high standards when it comes to food or when it comes to places to stay hotels you have high standards or for a high degree of certainty this means that you really believe and you know that something is going to happen next we have collocations with the adjective big and we use this to really emphasize the the noun that it's describing for example there could be a big mistake and you're really trying to say that wellow okay this is a real problem and somebody made a big mistake or maybe there is a big surprise it's not your normal surprise it's a big surprise you could also say something is a big deal this emphasizes that that this thing is very important and you could say it's a big deal a person may also need to make a big decision this is talking about a very important decision and you will often hear somebody say look you know I I really have a big decision to make it's very important it's a big decision and finally you could hear somebody say big money which means you're you're talking about a lot of money that may be coming your way big money next adjective that I have for you is little and you would hear this used with a variety of nouns such as little boy or little girl this is just describing well describing somebody's age perhaps but you got to be careful it may not be polite sometimes to call somebody a little boy or a little girl you could also say little thought in this case somebody might say that well you gave this little thought you really didn't think about it much or perhaps a little bit this is talking about an amount there is a little bit or little time if you don't have a lot of time to do something you could say well we we have very little time we need to get moving because we have little time then we have the adjective heavy and you could say well somebody is a heavy drinker or a heavy smoker it means that they they do this a lot or maybe there is heavy traffic if there are many cars on the road you could describe that and say wow there's there's really heavy traffic today or perhaps there there's heavy rain and it means that it is it's raining a lot if it's raining if it's really coming down you could describe it and say there's Heavy Rain if you're out driving in the Heavy Rain then and there's heavy traffic traffic it's likely there will be a traffic jam you could finally say that someone is a heavy sleeper and this means that well they once they go to sleep you can make all the noise that you want because you are not going to wake this person up they are a heavy sleeper now because we just talked about heavy then I I think it's only appropriate that our next adjective is light and we can use this to say the opposite of many of those that I just talked about so instead of somebody being a heavy drinker or a heavy smoker you could say that that someone is a light Drinker or a light smoker you could say that someone is a light sleeper in which case any kind of noise would probably wake this person up they're not a heavy sleeper they are a light sleeper I I think I am more of a light sleeper I wake up pretty easily at night if there is any kind of noise so when I go to bed I really I just want Silence You could also say light rain if it's just it's not raining that much outside perhaps it's just starting to rain it's not heavy rain it's just a little light rain you don't need your umbrella just yet because it's only a little light rain if talking about wind you could say that well there is a light Breeze that it's not well it it's not very windy it's just well there's a light Breeze which I think is kind of nice when you walk outside and there's a light Breeze and finally you could say there is a light shade and in this case you're you're pretty much talking about a color a light shade of red or a light shade of blue or a light shade of green a light shade of some color then we have the adjective strong which I think is a great adjective and you can use this to describe many nouns for example you could say a strong argument if you are debating with someone you want to make sure that that you are presenting a strong argument you could also have a strong feeling about something or maybe something you want a strong desire if talking about well the wind instead of a light Breeze you could say there is a strong Breeze or even a strong wind we can also use it with the word evidence and and say that there is strong evidence police when they're trying to solve a crime they they really they're looking for strong evidence you could also say that someone has a strong hand and in in this case they're not really talking about your hands you could be talking about cards if you're playing cards you have a hand of cards and you could say you have a strong hand but it could also be referring to somebody's position that you have a position of power and you could refer to that and say well you know right now I have a very strong hand I'm in a very good position a position of power I have a strong hand another common way this adjective is used is when talking about a strong relationship and this just means that well you could use it to talk about maybe a family member or your friends or even a romantic relationship husband and wife and you say okay we just have a strong relationship we believe in each other we trust each other we have a strong relationship I I think that we you and I we have a strong relationship because you you watch our video lessons you write to me in the comments which I love hearing from you and because of that I can say that we have a strong relationship you and I at least I hope we do all right the next adjective is deep and we can use this with nouns such as deep thought that you are you are really thinking about something and you would say that somebody you know they in deep thought they're really focused and and they're really trying to think about some serious topic or maybe somebody you could describe a person and say that they have a deep voice describing the way that they talk so for example this is my deep voice and it's it's really bad that's a very terrible example but you you kind of get the idea if you want to describe the way somebody sounds their voice you could say they have a deep voice it's down here in the chest you could also use it with sleep and say that that somebody is in a deep sleep even if somebody is not a heavy sleeper but they're so tired they're they're just in a deep sleep you could also say that somebody takes a deep breath or maybe they are you could describe a person and say that they are in a deep depression they're very sad it is a very intense depression it is a deep depression another way you could use this ad objective is deep down and often I think somebody would say deep down inside talking about uh a feeling a feeling that's deep down inside then we have the adjective fast and you could say that well somebody gets off to a fast start they begin but they do so quickly and they get a fast start you could also describe a person and say that well he or she is a fast talker you could well let's let's continue describing people and you could say that someone is fast asleep if they if this person is sleeping you can use this expression and say well you know they're fast asleep they're sleeping soundly they're fast asleep you may also hear somebody talk about uh a fast pace that you need to move kind of quickly and continuously and you might need to keep a fast pace another very common collocation would be fast food I think uh all of us uh are familiar with different fast food restaurants and I could also say that someone perhaps you I could say that you are a fast learner that you watch these video lessons and you are building your vocabulary because you are a fast learner you learn quickly and well quick is the next adjective that that I want to talk about because it's it's a little similar to fast but we use it with different nouns for example we could use it with the word glance and and say quick glance to really describe something that that you saw for just a very very short period of time and and you just got a quick glance you just you looked at it and then and that that's it that's it that's a quick glance right there you could also say that uh you're going to get a quick bite in which case you're you're talking about you're you're going to eat you're going to get something to eat very quickly you're just going to grab a quick bite to eat or maybe you want to get a quick shower you you're telling somebody that well you need to shower you're not going to spend a long time in there you're just gon to get a quick shower and during a presentation somebody might give you a quick recap they're going to review whatever they just said and they're going to do it quickly they're going to give you a quick recap or perhaps uh a person might need to make a quick decision when when you really have to think fast you don't have a lot of time you need to make a quick decision now let's move well more to the opposite meaning and talk about the ad objective slow and we can use it with nouns such as well growth or progress I think quite quite often you would hear it used with these nouns when talking about perhaps the the work that somebody's doing or or you might say well you know we're just we're making slow progress we're not going very fast we we didn't get off to a fast start and right now we're just making slow progress and because of that the company the business is experiencing slow growth I'm sure many of you have heard it with the word motion and talking about slow motion to describe the way well somebody is moving or or something that you're watching that things were moving in slow motion I'm just going to move on to the next collocation and talk about a slow day and if somebody says that well it's a slow day it just means it's not very busy I often think people would use this collocation when when talking about work that they're not very busy at their job and they say you know today it was a slow day and you could also use it to describe a person and say that someone is a slow learner that that they're not a fast learner it takes them a little more time to understand and comprehend different things you could say Well they're a slow learner I think sometimes with with many things I I am a bit of a slow learner I really like to take my time time and quite often I need to review things and and do it numerous times before I understand so I could say yeah you know I'm a slow learner but that's okay I I don't expect you to watch this lesson and remember every single one of these collocations for the rest of your life it's all about getting exposure reading listening and then practicing because that is the best way to build your vocabulary and remember these phrases and that's what I want to do right now I want to practice using some of these collocations I'm going to give you a sentence and the adjective is missing the first sentence that I have for you is I need you to make a m decision I need you to make a m decision which adjective are you going to use I hope you said I need you to make a quick decision when you have to think fast you need to make a quick decision the next one is even though our neighbor threw a party I didn't wake up because I am a sleeper even though our neighbor had a party I didn't wake up because I am a sleeper in this case I hope that you said heavy a heavy sleeper you can just sleep through anything including your neighbor's party then we have uh I'm going to Vegas and I hope to win some M money this weekend I'm going to Vegas and I hope to win some M money this weekend if you're going to Vegas and you're going to gamble of course you want to win some big big money I'm going to Vegas and I hope to win some big money this weekend the next sentence is scientists believe that the climate will continue to change with a degree of certainty I think you should remember this one scientists believe that climate will continue to change with a M degree of certainty I hope that you said

High we're talking about a high degree of certainty that somebody well they're pretty sure that that this is going to happen and finally I would tell you the sent and I would say I think you are a m learner and I really do I think you are a m learner and of course you should have said fast all right I don't think you're a slow learner I think you are a fast learner and I think if you really if you continue to read if you continue to listen if you continue to watch these video lessons that is going to help you build your vocabulary it's going to help you remember these different collocations and that is then going to help you improve your overall English fluency great job I hope that you learned some new phrases that you can now go out and use the next time you're having a conversation and I would like to give a special thanks to Jennifer for joining me today thank you so much for having me it was truly my pleasure and subscribe to my channel to enjoy more lessons to help you become fluent and to watch another special master class that Wes and I have prepared prepared just for you

LESSON 7 OF 749

100 Collocations Native Speakers Use in Academic Discussions

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I want to teach you some powerful and high-frequency academic collocations that you can use in presentations, academic writing, IELTS or TOEFL, even when you're having a more intellectual conversation. And if you are someone who wants to supercharge your vocabulary, please subscribe, turn on notifications, that way I can become your teacher. My name is Wes. The channel is Interactive English. It's all about helping you reach your fluency goals. So, I'm going to give you the headword, which is really the primary word along with its meaning and some useful collocations that are used with that word. And collocations are just words that are frequently used together. So, let's get going. The first word is range. This is a noun that refers to a variety of things of a particular type, like a wide range of possibilities. Now, one thing I want you to be aware of is that you're often going to follow this noun with the preposition of. I just mentioned a wide range of possibilities.

Some other collocations you may hear people talk about a limited range or a full range or even a broad range, which is one of my favorites, as well as a diverse range of something. These are great phrases whenever talking about a range. But frequent exposure to dangerous sound levels can lead to a wide range of hearing disorders. will give you a sense of the broad range of extraordinary opportunities that I hope you'll explore and take advantage of while you're here at Princeton. A history of swinging either way or maybe they have a diverse range of voters. Then we have vary. To vary. This is a verb and it means to differ in size, amount, or degree from something else of the same general class. And there are some excellent verb adverb collocations like to vary considerably or to vary significantly or to vary widely. And then there are some other phrases that we can use with this verb to vary depending on something or to vary among groups. Great verb to know.

However, completion rates vary considerably from state to state.

Size for example, some species can vary significantly between sexes. There are characteristics and experiences that characterize the most successful CEOs, but those those will vary depending on the situation. Next is implement. This is another verb. It just means to put a plan into action. And there are many things that you might try to implement like trying to implement a plan or implement a strategy or even implement a policy. And then you may also use this verb with other adverbs to implement something effectively or even implement it quickly. Now this lesson is my attempt to implement a plan effectively so that you get as much exposure to these useful collocations as possible because these are phrases that I think you should know and use. I am directing the Department of Justice to implement a plan to stop crime and crimes of violence against law enforcement officers.

Time again over the course of this presidency is that we can implement a policy, a national security policy that is consistent with our values and have to work with the police department to make sure you've got the resources and support to effectively implement strategies that we know work. Now, if you are looking to implement a plan to greatly improve your English skills, Busu is an interactive language learning platform that can certainly help you reach your fluency goals. So, Busu offers you a wide range of features for anyone who is looking to grow personally or professionally. They have courses created by experts. There's an interactive community, and you get immersive speaking practice. I always say it's incredibly important to learn and practice the language that people actually use, which is why we're talking about collocations in today's lesson.

And with Busu, you get access to real life conversations, which is going to build your confidence when communicating with others. Now, you may be thinking, sometimes it's hard to find the time throughout the day. But with Busu, you can take small and achievable bite-size lessons, which makes it easier to achieve your goals and stay motivated. So, check out Busu with the links below. You can sign up and start learning for free and you can try Busu Premium with a 7-day free trial. So have a look at those links in the description and take your English to the next level. Let's get back to our amazing collocations. And the next word is subsequent. This is an adjective that basically refers to happening after something else. So in an academic context, you may hear people talk about subsequent research or subsequent analysis or possibly a subsequent event. Maybe people are going to have a subsequent discussion or even subsequent stage. Rely. This is our next word. It's a verb and it just means to depend on with full trust or confidence. And I want you to know that often you're going to follow these phrases with the preposition on. So, I'm just going to include on when I share these collocations with you. So, you might rely heavily on someone or something. Or you could rely primarily on or rely increasingly on, rely excessively on, or even rely solely on someone or something. I hope that you rely heavily on these lessons to help you keep building your vocabulary. And if that's the case, you can let me know by hitting that like button. buoyancy, vertical thrust, lift. Though many aircraft rely primarily on just one of these modes, we're in an era in which mayors and cities um have to rely increasingly on what we would call mobile capital.

Now, that could spill over into the real economy for sure, but that's a subsequent event. And then that just snowballs into every

Often we rely solely on our instincts to help guide us. Then there's to undertake, another verb.

This means to do or begin to do something. Now, one thing you should know about this verb is that it especially refers to things that either take a long time or they're just difficult to do. So, speaking academically, you may undertake research or undertake a project, undertake a study, undertake a task, or even undertake responsibility. So just keep in mind when using this verb, it really refers to things that are either going to take a long time or they're just really difficult to do. Whenever you undertake something, teacher takes leave from their home school to work at the library and to use their resources to undertake a project to benefit their home school.

So the new Colbo plan um requires that you undertake a study component and an internship. No one in England was willing to undertake such a daring task. Of course, we cannot have an academic lesson without talking about research. This is a noun that just refers to the detailed study of something, especially when you're trying to discover new information and really understand what's going on. And there is a common verb used with this noun, and that is to conduct research. And there are many adjectives that you could use to describe research such as groundbreaking research or extensive research. Somebody might talk about empirical research. And empirical, this is a more advanced word that just refers to verifiable experience. So it's really talking about people's experience. Or people may even talk about qualitative research. Again, we're talking about we're talking about academic collocations, but qualitative research would just refer to the type of research that does not involve like numbers and data. So, you might be analyzing things like interviews or observations when people are referring to qualitative research.

And so, we have given them the green light to go and conduct research studies, which is really great because then we're not like conducting our own research study. There's groundbreaking research on this that comes from Dr.

Rebecca Campbell. Boston Consulting Group, for example, has done very extensive research uh that documents that some growth actually destroys value. Then there's benefit. Great noun. It refers to a helpful or good effect or at least something that is intended to be helpful and you're trying to get some advantage. Now, there are many adjective noun collocations with this word. Maybe people are going to talk about the mutual benefit of something or even the long-term benefit or maybe the potential benefit in more of a business sense. People may talk about the economic benefit or even the health benefit if we're having some sort of medical conversation. Now, I think the potential benefit of you learning these collocations is enormous, and I would say it's going to have a long-term benefit on your overall English fluency.

Just trying to have a little fun and give you a better sense as to how these phrases are used in context. Plus, I think it's true. Fungus and Root get together and they trade for mutual benefit.

That means making investments now that will pay a long-term benefit uh in a better educated, better skilled workforce. Imagine if we could use the resources more efficiently, it would have a massive global economic benefit.

Approach. This is another noun and it refers to a way of dealing with a situation or problem. To give you an example of a verb used with this noun, people may adopt an approach and in that case, they're really just going to start using it. And there are many adjectives used with this noun when being creative. You will certainly hear people talk about an innovative approach or maybe they'll discuss a theoretical approach, an alternative approach, or even a systematic approach. And you're really going to have more of a fixed plan whenever you take a systematic approach. I urge you to adopt an approach to learning that's less effortful because it's better tuned to the way the mind naturally learns. Nanotechnology, an innovative approach to developing high performance materials. You can employ a systematic approach to training and practicing, but you can't employ a systematic approach to actually living because life is a process.

all of the collocations that I'm going to share with you are adjective noun collocations. And I think some very common ones would be talking about the desired outcome or maybe even a positive or negative outcome or even the eventual outcome. Some more advanced collocations with this noun would include an adverse outcome. Adverse just refers to something that is unfavorable, maybe even harmful. So, it's not good when there's an adverse outcome or a binary outcome. Binary just means involving two different things. So now you know in case you ever hear somebody talking about a binary outcome to assert that the universe has a purpose implies a desired outcome. But who would do the desiring and what would a desired outcome be is as it moves you are deciding what the eventual outcome will be.

So that as they were doing things that caused their blood sugar to go up or caused an adverse outcome.

Then we have the verb assess. This means to evaluate or estimate the nature, ability or quality of something. And there are many things that you can assess. You can assess the performance of something. You can assess the effectiveness or assess the impact or even assess the progress. And you could also assess one's needs. I told you there are many things that you can assess. This is just a sample of some common collocations. And one of the things that we did to assess the impact of this curriculum. How do you assess the performance of of a creative team or a creative individual? Then Vice President Biden traveled to Japan to assess needs and help with the recovery. Then we have source. This is a noun that refers to a place, person or thing from which something originates or can be obtained. And I want to share with you some useful adjective noun collocations.

You can use this when talking about the primary source or the secondary source, maybe an original source, a reliable source, or perhaps even an anonymous source. And if something is anonymous, in that case, it's unknown. Whenever talking about an anonymous source, a primary source is a rockolid, airtight origin point for a fact or a quote. What if you had to drive 4 hours to charge your phone because you had no reliable source of electricity? Historians attribute the London magazine article to an anonymous source who spun the tale from scratch. Next is the adjective significant. I like this word. It's one that I often emphasize when I'm talking or having a conversation because it refers to something that is worthy of attention.

It's large enough to be important or just affect a situation to a noticeable degree. So some common collocations are a significant difference, a significant impact, a significant factor. I told you I like to emphasize this word. Or maybe you're talking about a significant change. And then if I want to use it with an adverb, we could say that something is statistically significant.

We know these changes may have significant impact on creators making kids content. Times when people stand up and demand real significant change.

Mine just aren't matching up. I just can't get the results to be statistically significant.

Justify. To justify something means to show that something is reasonable, right or true. So you can justify a decision or justify an action. You can justify behavior, maybe justify a conclusion or even justify an expenditure. And in this case, an expenditure just refers to spending time, money, or effort. Whenever you justify an expenditure, a person might make up things about what Jesus would do to prove a point or to justify an action or lifestyle.

There are people that literally justify behavior based on views and likes and following count. We jump to a conclusion and then we try to justify that conclusion. I do that.

Everyone does that. Then there's the verb indicate which means to show, point out or make clear in another way. And there are many nouns you can use with this word. You can indicate a trend or indicate a relationship or maybe even indicate a need. You can also use this with a noun before the verb. If I say studies indicate and then yeah, just say whatever it is that studies indicate. And then with an adverb to clearly indicate something. And when using these collocations, you can use more than just two words. For example, I could say studies clearly indicate that learning English with interactive English and me is the best way to reach your fluency goals. I think that's a great example.

These examples indicate a trend. I haven't created it and it's not happening by accident. Recent studies indicate that farmers in Norway cultivated hemp as early as 650 AD. The game has been around for an entire century as Uncle Pennybags and his oldtimey hat clearly indicate. Then there's the word policy. This is a noun that you probably already know. It's a pretty common word and it just refers to a set of ideas or a plan of what to do in a particular situation that's been agreed upon by a group of people, business organizations, government, political party. And there are some excellent adjective noun collocations with this word when talking about public policy or economic policy or foreign policy. And then if you want to use it with some common verbs, you might implement a policy or even enforce a policy. That sounds uh, you know, definitely a bit stronger when you enforce a policy. Maybe you majored in political science because you were fascinated by global affairs or public policy or current events.

Today, this science-driven economic policy has largely eliminated acid rain across the United States and Canada. Sometimes a president may use an executive order to clarify and help implement a policy that needs to be easily defined. Then we have the noun volume which refers to the amount of something that there is perhaps like the space that something occupies and some common collocations include total volume or sales volume or high volume. If talking about that that space maybe you want to increase the volume or decrease the volume. Great phrases to know in this candy. You see the the the total volume that it occupies is not equal to the total volume of the candy because there's gaps in it. Every day for the first 10 days the sandwich was back effectively doubling sales volume at those stores.

Burn something up means to increase the volume or intensity.

Then we have assume. This is a verb and it means to take or begin to have responsibility or control. And there are some very important verb noun collocations. You can assume responsibility, assume control, assume leadership, or maybe assume a role, or even assume a position. Here are some more examples. And I think if tech firms assume responsibility, uh they're less likely to face regulation, which they consider to be dumb or illinformed.

When Democrats assume control of the House of Representatives, and he comes under more scrutiny. They can look at us, then we can look at them. To not fall asleep during the meditation is to assume a position where where it's challenging to fall asleep. Then there's the verb require. It means to need something or to make something necessary. So some things that you might require would be to require approval or require attention. Maybe maybe require clarification or require analysis or even require resources. There are other things that you know, one might require, but these are some of my favorite collocations and I wanted to share them with you. None of this would require approval by the United Nations Security Council faculty and ourselves are united that there are areas and sections that do require clarification. We know we can do this because you've already done it with weather, but it's going to require resources. We need to encourage greater investment in water.

Evidence. This is a pretty common noun.

It refers to the available body of facts or information indicating whether something is true or valid. And there are some useful verb noun collocations like to provide evidence or even evaluate evidence. And if you're going to use it with some adjectives, maybe you're going to talk about strong evidence or even ample evidence. And ample in this case just means sufficient, which is another adjective that you could use, sufficient evidence. But the last one that I wanted to share with you, a little bit of review, empirical evidence. Do you remember what it means? We talked about empirical research, but we could also say empirical evidence to refer to something that is based on experience.

Caveart may provide evidence of a time when humans were first able to etch their thoughts in stone. There has been ample evidence of storytelling in a multitude of cultures around mankind.

There's no strong evidence of liquid water on the surface of Mars right now, though. Now, I know I just gave you many different phrases, and I do not expect you to memorize them, but the more that you see them, the more that you hear them, the more likely you are to remember and use them when you're having a conversation, giving a presentation, especially in an academic context. Now, if you enjoyed this lesson and learned something new, you can let me know by hitting that like button.

LESSON 8 OF 749

100 Most Common Words in English | YOU NEED TO KNOW THESE WORDS

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

what's up everyone today I have a super useful lesson for you because I'm gonna talk to you about the 100 most common words in English these are words you need to know that's coming up hey my name is Wes this is interactive English which is the place that you want to be to practice and improve your English skills so today we are going to kill two birds with one stone and that is an expression that means we are going to achieve two things in this single lesson first we are going to talk about the 100 most common English words these are words that that you should know you should know how to use them and I think if you are an intermediate or advanced learner you're gonna be familiar with them but it's always fun to learn these words to know to make sure that you know them and especially if you see a word that you're not very familiar with or you think you don't know how to use it well then well that's a great reason to then look up and see how you can use that word the second thing we're going to do is I am going to share with you some interesting facts about the English language and I have some questions for you that I want you to answer so if you are joining us please tell us your name say hello to us in the comments we we just want to hear from you guys so hello you Lisa Alex um life of happiness Nazihah Halley alia Susheela David welcome welcome welcome thanks for joining me sorry if I missed any names at this point I'll try to talk to and say people's names a little bit later but let's let's just get right into it and start talking about these words and as I asked you these questions again I want you guys to answer them and see if you can figure out the answer to these different questions so the first thing that I want to tell you is that these words all right this is not my list of 100 words these words were taken from the Oxford English corpus and what that is I think most people are familiar with the Oxford English Dictionary but the Oxford English corpus is related to the the actual dictionary but it is a collection of texts both you know written or spoken language presented in electronic form it provides the evidence of how language is used in real situations so what this means is it's it's basically the the Oxford English corpus or you might say the OEC is a way of taking the English language today what we have right now or the most current version and see how it's used on the internet how it's used in newspapers how it's used in spoken conversation and and taking all of that information and coming up with the one with the most commonly used words what words are mostly used in the English language and again there's real value to that because these are the words that you definitely need to know if you're learning the language they're very very important so let's get into it with the

let's just start out we're gonna start with 100 and we are going to work our way down to number one so let's just look at the first 10 right here so we have number 100 starts with us alright and then we go most day give these any because want new even I'm not gonna go over the the meaning of these words or the parts of speech I just want to show them to you because again if you see a word that like oh wait a second I'm not really sure how to use that word then that's a great way to identify things that you need to learn to improve your English skills so I just want to show these words to you and let you know what the most common ones are and and that's what i want you to gain from this and make sure that you know how to use all of these words right here so this is 102 number 91 and my question to you because after each set of 10 words I'm gonna get I'm gonna share a fascinating fact about the English language and my question is right here what's the most commonly used letter in the English alphabet alright so I want you to think of all words that we used which letter do you see the most which letter do you guys think is the most popular I want you to write that in the chat write that in the comments what what do you guys think that's my question and then I'll show you the answer so when you're thinking of this it makes me think of this game called Wheel of Fortune where you have to guess the word you have to guess the phrase or the sentence and you have to choose one letter at a time and most commonly people would always choose this letter I think most of you got it yes they would choose the letter e it is the most common letter even in those two words the letter you see that you see e three different times so the letter E is the most common letter in the English alphabet now let's get into number 92 81 so here we go we have way well first work our how to use after back alright these are words numbers 92 81 again you should know these words right here alright my question to you guys now that if any of you get this correct I will be amazed I would be amazed if you have time to actually type it in there what's the longest word in English all right what do you think is the longest word in English this is always like kind of a fun and interesting fact it's not a word that you need to know really because it's not like we use this word and everyday English does anybody have a guess about what what's the longest word in English what do you think probably not because that word is right here this is one word I couldn't even put it on the same line and one line so let's I'm gonna try and say this word all right and I'll tell you what it means and again I think it might make a little sense to you so it's pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanoconiosis okay new mono ultra-microscopic cilia kind of a cana coney osis alright that is the meaning of this word and again if you if you start taking the word apart you see some prefixes or suffixes that you might see you see the word volcano the word volcano is in there also the word micro micro means small so this is a medical term and what it means is it's a lung disease a disease that one gets in the lungs from breathing in small particles usually particles from a volcano eruption that is what this word means it's the longest word in English again not really word you need to know but it's it's always fun to learn so again I told you you will learn something new in this lesson in all of our lessons you will always learn something new so let's look at words 82 71 we start out with number 80 also and then we go also think over it's remember that's it's not it is the contraction it's the possessive come number 75 only look now then van alright and those are two good words number 72 and 71 because then and then sometimes they're commonly confused and if you're looking at those words now and thinking hmm I'm not really sure I know how to use them then after this lesson you should do a google search then versus then and then you'll learn something new and you'll become a little more comfortable and and that's a great way to improve your fluency is to identify the things that you don't know and then look up the answers and then try to practice practice practice practice all right so my question to you guys and this is something I want to take a guess all right how many words are added to the English dictionary each year so the English language is constantly evolving it's constantly changing it's constantly growing and the we add words each and every year so how many words take a guess how many words are added each year to the English dictionary you know you don't have to give me an exact number the answer I'm gonna give you is kind of just an estimate what what do you guys think I see then under send 1000 but some 20 son Gen 2 or 3,000 words Haley a hundred thousand Wow so a lot of different answers the answer is around 4,000 words are added each year I've given you kind of the source down there these aren't scholarly sources but this is where I got this information from Bloomberg Bloomberg Bloomsbury News around 4,000 words are added each year to the English dictionary that is that's a lot those are a lot of new words that we have to learn but as I'll show you at the end you know it's it's great to expand your vocabulary but I think it's best to stick with words that are most common like these words right here make sure you know how to use them and then you can expand your vocabulary by learning words in the word family which I will get to at the end I'm gonna bring this back around full circle for you guys so let's look at number 72 61 we have other see them could come good your year into people all right these are again more words you should know and my question to you guys what is a pangram so when you're thinking about the English language this is just a you know it somebody might ask you oh what's it what's a pangram or actually nobody's probably gonna ask you that only me in this question but if you're thinking about okay what's a pangram do you have any guesses I would be surprised if you know but a pangram is this a pangram is a sentence containing every letter of the alphabet it has every letter of the alphabet A to Z and there's an example sentence for you the quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog the quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog that is a pangram it has every single letter in the alphabet so food for thought alright next let's look at 6251 so at number 60 we have take the verb know him just know at 56 I thought that would be probably I thought that would be higher know number 55 time like can make when so these 6251 we're getting ready to to jump into the top 50 but before we do my question is what do you think what is this is a good one that I want you guys to try and answer what's the shortest complete sentence in English alright now when I say complete sentence I'm talking about a sentence with a subject and a verb not just like a statement if somebody says no are you hungry no alright not that's not you know that's not what I'm what I mean by a complete sentence it has a subject and a verb what is the shortest the fewest letters the shortest complete sentence in English alright any guesses all right we have so sun-jin okay I do on sam-i-am alright alright excellent so actually that every the the answer that they gave you is this all right from grammerly I am alright you know somebody asked you

many of us like to use it's so so common go so we have me go which get who about if out up so alright notice you're starting to see more prepositions I think more prepositions are becoming more common so these this is 52-41 and my question that I have for you guys is right here how many English speakers are there in the world I'm not talking about native English speakers I'm not talking about it English speakers people that have a you know a level of proficiency which would include you know you guys as well so how many English speakers do you think there are in the world all right I'll tell you right now the just rough estimate there are about seven and a half about seven seven and a half billion people in the world right how many of them are English speakers so we have some guesses between 1 billion Holley 3.4 billion infinite I love that up to fuzzy 22.5 all right these are some good answer so what they had was source from Babel around 1.5 billion people there are 1.5 billion people that have a level of English proficiency which would include you guys around the world which i think is the obviously the most the most spoken language because so many people are learning it and and that is how many of us communicate especially from different countries so 1.5 billion English speakers that is pretty incredible and I think native English speakers I think there's less than 400 million native English speakers so the majority of English speakers are people that have learned it as a second language as a foreign language so here we have numbers 42 31 the top the most common words in English so we got what all right that's such a great such a great question word what what is going on what do you want what they're all right also the hair again note this is another one you should know the difference between their th e IR and their th er E again there there would all one my will and or and again I told you guys I'm not gonna give you the meaning or the part of speech I just want to show you the words and these are words you should know and it's up to you to identify so like I said these are commonly confused words 39 and 38 th yeah I are there or th ER e if you're a little confused or you're not 100% positive of the difference in how they're used after the lesson do a Google search type in their verses there and they will show you some example sentence it's a great way to to learn something new build your vocabulary and improve your fluency now my question right here and again this may not be something I think unless you're an English teacher some of you might be English teachers and you may know this what our crutch words because whether you are a native English speaker or whether you are a speak English as a second language or as a foreign language so many people use crutch words and it's something that happens kind of naturally but it's something that I think when we become aware of it we want to avoid and crutch words are here all right so these crutch words or they're also called filler words are words that we often repeat and add no real value to the sentence they don't really give us more information but people often use them to to have more time to think of what they want to say or maybe they just want to emphasize a statement and you might hear people using crutch words I use them too I'm sure you can hear them if I'm saying like something like or um usually those words like just know I can't help it now

now that I'm talking about it they give us more time to think about what we want to say the other example that I wanted to give you about a crutch word is listen to this this is something that you might hear I'd hear this people in the United States especially teenagers would say something along the lines of this so they would be telling a story and it would go something like this and they would say you know yesterday I was like sitting like at home and I had like nothing to do so like my friend called me and said like what are you doing and I was like I'm not doing anything and she was like let's go hang out at the park so like we decided to like go to the park and when we were like taking the bus it was like and you notice the word I keep saying like like like like like like that would be another example of a crutch word and in this case it just adds no value to the sentence you can take it out and then it becomes a much more coherent thought and story and it's just much better so it's something just that we can try to avoid crutch words and I've been called out before when by friends or whoever at different periods in my life because I've been influenced in a certain way by my peer group or what I'm watching on TV and you hear it and I start using it and then somebody might say you know you use that word a lot and then I think wow I do use it a lot because I'm using it as a crutch word another one another example would be like the word actually we had a student who use that all the time actually say what are you doing for dinner actually I'm gonna make some pasta where did you do yesterday actually I went to the store and it's like wait you don't need to say actually so it's just something to keep in mind and again if your idea if you're able to identify that oh I I use crutch words sometimes it's a great way to improve your speaking skills because again it's just something that we can avoid so food for thought good to know now let's look at words 32:21 we're getting closer to number one so number thirty she/her say we they 25 from by his but this alright these are third words 32:21 the most common words in english and my fun fact for you my question what do you guys think how many countries have English as their official language how many countries have English as their official language what's your guest

how many countries across the world have English as their official language right in in the chat write it in the comments we just wanna we want to hear from you guys what do you think what's your guess alright so I see anywhere from say at four bassam 100 sunjin 10:30 [Music] 3450 Maria two countries all right so countries that have English as their official language 67 English is the official language of 67 countries and that is a source that has come from lingo de I've actually seen that on a couple different sites when I was looking up some of this information that 67 countries have English as their official language that may surprise you but think of it there are a lot of countries even in Africa I used to teach in Namibia which is in southern Africa it's right north of South Africa now in Namibia there were about there were over 20 indigenous languages there but the they made English the official language I think gosh back in the early 2000s as a way of kind of trying to tie linguistically a lot of different groups of people together so even in the place like Namibia English was considered the official language of the country so now

now we're getting into the we're getting close close to number one number 20 we have at do very very common verb we see it all the time and then number 18 you as he 15 with on not for it okay so these are words 22 11 again I think I'm pretty sure you guys know these words you should be familiar with them and also you you should be familiar with them with your listening as well if you're having a conversation or you're listening to a podcast or a radio program and you hear these words you should be able to identify them and understand them so my question and I'd be amazed if anybody gets this which word which English word has the most meanings and what I mean by that which word has the most the different definitions we're talking about a word that has multiple meanings different definitions which word has the most meanings all right what do you guys have any guess says whatsoever if anything these are these are good trivia questions that if you go out somewhere and it's trivia night you might come across like these weird random questions like this and now that you've learned this after this lesson you you go out and then you'll be like oh I know the answer to that the English word with the most meanings I think you will all be surprised I mean it's really like get okay yeah trying to think verbs yes exactly however the word with the most meanings is the word set has 464 definitions in the Oxford English Dictionary this is from the source was from lingo des but I saw this in in multiple other places the word set now I have no idea how they determine like what what is a different meaning I know that when you're talking about especially like if you're including phrasal verbs to set up to set apart to two you know there's many ways that we can then expand the definitions in the meanings but 464 that is amazing I think if I had to try and give as many different definitions to set I don't even know if I could try and come up with like ten distinct definitions but that it that that that's the word now let's look at the top ten the moment that you guys have all been waiting for the top ten words in English at number ten I number nine have the verb have very common eight that number seven the preposition in number six the article a or is some people just say ah as the schwa sound number five the conjunction and number four of that is a very common preposition of number three another common preposition to number two the verb to be which is again verb you guys should know and know how to use and the number one word the most common word in English the the article the alright so again these are words that I think you're familiar with because obviously you hear these words all the time you use these words if you're reading then you are reading these words and these are the 10 most common words in the English language according to the Oxford English corpus so my question is these 10 Leamas and what a lima is let me explain that quickly a lima is kind of like a word family remember how I said if you want to build your vocabulary learn words in the word family so it's basically taking the root word and expanding on that would be like the lima so for example the verb to be alright when you talk about the verb to be we're talking about all the words in that lima which would include all the conjugations am is are was were been that is all in the same lima kind of like I'd like to say word family okay so if you're taking these top 10 words and the Lima is the though that include their word families what percent do you think that these words make up of all the words used in the Oxford English corpus so of judging say took all these words and these are the top 10 most common ones but what percent of all the words do these words make up what do you guys think what percentage we see about okay son 20% Louis 80% honest and 30% Sanjana around 20% okay so these are some good answers I was surprised to learn that the top 10 Leamas account for 25% of all the words used in the Oxford English corpus alright and this is according to the Oxford English corpus so these words right here account for twenty-five percent and if you think about it I guess it makes it makes sense because you know if you're having a conversation and somebody just says a sentence like oh did you did you go try out the new restaurant you say yeah you know I've been to that restaurant and you just set a sentence what is it I have been to that restaurant six words all right I have been to that all right those are in this top five restaurant is the six so five of those six

words I have been to that restaurant are right here in the top ten so again if you're thinking about okay how do i improve my fluency how do i and build my vocabulary this is a good place to start to start with the most common words and especially focusing on those nouns and those verbs and those adjectives and make sure that you know how to use them and that you guys understand how to use these words so if you guys enjoyed learning about the top 100 words in English if you enjoyed learning all of those fascinating facts about the English language please please please please hit that like button down below and you know as always if you if you enjoyed what we do share these lessons try and help us spread the word so we can build and grow our classroom and also write questions in the comments if you have any questions or just say hello to us because we just like to hear from you and as always for more English practice you can join our social media classes up here we like to call them classes because we post a lot of different questions and want you guys to write to us in the comments we're on Facebook Instagram Twitter and of course right here on YouTube and you can find us at interactive Eng Interactive Eng Interactive Inc Facebook Instagram Twitter thank you guys for joining us thank you on a son Rahul you Lisa Paulo San Jim Bassam - jr. Paulo

I'm trying to get as many names as I can Brian Abdul facil sorry again if I miss some of your names Sandra thank you thank you thank you guys for joining me I hope that you have a wonderful day and as always we will see you next time

LESSON 9 OF 749

10 Adjectives to Help You Sound Like a SUPER GENIUS | Advanced Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

so let's make everyone a super genius [Music] hey everyone my name is wes this is interactive english the channel is all about trying to help you improve your english skills and today i want to help you fine tune your vocabulary because i want to teach you 10 advanced adjectives that are going to help you be a little more precise whenever you're talking about the way somebody speaks or the way they're writing all of these adjectives are related to that the way people communicate now i do want to apologize because if you learn these adjectives it's not suddenly going to make you a super genius however if you are able to learn these adjectives use them correctly in the correct context then i think whoever you are talking to they're probably going to think okay this person has a larger vocabulary this person is pretty proficient in english and that is always a great thing if you're an english learner your english is amazing like a super genius

so i i again i apologize it was a hyperbolic description and that is actually the first adjective that i would like to teach you is hyperbolic so what this means is that someone is saying or writing about something and they're making it sound better or more than it really is and i think about somebody who's trying to sell you something maybe a product or service and they say this is number one it's the best everyone is talking about it you could say they are making a hyperbolic sales pitch to you or somebody could make a hyperbolic comment or a hyperbolic remark and they're trying to make it sound a little bit better than it really is and i think all of us can probably relate to this because we talk about our experiences and we tell stories and maybe we want to make it sound a little bit better and our story becomes a little hyperbolic one thing i do want to say about this word is that it may also often be used as a noun and people will talk about hyperbole so the meaning is pretty much the same just the part of speech changes it's a noun hyperbole and again people are referring to the way somebody is speaking or writing and they may say something that is a little outrageous making it sound a little better a little more and you might say oh it's just it's a little bit of hyperbole so it is often used as a noun but in this lesson we are focused on the adjectives and the adjective is hyperbolic i suppose that you could also say that i was perhaps being a little flippant when i was writing that title about becoming a super genius and flippant is the next adjective that i would like to teach you because if you say that somebody is being flippant it means that they're not really serious about a topic mostly in an attempt to be funny or perhaps appear smart and you could say that someone is being flippant and you could also use it to describe like the way somebody's uh speaking a flippant comment or a flippant remark but i do not want to be flippant what i really would like to be is articulate an articulate is a great adjective because it means that you are able to easily and clearly express your your thoughts ideas your arguments and you're able to do so effectively and you could describe someone as being very articulate keep in mind that if you're going to use this word as a verb the pronunciation is going to be a little different the spelling's going to be the same but if you're going to use it as a verb you would say to articulate so that final syllable that is where the pronunciation is different if you're using the adjective articulate if you're saying the verb to articulate so i always try to be very articulate when talking about these words and trying to explain them so that it's a little bit easier to understand now can you guess what the next word in this lesson is going to be if you can guess then i would say that you are prescient and prescient means that somebody is able to suggest or perhaps they know about something that will happen in the future and again this video is talking about things people might say or write so in this context the somebody might say something and then it comes true in the future and you can say oh wow you're very prescient you you said this would happen and then it did happen this person is prescient or this word does have some different pronunciations because some people may pronounce it with just two syllables and they say

prescient i typically say it with three syllables prescient and i know i just i keep saying this word a lot as i'm talking to you about the pronunciation but it's a good word if you find yourself in that situation and somebody said something and it happened to come true and it was like wow you were very prescient you said this would happen and then it did so i hope i was able to articulate the meaning of that word very well and you could easily understand it because yes i i try to be as articulate as i can i do not want to be flippant and you may notice because i i'm very passionate about learners building their vocabulary

i am emphatic about having people learn new vocabulary words because it allows them to be more precise and more descriptive and easily express their thoughts and opinions i am emphatic about having people learn new vocabulary and i i said that word twice because that is the next adjective that i would like to teach you emphatic it means that you are trying to make something very clear making your opinion very clear because you have strong feelings about it and you could say that well you are emphatic about something or maybe you make an emphatic argument because you have strong feelings about it or even in a sports competition you could say that the team had an emphatic victory it was a very strong victory the match wasn't even close but uh yes i am emphatic about having people learn new vocabulary words i always try to continue building my vocabulary it is so useful and i i definitely as a teacher i do not want to be a glib speaker glib is well it's another great adjective and what it means is that somebody is speaking in a confident way

but really maybe a little careless and perhaps perhaps not completely honest and you could say that that someone is a glib speaker i often think of perhaps maybe a politician they they try to pretend and and they try to sound like they know what they're talking about but they may not be honest in every instance and you could say that well they they're very glib or they're a glib speaker and yeah it's not really a good thing or it's not really a compliment if you say that somebody is being glib and i hope that was easy to understand i hope that my explanation was not unintelligible unintelligible is the next adjective that i would like to teach you and uh this means that something is simply well you're not able to understand it and you would say that this is unintelligible often i think people might use it to well talk about handwriting somebody's writing if you cannot read it it is unintelligible or perhaps you are at some place like a train station and you hear somebody come over the intercom and they make an announcement and sometimes it sounds like and you would say okay that is unintelligible i don't understand what this person is saying so that is an instance when you might think about using this word so do you want to keep going let's keep going you do not have to answer that question it's a rhetorical question and rhetorical is the next adjective that i would like to teach you and rhetorical speech or rhetorical writing is meant to will influence people it's meant to seem important and a very common collocation two words that are frequently used together rhetorical question and a rhetorical question it's really it's a question that you are asking and it's not meant to be answered it's mostly used as a way of like well effective speaking and somebody would ask a rhetorical question for example you might say something like like a tag question you didn't think you would get away with this did you you're not expecting the other person to say well yes i did think i would get away with it you're really asking it as a rhetorical question just to really create that that impact that effect another time when you might hear somebody ask a rhetorical question is when they're saying something demeaning about themselves like do i look like a fool to you all right of course i don't want you to say yes that's a rhetorical question but you might say that if you're well perhaps you're having an argument with somebody and you're upset with this person and you you ask that as a rhetorical question but as a teacher i i certainly try to be effective when i'm speaking because it makes these lessons a lot more interesting to watch so yeah i may use this and ask a rhetorical question from time to time just to just to create that effect one thing i definitely won't do is say something that is defamatory i definitely would never do that to you i would never say anything about you that's defamatory and that is the next adjective that i want to teach you because defamatory means that you are saying something or writing something that's going to damage a person's reputation and the things that you're saying or the things that you're writing are just not true and you are making all of these false statements about someone and you could say that these statements are defamatory you're just saying these things that aren't true it's defamatory it's not something that i would encourage you to do to somebody else and i would never i would never do that to you what i do do from time to time i like that what i do do is when i'm explaining these uh these words to you i i tend to talk too much and you could say that i am verbose when i'm talking about these these words and what they mean and trying to give you some examples so that you easily understand them and if somebody is verbose or if you say that that something is verbose like someone's writing it means you're saying more than what is needed and at times if you're saying too much it can get a little long it can be a little boring and yes that's something that i try to work on because i love i'm emphatic about teaching these vocabulary words so i just want to talk and talk and talk and talk and it can be a little verbose i apologize i'm apologizing a lot during this video lesson i apologize for that hyperbolic description i don't know after learning

all these words if you feel like a super genius or not but one thing i definitely will say is that if you're able to use them in the correct context then i i think people will believe that you are a more proficient english speaker and and that's that's a great thing trust me i know i'm not being flippant when i say this it it will happen to you in the future and you're going to think back and wow wes he was very prescient he said this would happen and now it is i'm using these advanced adjectives in conversation and people seem a little uh impressed with my fluency skills and as you notice again i'm being verbose because i just keep talking and talking and talking but i'm really trying to review with you and use some of these adjectives just so that you get a feel for how they're used just in normal natural conversation so i will just leave it at that i hope you learned some new vocabulary today if you did please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and i'll see you next time

LESSON 10 OF 749

10 Advanced Adjectives to Help You Sound More Intelligent

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I think all of us would like to sound more intelligent and competent when we're speaking English. So today I'm going to tell you ten great adjectives to help you do just that. That's coming up. Welcome to today's lesson, which is more of a vocabulary lesson, because I'm going to talk to you about 10 amazing adjectives that you can use to sound more academic, more professional, and more competent when you're speaking English. And these are not words that you're going to hear every day on the street. Instead, you're more likely to hear these adjectives in presentations, debates, or in-depth conversations that are a bit more serious. Because these are words that sound more professional, more convincing, and they give us a bit more authority when we're speaking about a topic.

So I'm going to tell you the adjective, show you how it's phonetically pronounced, give you the meaning, as well as a sentence, so you can see how it's used in context. Are you ready? Let's begin. So the first adjective I have for you is germane. Now this is two syllables, and the stress is on the second syllable. And it means that something is relevant, that it is closely related to something else. and we could use it in a sentence and say

The next word, and it's one that I really like, is preposterous. And this adjective has four syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. and remember that "ous" has that schwa, that "uhs" sound. and this means that something is contrary to reason, it's just ridiculous, it's absurd. And the way it's used is: somebody would usually say something and it's ridiculous, It's absurd, and the other person would say: That's preposterous! That's absurd, that's preposterous! You're not going to like this video? That's preposterous!

Next is a very cool word and that is perfunctory. and perfunctory has four syllables and the stress is on that second syllable. That third syllable has the schwa, and it's going to end with that long e sound: perfunctory. And if something is perfunctory, it means that that you're doing something out of routine. You're doing it without even thinking about it. It's habit. It's a ritual, You just do it in haste without giving it much thought, and we would say that that it is perfunctory.

The next adjective is truculent. And this word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. Keep in mind that that "cu" is pronounced it's like you're saying the letter "q": tru - kyuh-luhnt. That last syllable has the schwa. If somebody is being truculent, then that means that they're being fierce, a little cruel, kind of very aggressive. Aggressively hostile- if someone's being truculent. So it's not a good word. It kind of means that that this person is upset with you, maybe because of something you said, and they're just being a bit cruel. They're truculent. They're standoffish. Sometimes when I've had a really bad day, and I don't want to talk to people and I'm just upset, I can be kind of truculent with others if they're trying to approach me, and I don't want to deal with anybody - I can be truculent.

A great example would be in politics. People - maybe they do something wrong, and the media wants to talk to them about it and they're angry, they don't want to speak to the media, and they might be truculent. So we could say: Another great word is this one right here: austere. And this has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable with that long e sound. And if somebody or something is austere, it means that they're very severe in their manner. They're very strict or even without excess. Austere.

The next adjective, which is one of my favorites, is capricious. And this word has three syllables and the stress is on the second syllable. And keep in mind that first syllable has that schwa sound: that kuh. kuh-pri-shuhs. And if someone or something is capricious then that just means that they are subject to sudden or even unpredictable change. So you could say a person is capricious. Perhaps the weather is capricious, or maybe even your plans are capricious. They're subject to change. And I could use it in an example sentence and say:

Next is the word defamatory. And this word has five syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. Defamatory - it's not a good adjective because if something is defamatory, we're talking about false or unjustified harm caused to one's reputation. And we could use it in an example sentence and say: The next word, which is another one of my favorite adjectives, is esoteric. And this word has four syllables, and the stress is on that third syllable: es-uh-ter-ik. And when we describe something as esoteric, we're talking about something that's really understood by a small group of people because they have knowledge or interest in that thing. Usually it's somebody that has direct experience with it.

Another very cool adjective is quintessential. And this word has four syllables and the stress is on the third syllable. And when we say that something is quintessential it means that it is representing just the most perfect example It's quintessential. Now, let me give you the quintessential example sentence. If you agree with that last sentence, please, please, please, show us some love and hit that LIKE button down below. And now I really want to hear from all of you. So in the comments, let me know what is an adjective that you have recently learned. Or what's an adjective that you like to use all the time? What's your favorite adjective? Let me in the comments.

I hope you enjoyed learning about these adjectives and can go on to use them the next time you are giving a presentation, or you're having a debate, or even just a serious conversation Thanks so much for watching, and I'll see you next time.

LESSON 11 OF 749

10 Advanced Adjectives to Help You Sound Smarter

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Would you like to sound smarter when you're speaking in English? Of course you do. So, that's why today I'm going to tell you ten different adjectives to help you sound smarter. That's coming up. So the adjectives that I'm going to talk to you about today are a little more academic, and they're great adjectives because they're very descriptive. Very precise. and that is a great way to improve your fluency because you're better able to express your thoughts, your opinions, your ideas. And they just so happen to be 10 of my favorite adjectives that I like to use. Because I want to sound smart. So I'm going to give you the pronunciation of these adjectives.

I'm going to tell you what they mean, and how they're commonly used. So let's begin. The first word is ubiquitous. And ubiquitous has four syllables. That first syllable is just like you're saying the letter U. And the stress is going to be on that second syllable. Ubiquitous means existing or being everywhere. It is something that you see everywhere you go. It could be a shop, a store. And you find it all over the world. For example, you have companies that you see everywhere like Starbucks, McDonald's. Wherever you go, whether you like it or not, you see these places. They are ubiquitous. It could also be used to talk about...maybe a word, phrase, or expression that you might commonly hear that is ubiquitous.

You hear it all the time. You wouldn't really use it to talk about a person that you see all the time because again there is only one person. Ubiquitous is talking about something where there is a lot. It is a lot more than just one. It's everywhere. Its ubiquitous. The next word is cumbersome. The word cumbersome has three syllables. And the stress is on the first syllable. And something that is cumbersome is something that is difficult, something that is burdensome, and usually it's often talking about something that is physical. That is difficult to move or carry. Maybe because it has an awkward shape or maybe it's really heavy. And it is cumbersome to move something from one place to another.

It's not always used to talk about an object. It can be used to talk about a situation as well. Something that is difficult, problematic...we could say that it is cumbersome. It's a cumbersome situation, a cumbersome challenge, a cumbersome life. The next adjective, and it's one of my favorites because well, it kind of described me is facetious. Facetious has three syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. It's like you're just saying the letter C. And that first syllable has that schwa, that /uh/ sound. Facetious means not to be taken literally or serious. And I would say it's kind of in between a joke and a lie. And you're almost kind of teasing somebody when you're being facetious.

You're saying something that is so ridiculous. It's so outlandish. That the other person or people...they shouldn't take you seriously because what you're saying is so ridiculous. You are being facetious. Next is arduous. And arduous has three syllables, and the stresses on the first syllable. Now you don't hear that D sound that much. It's not very strong. It almost sounds a little like a J. And something that is arduous is difficult because it requires a lot of exertion, a lot of thought, a lot of energy. And it's often used to describe something that you have to do like a task. It requires a lot of exertion and it's... because of that it's just really difficult. It's arduous.

Next is presumptuous. And presumptuous has four syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. And the S almost sounds a little more like a Z. And if somebody is being presumptuous, then that just means that they're showing little or no respect for others by doing something that they shouldn't be doing. They're being presumptuous thinking that they can do this or that when they shouldn't do it. It's presumptuous. For example, if you go over to a friend's place, most of us don't just walk inside their home or apartment. You knock on the door because it's polite. It's respectful. If you just walk inside like you own the place, then you would be presumptuous.

Next is pensive. And the pronunciation, very easy, just two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. Now if somebody is pensive that just means that they are in deep thought. They're really thinking about or reflecting on something. It's almost like a dreamlike state. You're in such deep thought you've just tuned out the rest of the world. You would say that this person is pensive or somebody might look pensive. And usually if somebody is pensive, it's because something requires that deep thought. It could be something serious. It could be something bad or unfortunate that makes somebody pensive. And really have to think about something.

And frequently it's used with this word when talking about the direction that you go. And it is just this windy, roundabout way that you try to go and get somewhere. Circuitous. Next is conscientious. And this is a great adjective to describe...maybe yourself or someone else. And I think the pronunciation is what makes many learners avoid this word. Because they look at it and think what's going on there. So conscientious has four syllables, and the stress is on that third syllable. That /en/ /en/. That second syllable is what really confuses people. Because that S - C - I almost sounds like you're saying "She." And someone who is conscientious just means that they have a moral responsibility to do their work carefully, and also you know treat others with respect.

And be fair to others. Someone who's conscientious is really able to put themselves in another person's shoes. And really see how they feel and empathize with them. They are aware of their surroundings. And because of that we would say they are conscientious. Great word! The next word is meticulous. And this word has four syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. That first syllable also has that schwa, that /uh/ sound. That reduced vowel sound. This is another word that I like because I think it does describe me in in many situations. If someone is meticulous, that means that they try to pay really close attention to the details. They're meticulous in their work.

They're focused on the details, and they want to make sure every little thing is in order. Someone is meticulous. Now it's usually, I think, it is a good thing when you're talking about somebody's work. That you want to pay close attention to the details, so you don't miss anything. And be very meticulous. The final adjective that I have for you is convoluted. Convoluted also has four syllables, and the stress is on the first syllable. That second syllable, again has that schwa sound. That reduced vowel sound. /uh/ If something is convoluted, it means that it is extremely difficult to follow because things are connected and intertwined, and mixed around in a way that's difficult to understand.

That means that something is convoluted. It can be used to describe a story, or an argument, or maybe even a sentence that is hard to follow, and it doesn't make much sense. It's convoluted. So those are ten super-awesome adjectives that will help you sound smarter when you're having a conversation in English. It'll also help you be more descriptive when you're expressing your thoughts, your ideas, your opinions. So please, use those adjectives.

Now, as a special treat, I have a bonus adjective for you. And this is your practice. I'm going to give you an adjective, and I want you to click on the meaning. What do you think this adjective means? If you don't know the meaning, then just write "I don't know" in the comments, and then I'll tell you. You ready for your adjective? Here it is. What do you think this means? Uncanny? If something is uncanny? I have an uncanny feeling that I'm being watched. What do you think it means? Click on the answer or the video is going to end. If something is uncanny it means... What?

LESSON 12 OF 749

10 Advanced Adverbs to Help You Sound Smarter

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today I have a vocabulary lesson for you which is all about advanced adverbs that's coming up [Music] what's up everyone my name is Wes this is Interactive English which is all about trying to help you guys practice and improve your English skills today I have a vocabulary lesson for you and these words are all adverbs they are advanced adverbs and every single one of them ends in ly and these are great adverbs to know because they're really going to help you accurately express your thoughts opinions and ideas and throughout the lesson I'm going to do a few things for you I am going to show you the adverb I will then tell you the correct pronunciation I'll give you the meaning and then I will also give you some example sentences so that you can see how the adverb is used in context and that is really useful because it's just going to reinforce the meaning so

let's begin the first adverb is annually this word has four syllables and the stress is on that first syllable the second syllable it's like you're just saying that letter U and the third syllable has that schwa annually annually and this adverb means that that something is occurring once a year something happens once every year it happens annually US Marshal Service annually flies 155 thousand prisoners around the country evidence suggests it sheds its skin anyone extended annually 12 million a year it's also quite commonly used with numbers for example when you're talking about banking and maybe you earn interest on the money that's in the bank and you will earn interest annually we could also use it and say everyone should file their taxes annually

the next word is reluctantly this word has four syllables and the stress is on that second syllable that third syllable also has that schwa reluctantly reluctantly and what it means is that just unwillingness to do something that you are not inclined to do this thing reluctantly I am asking for your help but all he gives his loser son is grief and a place to live reluctantly he gives that reluctantly each year we have to pay our taxes annually but I think most of us reluctantly file our taxes it's not something we want to do but we have to do it and many of us do it reluctantly the employees reluctantly came into work over the weekend then we have unabashedly this adverb has five syllables and the stress is on that third syllable that Bosch unabashedly that second syllable has that schwa that sound unabashedly and what it means is just that you are not apologetic you are not embarrassed you are very certain about your position you do something unabashedly or maybe you say something unabashedly she unabashedly told her boss that she wanted a raise then we have an adverb that that I like to use and that is vaguely it has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable vaguely and vaguely means that something is not clearly expressed or something is not clearly stated does smell vaguely poisonous who are exposing me to information and ideas that seem vaguely familiar if I were to reach our rendezvous on Titan with the time stem still attached it will vaguely irritating person remember that whole deal with you selling Peter and your stories for his book and then he came back to you vaguely we often use it with the word remember I vaguely remember what do I remember I vaguely remember the example I vaguely remember you telling me to pick this up at the grocery store the next adverb is one of my favorites fervently it has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable fervently and what it means is that you are just showing great enthusiasm great intensity to do something for example right now I'm fervently trying to explain the meaning of these new adverbs they fervently worked around the clock in order to finish the project on time next we have diligently this adverb has four syllables and the stress is on that first syllable diligently and it just means that that you are working very hard to accomplish something you were very focused on the task at hand and often it's used with the verb work we have been working diligently on this problem president shares your concerns and is working diligently to find a solution senator Gaetz had a series of mini-strokes a few months ago but we are working diligently to get him through his final term I'm sure all of you are working diligently to build your vocabulary and learn new words which is why you're here the police diligently collected evidence in order to find the criminal then we have another great adverb which is vicariously this adverb has five syllables and the stress is on that third syllable is it on the third syllable I vaguely remember second syllable my bad the stress is on that second well yes it is on the second syllable that third syllable it's like that that letter I just has that e sound and the fourth syllable has the schwa vicariously and what this adverb means is imagining a situation through the eyes of another person okay and it's often heard over and over again in the same way you live vicariously through another person so if somebody else has this exciting life going on and you're trying to imagine it and you might tell them wow I am going to live vicariously through you yes I leave vicariously through you remember oh I gonna buy carry through you guys can i ferryman uh-huh I need to live vicariously through you more details oh well I'm just going to live vicariously through you because you're doing all these cool and amazing things and you're gonna tell me about it and I will imagine it she lived vicariously through her children the next adverb is hastily this word has three syllables and the stresses on that first syllable hastily and what it means is just excessive speed that you are doing something quickly rapidly and with great urgency and because you're working so fast you're not going to be able to put the same amount of care into it that you normally would which means that you might be more likely to make mistakes if you are working hastily studies hastily passed on tested pandering was perhaps a bit hastily oh the last minute gift hastily bought on the way to the party often I think of a situation where you're running out of time and that's a problem so you have to work hastily in order to get it done they hastily completed the final report in order to meet the deadline then we have another great adverb uh Turley this word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable utterly it means completely totally absolutely those are all synonyms for utterly and he was brilliant brilliant case insane completely and utterly oh no I prefer to use utterly because I think it adds a nice little emphasis to to the verb or the adjective that you're describing for example his outfit is utterly ridiculous

next is intently this adverb has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable intently so this word means that you're just giving all of your attention to something that you are you are sharply focused on this thing I'm sure he's pressing his ear up against it and listening intently why is he watching us so intently and you are intently listening to someone maybe you are intently watching something are you guys intently watching this video I hope so I hope you listen intently to our lessons so we work diligently to come up and create new English lessons for you guys each week and I completely and utterly hope that you find them useful and that they're easy to follow so if they are if you were listening intently to this lesson let me know in the comments tell me and just write I intently listen to this lesson that way

I know that you were focused you paid attention and you understood all of these adverbs let me know in the comments thank you guys so much for watching don't forget to hit that like button actually you can fervently hit that like button do it with some energy some enthusiasm and as always I will see you next time

LESSON 13 OF 749

10 Advanced Nouns to Help You Sound Smarter

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

- If you would like to sound smarter and be smarter then this lesson is for you, because I'm going to tell you ten nouns to help you do just that. - Welcome to today's lesson, which is a vocabulary lesson. Many of you out there have said you would like to learn more advanced vocabulary words and that's what these ten nouns are. They're not only gonna help you sound smarter, but they're going to help you more accurately express your thoughts, opinions, and ideas. They also happen to be ten of my favorite nouns. So, as I go over these nouns, I'm gonna give you the pronunciation, tell you the meaning, as well as talk to you about how they're used in context.

So, let's just get this show on the road. The first noun is this one, right here: "quid pro quo," and it is three words, each word is only one syllable, and if you're saying it together, the stress is kinda on that first word and that last word. Quid pro quo. And what this means is, it is something that is given, or even taken in return for something else. So it's kind of like you're doing a favor for someone in exchange for something else, and that would be considered quid pro quo. Often, we hear this when talking about politics. Somebody gives a politician money, and then that politician does something in return for them, and they would refer to it as quid pro quo.

- Quid pro quo, Mr. Powers. - I need some quid pro quo from you. - Quid pro quo. I tell you things, you tell me things. - Maybe you're negotiating with somebody, and you're like "you know, I'm gonna need a little quid pro quo, if I do whatever favor it is for you." If you want us to donate to your campaign, we'll need some quid pro quo.

The next noun, which is one of my favorites, is "catch-22." This is two words, it's a compound noun. The word catch is just one syllable, and then 22 is three syllables, and the stress is on that final syllable. Catch-22. The word comes from a famous book by Joseph Heller, which is titled "Catch-22," and the meaning of a catch-22, see if you can follow me, is, it is, a problem that cannot be solved because the solution to the problem is inherent in the problem itself.

Now, you may be thinking "what the heck are you talking about?" And it's often referred to situations where, again, you can't solve the problem, because the solution is within the problem itself, and it's just like this circular loop. So, this is a great noun to describe this type of situation, and, again, it's just like a stand-alone statement. - And when you are tough, they resent you, and when you are cool, they walk all over you. - Catch-22. - There's no unspoken thing. - Well, it's a catch-22, because if you said then it would be spoken. - Part of their parole is that they're required to have a job. The catch-22 of it is not that many people are that excited to hire a felon.

- We don't really use this noun with any adjectives, it's just really that stand-alone statement, and you would describe something, and say it's a catch-22. Next is "epitome," and this noun has four syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. Epitome. This is a word that, when you see it, many times people may mispronounce it because the third syllable has that schwa, and the last syllable is that long e. Epitome. Epitome. And what it means is a person or thing that is typical of a class or a group as a whole. Something that possesses, to the highest degree, what this whole group is all about. And, therefore, we say that something is the epitome of something else.

Kind of giving an example, saying that this thing best represents this whole group. It's the epitome of something. Interactive English is the epitome of English-teaching excellence. And if you agree with that statement, then go ahead and hit that like button down below. It's kind of like a quid pro quo, I teach you new nouns, you hit that like button, it's a fair exchange.

Another great noun is dichotomy. This word has four syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. Dichotomy. And that third syllable has that schwa, that uh sound. Dichotomy. What it means is the division or contrast between two things that are represented as being opposed or entirely different. So, let me give you a couple examples of a dichotomy. You could have science and religion. Two things that you can compare, and they're kind of opposed to each other in some ways. Also, city life and country life. Completely different, but we can still compare them. And, when using this noun, you say the two things that you're comparing. - Dichotomy of good and evil.

- The tired dichotomy of jock, artist. - Often we use it with the preposition between. You talk about the dichotomy between two things. For example, we could say: we're studying the dichotomy between economic development and environmental protection. The next noun is "myriad." This word has three syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. That "m" "y" "r" sounds like a "meer." Myriad. And a myriad is a very great, or, indefinitely great, number of things. Often it can be used as a synonym for various. You talk about a myriad of something. There's a lot of variety, there's a great number of these things. There's a myriad. There is a myriad of trees in the forest.

The next noun is "credence." This word has two syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. Credence. And what it means is the belief as to the truth of something. That, you're kind of, that there's a belief, and it's showing that that belief is true. - [Narrator] I never gave these stories much credence. - He's a criminal and a terrorist, people aren't gonna give him credence. - And, though we give them no credence at all, Larry. - And often you may find this noun with the verb "give." Something gives a belief credence. It makes it seem a little more true. For example, the email they discovered gave credence to his unethical behavior.

Next is "malaise." This word has two syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. Malaise. And this is not a great noun. The reason I say this is because its meaning is a vague feeling of physical discomfort, or uneasiness as an early sign of an illness. So, if somebody is just starting to feel ill, then it's very possible that they might experience malaise. I experienced bad headaches and malaise before deciding to go to the doctor.

The next noun is "sycophant," and this noun has three syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. The spelling may throw people off to the pronunciation, but that "s" "y" "c" is just pronounced "sic." Sycophant. And the meaning of a sycophant is a person that tries to gain attention by flattering wealthy or influential people. So, this is not a good noun, you don't want somebody to call you a sycophant, because it basically means you're sucking up to somebody else for no real reason, it's pathetic, yeah, it's not good. Some sycophants in the media refuse to acknowledge the political corruption.

Another great noun, which is another one of my favorites, is a "dilettante," and this word has three syllables, and there's kinda like a stress on that first and last syllable. Dilettante. The reason I say it's one of my favorites is because I guess, you know, I could be considered a dilettante. Many of us could be considered dilettantes, because its meaning is a person that cultivates and interest in something without really learning in-depth information. And, I think this just happens with people all the time. We become interested in a topic, and we learn a little bit about it, so that we can converse with our friends, and have discussions, but we have difficulty really debating this topic with facts and information, because we just don't know enough.

- They will remain dilettantes in war, and tourists in Vietnam. - What's your point? - Your knowledge is a mile wide and an inch deep. You know what that makes you? A dilettante. - But if somebody calls you a dilettante, then it's probably not in a good sense, because they're probably referring to you saying that, "well, you're a person that you think you know a lot, but you really don't." You wanna think she knows a lot about health and nutrition, but she's really a dilettante.

The next noun is "zenith." Has two syllables, and the stress is on the first syllable. Zenith. And, when talking about the zenith, you are talking about the top, the peak, the highest point, or state, of something, or someone's condition. So, if you are at the top, the highest point, then you are at the zenith. It basically implies that you're not going to go any higher, so, it's like saying you've reached the top, you're not gonna go any higher, and things are just going to start going downhill from here. His athletic career has reached its zenith. So, I hope some of these nouns were new for you, and now that you've learned them, you can go out and practice using them, so that you can improve your overall English fluency.

But, if you really want to improve your English fluency, I highly recommend you check out our secret lesson. I've linked it in the description below. It's so secret, we're gonna email it to you. If you enjoyed this lesson, hit that like button. You know, that quid pro quo we have going on? And, as always, thank you so much for watching, and I'll see you next time.

LESSON 14 OF 749

10 Advanced Verbs to Help You Sound Smarter

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

- Today I am going to talk to you about some advanced verbs to help you sound smarter. That's coming up. Welcome to today's lesson. It is a super, awesome, amazing vocabulary lesson because I'm going to teach you 10 different verbs to help you sound smarter. And I say that they help you sound smarter because these are more advanced verbs, these are advanced vocabulary words that are very specific, very precise that you can use in certain situations so that you can perfectly express your ideas, thoughts and opinions and say exactly what you want to say. These verbs are going to help you do just that.

Now I'm not only going to tell the verb and the meaning but I'm also going to give you the pronunciation as well as an example sentence so that you can see how these words are used in context. That's very important. So without further ado, let's begin. The first word is to admonish and admonish has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable, mon, Admonish. And this is a verb that we use with a direct object, to admonish someone, usually for doing something wrong because what it means is to counsel or advise against something, it's kind of like you're scolding somebody in a way but not because you are super angry and they did something really terrible but they just did something wrong and it's not correct, maybe it was a little rude.

- You just interrupted me again while I was admonishing you for interrupting me. - Have you ever been admonished for doing something? I definitely have been admonished for many things in my life. The next wonderful verb is to advocate. This word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable, advocate and to advocate means to show strong support for something, it could be a support for a policy, it could be support for an issue and you advocate for it. We often use it with the preposition for, you advocate for something when you are really passionate about something, you really, really really believe in it and you want to advocate for this thing.

The next verb is to bemoan and this verb has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable, mohn, bemoan. You may also notice that word in that second syllable, which kind of shares a similar meaning to the verb, to bemoan, which means you are basically expressing that you are upset, you are distressed about something. It's kind of like you're complaining and you might bemoan a situation that you are in. You might bemoan someone's decision if you disagree with it and you don't like it, you're not very happy with something that happened and you bemoan the situation.

The next verb is compel. This word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable, compel and what it means is to, to force or drive or maybe even encourage somebody to do something, some course of action, to do something that you want them to do, you really want to convince them to do something, sometimes it can be done by force, you compel someone to do something because maybe you're threatening them in some way, shape or form and you are compelling them to do what you want them to do. - The power of Chrysler compels you. - But you're really just trying to get somebody to do this thing, to compel someone to do something.

The next verb is a good one, embezzle, to embezzle. This verb has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable, embezzle. Embezzle and what it means is to take money or maybe even property but most of the time we're talking about money and to do it in a fraudulent way. People are creating some false records, some false receipts and they are taking that extra money and stealing it and they are embezzling the money. You could embezzle money from a company, you can embezzle money from a bank. - Lloyd Gross is a fictional salesman we invented to, how do I put this, steal from the company, embezzle. To commit fraud. - I just got fired from Sweetems.

- Because you were embezzling? - Now if you do this, it's a crime so it is not a good verb, it's not a verb that you want to be associated with. The next verb is extol, to extol. This word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable, extol. And what it means is to praise highly, to give a lot of high praise, to someone or to something. Often times you might extol someone during a eulogy if there is a funeral and a person is giving a eulogy and talking about the person that has passed away, you want to talk about all of the good things that this person did, you want to give them a lot of praise and you would extol this person.

You can also use it talking about places or things, if you really just want to speak highly of it, extol. Next is the verb impugn, to impugn. This word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable, impugn. And what it means is to claim that something is false, to say that, to challenge it and say that's it's not true and kind of cast doubt upon this situation or even this person. - So because of a few bad apples, you're gonna impugn an entire continent? - I'm impugning a continent. - A lot of times you might hear it with the word character, to impugn someone's character. Basically saying that this person should not be believed, that they say things that are false, they're dishonest and you're trying to cast doubt over the things that this person is talking about when you impugn someone's character.

- Mr. Chairman, if she's going to impugn his character while he's speaking. - It's not a good verb, it's not something that we should try to do but this is a situation that happens and it's a great way to describe it. To impugn someone or something. Another great verb, which is one of my favorites is obfuscate. This verb has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable, obfuscate. And what it means to obfuscate something is to confuse or bewilder and just try to create a confusing situation so that it's really difficult to understand so you might hear it being used, they want to obfuscate a situation, they want to obfuscate an issue, they want to obfuscate a policy, it happens a lot I think in politics when you're trying to get people to believe one thing or another thing and some people try to obfuscate certain issues.

The next verb is placate. This word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable, placate. And what it means is to appease by giving something up, you're giving up some concession in order to try and get something that you want, to placate someone. For example, if somebody is upset with you, you did something wrong, you will do something for this person, you'll give something up, you are trying to placate them in order for this person to forgive you, to be okay with it and just to move on, to placate someone.

Another great verb, repudiate. This verb has four syllables and the stress is on that second syllable, repudiate. And this means to reject something, to reject it with disapproval because there's no authority in this thing that people are trying to say or do. To repudiate someone or you could repudiate something. So for example at work if you are the manager and you have employees and they make a request and you could reject it and say no, I don't like it, this is a terrible idea, you would repudiate this. - Senator Eleanor, Penses Shaw, does it bother you at all your son repudiates so many of your more controversial policies? - No. - It was refused, rejected, rebuffed, repudiated.

- It's kind of a confrontational word because if you repudiate something then you're really letting the other person know that you're a bit unhappy, that you don't like this and you are rejecting it, you repudiate it. So right now I would like to advocate for you to write us a comment and let us know an English word that you have recently learned. It could be any word, a noun, an adjective, a verb. Just let us know, we love hearing from you in the comments. If you don't write us a comment, I'm not going to bemoan the situation, I'm not even going to admonish you but we would really appreciate it and if you do, I will placate you by coming out with another lesson next week.

I hope you enjoyed learning these new words and you can go on and practice and use them, please hit that like button if you found this lesson useful and as always, thanks for watching and we'll see you next time.

LESSON 15 OF 749

10 Brand Names that Became Common Words

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's talk about all of these things that you see around me right now and this is really going to help you build your vocabulary because i want to teach you some brand names that have become legitimate english words and well really companies they come out with products and they give it a name and that's their brand and they try to sell it they try to market it and sometimes that brand becomes so popular and so well known it really then becomes the name for the product in general and as we go through this i think it will make a little more sense and you're probably even going to recognize some of these brands and and some of the words that i'm going to teach you but let me quickly introduce myself my name is wes the channel is interactive english which is all about trying to help you achieve your fluency goals different lessons on vocabulary grammar pronunciation so if that's what you want to do please subscribe turn on notifications so that you will learn about future lessons let's begin with the first one which is band-aid so this is a it's the brand it's the name of a product that was developed by johnson and johnson in 1920 it's been around for a long time and really it's just an adhesive bandage that that is what this is except nobody calls it an adhesive bandage and i i'm from the united states

overwhelmingly i think people just say band-aid if i cut myself especially just maybe like a little cut on the arm i'm not going to ask for an adhesive bandage i'm going to ask for a band-aid

the next word or brand is photoshop and this is actually the name of some photo manipulation software it was developed by adobe in 1990 and often i think people are going to use this as a verb you could also use it as an adjective but let me give you some examples with some of my own pictures that have been photoshopped right there uh this is a an image that i photoshopped for one of the lessons yeah i really i really don't have um abs like that and then here's another uh picture that i photoshop that's me with bts and yeah you can do it to to be funny but again nowadays i think a lot of people will try to change or manipulate photos for a variety of different reasons and when that happens you could say that somebody photoshopped the picture which is using it as a verb or i could say that the image is photoshopped or the image was photoshopped using it as a participle adjective but it is a very useful word if you want to refer to some picture that has been changed in some way and you could say it's photoshopped and then we have a very famous brand and a very popular word which is google and i'm sure you you're probably familiar with google it is a very famous search engine that people would use to look up information and it was developed by alphabet in 1998 even though back then i think the company was named google and then they changed their name to alphabet but people will use this as a verb pretty much telling you uh to look some information up that that's really how it's used you could even use it as a command maybe you're telling somebody hey just google it you want to find out some information just google it and if all of you if you google bts

you are not going to find this picture right here because this picture is definitely photoshopped but any information you want to look up just google it next we have the word kleenex and this is a brand that was developed by kimberly clark in 1924 again it's been around for a very long time and really well what it is it's it's a tissue now i i will say that using the word tissue is also very common i think that uh well i'm just thinking of what i would use honestly i think i use both of them i i'd probably switch back and forth between kleenex and tissue sometimes i might ask for a kleenex other times i might ask for a tissue it really doesn't matter because i always get the same thing next is q-tip it is a product that yeah i use i think i have some q-tips around the home and this is from unilever it came out in 1926 and it just became so popular that instead of saying like cotton swab people would just say q-tip people still do say cotton swab or they may even just say a swab but i think in places like the united states it's pretty common for somebody to ask for a q-tip or they say like i would say we need to get some q-tips we're out of q-tips i'm gonna go to the store and i'm gonna buy some q-tips then we have the word xerox this is well it's the name of the brand but it's also the name of the company and it's really it's just a photocopy machine and this came out in 1938 and also i would say like just pay attention to the pronunciation xerox because the spelling and the pronunciation can be a little confusing and you could use this as either a verb or a noun so i could use it as a verb and i could say that i need to xerox these documents or as a noun instead of saying like well i need to make a copy or i need to make a photocopy you could say i need to make a xerox of this contract jacuzzi and i like this word because i enjoy relaxing in a jacuzzi this is also well it's the name of the the brand but it's also the name of the company and really it's just referring to a hot tub jacuzzi came out in 1956 and well some people instead of saying hot tub they may say jacuzzi i will say that i i think hot tub is well this is more commonly used if people are going to talk about like hey let's go let's go sit in the hot tub and relax but it's good for your comprehension because some people may say jacuzzi instead and as you can see that is something that i like to do i just like it and that picture was not photoshopped then we have crock pot this is a brand from sunbeam products came out in 1972 and it's really just a slow cooker and you could use the word crock pot to refer to any any type of slow cooker and the word croc comes from the type of pottery that many of these slow cookers are made of and last but not least we have bubble wrap i i love this product it was created by the sealed air corporation in 1960 and interestingly enough they tried to use this for for other purposes like wallpaper or insulation until eventually it started to be used for well the way that we all know it today which is packaging material so if you get a box in the mail there there's a good chance you might find some bubble wrap in there and i i have some bubble wrap right here it's i'm sure you could probably find some around your home and i don't know about you but i i like to pop bubble wrap oh that was not that was not a good one oh that's better i hope you learned some new words in today's lesson and i i also hope that they're pretty easy for you to remember because you can picture these products and you may even have some of them around your home right now if you enjoyed the lesson please hit that like button as always thanks so much for watching and i'll see you next time

LESSON 16 OF 749

10 Common Slang Words Americans Say All the Time

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today, I'm going to talk to you about slang. How cool is that? In this lesson, I'm going to talk to you about some popular slang that is used in America. But before we begin, I'd like to remind you to subscribe to our social media classes. It's another great way to practice your English skills. So before we get into the slang words, it's important to know...well...What is slang? So slang is just words that are used among a particular region or age group or social circle. And it's not universally known by everyone else. Even if you're from the same country. Slang is also a little different than idioms because idioms tend to have more than one word and also they're a bit more well known among different groups of people.

So I'm going to talk to you about some American slang that I think is kind of well known among most Americans. And maybe other people in other countries know of these words, but they probably don't use them. Or maybe they do. And now you can use them too. So the first word is crash. And crash just means to suddenly fall asleep. Or maybe you are so tired you know that you are going to go to sleep immediately because you're so tired, and you just want to crash. I'm just going to crash here tonight. I'm going to crash Tez. I'll catch you tomorrow. You can crash at my place. If you need to crash, you can have the couch.

Number two is shotgun. So when you call shotgun, you are basically saying that you want to sit in the front passenger seat of the car. So if you are driving somewhere with a group of people, maybe the people that are not driving will call shotgun. And that means that that person gets to sit in the front with the driver. It's commonly used with the word call and somebody calls shotgun.

Now, there's all sorts of weird rules when it comes to shotgun that you have to be outside before you can call shotgun. Some people say that you have to be able to see the car before you call shotgun. So it's kind of become a bit of a game to some extent. And it's regularly used among younger generations, especially kids in high school when they first start driving and they go places with their friends and everybody's calling shotgun and they're arguing over shotgun. I call shotgun. I call shotgun. Shotgun! Everyone knows you can't call shotgun before you see the car. Alright, I'm ready to go in on call shotgun. You never heard someone calling shotgun to sit in the front seat?

Number three is creep. Now, this is an adjective that's used to describe a person who is unpleasant, strange, or a bit and weird. And weird in a bit of an awkward and get away from me type of way. A lot of times it's used to describe guys. It is a gender-neutral word, but mostly guys get this label and sometimes they deserve it. And people might say he is a creep. Stay away from him. Or maybe somebody is acting creepy because they're saying things that are a little unpleasant. And you just don't want to be around people that are creeps. That creep! But you're a creep! But I'm a creep. Number four is buck.

Now, buck is just another word for a dollar. They're basically synonyms. So, if you have three dollars, you can say that you have three bucks. 3 bucks? 40 bucks! 30 bucks! 10 bucks. 20 bucks. 80 bucks. Yeah, 80 bucks. We borrow a few bucks, just a small loan from the briefcase. Number five is for real. So this is a declaration of honesty. It's kind of like saying believe me, I'm being honest, trust me...for real. So if you're telling a story and you really want those people to know that you're being honest you can add that at the end and just say for real. This is what the word means...for real.

It can also be used as an interjection, kind of asking the question to somebody else. Are you being honest? Are you being serious? Maybe they're telling a story and you're not sure if it's true. And you just ask them. You say for real. For real? Is that what happened? Are you sure? For real? For real? For real? For real, for real. Thor is real, for real? We're for real. You're really for real. Number six is knock.

Now, you can knock something or knock someone. And it's just saying something bad about something or someone. It's a disparaging remark. And mostly it's used to talk about an activity. Maybe you don't want to do something and you're not really thrilled about it, and then the other person Often, it's used in a negative sense when you're telling somebody don't disparage it. Don't say something bad. Don't knock it. There's also a popular expression that goes don't knock it till you try it. This is used mostly when people are talking about something, an activity that they've never done before but still they're saying some bad things about it. And another person might say, "Hey, don't knock it till you try it."

Sweet. So sweet. So sweet. Number eight is zonked. Now, zonked is just when you are completely exhausted. You are so tired, you say that you are zonked. Often, if you haven't been sleeping that much, you might tell someone, "You know, I am just so zonked right now." It also means you're a little out of it because you haven't been sleeping, or you're just tired from doing something and you can't really think clearly. You're zonked. You're so zonked. Your body, from the neck down, is zonked. And she chooses today to show up totally zonked. It's a very important job for you, but if you're going to be zonked out all the time.

Number nine...jonesing. So jonesing is a strong crave or desire for something. It's typically talking about a drink or food. Something that you're craving, you want, you're addicted to. You could be jonesing for coffee. Jonesing for sweets...chocolate. Jonesing for anything really. Right now it's early, so I'm jonesing for some coffee. What are you jonesing for? Tell you what boys, I'm kind of jonesing. So I'm going to find someone I can bum a smoke off of outside. Good, I'm jonesing for a cup of coffee. Jonesing for a Starbucks since I got here. Speaking of crunching, I have been jonesing for some Double-stuff Oreos all day. Number ten is bail.

Now to bail is to leave somewhere and often when you bail you are typically leaving somebody behind. So in that case you are bailing on someone. You can also bail on something. Maybe you want to bail on the party because you don't want to go. You want to bail on the dinner. Bail can also mean to avoid plans altogether. So maybe you're supposed to meet somebody at the movies and you never show up. They might ask you, "Hey, why'd you bail on me last night. Where were you." But regularly you're bailing on someone if you're just leaving and you don't tell somebody you're bailing on them. It's not good to bail on people.

Don't bail on me. You bailed on me, okay. Oh, I see. You're chickening out. You're bailing on me. And now when I need you most you are bailing on me Okay, so now you are a bit more proficient in American slang. You can use them, practice these slang words, and also listen for them if you're watching TV or movies. Now before we go, I want to test your knowledge of slang. I'm going to give you some American slang and I want you to click on the correct meaning. Okay. If you don't click on anything then the video is just going to end and I hope that you give this video a thumbs up.

And then go on to watch some other videos. If you don't know the answer, then write that in the comments. Just write, "I don't know." And I'll tell you the answer. So here is the slang. Amped. If I tell you I'm amped, what does it mean. If you don't know, again, write it in the comments. Amped. I want you to click on the correct meaning. What does it mean? Amped. What could it mean? Who knows? I'm amped. Are you amped?

LESSON 17 OF 749

10 Common Words You' (PROBABLY) Mispronounce

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Let's talk about 10 words that people often mispronounce. That's coming up. Hey everyone, my name is Wes. This is Interactive English, which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills. And today I have a pronunciation lesson for you. I want to teach you 10 words that learners often mispronounce. And I want to tell you how to say these words correctly. Now, keep in mind that I am from the United States. So, I'm going to be sharing with you the American pronunciation of these words. So, I'll tell you the word and give you the pronunciation. I will show you both the phonetic spelling as well as the IPA. I'm also going to tell you the meaning of the words so that you can better understand how and when the word is used.

go through each one. Say them out loud. Practice speaking. Practice your pronunciation because that is the best way to improve. So, the first word I have for you is subtle. This word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. Subtle. Say it with me. Subtle. What this word means is it's something that is well not noticeable or not obvious in any way. But what is obvious is why this word is often mispronounced. And it's because of that B. It is a silent letter, a silent B. You are not going to hear it. Subtle. Also, remember I'm from the United States. So that T, I'm really saying a flap T, which almost sounds like a very soft D sound. It's a very subtle sound.

Subtle. Subtle. Then we have segue. This word also has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. Segue. Segue. It just means a smooth transition. You may segue from one topic to the next and make a smooth transition. The reason why this word, you know, people have trouble with it is because of that spelling. That second syllable is pronounced way. Segue. The next word that I have for you is epitome. This word has four syllables and the stress is on that second syllable. That that pit epitome. And what this means is that that something is the perfect example of of some group. Maybe you could say that you have a plate of fruit and vegetables and you could say, "Wow, this is the epitome of a healthy meal. It is a perfect example of that." The reason why this word uh people have some trouble with this word is because of that third and fourth syllable. That third syllable, you have the schwah, that uh sound. And that final syllable, it's just me. That long e. So that om spelling, it is really pronounced me. Epitome. Epitome. So let's practice. Say the word with me. This is good shadowing practice. Epitome. Epitome. Something is the epitome of something else. Then we have candidate. And this word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. Candidate. Now, the reason why I think uh this word can be a little confusing is because I will be honest with you. I think there are quite a few people out there that kind of just eliminate that D. Even though the word it does have that D sound, candidate. Candidate. Also, that that final syllable, some people may say it with a dut and others may say it with a dit.

Candidate. I say it more with a dit. candidate. Candidate and well what a candidate is it's a person who wants to be elected for a certain position. So this is a word that you will you will hear a lot of if you happen to follow well politics in any country in the US it it is a word if you are following US politics this is a word that you may hear a lot that somebody is the candidate. The candidate. Say it with me. Candidate. and then say it as fast as you can. Kennedy. Kennedy. Candidate. Kennedy. Can [laughter] Okay. All right. All right. That's enough. Let's Let's move on to the next word. Literally.

Now, this word has four syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. That third syllable, it it has that schwah that uh literally. And when somebody uses this word, it's talking about well, it's saying that something is word for word that that that is the way it is literally. Now, I I think one reason why some learners have trouble with it is because of that L and R. You you have quite a few of those letters in this one word. Literally. Say it with me. Literally. Again, you because I am from the United States, I say this word more with that flap T sound. So, that T in the middle, it's going to sound like a soft D sound. It is a subtle D sound.

Literally. Literally. And the next word that I have for you, [laughter] I literally forgot what the next word is. Let Let me get it for you. The next word is meme. So, I think this is a great word because it's it's kind of a new word. It's becoming more popular nowadays with the internet. But this word, it just has one syllable. Meme. Meme. And what it is, it is kind of well, it is a typically an image that has been altered in some way and it's it can be a bit of a cultural or social commentary and it's it's changed in a way so that it's it's supposed to be a little humorous meme, but I I think the spelling is what again throws some learners off because I have had learners pronounce this word as me. I've had people say it's me, but this word I think it slightly it's pronounced the way it's spelled with that long e sound.

Meme. Meme. I'll give you an example of a meme. I don't know why I really like this one right here. And I think yes, I think they are mocking that dog. [laughter] It's quite funny. This is a meme. The next word is debut. It has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable. And the a debut is just the first appearance of something or or even someone.

Debut. The reason why I think this word is often mispronounced is because you're you're not going to hear that that t at the end of the word. It's almost that second syllable. You're just you're just saying the letter u. You debut. Debut. For example, I could say that I made my debut on YouTube in 2017. It's been about It's been about 3 years exactly. Wow. Time flies. The next word is albeit. This word has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable. Albeit. Albeit. And this word just means it's the same as although. Albeit. I could say that. Well, maybe I really want a vacation and I take one. I say, "Well, it was a very relaxing albeit short vacation." Albeit. One way that I think well, one way to think about this word to help you pronounce it is that you can really break this word into those three syllables and pronounce the word the the the way it looks. All be it. Albeit. Albeit. The next word is resume. This word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. So I'm talking about the noun resume. And what that is, it's it's just your CV. It is a written account of your your personal work experience, your education resume.

But I think learners quite quite often confuse it with the verb resume, which has two syllables and the stress is on the second syllable. Resume. But we're talking about the noun your resume. My resume. Maybe somebody needs to update their resume. So be careful because if you are talking about the noun, you want to say resume. Next is my favorite word on the list and that is kaibosh. This word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable and I just like saying it with a lot of emphasis and energy. Kaibos. to put the kaibosh on something. And what this word means is just to to put an end to something. To put the kaibosh on something. You are putting an end to this thing. So I could say, well, I'm going to put the kaibosh on your plans. I'm going to put an end to it. So make sure that you if you want to try to use this word to use it with that phrase. Put the kaibos on something. But keep in mind, this is a very informal expression. It's not something you're going to hear in everyday English. It's just a fun word. So, I wanted to share it with you. But if if you hear it or you you see this word when reading a story, it's pronounced kaibosh to put the kaibosh on something. I really hope that you you thought this lesson was the epitome of a wonderful pronunciation lesson and I well I hope that you reward me which is a subtle hint for you to hit that like button and I okay well I think I am literally going to end the lesson right now. I'm going to put the kaibos on this lesson. So thank you so much for watching. Hit me up in the comments because I love hearing from you and I will see you next

LESSON 18 OF 749

10 Dessert Idioms (YUM!) to Help Improve Your Fluency

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today we're talking about 10 Dessert Idioms. Today were talking about desert idioms. They're all related to dessert, but they all mean different things. If you want to relax with a piece of cake and an English video, subscribe to our channel. Hungry yet? Number One - Piece of Cake It just means if something is very, very easy just like eating cake. And every task you undertake becomes a piece of cake Number Two - To Have Your Cake & Eat It Too This idiom means you cannot have it both ways. You can't have your cake and still eat it. Because if you eat it, it's gone. You don't have it anymore. I have it, and I'm eating it.

And now oops, it's gone. And this relates to life by telling you that you cannot have everything that you want. Think of somebody who maybe is working all the time, making a lot of money to get a really nice house. But they can't enjoy the house because they're always at work. You can't have your cake and eat it too. Number Three - Icing on the Cake Icing on the cake means something that makes something good even better or something bad even worse. So it really amps up a situation. It felt so great. I just wanted to go in and hit four for four and qualify for World's one last time.

And winning was just icing on the cake. Number Four - To Sugarcoat (something) This means to make something seem better, more pleasant, or more acceptable than it is. To sugarcoat it. You don't have to sugarcoat it. I get the drill Number Five - Easy as Apple Pie What this means is that something is really, really, really easy. Just like eating pie. So sometimes you see it as "easy as apple pie." Or sometimes you just see it "easy as pie." So sometimes it has the apple and sometimes it doesn't. But it really just means that it's as easy as eating the pie. Not making it because making it is a little difficult.

Number Six - Flat as a Pancake I really like this one. I don't know why. Probably one of my favorites. So you know pancake...it's very, very flat. It doesn't have any ridges or any bumps or anything. It just means that something is very, very flat. Flat as a pancake, huh? Number Seven - Nutty as a Fruitcake Now, I don't have a fruit cake to show you because I couldn't find one today. But you have to trust me. They're very nutty. They have a lot of nuts. But when we say that someone is nutty, it also means that they're a little crazy. So when someone is nutty as a fruitcake, it can mean anything from just being a little silly to completely crazy.

Nutty as a fruitcake. Well, I can save you the trouble. You're nutty as a fruitcake. Number Eight - That's the Way the Cookie Crumbles Now this idiom really means "that's how life works." I'm Bruce Nolan. And that's the way the cookie crumbles. Number Nine - To Sell Like Hotcakes This means that something sells very well or is very, very successful. Number Ten - To Have a Sweet Tooth A person has a sweet tooth love's sweets. They love desserts. Okay. So, for example I have a huge sweet tooth. I love all kinds of desserts and sugar. And my favorite is chocolate. Here you go sonny. A little something for the old sweet tooth.

So there was it for the ten idioms. I hope you like them, and I hope you're not too hungry. Now, it's time to practice what we've learned. I want you to look the a sentence and choose the best answer to complete the sentence. Say your answer out loud. The correct answer is c) easy as apple pie. When an exam is easy, you probably finish it quickly. So, during this lesson we ate a lot But we learned even more, no?

Now you have ten dessert idioms that you can use any time. Not just when you want something sweet. I think this lesson was as easy as apple pie Don't you? If you think so too, please give this video a thumbs up. And if you want more practice, don't forget to join our social media classes. And sorry if I made you hungry, but that's it for today's lesson. Thanks for joining us today and see you next time. Bye!

LESSON 19 OF 749

10 Difficult Words to Pronounce in English

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Let's talk about difficult words to pronounce in English. And I know that there are many difficult words to pronounce, but today I want to have a look at 10 different words and really try to understand why these words may be a little challenging for English learners. Let me introduce myself. My name is Wes. This is Interactive English. The channel's all about trying to help you practice and improve your English skills. And today we're going to work on your pronunciation and have a look at 10 different words. And as we look at each word, I'm going to say the word several times. You can practice with me. I think that will help. And really the purpose of this lesson is not just to help you say these different words correctly, but also get you thinking about, well, what are some words in English that you find difficult to pronounce and try to understand why. And if you know of some words, let me know.

Write them in the comments down below. It really gives me an idea as to, well, what words I should talk about in future lessons. So let's just begin with the first word that I have for you, which is applicable or applicable. I just gave you two different pronunciations for the same word. Yes, that does happen sometimes. Both are okay. Both are accepted. The word's going to have four syllables. The difference is really, well, which syllable is going to get stressed. So applicable, the stress is on the first syllable. Applicable, the stress is on the second syllable and I hope you can hear that difference. Now, the word is going to have the schwa sound and I want to take a moment to tell you about the schwa because, well, many of these words have the schwa. It is an unstressed vowel sound and it really just sounds like uh. So when I say applicable, the schwa, you hear that in the third and the fourth syllable. Applicable. If I say applicable, you now hear the schwa in the first syllable as well. Applicable. And when I find that there are words that have two pronunciations that are accepted, I often think about, well, what do I typically say? I think that I would generally say applicable with that schwa in that first syllable and the stress on the second. Applicable. That's what I would do, but either one is okay. And then we come to pronunciation. It's a word that I've already said, well, a bunch of times in this lesson, but it's also a longer word. It has five syllables. The stress is going to be on that fourth syllable. That A, pronunciation. The first two syllables have that schwa sound, but I think uh probably maybe a little confusing is that C I A.

into two different syllables. That C A and then it ends with that T I O N. You should know that when you see that letter combination at the end of a word, it's going to be pronounced as shun. Pronunciation. And a fun little pronunciation rule for those words that end with T I O N, the stress is always going to be on the syllable before the T I O N. So in this case, it's that A that is the stress. Pronunciation. There we have the word lettuce. It has two syllables. The stress is on that first syllable. Lettuce. And I think it can be a little confusing. The C has really an S sound in that final syllable.

Lettuce. And uh the other thing I wanted to say about this word is that the T. I am going to pronounce it with more of a flap T sound because I'm from the United States. And the flap T, it's more of a D sound and you would hear that when I say lettuce, lettuce. Even though with the phonetic spelling I still used a T, but it's something to keep in mind. It's pretty common for people who are from the United States. So I would say if I want to make a salad, I need to go buy some lettuce. And then we come to the word suggestion. It has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable, but you probably already knew that because before I told you that when the word ends with T I O N, that shun, the syllable before is going to be stressed. So suggestion. But the one thing I wanted to point out with this word is that that second G, that G E, those sounds blend together and you get that voice, that juh juh sound. Suggestion. And I have a suggestion for all of you if you would like to improve your pronunciation. I think the most important thing that you could do is just speak. And if you would like more speaking practice, then my suggestion is that you check out my speaking course called Speak Up. There's a link down below in the description. It's a 10-week course for intermediate to advanced speakers. Lessons are once a week. We talk about a variety of different topics, do different speaking activities. You'll talk to me as well as classmates from around the world.

If you're interested, check out the link down below in the description. a 10% discount. And I hope to speak to you soon. Then we have asterisk. And if you do not know what an asterisk is, it is this symbol right here. And the word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. That second syllable, you hear that schwa. And I think this word can be a bit difficult because sometimes you people may just forget about that second syllable and really just say it as two. But the word does have three syllables and you you really you got to really listen for that second syllable with the schwa.

Asterisk. Asterisk. Usually. Very common word, this adverb of frequency, and some people may say it with four syllables. Usually. You hear that schwa in the third syllable. Or people may say it with three syllables. Usually. And that schwa is in the second syllable. Now, I don't think the most important thing about this word is whether you say it with four syllables or three syllables. I think the what I want you to take notice of is that S U. It's like those sounds they blend together and you have that juh sound. It is a voiced sound. You hear that vibration in your vocal cords. Juh. Usually or usually. So that's the important thing about this word is that juh sound. Usually. And again, I think about what I tend to say.

I probably say it with three syllables most of the time, but that's just me. I Well, that's what I usually do. Next is encyclopedia. And I I chose this word because, well, it's a longer word. It has six syllables and I think it's a great example of a word in which you really pronounce each syllable and I think you should be able to hear all six of them when I say encyclopedia. Encyclopedia. It ends with that schwa sound. Encyclopedia. So it's a good word to know cuz I think it's pretty common. You're going to pronounce all six of those syllables. And then we have poignant. And you're probably looking at this word. You just heard me say it, poignant, and you're thinking that that just does not sound right. This is a word whose origins come from French. It has two syllables. The stress is on that first syllable, but yeah, this is a great example of a word whose pronunciation just does not match the spelling. Poignant. You have a silent G and then that A N T, it just sounds like yunt. Poignant. And if you don't know what this word means, it's it's talking about a strong feeling or just moving someone emotionally. Now, let's let's stick with French words because I have another word for you, which is lingerie. And this is a word that was borrowed from French and it is now a part of English, but the pronunciation is going to be similar to that of French. Lingerie. Which is why again, the spelling does not match up with the pronunciation. The word has three syllables and the stress is on that third syllable. Lingerie. The next word that I have for you is literature. Or somebody could say literature. So you could pronounce it with four syllables or three syllables. With either one, the stress is on that first syllable. That lit. Literature or literature. The one thing that I wanted to point out with this word is that T U R E at the end, it's going to be pronounced as chur. So you could say either one, literature or literature. I think probably the more accepted form of this word is with four syllables. Literature. I I do catch myself from time to time saying literature. I think sometimes when you're you're speaking just normally, you tend to reduce words without even thinking about it. So yes, I sometimes say this with three syllables. If you would like to improve your pronunciation and get more speaking practice, check out my speaking course called Speak Up. Because let's face it, that is the best way to really work on your pronunciation is just to get more speaking. If you enjoyed the lesson, please hit that like button. As always, thanks so much for watching and I'll see you next time.

LESSON 20 OF 749

10 Food Words that Are Difficult to Pronounce in English

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

- Today's lesson is delicious. The reason is because I'm going to teach you how to say 10 difficult food words correctly. That's coming up. So all of us like to eat. Well, at least I hope all of us do, and therefore, I thought it would be useful to talk about food. And specifically, I'm going to talk about 10 words, 10 food words, that are difficult to pronounce.

Now, they may be difficult because of the way they're spelled, or the way that the syllable is stressed, and what we're going to do is I'm going to tell you the word, and repeat it again, and again, and again, so you can hear the correct pronunciation. I will tell you how many syllables the word has, and which one is stressed. In addition, I will give you the phonetic spelling so that you can see how the pronunciation is really spelled. And I'll just give you a little information about the food in general, mostly my opinion, just to spice things up. So let's begin. The first word is zucchini. Zucchini. This word has three syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable, that "kee", and that's where it confuses people, because of the spelling. That C-C-H-I just has that "kee" sound.

Zucchini. Zucchini. You could say it with me, Zucchini. Now, I am somebody who really doesn't have to worry about the pronunciation of this word, because I don't like zucchini. I don't really eat zucchini. I'm never asking for zucchini. I'm never talking with people about zucchini, except for right now. But now you know how to say it if you ever want to ask for it. Zucchini. - What in the hell is that? - My zucchini casserole. - Zucchini!? - So zucchini, it's kind of leaving a bad taste in my mouth right now, so let's just move on to the next word, which is salmon. This is a very popular fish word.

It has two syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. Salmon. That second syllable has that schwa sound. It's an unstressed syllable, salmon. And the reason why this word is commonly mispronounced is because of that l. This is a silent l, so you can forget about it. Get rid of it when you're saying the word, and you would just ask for salmon. What would you like for dinner? I'd like some salmon. If you like salmon, just let me know. Let me know in the comments. The next word is a great one, simply because I think it just tastes really, really good, because it's butter, sugar, milked, cooked together, to give you caramel.

And the pronunciation, it can be debatable, a little bit. There are several pronunciations for this word. I think that all of 'em are acceptable, even though I'm sure some people would be like, "No, no, no. "There's only just one way to say it." But I am gonna tell you all three ways to say caramel. First, you should know that the word has three syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. That second syllable is gonna have a schwa sound, and that final syllable is where you might hear a different pronunciation. People might say caramel, and that "muhl" is that third syllable, or you might hear people say caramel, and "mel".

So it's a difference between "muhl" and "mel". Caramel, caramel. And those are very similar, and I think if you're just having a conversation and you say either one of those, nobody's really going to think about it. But another pronunciation, which is, I think, becoming more popular in North America, just in North America, is making it a two-syllable word, and dropping that second syllable, and omitting that schwa sound. And people would just say caramel. I say caramel even though I think many other English-speakers would say caramel, or caramel. So now you know how to pronounce all of these different variations of caramel. Or caramel. Or caramel (chuckles). You decide. - Caramels. - It's good, it's caramel. - I love caramel apples.

- You can't eat caramel. - Try the caramel, it's delicious. - Ooh. - Next is quinoa. Now, you're probably looking at this word, and the way it's spelled, and you're thinking, what the heck? Now, the reason is, is because this is not a word from the US, or the UK, or Canada, Australia, South Africa, or other English-speaking countries. Quinoa is a tall crop that you mainly find in Peru, Bolivia, or Chile. But the word does have two syllables. The stress is on that first syllable. Quinoa. Now, you might hear it pronounced with three syllables, quinoa, in which case, the stress would be on that second syllable. Quinoa, and that final syllable would just be that schwa, "uh".

Quinoa, or quinoa. Again, I don't have a problem with this word because I'm never using it, even though quinoa, I've heard it's very healthy. I don't really eat it that often. But in case you like quinoa, now you know how to pronounce it. So let's just move on to the next word, which is a drink. We're switching it up a little. We're gonna throw a drink in there, and that drink is a daiquiri. Daiquiri has three syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. Daiquiri. This word can be confusing, because that Q-U-I can throw people off. It takes on that k sound, so you have daiquiri. That second syllable also has the schwa.

Daiquiri. And this drink is a cocktail of rum, lemon or lime, and sugar. It's usually also served with some type of fruit. Fun fact. The daiquiri cocktail was invented by an American mining engineer who got the name from a beach in Cuba, and then he introduced the drink to New York City, and from there, the rest is history. So if you like fruity cocktails, then you might want to try a daiquiri. I'm not a big fan of daiquiris. I think they're too sugary. - You haven't tried my daiquiri. - How do you say banana daiquiri? - Banana daiquiri. - Another round of daiquiris. - The next word is one of my favorites, guacamole.

It is mashed avocados with lemon or lime juice, and you can put it on bread. You can use it as a dip. It's just, it's wonderful. I love guacamole. And it has four syllables, and the stress is on that third syllable. Now, I am saying it like many Americans say guacamole. Now, it is a Spanish word, and in Spanish, the correct pronunciation would be guacamole. Guacamole. So just know that the correct pronunciation would be guacamole, even if though, if you travel to the US, you might hear a lot of English-speakers saying guacamole. - Ooh, guacamole! - I thought it was guacamole (scoffs). I used to like guacamole Now I don't like guacamole - Holy moly! That was a lot of guacamole.

- Next, we have a cheese, a cheese from Italy. Parmesan. It has three syllables, and the stress, you might hear it on that first syllable, Parmesan, or you could hear it on that third syllable, and people would say Parmesan. I tend to stress it, I'm trying to think, Parmesan. I think I end up stressing it on that first syllable. One reason this word can be a little confusing is because that s has a z sound. Parmesan. Parmesan. I'd like some Parmesan cheese. I grew up in the southeast of the US, and there, you might hear people say Parmesan. I don't know where it came from, but just an FYI. If you're there, you might hear people say, "Yes, I would like some Parmesan." But I would encourage you just to say Parmesan.

Parmesan cheese. - You want some Parmesan cheese on that? - Also from the great state of Wisconsin, an aged Parmesan. - Next is artichoke. This food has three syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. Artichoke. It is a vegetable, common, I think, in the Mediterranean. Some people like artichokes. I am not a big fan of artichokes. Now, the word sounds similar to the way it's spelled. The one thing I would tell you about this word is that, when you say it in English, that r, it's not a strong r, it's very soft. Artichoke. In some cases, it may sound like people are dropping that r altogether, but I think you'll slightly hear it.

Artichoke. - I don't even know what that is. - Artichoke? - Know that you secretly love artichokes. - Again, another food that I don't have to worry about pronouncing. Artichokes. Now that I think about it, all of the words that I don't have to worry about pronouncing are vegetables. That's not good. Next is the word cinnamon, which is a spice, a delicious spice. This spice has three syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. Cinnamon. Notice that c is going to have an s sound, and it's followed by the schwa. Cinnamon. Cinnamon, it's great. I love cinnamon rolls. Those are very delicious. If you never tried 'em, you should ask for some cinnamon rolls.

It's not a vegetable, not a healthy food, but it's good. - Cinnamon takes a backseat to no babka. (laughing) People love cinnamon. It should be on tables in restaurants along with salt and pepper. - And our last word. I saved the best for last, because this is my favorite food on the list, and that is filet mignon. This food is actually two words, and the stress is on the second syllable for each word. Filet mignon.

Now, you might be wondering about why is it pronounced this way, because of the spelling? Well, this is a French word. Filet mignon. It's a steak. It's delicious. It's juicy, succulent, savory. Oh, I really would like to have a filet mignon right about now. - I thought I was making a filet mignon. - In honor of Paige being home, I made your favorite dinner, filet mignon. - Just because you can't have filet mignon doesn't mean that you have to settle for fast food. - Now that you know how to say these food words correctly, I want to hear from you. So in the comments, write to me. Let me know, what is your favorite food?

I just like learning more about you guys. Share with us. Write it in the comments. Tell me your favorite food. Mine, filet mignon, hands-down. If you enjoyed this lesson, please hit that like button down below, and if you wanna improve your English fluency, check out our secret fluency lesson. A link is in the description. You can sign up, and we will send you all this cool stuff. Thank you so much for watching, and I'll see you next time. I'm gonna go eat right now (chuckles).

LESSON 21 OF 749

10 Useful Slang Words that ALL Americans Know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Yo are you down with today's lesson because you're going to have a blast and I'm going to tell you what all that means because today we're talking about slang. What's up everyone. My name is Wes. This is interactive English, which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills and today we're talking about boom slang. Specifically we're talking about American slang and I want to teach you some different words and phrases that I think are quite common.

Now when it comes to slang, it really depends on where you live and how old you are. Not, not everybody uses these words and phrases, but I tried to find slang that I felt is more commonly known that that most Americans are aware of and maybe even used from time to time. So let's begin with our first slang word and that is chilling. So if you see this word, the spelling may look a little crazy because we'll slang you. You don't often spell, it's mostly just used and spoken English, but you, you would probably see it without the g. Maybe you might find an apostrophe at the end or maybe there might not be and somebody would just say chillin.

And what chillin means is that you are just spending time with friends and relaxing. It's very similar to hanging out and you could also say that you are just chilling out. You're just relaxing. Take it easy with friends, you know, I'm just chilling out. So what are you going to do later? I'm just going to chill right here at home. Just take it easy. Just just chill out with the family. Let's just chill out and go do this. I don't need to chill out. And you're chillin with me all day? Yeah, just chilling. Hanging with the cat. Go there about once a year to chill out for a month. Gross. It's that weirdo who chills with possums.

We can chill together and we'll chill with those other guys. We'll all chill as one big unit. Then we have a slang word or it could be a phrase that I like to use and that is just down. And often somebody would just say, you know, I'm down. Or they might ask a question and be like, Hey, are you down? And what it means is that you are okay and willing to do something. So at the beginning I asked you, I said, are you down with this lesson? Are you okay? Are you willing to watch this lesson and learn these slang words? I hope you're down because I'm down to teach you these slang words.

I'm down for a group hug. They might want to show about anything and everything. Anything, everything, something, nothing. Who the hell cares? Put me down. I'm down. I think that people deserve to know. Are you down with TPP? I'm not down with TPP. Then we have a phrase. It's actually a phrasal verb to knock someone up and to knock someone up is just talking about an unexpected or unplanned pregnancy. You could also use it as an adjective if you want to say that somebody got knocked up and when I think it might be used as when the pregnancy is so unexpected that that the girl gets pregnant and she doesn't have a boyfriend and her friends and family may not even, they may not even know who this guy is and she just met this person one night out at the bar and got knocked up. It's not something that people try to do, but it does happen. It's a fact of life and when it does, people might say that someone got knocked up. There was actually a movie that came out quite some time ago that was called Knocked Up. Can you guess what it was about? An unplanned pregnancy. Alright, fine. You want to know why you almost blew it with Kim? Because you knocked her up on your first date before you can get to know her. See you got a bun in the oven. I'm knocked up. Then we have a noun. It is a person and that is just an ass kisser. So somebody who is an ass kisser is... They just say really nice things to a person because they, they want to get something. Oftentimes I think of the the work environment that a, another colleague of yours might be a real ass kisser and they're always saying nice things to to your boss because they want to get a promotion or, or they just want to get something in return eventually and you could say, yes, that person is an ass kisser. You could also use it as a verb and say to kiss someone's ass and again to kiss someone's ass. It means the same thing. And when somebody kisses another person's ass, that person is an ass kisser. What was it? A helpless, fat, incompetent ass kisser. Actually I don't remember the ass kisser part. I'll be governing my own village. 10,000 employees kissing his ass. Yes boss, no boss.

Instead of firing them, I am going to kiss their asses like crazy. Next is a word that I think is known pretty much by most people in the United States. I think it may even be well known by people outside of the United States, and that is the word hooker. Now, if you hear this word, it's talking again about a person and it's talking about a female prostitute. And if you don't know what a prostitute is, that is just a person that sells sex. So instead of saying the word prostitute, you might hear the word hooker and this is a word that you might hear in a TV show, or if you're watching a movie, it's not something like I said that that I expect you to go out and use this word because you're probably not having many conversations about hookers.

Just so you know. In case you hear this word, a hooker is a female prostitutes. She's not a spy. She is a hooker. I picked her up in the Hollywood Boulevard. Look at that. A hooker with a heart of gold. Those don't exist. It's going to cost you $500. It will be illegal for him to drink at his own bachelor party. Or to get a hooker. A hooker. I bet if we hired her that would cheer him up.

The next word is blast and this just means to have a good time and we often use it with the verb. Have to have a blast. I had a blast at the party. I hope you are having a blast watching this lesson and learning this slang and if you are having a blast and you love learning slang, just let me know and go ahead and hit that like button. We're having a blast. We just went biking and mini marting.

The next slang word is flake. This is talking about a person. So someone is a flake. It just means that it's a person who says that they will do something but they do not do it. They are a flake. So, for example, somebody might say, Oh yeah, I'm, I'm gonna, I'm gonna go with you tomorrow. I'm going to do this. You can count on me. And then they don't do it. And you could say, Oh, you know that the, there, there's such a flake. Or You could even use it as a phrasal verb and say that somebody's flaked out. So for example, maybe you want your friend to go with you to this party.

It's going to be a blast. You're gonna chill out there and you say, hey, let's go. And your friend says, yes, I'm there. You can count on me. But you know that they're a flake. You could say, oh my friend, they flaked out on me. They said they were down to go with me to the party, but they didn't go because they're a flake. You guys need any help? I can't believe you're late to your own raid. What a flake. He's not coming back. He's a lousy roofer and a flake. All right. Yes I'll do. Okay. Thank you so much. It's going to be awesome. And if I flake, I flake. What?

Now listen, this is a big commitment. Now you don't just say yes if you're going to flake out later. Then we have a very small words, simple word and that is just Yo. People say this, I think kind of a little bit like a greeting. Often it's said at the beginning when you first encounter someone and then they may follow it with another greeting like, hey yo, how's it going? Yo? What's up? It's also used to to get people's attention. So you might say, hey Yo, I'm talking to you, Yo look at me. So at the beginning of this lesson I was using it as both. It was kind of like a greeting at the beginning and I wanted to get your attention. So I said, Yo, Yo D-dog. I need your help.

Yo. What's up guys? Then we have the word quarterback. Now this is a position in the sport of American football but can use it in other situations as well. When you're talking about a person who is the leader and somebody might say, for example, like, well, okay, I'm going to quarterback this meeting. I am going to be the leader of the meeting. So if you're talking about somebody who's the quarterback, you're talking about the leader. I just want all of you guys to chill. I hope you're down with that. And I'm going to quarterback this lesson. Well, I guess I have to. There's nobody else here. Then we have the word moon.

And no, I'm not talking about the moon that you see at night up in the sky. I'm talking about a verb. And that is two moon to moon someone. And when you moon somebody, you are just showing them your bare butt. And this is something that I think, uh, you know, high school kids would do. They're just joking around. They're like, oh, let's, let's moon this person. And they just show their butt and it is called two moon someone. Have you ever mooned anyone? Let me know in the comments. I'll be honest. Yes, I have mooned others on more than one occasion. How would you moon us if you were driving?

I hope you had a blast, just chilling out and learning some of this slang and if you want to connect with us even more than join our email list, join the interactive English team. We will send you all these cool and useful resources as well as access to the secret fluency lesson. I know I'm being a bit of an ass kisser right now asking you to do this, but if you don't want to do it, if you just want to flake out, that's okay as well. And I also just want to keep using these words because it's good practice. It's good for you to listen to them because that's the best way to learn and remember them. Thank you guys so much for watching.

I hope that you learned something new and I will see you next time.

LESSON 22 OF 749

10 Useful Tips to Help You Become an Excellent Writer

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello and welcome to today's lesson thanks for joining me my name is Wes this is interactive English which is the place you want to be if you are trying to practice and improve your English skills and today I have a very very useful lesson for you because I'm going to talk about something that everybody uses and I'm sure that you use as well and that is ten useful tips to become a better writer I'm going to talk to you about different things different tips different things that you can do in order to improve your writing skills that's what we're gonna discuss today and throughout the lesson I'm gonna be asking you guys some questions so if you're joining me in the chat I want you to write your name tell me where you're joining joining me from also even if you're watching this later I want you to write your name tell me where you're from and and actually practice writing

throughout this lesson that is what I want from all of you is to use your writing skills and this is perfectly possible because you have the chat you have that comment section and I want you to think of it like this is your piece of paper you can now use this to interact and practice your writing skills so hello Musa you Lisa a lot asthma thank you so much for joining me and everyone out there thanks for being here so the reason why I wanted to talk to you about writing is because it's such a useful skill because we use it all the time we use it in business we use it at school we use it just writing text messages or emails so so it's so important that we learn to not only how to write but also that we improve our skills that we're constantly getting better now one thing that makes it there are a couple things that make it difficult to improve our first I would say is that it's often one of the last skills that we learn so if you're learning a language whether you are an adult or whether you're a child most people are exposed to listening first and they'll listen to words they maybe read them that's the first time they see stuff and then they'll they'll they'll try to maybe speak and use the language oftentimes writing is one of the last skills that people try to to learn and improve so that's what makes it a little more difficult the other thing that makes writing difficult is that it is it is very much rule-based it's in speaking you can you can make mistakes you can break the rules and it's a lot easier to get away with not as many people are gonna call you out on it but in writing if you are writing an essay or a business email and you see writing mistakes it stands out a lot more and with writing we really need to follow the rules a bit more but even if you're not following them I think it's very important to be aware of what the rules are so you know like okay which rules you can maybe bend a little bit and which ones you really really need to follow and the other reason I would say is that that writing really complements all of these other language skills and the example that I would give you that it complements these other skills is that it's a reflective process when you're writing your thinking about what you're trying to say and I would help students prepare for their IELTS exam and I would help them prepare for the speaking part of it and one thing that I would get them to do to help improve their speaking was to tell them to write about it so I would know which question that I want to give them and I would tell them I give them about maybe five minutes and be like okay here's the question write down your answer and they would actually get a little time to think and reflect about what they want to say the words that they want to use how they want to say it correctly and then they would put the paper away and then we'd have a conversation but because they've written it they were a bit more prepared to talk about it so writing is definitely connected with speaking and all the other language skills so it is really important now the first thing that I want you guys to do and answer this question is that in the chat in the comments I want you to complete this sentence right here I want you to tell me improving my writing will help me mmm what is improving your writing gonna help you do I want you to think about that right now and reflect on that and write it in the chat write a full sentence and again if you're watching this later write this in the comments all right tell us improving my writing will help me what what is it going to help you do what is it going to help you accomplish now there are so many different reasons that that writing is going to benefit you and it's can you could say you know it can improve your school you can improve your schoolwork your you need to improve your writing because of school maybe you need to improve your writing because of an English exam like the IELTS or the TOEFL perhaps you want to improve your writing because you are getting ready to do some job applications or you're putting together a cover letter or a CV resume and you really need to have your writing perfect for these reasons it may be it's just a professional work environment and you're writing different emails or you're sending text messages or even on a lighter note maybe you're just writing a love letter to somebody and you want to express your feelings about this person and there are just so many different reasons why you might want to improve your writing and and as you know people are writing this I want you to read read about it what are what are other people saying in the chat what were their reasons so for example broad one improving my writing will immensely help me boost my career progression perfect you're learning it for a job improving my writing will help me pass my exam Valentina thanks for sharing with us so these are all great reasons why you want to improve your writing so now let's talk about how we're going to do that so the first tip that I have for you and I know this one is going to be a little difficult is avoid reductions okay and what I mean by reductions an example would be like going to and people will say gonna but oftentimes people will end up writing gonna gonna n/a and writing it as a reduction and what I would suggest for you is to avoid using reductions and I know it's difficult because like I said that you see it all the time and if you're in the chat right now I want you to write an example write an example of a reduction can you think of one I gave you an example going to gonna alright this is something that in spoken English and and and pretty much any spoken language we tend to reduce words and phrases to make it easier to pronounce and say and and these are reductions the the issue is because you you see it a lot in like text messages or just informal emails to a friend or even in you see it more nowadays and subtitles - if you're watching a TV show or even a youtube video and using the subtitles you might see reductions being used and the reason I tell you to avoid it as a teacher is because there's really very there's really no benefit that you get for using a reduction in your writing however there can be some consequences and some negative things to using reductions in your writing and that is when you are trying to write in a more formal context if you're writing an S for school if you are writing business

email you really need to avoid those reductions because it's not going to help you achieve what you want to for example when when I was working in the school administration for my old school I would do a lot of the hiring and if I received an email from an applicant that said something like I love your company I want to work for you and they spelled wanna waa and na the first thing I would do is hit okay delete this person no it is not for us that's you know it's just not professional to use so I would say it is best to avoid them altogether my next tip tip number two is this be mindful of punctuation you should understand how to use different punctuation marks and when to use them the reason you need to be mindful of punctuation it is because it punctuation really helps control control the rhythm and the flow of your writing it really shows what you're trying to say because without punctuation there can be some some issues and let me give you an example I want you to look at these two sentences right here okay you have let's eat grandma versus let's eat grandma the only difference with these two sentences is the use of a comma but the meaning is completely different because if we say

let's eat grandma without a comma you're talking about eating your grandmother I don't think anybody wants to eat their grandmother in the next sentence let's eat comma grandma then then you're asking your grandmother you're saying hey grandma let's eat let's have some food together okay so the comma in that case makes all the difference in the world if you're not using the correct punctuation it can make your thoughts it can make your ideas very very confusing so try to be mindful of your punctuation the next tip number three is to use transition words to connect or separate your ideas and when I say transition words there are so many different transition words out there and this is just something again you just need to build your vocabulary learn these words and learn how to use these words so for example if you're writing something and you have two idea you have an idea and you want to add more information to that idea you can use words like furthermore or in addition or also and that's basically telling the the reader the person who's reading your writing okay there's more information that this person is trying to give me there's more information that they're trying to tell us perhaps you are writing something about an event and you want to use sequencing those transition words to in order to tell the story about how things happen first how they happen next then after that we can use those transition words to really connect or help separate ideas so we know it just becomes more clear what the person is trying to say it is very important and to become a better writer to use transition words very useful the next tip I have for you is this is get rid of just nonspecific words these are words that you don't need to use that are not very important now what I mean by nonspecific would be a word like thing okay if if somebody writes thing I I don't know what they're talking about and I would say like thing or something instead of writing it tell me what the thing is tell me what something is be more specific you can also use it with you know avoid using adverbs like very this is something that I think in your writing if you were to read people's writing you see this a lot I would read because this is the difference if you're getting rid of these nonspecific words this is the difference between telling a good story and telling a great story it's the difference between writing a good essay and writing an incredible essay get rid of those nonspecific words tip number five is note how to use numbers know how to use your numbers and these are kind of stylistic rules because I would say that a general rule that I would follow is that if it's numbers 1 to 9 I'm gonna spell those numbers if it's greater than 10 I often write those out now there there are many people that disagree with that and that's fine but that's just a general rule of thumb that I tend to follow now what I want you guys to do and I want you to write about and tell us in the chat or in the comments is what is your favorite number I want you to tell me what what is your favorite number write it down and I want to see how your right are you spelling it or are you using the numeral now let me tell you what some of the other professionals say so when it comes this is just a general rule of thumb according to the MLA stylistic guidelines and MLA for those of you who don't know it stands for Modern Language Association and these are guidelines that people follow to for their writing if they're writing publishing papers if they're writing essays or a thesis for school or even if they're writing books or articles for magazines for a more professional writing these are the guidelines that they follow so what they say is rule the the first rule for ml r a MLA is spell out numbers written in one or two words such as two or three hundred so if you have a word that's written simply that it's just one or two words you know 1 2 13 10 400 500 you can just spell out those words because it's easy to read and people to put that number in their head now they also say that you should use numerals actually write the number for large numbers that do not allow for a smooth combination of numbers and words such as 151 this is a number that you would just write instead of spelling out the number these are the guidelines that they set forth so again it's important when you're using your writing to to know what some of those rules are so so you can write them correctly now I want to remind everybody that if you are writing a number at the beginning of a sentence always spell out the number do not write the it doesn't matter which number always spell the number at the beginning of a sentence this is something I would see from time to time in different papers always spell out the number at the beginning of a sentence and most importantly I would tell people again consistent in your writing because oftentimes your writing numbers and you have to write many different numbers you want to be consistent between whether you're writing the number or whether you're spelling them that's just something to keep in mind so thank you guys for sharing on that I add favorite numbers on that I have five Aquacade for Alessandro 12 excellent 12 is also my favorite number because I was born on the 12th the November 12th that's my favorite number too so the next rule that I have for you is this and that is to avoid redundancies and when I say redundancies what that means is avoid

information or words that are not necessary and maybe it's not necessary because you've already said it so for example I'd say watch out watch out watch out I don't need to keep writing watch out I've already said it once you know you need to say something different and this is something that I think everybody does we do this in writing we do it in speaking that you tend to say the same thing over and over again and I do this too when I'm writing something and I notice that oh in one sentence I said I used this word and then I used it again in the next sentence and I think oh okay wait that's redundant and then I'll look at it and think okay I'm gonna change one of these and use a synonym instead and as I said I do this all the time I do this in speaking as well at one point

I was living in California and I got caught up saying you know every time before I said a sentence I'd be like you know I really love going to the beach you know I just I just find it very relaxing you know what are you doing later and somebody eventually somebody told me they said you really say you know a lot and I thought about I was like oh yes I got in the habit of just using it again and again and again and it became redundant and you just need to be careful of it especially in your writing because if you can get rid of redundancies and use different words and only you know not repeat information it makes the reading it makes the writing so much more clear and so much more concise it's very important the next tip that I have for you is so important this is one of the most important things that you can do to improve your writing and that is read read read read and read some more this is so so important and it's something that's so simple because all of us all of us you know we can read we read every day but my question to you right now in the comments I want you to tell me okay what is the last book that you read I want you to tell me what is what's the last book that you actually read okay now the reason I'm asking you this is because I tell people to read and I feel like most of us probably think oh yeah you know I get plenty of reading because of technology nowadays because we're using the Internet and they think like for me I read every day but I don't really read because I don't read as many used different context you're also learning sentence structures and seeing how to use the correct sentence structure and also as I mentioned before you're seeing punctuation and you're seeing how punctuation is used correctly so when you're reading even though you're not really thinking about that at the time you're not thinking about punctuation you are learning that information and when you're learning that information you can then turn around and use it in your writing and it's going to help you so I would really suggest to read as much as you can tip number eight that I have for you guys is use a variety of sentence structures writing think of it like an art form you are telling a story and you should use a variety of sentence structures to make your writing better so for example if you are just a beginner at English when I say a simple structure you could just use simple sentences write a sentence that's going to have a subject verb and an object it doesn't have to be a super long sentence you can keep it simple use simple sentences if you're an intermediate learner then you could use simple and compound sentences use those conjunctions and or buts so to combine two sentences and make your writing a little longer if you're an advanced learner use simple sentences compound and complex sentences and really vary your structure because it's gonna help you tell a better story it's going to make your writing more interesting and capture the reader's attention and that's what you want to do when people are reading your writing you want them to stay engaged you want them to you want them to keep reading and this is a good way to do it and if you're if you're worried about well how do I again practice using different sentence structures read that is a great way to see how people are using different sentence structures what punctuation they're using and and that'll you can use that in turn when you're writing is going to reinforce the information that you already know tip number nine is this big words don't always make writing better so I want to say that first of all it's true big words don't always make your writing better however I do think it's always great to learn new words it's always great to practice new words I would always encourage you if you learn a new word to try and practice it what I would say is that for this a lot of times people will write something and they're constantly going to the thesaurus to find the synonym and say okay instead of this word I'm gonna take that out and then use another word that I don't even know what it means because it said well

this is a synonym and they'll take these words that that are common that people know and they'll try to replace them with these big words that are less common but people might think well this is going to help me sound more academic especially in school this is a lot of people end up doing this and what I want to say is you need to be careful doing this because it doesn't make your writing better sometimes it can make it very confusing and the example that I would give you is take the word unhappy most of everybody knows okay what unhappy means not happy and say you're writing a sentence like I was unhappy the restaurant didn't have the meal I wanted and you say well unhappy is just a boring word I want to replace it with a more academic word something that makes me sound a little more intelligent and smarter and you look up and you find

oh here's a synonym for unhappy despondent and you say okay I'm going to use despondent instead of unhappy even though despondent it has a similar meaning despondent means that you are really really really unhappy that you are depressed that you are not reacting to anything around you because you are so miserable and unhappy so in this context that you know the restaurant didn't have the meal you wanted people don't get despondent from that it would be using the word incorrectly if somebody said I was despondent the the restaurant didn't have the meal I wanted I would read that and think really you were despondent that's that's very extreme so be careful about using big words especially words that you're not familiar with in your writing and what I want to do is use this moment to talk to you about a language learning theory it's called the input hypothesis and what the input hypothesis means is it's basically telling you that your input your level of language right now your ability when it comes to reading you should try to read as they say I plus one input plus one you should try to read one step beyond your current level if you're a beginner you shouldn't try to read an advanced story all right you should try to read just one step beyond because that's going to help you improve the most and I would say that that's what they say for your reading when students tell me well what what should I be reading right now I would tell them don't don't read something that's super easy you know it's not nothing's gonna hurt but try to read something that's just slightly beyond your current level that is the best thing that you can do and I would say with your writing as well don't try to take your writing at an intermediate level and say I'm gonna write an advanced academic paper try to write just one step beyond your current level that is what the input hypothesis is talking about and that is what I would encourage all of you to try to do in your writing as well as your reading now the next tip that I have for you and this is probably I think it's the most important I've saved the best for last and that tip is proofread this is something that I think is greatly overlooked and when I say proof if you don't know what I'm talking about it means to read something again and look for mistakes you need to proofread your writing so if you're writing a paper especially for school or business once it's done look back through it and try to check for mistakes did you make a punctuation mistake did you use a reduction and you shouldn't have you shouldn't be using it because it's a professional writing assignment maybe you're using words more than once and you think okay this is redundant the way to improve your writing and find these mistakes that you're making is to proofread and this is something I think it's overlooked I think so many of us were busy with our lives and you just like you know I can't take the time I'm finished with my writing I'm just gonna submit it I'm just gonna hit enter and then it's gone or send if it's an email and then I don't have to think about anymore and if I make a mistake I make a mistake the best way to improve your writing is to proofread because not only is it talking not only am I talking about well you need to change your mistakes but it's helping you identify your mistakes because when you're proofreading your stuff then you're kind of if you find a mistake you might see that you keep making the same mistake over and over again and once you're able to identify your your mistakes or the ones that you usually make then the next time you're writing that is the best way to correct those mistakes and begin writing correctly so not only is it a great way to help you identify to help you find mistakes and change them in your writing it is the best way to help you identify the the watch what you're having trouble with in writing and to know okay this is what I need to focus on this is what I need to improve in order to become a better writer and one thing I would be wondering my question to you is how many of you proofread your emails you guys send emails all the time and I'm not talking about in English if you're writing if you're writing an email in your native language I want you to write in the chat or in the comments right now just write proofread which tells me that okay I proofread it I read through it again because if we're being honest with ourselves I think most of us don't really end up reading things again we just write it it's informal and then we just hit Send and this is something that I need to do as well that I have to try to remind myself is that when I write something look it through it again one thing we do is we write you guys write us a lot of comments and we try to respond to every single comment and answer them and because we're doing it so often so many times a day it's hard to go back and proofread the comments

sometimes we're just writing it quickly okay enter and I'll catch mistakes I'll catch mistakes when when when I'm writing comments and I'll go back through I'll try to change them but I try to get into the habit of telling myself okay I've written a comment it's only a few sentences go back and read it again and make sure that you didn't make any mistakes so proofreading is so so so important when it comes to improving your writing now what I want you guys to do is your homework assignment okay what I want you guys to do is in the comments I want you to tell me which of these tips do you think would most will most benefit you in your writing which of these tips is going to help you improve your writing what what do you think applies to you which tip is going to help you I want you to write that in the comments let us know practice your writing those comments section that's your piece of paper right there we really really really want to hear from you guys so thank you guys so much for watching again you can whoops this is interactive English you can find us up here please join our social media classes write to us in the comments we really really love hearing from you guys thank you Miguel Andre max iris patricia try to get some more names in here Radwan Quyen valentina thank you guys so much for joining me today I hope that you found these tips and useful and that you can use these to practice and improve your writing skills because it is so so so so important and as always please hit that like button if you enjoyed this lesson if you like learning English with us and share it with your friends your classmates your family members anybody that you know who's trying to practice and improve their English skills thanks so much for watching and I will see you guys next time so long

LESSON 23 OF 749

10 WORDS ENGLISH HAS TAKEN FROM FRENCH, GERMAN, & SPANISH

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Have you ever stolen anything? English has. And I'm going to tell you ten words that English has stolen from other languages. It's coming right up. Welcome to today's lesson. We have a bit of a vocabulary lesson for you. But before we begin, I want to remind you to join our social media classes because it's another great way to practice your English skills. So, we can kind of think of languages as being one big giant family that has a history, and these languages are connected to each other. And as languages develop and grow, and they add new words, sometimes they will take words or borrow them from other languages and then use them as their own.

and these are called loanwords. And today, I'm going to talk to you about ten words that English has taken from other languages. And they're probably not going to get them back. So what exactly are loanwords? Well, according to the dictionary, a loanword is a word that is adopted from a foreign language with little or no modification. And modification is just another word for change. So there's typically little or no change in either the meaning of the word or the pronunciation of the word. And many times spelling as well stays the same. So these are loan words that are taken from another language. I don't know why they call it a loanword because when you loan something, you typically give it back.

But we don't really give back these words. We've just taken them. So for these ten words - maybe you know what they mean, maybe you don't - but now you're also going to learn a little more about the history of these words and which language they come from. So you'll also learn some new vocabulary words in a few different languages. So, let's begin with French.

Now the first word that I want to show you is entrepreneur. And I don't think the pronunciation has changed much between French and English. My French is terrible, so I'm not really going to try and give you the French pronunciation. Entrepreneur. Entrepreneur. Anyway, it's entrepreneur. And an entrepreneur is a person that starts a business. These are creative people. They're innovative people. They come up with a lot of different ideas. So they start a business, and we say that they are entrepreneurs.

The next word, which is one that I like, but not one that I like to do is a faux pas. And a faux pas is a social situation where somebody says something or does something that is awkward or inappropriate. And usually they don't mean to do this. This is not something they want to do. It happens on accident. So for example, maybe somebody quit drinking alcohol because they had a problem. And then you get together with them one night. And without thinking about it, you offer this person a drink. It can be a little awkward, but it's still like a faux pas. You made a mistake. You didn't mean to and it...it's just wrong.

And often you have to apologize for it. If we're talking about a faux pas, we might use it with the verb "make" because somebody can make a faux pas or we would just say that "That is a faux pas." If you have one of these social misunderstandings and mistakes, it's a faux pas. The next word that we have taken from French is a genre. And in French this means they kind or style. We use it to classify different things such as movies or TV or music. We'd ask like, you know "What genre is it?" Is it a comedy? Is it a drama? Is it a horror? Different types of genres.

So notice the pronunciation of this, especially in English it does not sound the way it looks. That "g" does not have a G sound. It's more of a ZH sound. Genre. It's not gen-ray. It's not gene-ruh. It's genre. Genre. Genre. The next word is this one, right here. Now, when I was younger and first saw this word, I thought it was pronounced like lin-ger-ree. And I was like, huh, maybe is that some sort of cheese. But it is not. It is pronounced, in American English, lingerie. And this is a type of woman's underwear, which is usually sexy and seductive. Lingerie. Now, you should know that in American English it is pronounced lingerie.

In British English, it is pronounced lingerie. Which is actually closer to the French pronunciation. So American English is lingerie British English lingerie. And French lingerie. I don't know why American English is so different in this. But it's a little weird. But... I'm a little weird. Americans are a little weird. And...yea, just go with it. Next, I'm going to tell you a few words that we took from German. And the first word is kindergarten.

It is your doppelgänger. Now, it's not a common word that's used frequently. It's only used in that situation when you want to say, "Hey, you look like this person right here." It is your doppelgänger. Now, for example, people say that my doppelgänger is Ryan Gosling. It's just...It's like we're brothers. We look exactly the same. Okay. Nobody's told me I look like Ryan Gosling. But I have been told I look like Dennis the Menace, which is an old American cartoon. I don't see the resemblance, but maybe you do.

The next German word is one of my favorites because it kind of describes me. And it is wanderlust. And the word has the same meaning in both languages. Wanderlust is just somebody who travels around and wants to travel around and learn and explore. Somebody has wanderlust. Just thinking about it makes me want to pick up and go. Finally, I want to talk to you about a few words that English has taken from Spanish. And the first word is aficionado. And aficionado is a person who is a fan of something. And it's not really just a fan. It is a true fan. This person has a real passion in this thing or this topic.

And they have a lot of knowledge and information about it, and that makes them an aficionado. It's more than just a regular fan. So for example, I am an aficionado of... Gosh. What am I an aficionado of? So you can think about something that you really love and enjoy, and know a lot about it. And then you could say you are an aficionado.

The next word that we've taken from Spanish is macho. Now this word is used to describe somebody who is strong, and masculine, and very manly. We say that they are macho. I think it was a lot more common maybe thirty years ago mostly because there was a famous disco song about it. Nowadays it's not as common, but people might use it to describe a guy who's trying to be very manly and act very strong and impress somebody. And I don't necessarily think it's a good word. If somebody...usually if you say somebody's macho, they're trying to pretend to be strong. And it's not really a compliment. Another word that we have taken from Spanish is siesta.

And this just means to take a nap. Now, I definitely think this is more common in American English. And it's one that we've started using a lot more recently. So instead of saying take a nap, you can say take a siesta. Who doesn't like taking siestas? So I hope you enjoyed this lesson on English loanwords. If you did, give the video a thumbs up. And now I want to hear from you. So in the comments, I want you to write any other language English words, that you know of, that have been taken from another language. Write the word. Tell us which language it comes from. Or maybe there is a word in your native language that was taken from English.

You can share that with us as well. It's always great to hear from you guys, and in this case it's great to share this information because we can learn so much more about languages. Thanks for watching, and we will see you next time.

LESSON 24 OF 749

10 Words English Learners Often Mispronounce

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Have you ever wondered how to pronounce these 10 difficult words? Keep on watching to find out. So welcome to our lesson today. I am super excited because this is a really good lesson. Today, we have 10 words...they're very common words. But they're also a little bit difficult to pronounce. Some because they're a little long. Others because they have a whole bunch of vowel sounds thrown in there. So it can be a little bit confusing. What I will do is I will tell you the correct pronunciation. I will tell you why they're difficult to pronounce. And I will also give you an example sentence, so you can hear it in context.

Are you ready to become a pronunciation rock star? Join me. Number one is EXHAUSTED. This is a really, really common word. Exhausted...it means tired. The "e" sound, sounds like a like a /g/. Like a G sound. We say [ig - zawst - id]. The other reason why this word is difficult is because the H is silent. So when you see it, just ignore the H. And its exhausted. And the third reason why this word is hard to pronounce is because of the -ed at the end. In this case, we say it. It's exhausted. Say with me. Exhausted.

Number two...BREWERY. Yeah, that's right. You heard me right. It's hard to say. So if you don't know what a brewery is it is where people brew beer. This one, even just saying it, it's obvious why it's difficult to pronounce. And that is because of the R sounds. It's very, very faint. A very soft R sound, which in itself could be a very difficult sound to pronounce. The second reason why this can be difficult is because right after the first syllable, we have a schwa sound which is a shortened vowel sound. And of course in the the third syllable you have another R sound which is a little bit more pronounced than the first sound.

When you say it, they all kind of mesh together. Say with me. Brewery. This is true. Wes and I took a tour of a brewery a few years back and it was a lot of fun. Brewery. The third word is a little bit long which makes it difficult to say. This word is ANTARCTICA. Basically what you have to do is you have to kind of break it down when you say it. You can start with the first syllable which is "ant." The second syllable is "ahrk." Keep in mind that for this word the stress is on the second syllable. Put it all together and you get... Say it with me.

Now say it really fast. Antarctica. Antarctica. Antarctica. Antarctica. See, it's hard. Don't do it. Don't say it fast. Number four...PHENOMENON. This one is hard because it's long. But it's not that hard if you break it apart. Now we can break up this word in four syllables. First of all, the PH sound, it makes an F sound. It's a /f/. So we have... The third syllable is a schwa. Say it with me. Number five...SPECIFIC.

Now this word can be difficult because of that middle syllable. The C makes an S sound. Now I know a lot of English language learners may mispronounce the /i/ sound. It is not /ee/. It's not [spi - see - fic]. It's a short /i/ sound. So we say... Specific. Say it after me. You got it. Say it again. Specific. Number six, another long word, TEMPERATURE.

Now if you look up this word you will see that it technically has four syllables. But I think most people pronounce it with only three syllables. So we have to kind of shorten everything. We end up saying... In the second syllable, we drop the E completely and we add a schwa. The TU together are pronounced as a /ch/ sound. Say it with me now. Number seven...RURAL. This is a hard one. Oh gosh, you guys. I'm sorry. I'm sorry for doing this to you. The R sounds do make the words difficult, in this one especially. In the first syllable we have /roo/. And then in the second we have a /ruhl/.

And of course there's a schwa in the second syllable. It's very fast. So you have to be kind of fast with it. So say it with me please. Rural. Number eight...CHOIR. Now this is a short word, but it is difficult to say for a few different reasons. First of all, the CH together in this case does not make a /ch/ sound. For example, the word "channel" makes a /ch/ sound. But not in this case. The CH sound together is a /k/ sound. The second reason is that the O sound is an /ah/. So, put it all together and you get... Choir. Number nine is a LITERATURE. And this word...it's a little bit difficult because it's long, first of all.

Of course you have the L and Rs, which make this word even more difficult. We have the R and the schwa sound, and the T and U don't make a /too/ sound /tuh/ sound. They make a /ch/ sound, just like in temperature. So we have... Say it after me. Literature. Number ten is a SQUIRREL. I used to have a theory that the word "squirrel" is cute in every language. So I'm kind of curious. Please, in the comments, let me know how do you say squirrel in your language. Does it sound cute? But the word squirrel, whether you believe me that it's cute or not, it can be a little bit harder to pronounce.

It's just two syllables, and it goes like this. And then the second one. There's just a schwa sound. So let's see it together. So cute. Okay. So now that I've told you the words that I think are difficult to pronounce, I want to hear from you. In the comments, please let me know what other words do you find difficult to pronounce. Write them down, and maybe we'll do a lesson explaining them. If you found this lesson useful, don't forget to give a thumbs up. Thank you for watching, and I'll see you next time. Bye.

LESSON 25 OF 749

12 BAD Words to IMPROVE YOUR VOCABULARY

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today, I'm going to give you 12 words...Bad Words! That will help you expand your vocabulary and improve your English. Before we start our lesson, I'd like to remind you to subscribe to our channel for more videos where you can practice and improve your English. Today...we're going to learn some BAD WORDS! Now, these are not swear words or words you shouldn't say to other people. These are words you can use to say something is...well, you know...BAD! The word "bad" is too generic, too simple, too boring. So you can, and should, use the words I'm going to teach you, in order to be more descriptive and give more detailed information. This is also a great way to expand your vocabulary because you already know the meaning of these words...something that's bad.

So, without further ado, here's a list of bad words. Number 1 - Horrible This just means something that is really, really, bad. It's pretty general and you can use it to describe many things. Number 2 - Awful This is another word that means very bad. And it can also be used to describe a variety of things and situations. Number 3 - Lousy This is used to describe something that's bad, but not super bad. It's slightly bad. Maybe you're not impressed with someone's work so you say it's lousy.

Number 4 - Unpleasant This word is often used to describe an experience or a situation, especially one that is uncomfortable or annoying. Number 5 - Harmful We use "harmful" to talk about the effects of something. It's commonly used to describe things that effect us in a bad way. Number 6 - Detrimental This word is also used to describe things that have a negative effect. But these are usually things that regularly effect us.

Number 7 - Horrendous Mostly, this word is used to describe the way that something or someone looks. And it doesn't just look bad. "Horrendous" looks really bad! Number 8 - Atrocious This word can also be used to describe the way something looks...like an atrocious work of art. But, typically, "atrocious" is used to describe an act that is brutal like an atrocious crime.

Number 9 - Abysmal This word is often used when talking about the results of something. And abysmal means that something is bad...I mean really bad! Number 10 - Vile This word is used to describe something that is wretchedly bad. It is used to talk about a variety of things. Vile humor. Vile odor. Vile language. Number 11 - Appalling Now, "appalling" talks about things that are shockingly bad. Usually because they're offensive in some way.

Number 12 - Hideous This is another word we frequently use when we want to say that something looks bad. Let's practice what we've learned today. But before we do, please like our video if you feel like you've learned something new. Also, if you'd like more English practice, you can follow us on social media. We're active on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, and Snapchat. Okay, here we go! In the comments below, I want you to choose one of the words from this lesson to write a sentence about this picture. And if you'd like more time, please pause the video while you write your sentence. Thanks for joining today's lesson. We'll see you next time!

LESSON 26 OF 749

12 Beautiful Words to Help Build Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Have you seen anything beautiful today? Well now you have. Just kidding. I'm sorry. I had to because...today we're going to talk about Welcome to our global classroom. Today we're learning 12 Beautiful Words And before we go into the words, I would like to invite you to join our social media classes for more practice. We're active on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, and Snapchat. So today I'm going to give you 12 Beautiful Words that are synonyms for the word "Beautiful." I have some words that are better for you than just to say "Beautiful." These are very helpful when you're trying to express different nuances when you mean to express that something looks special or incredible.

So by the end of this lesson, you'll be able to express yourself better and have a wider vocabulary. And kind of from now on use them instead of the word "beautiful." So the first word I have for your today is the word ALLURING. And alluring is something that's mysteriously attractive or that's fascinating. So, when I say that something is alluring I'm kind of drawn to it. So kind of attracted and I want to kind of get to it. The second word I have for you today is EXQUISITE. And exquisite is something that is very special. Of special beauty and rare. So when you want to say that something is very rare or very, very, very special.

We say that it is exquisite. Number 3 - Lovely Lovely means very pleasant or enjoyable. Lovely is kind of a soft word. So when you want to express something that's not like extremely beautiful, but still really, really nice... We say lovely. Number 4 - Stunning Now stunning is very different than lovely. Where lovely was a little soft, stunning is strong. It means very impressive or attractive. So if somebody is stunning or if something is stunning It means that it kind of shocks you with it's beauty.

Number 5 - Magnificent Magnificent means impressively beautiful or extravagant. This is a word I really like because many times it's used to describe nature. Of course you can use magnificent with people as well. So, it really means extremely impressive. For example, you can say... Number 6 is Splendid. And splendid really is just a synonym for magnificent. So it can be used interchangeably. But it's really mostly used for nature or objects rather than people.

Number 7 - Appealing Appealing is attractive or interesting. I would say appealing is many times used to describe food. We really definitely use, "Oh this looks appealing" or "This doesn't look appealing to me." So you will definitely hear it in that context. Number 8 is Attractive. And attractive means very pleasing to the eye. You can use attractive to describe both men and women. It can be used for objects as well. But it's mainly used to say that someone's good looking.

Number 9 is Charming. And charming means pleasant or attractive with a great personality. It can be used to describe both objects and people. Number 10 is Superb. And superb means excellent and splendid. It's really just very, very beautiful. Number 11 - Gorgeous Gorgeous means beautiful and very attractive. And it's...I would say it's mostly used for women. But it can also be used for nature and objects.

Number 12 - and I really like this one - is Ravishing. Ravishing means delightful, entrancing. I would almost say disarming. It's such a beautiful word. I love it. So how did you like the 12 beautiful words? Aren't they beautiful? So here's what we're going to do for your practice. I'm going to give you this picture. And I want you to choose one of the words that you learned today.

Now, you can use one or you can use more if you'd like a bigger challenge. So please write that sentence in the comments. And I'm looking forward to reading all of them. And if you think that what we do is beautiful please subscribe right now. So that's it for the beautiful lesson. Thank you for joining us today and we'll see you next time. Bye!

LESSON 27 OF 749

12 English Words that People Say WRONG | Pronunciation Lesson

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Do you want to sound like an English learner or like an English speaker? If you want to sound like an English speaker, do NOT mispronounce these words! Welcome to our global classroom! Before we start today's lesson, please remember to hit that SUBSCRIBE button, if you enjoy practicing and improving your English. Today, we're talking about 12 words that are commonly mispronounced by English language learners. Many people get these words wrong. But if you learn how to say them correctly, you will automatically sound a lot more like a native English speaker. So let's begin! Here's Number 1... Say this word out loud. How did you say it? Sometimes English learners say /an-swer/.

But in this case the "w" is silent. So don't worry about the "w," don't think about the "w." Just pretend it's not there. And you would say the word like this... Say it with me! See...easy! You just don't say the "w." Number 2...is debt. And this word is similar because it also has another silent letter... "b." So yes, the "b" is there. And we can't get rid of it. But we don't have to say it. Okay, so say it with me. See. It's easy!

Number 3 - receipt This is another word in which silent letters get learners in trouble. When we say this word, we don't hear the "p." So say it with me. Number 4...and this is a difficult one - recipe So many English learners get this one wrong. I think it's because of the word stress. I've heard the word /ree-seep/ many times, but we actually pronounce it...

Let's say it together. Done. Number 5 - comfortable It's not /kuhm-for-tay-buhl/. But /kuhmf-tuh-buhl/. Say it with me. Good job! Number 6 - hierarchy This is a word that I had trouble with when I was learning English. So I understand if you think it's difficult to pronounce. The way I was saying it, which is wrong, is /heer-ar-kee/. So it's not /heer-ar-kee/, it's /hahy-uh-rahr-kee/. Say it with me. Good. Number 7 - suite This is another challenging word for English learners because it looks kind of like "suit." Like the suit you wear. But...it's not. It's a room. It's a suite.

Let's say it together. Wonderful. Number 8 - colonel This word completely baffled me when I was learning English. There's an "r" sound, but there is no letter "r." What? So even though it's spelled with an "l," we pronounce that first "l" like an "r." Okay, now say it with me. See...now you're even better than I was. Number 9 - Wednesday I know we're going down this list, and you're probably thinking English is strange. And you're right. Sometimes the spelling just doesn't match with the pronunciation. Here's another example. In Wednesday, the "d" is silent. So just don't say it at all. Practice with me!

Number 10 - salmon To be perfectly honest, this is another word that I was guilty of mispronouncing when I first moved to the U. S. I'd say, "I love salmon. Salmon is great." Yeah Ioana...SALMON is great. Okay, so now you say it with me. Good job! And now I'm hungry. Number 11 - glamour I hear this word mispronounced quite often when girls talk fashion. They say /gluh-more/. But it's not. It's /glam-er/. Say it with me.

Now you know. Number 12 - chocolate This is my favorite word in the world. So we should all pronounce it correctly. It's not /chaw-koh-lot/ or /chaw-koh-leyt/. It's /chawk-lit/. You don't pronounce the "o" in the middle of the word. Say it with me! Okay. Now I'm really hungry. Now, let's practice saying these words. But, we're going to practice saying them in context. I will show you some sentences using these words. And I want you to read them aloud. Ready? Here we go! That's it for today. Wonderful job! Make sure you keep practicing those words so you can say them perfectly every time. You can also check out our social media classes, which will help you practice and improve your English.

Thanks for joining us, and we'll see you next time!

LESSON 28 OF 749

12 GOOD Words to IMPROVE YOUR VOCABULARY

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today, we're talking about 12 good words. That is...12 synonyms to use instead of the word "good." Okay, so before we get into our lesson, here's something that you can do that is not just good... It's great! Join our social media classes! They'll give you a lot of information. We'll ask you questions. And generally, they'll help you practice a lot of your English skills. The word good...is okay. But it's not great or wonderful or outstanding. Here are some other words that will help you change things up and express yourself better than just using the word "good".

Number 1 - Valuable We use "valuable" when we talk about the cost or worth of something, or someone's importance.

Number 2 - Excellent This word means extremely good. It's very commonly used, and it describes someone or something that holds superior quality. Number 3 - Exceptional This is kind of similar to excellent but perhaps even more so because it means something that is unusually good.

Number 4 - Outstanding Another similar word to excellent and exceptional, it means something that is remarkably good.

Number 5 - Superb Superb means impressively beautiful. So many times we use it to describe how nice something is or how nice something looks. Number 6 - Divine Divine is related to something godly. But we also use it when we want to emphasize that something is out-of-this-world good.

Number 7 - Brilliant Brilliant was initially used to describe something that shines brightly. But this can be extended to a performance or an idea that outshines the others. Brilliant is used in that context a lot more in British English than in American English. But it's still very common in both countries. Number 8 - Impressive Something that is impressive has the ability to blow your mind or make a great impression on you.

Number 9 - Admirable Admirable means someone or something worthy of a lot of respect or admiration. Number 10 - Flawless We use "flawless" to describe someone or something that has no defects or faults. Number 11 - Wonderful Wonderful is used as a synonym for excellent. Basically, we use it to describe something that is much better than good. Number 12 - Great Great is another synonym for exceptional or outstanding. Okay, let's practice what we've learned today. But before we do, please like our video if you feel like you've learned something new. Here we go! I want you to choose one word from today's lesson. Then, in the comments below Write a sentence about...this picture.

I'd also encourage you to read each other's sentences because this will help you reinforce your understanding of these words. And if you need more time to write, you can pause the video while you're writing your sentence. See you next time!

LESSON 29 OF 749

12 Powerful Phrases to Talk About Personality Without Sounding Boring!

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's talk about personality it's a very important topic and I want to teach you some useful phrases that you can use to describe someone's personality and let's get started with our first phrase and saying that someone is a stickler for the rules so a stickler is just an informal noun that refers to a person who follows the rules closely and you would often follow this noun with the phrase for the rules so it's really a cocation and you say that someone is a stickler for the rules and you can use this phrase in a variety of situations like playing a game if I say he said my foot was on the line when I shot the basketball he's such a stickler for the rules or maybe at work my boss got upset because I was I was a few minutes late she's a real stickler for the rules and I can use those words to add emphasis and say that someone is such a stickler for the rules or a real stickler for the rules for pronunciation I just want to point out that the word for has two different pronunciations a strong form for which is going to sound like the number and a weak form in which case the word gets reduced and the vowel sound's going to change slightly and it'll sound more like fur a stickler for the rules can you think of anyone who is a stickler for the rules I would have contacted him sooner but this is a rogue op and he's a real stickler for the rules last night I opened up this gift basket for my own pleasure really Leslie nope you usually such a prudish stickler for the rules the park inspector will be so impressed and he's a real stickler for the rules everything must be up to code now you may notice that I have an order that I like to follow when I teach these lessons what can I say sometimes I can be a stickler for the rules but as we go through the lesson I am going to teach you the meaning of these different phrases talk about how they're used in context give you a variety of examples as well as go over the pronunciation so that you can say them just like me and if you are someone who enjoys building your vocabulary Please Subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals and I will always go out of my way to help you improve your English fluency and that's a great phrase so let's talk about it if you say that someone goes out of one's way this means to try very hard to do something especially something that is good or helpful and often you're going to use this phrase with the verb go to go out of someone's way now I could say I'm sure that you will go out of your way to hit the like button and write to me in the comments and in that case you really would be going out of your way because that takes time your time is valuable however I'm confident that you will be willing to go out of your way to do this and I'm just going to keep saying that that phrase out of your way for pronunciation there are two things I want to point out out of this is a common reduction you may hear people pronounce it as outa the other thing is that the T you're going to hear me pronounce it as a flap T this is very common with the American accent and I'm from the US it's going to sound like a soft D and this occurs when the t comes between two vowel sounds out of out of your way out of my way out of his way out of her way just listen for it what's the matter I'll tell you what's the matter I go out of my way for you but I don't go out of my way to hurt people when you know I go out of my way to marry a sicilian girl and all she cooks is green pinky you went way way way out of your way to make me happy now if you would like to improve your speaking skills because perhaps you are a stickler for the rules when it comes to English pronunciation I have a great app that can help so I'm going to go out of my way to quickly tell you about the sponsor of today's lesson Elsa speak this is an app that I first heard about from many of you so let's check it out you just download the app and you can explore all of the different features you can practice daily lessons study by topic let's say that you want to improve pronunciation you can work on specific sounds and there's even a daily study plan to help you practice but I think one of the coolest things about the app is that you have the ability to practice words and phrases that you want to learn so let's say that we want to practice the sentence I'm a stickler for the rules and then we can listen to it I'm a stickler for the rules and then practice saying it I'm a stickler for the rules now let me show you what happens if I make a couple of pronunciation mistakes I'm a Styler for the improve your skills and then I tell another group that learning English it's not that important in that case you could say that Wes is talking out of both sides of his mouth now this phrase really does have a NE negative connotation and to give you an association uh I want you to think about politicians because sadly yes I think you could describe a politician and say that he is talking out of both sides of his mouth or she is talking out of both sides of her mouth and that leads me to the next thing that I want to tell you about which is the grammar so just keep in mind that we're going to use a subject pronoun to identify the person and then a possessive adjective in our phrase he is talking out of both sides of his mouth the other thing that I want to point out which is also related to grammar is that often you may hear people use this in the continuous tense to talk about well right now or a point in the past maybe I say at the press conference the president was talking out of both sides of his mouth for pronunciation out of that's a reduction out of and once again you're going to hear me say that flap T and then linking may also occur this is when we link the final consonant sound of one word with the beginning vowel sound of the next word and the phrase that we can link is sides of it's almost like we're moving that consonant sound over sides of to talk out of both sides of your mouth he don't think before he says and he doesn't talk out of both sides of his mouth president Walker is the one who should be scrutinized here he's talking out of both sides of his mouth then there's to have a good head on your shoulders I like this phrase Maybe because I like to think that I have a good head on my shoulders and I'm sure that you have a good head on your shoulders this means to make good decisions and have good judgment so you're really giving someone a compliment when you use this phrase it has a positive connotation and in my opinion I think you may often hear someone who's older use this phrase to describe someone who's younger and once again they're giving a compliment he has a good head on his shoulders keep in mind we're going to use a subject pronoun and then a possessive adjective in our phrase I could say she is about to graduate and already has a few job offers she really has a good head on her shoulders for pronunciation more linking may occur we can link the final consonant sound in have with the vow sound in the article uh have we can also link the final consonant sound in head with the beginning vowel sound in on head on to have a good head on your shoulders I want you to listen for those two phrases is getting linked oh I don't know from what I saw she seemed to have a pretty good head on her shoulders mama was real strict and explains the good head on your shoulders well I mean isn't she in law school she's got a good head on her shoulders exude an air of something this means to show that someone has a quality or feeling to a great extent and often you're going to use this with a noun and it's going to have a negative connotation but not always and I think there are some common collocations with this phrase perhaps you say that someone exudes an air of confidence or someone exudes an air of superiority definitely negative or to exude an air of sadness still negative maybe something a little more neutral if I say well something exudes an air of mystery there are other collocations with this phrase but I just wanted to give you a few examples as to how it is used for pronunciation we can link the entire phrase linking the final consonant sound with those beginning vowel sounds to exude an air of something to exude an air of confidence when you exude an air of self assuredness others are naturally drawn to you known as Australia's most haunted house the Monte Cristo Homestead in New South Wales exudes an air of mystery and spectral Intrigue next is the phrase know it all this refers to someone who thinks that they know more than other people so it really does have a negative connotation and one thing I want you to keep in mind is that you're often going to use it with the verb to be to say that someone is a know--it all maybe I tell you well my colleague is always trying to give me advice he's such a knowitall or you may hear people use this phrase with the negative to tell someone to stop acting in this way don't be such a know-it-all here is a funny joke joke that I wanted to share with you you would think a know-it-all would already know that nobody likes a know-it-all and yeah I think that's true for pronunciation we can link the entire phrase but keep in mind you're going to hear me pronounce that final T and it as a flap te know it all say it with me know itall nobody likes a know-it-all excellent she's a complete know--it all she she's not even very much fun the one thing a know-it-all doesn't know is that everyone hates a know-it-all you're not a lawyer Sheldon you're just a know-it-all I am not a know it all I'm a person who knows lots of things and likes to correct other people when they're wrong that's the definition of being a know-it-all a neat freak I know a few people that I would describe as a neat freak this refers to someone who likes things especially around their home to be very tidy and very clean and someone who spends a lot of time cleaning now the word freak on its own it does have a negative connotation talking about someone who is a little strange or unusual now this phrase in its entirety to say that someone is a neat freak I don't feel it's as negative as the individual word but you're really just emphasizing the fact that this person really likes things to be clean and tidy and you would say that they are a neat freak and I could add emphasis and use other words and maybe say say that somebody is a computer freak and they really love computers or maybe a bowling freak and they go bowling all the time but in general you're often going to hear people use this with someone who really likes things to be clean and you would describe them as a neat freak for pronunciation I think it's pretty simple and straightforward you're just going to pronounce one word right after the other and say that somebody is a neat freak kmen that egg girl has been there since

Tuesday stop such a neat freak you can't use my room for anonymous sex I'm kind of a neat freak that way Glenn you cannot leave your dirty socks in the fridge you're such a neat freak then we have the phrase life of the party this refers to someone who is very Lively or funny at a party or some other social event and really this adjective phrase is going to follow the verb to be and you would say that someone is the life of the party here is a fun example because I I feel like this describes well me at this point in my life I'm going to be the life of the party as long as it ends by 8:30 and okay yes that's that's probably true when pronouncing this phrase keep in mind more linking may occur we can link life of and I'd also like you to keep in mind that the word party you're going to hear me pronounce that t as a flap T and once again with the American accent when the T follows an R sound it may get pronounced as a flap te like in the word dirty or in this case party the life of the party are you someone who is the life of the party you can let me know down in the comments you all took a life here today you did the life of the party oh yeah here it come the life of this party who wants to get back to work what he thinks that you're the life of the party he wants to be more like you then there's the ways to have an inquisitive mind this is really an expression that you can use to say that someone is inquisitive which means they are eager for knowledge or they are intellectually curious so instead of telling someone well you're very inquisitive I could say you have an inquisitive mind children are a great example because children definitely have inquisitive Minds like like my daughter she ask me questions like why is the moon called the moon or where do thoughts come from or why do we have two arms and not three they are all very valid questions I do not have a good answer for any of them but I can say that she has an inquisitive mind for pronunciation more linking may occur we can link the final consonant sound in have with the vow sound in an have an and the word inquisitive may be a little tricky on its own the word has four syllables and the stress is on that second syllable you'll also hear me pronounce that t as a flap T inquisitive to have an inquisitive mind Nancy has a very inquisitive mind she loves to unravel a mystery great question I love an inquisitive mind oh I'm sorry this is Jennifer my International asset student she has a rare and inquisitive mind the next phrase is to AA fault this means excessively extremely more than necessary and often it's used to say that too much of a good thing can actually be a bad thing so let's say that I'm talking to someone and I say hey what do you think of my new haircut and this person tells me it's awful I hate it that is their honest opinion but it could create an awkward situation but I could say that this person is honest to a fault or maybe I tell you that my friend went out of his way to help his neighbor and the neighbor did not say thank you did not appreciate my friend's help and I could say that my friend is generous to a fault that it's too excessive and therefore it ends up becoming more of a negative now this is not the most common phrase but I still think it's useful because it's a great way to capture that idea in saying that someone's personality when too excessive becomes a little bit of a bad thing for pronunciation I just want to point out that intrusion may occur this is when we add a sound in order to link two vowel sounds together in this case we're going to add a slight W sound between the words two and uh in order to link these vowels together to it's not something you have to force but you will hear it it's very slight to a fault to a fault he's not like that he's he's honest to a fault but you you're loyal to a fault your code is about family too competitive prone to jealousy bit of a kill Joy follow rules to a fault then we have hearing oneself talk or you could say hearing oneself speak this means to be self absorbed in your own speech without really having any regard for the other person or people that you're talking to there are several things that I want to point out with this phrase first as you can tell from the meaning it does have a negative connotation

second you can use either of those words I've already mentioned this speak or talk third you're going to use a reflexive pronoun and finally you're often going to use this phrase with the verbs like enjoy or love which is why we're then going to use the Jaren hearing so I could say my colleague likes hearing himself speak or my aunt enjoys hearing herself talk or my neighbor loves hearing himself speak now if you're wondering which is more common to use talk or speak than we can use engram viewer to compare the frequency so if we're talking about a man it's more common to say hearing himself talk if we're talking about a woman it's pretty much about the same to say hearing herself speak or hearing herself talk and when comparing a man and a woman it's more common to hear the phrase hearing himself talk so I just like to point out that often you may dishonest I guess it runs in the family or you may also use this phrase in a medical sense if you're talking about shared characteristics if for example several members in the family have uh diabetes and the doctor ask you about it and you could say yeah you know it runs in the family here is a fun joke using this phrase the doctor asked does obesity run in your family and the patient responds no nobody runs in my family for pronunciation keep in mind more linking may occur we can link the final consonant sound in runs with the beginning vowel sound in in runs in runs in the family but this is serious alcoholism runs in our family died of a brain tumor yeah that run in a family crazy runs in that family all Conor's art project gorgeous Talent runs in the family don't get mad at her it's a couple little strokes runs in the family now for a little review mostly because I like to hear myself speak and because I really want you to learn these phrases so that the next time you're at some social event you'll be able to use them confidently and you don't need to exude an air of confidence when using them but just use them naturally and if you're able to do that I think that others will say wow this person has a really good head on their shoulders and who knows maybe you will even be the life of the party so try to use them in conversation review them from time to time not because you want to be some sort of know-it-all but because you have an inquisitive mind and want to achieve your fluency goals now I want to help you keep building your vocabulary and I will always go out of my way to teach you new words and phrases because I am passionate about teaching English maybe I am even passionate to a fault but I would ask that you watch another video Lesson keep building your vocabulary if you enjoyed this lesson and learn something new you can let me know by hitting that like button as always thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 30 OF 749

13 Scary Words | Useful Vocabulary Lesson

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Ahh... Oh, my. I didn't see you there. You really got me petrified, terrified, aghast. Are you ready to be scared? The only thing that will scare you is how amazing your vocabulary is going to be after you learn these 13 words. Fall is here, and Halloween is coming up... So we wanted to make sure that you are ready for this time of year. That you have all the words you need to know. So today, I'm going to teach you 13 very scary words. Or words that are synonyms or similar to the word scary. See what I did there? 13 - unlucky number, scary number. Are you ready? You're ready to be spooked?

Okay. Let's begin the first word is fearful. Fearful means feeling or showing feeling of fear or anxiety. So...it's...showing that you're afraid. When you're fearful you're scared, and you're just really kind of nervous. You just don't know what's coming, and it's just that kind of anxiety. It makes you really afraid. That's fearful. Number two - panicked. Panicked is an adjective that comes from the word panic. And panic is a sudden feeling of terror and anxiety that just completely overwhelms you. And many times it can refer to a group of people. When we see a mass of people we can hear mass panic. Or just seeing a group of people really scared that is when panic applies.

But it is not the only time when we can use panic. We can use it just for a feeling. When you're anxious and when you're fearful, those two feelings combined create panic. Number three - startled. Besides being difficult to say, this word is not as strong as some of the other ones in this lesson Meaning that when somebody is startled, they're not completely terrified. It's kind of a softer word. So startled means to cause shock or alarm. But it doesn't have to be to a great degree. You can be just a little startled if somebody just like taps you on your shoulder. Or you can be very startled if, for example, somebody scares your or shocks you.

Oh is this the dining room...OHH, you startled me. I didn't realize how difficult this word was to say. Until I kept saying it...startled, startled, startled, startled, startled. Startled. Number four is petrified. I really like this word because it reminds me of a stone. So the first meaning of this word is organic matter that has turned into stone. But the second meaning is the one that we are talking about today. And it means that when somebody is petrified, they are so scared that perhaps they're unable to move or react. They're petrified. Have you ever been petrified? It's not a great feeling. It happened to me a couple times. When you can't react or do anything because of your intense fear.

It's a really scary feeling Number five is...terrified. Five terrified. It kind of rhymes...five terrified. Now terrified is not just scared, it's extreme fear. So whenever you think of being afraid, if you take that - to like a hundred degrees. So it's an extreme state of fear. Now many times we see terrified together with the preposition "of." So we can say that you're "terrified of (something)." You can be terrified of ghosts or of clowns. I'm really terrified of clowns. So I am terrified of clowns, the dark... ..terrified of spiders, terrified of snakes. Oh my gosh, many things. Many things. I'm terrified of many things. Number six - aghast. I really like a aghast. It sounds... It doesn't sound like a typical English word. It sounds very...

It sounds scary actually. Now aghast means filled with horror and shock. Or shocked or surprised in a very, very unpleasant way. Aghast. Number seven is anxious. I would like to start this by explaining that anxious is not really a synonym for "scared." But it can be a very severe state of mind. So when somebody is anxious, they have a feeling of worry, of unease, and nervousness about something that they don't know the outcome of. So it's just a feeling in our stomach. When your stomach goes like this... And you just don't know what's going to happen. It's a very good word because it expresses how many of us feel many times.

Number eight - rattled. Rattled means worried or nervous. But somebody who is rattled is usually rattled because something rattled them. So there's usually an event that causes someone to become rattled. Meaning there was an event that caused you to lose your focus. And now you're worried and you're nervous, and you can't focus. Rattled. Not even Teddy KGB is immune to getting a little rattled. So for example, if you're taking a test and your almost at the end. And the teacher says, "Five minutes left!" This is always true for me. I get so rattled that I can't focus to finish my test. And then I'm worried. Oh, no. Oh, no. Five minutes. Five minutes.

That's the feeling. I'm rattled. I can't focus. Safe to say, I don't like teachers announcing how much time is left. Because I get very rattled. Number nine - intimidated. Intimidated means frightened or nervous because you are not confident in a certain situation. And this is important because confidence is the key word here. Everyone who is intimidated by something, they're... they suddenly lose confidence in that situation. For example when I went Wes, I was intimidated because he was very tall. Number ten - frightened. Frightened is a very good synonym for scared. It means feeling fear or worry. Number eleven - spooked. I think this one is a little bit more informal because spook, in informal speech, means a ghost.

So when you're spooked, you're frightened as if you've seen a ghost. Like that. That's my best impression spook. Like... How would you react if you saw a ghost? Number twelve is unnerving. I really like this word. Again, I don't know why. Sometimes I just have words that I really like. Now, if something is unnerving it means that it makes you feel weird or uncomfortable, deprived of courage or determination. That's the official definition. But it just... it just makes you feel uncomfortable. It's this feeling that something is definitely, definitely wrong. And the last one...unlucky number thirteen is chilling. So the word chill means being cold. And chilling is a sensation that you get that is fear mixed with being cold.

It's a physical reaction to fear. When something is chilling, it's so frightening that you feel it in your body, you feel this shiver or cold throughout your body. It's chilling. Okay, so we're done with our 13 words. Now it's time to practice. Are you scared? Are you scared. Are you ready? So for this practice, I want you to write a sentence about this picture right here. Using one of the 13 words we learned today. If you're feeling daring and not scared, you can use more than one. I dare you. Don't be scared of the words. They're beautiful. Words are your friends. But please use them in a sentence. This will help you practice and improve, and retain these words because they're very, very, very, very, very, very, very, very useful words.

I also encourage you to read everyone else's sentences because this will give you a better idea of how the words are used in different contexts. So how was that? Are you scared? I hope not. Don't be scared to share this video with all of your friends. Thank you for watching, and I'll see you next time. Bye.

LESSON 31 OF 749

15 Advanced Adjectives to Describe People and Build Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today's lesson is all about building your vocabulary. What's up everyone? My name is Wes. This is interactive English, which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills. And the way we're going to do that today is by building your vocabulary. I am going to teach you some advanced adjectives that you can use to describe people. And this is useful because we often like to talk about ourselves and describe our personality and as well as talk about those around us. So I'm going to teach you the meaning of the word as well as give you an example sentence so that you can see how the adjective is used in context.

These advanced words also happen to be some of my favorite adjectives. So are you ready? Let's begin. The first word that I have for you is frank. And what it means is that that somebody is very direct in the way that they speak. They're very open, they're honest. They, they're not shy about telling you what's on their mind. You would say that that person is frank. Often I think of somebody making the statement and saying, you know, I'm going to be frank with you. I'm getting ready to tell you what's on my mind. I'm not going to hold back. I'm going to be frank with you.

The next word I have for you is boisterous. And this adjective means someone who is energetic, cheerful, and may even be a bit. So I think that it's not always a permanent part of your personality. Perhaps somebody is usually boisterous, but I think all of us can be boisterous from time to time. I think it depends on the situation, the people that we're with, and if we're really loud and energetic and cheerful, then somebody might say, wow, you are boisterous. Then we have persistent. And what this word means is somebody who is continuing to do something or trying to do something in a very determined way, but often kind of an unreasonable way that you are just not going to give up.

You are persistent and you're going to keep going until you, you achieve your goal and you get what you want. So it can be a good thing and that, you know, don't give up. Always be persistent, keep trying. But it may also be a bad thing because if somebody is too persistent that that could get a bit annoying and you might want that person to go away and you tell them, get the hell outta here. You persistent little. So keep that in mind. If you're thinking about whether or not you should be persistent.

Next is unassuming and this means somebody who is not arrogant, somebody who is not trying to get all of the attention. And I think it's usually describing somebody's personality and you might say that somebody has an unassuming manner that they don't try to stand out and get all the attention. They can be rather unassuming. The next adjective is intimidating and this is not a good word if somebody is using it to describe you because what it means is that somebody is making you feel frightened or afraid. So we could say that somebody might have an intimidating personality or maybe if you're just looking at their face, perhaps they have an intimidating look.

The next word, and, and this is one that I really like, is pragmatic. It means that somebody is solving a problem in a sensible way, that you are taking a realistic approach in trying to solve this problem. So I often think of somebody who has a lot of common sense who is very reasonable. You could say that they are pragmatic. I like to think of myself as being pragmatic, but, but I'll be frank with you if you know that that's not always the case. Then we have pretentious.

Now this is not a good adjective to describe another person because it means that someone is trying to appear smarter and sound a bit more clever than they really are. So I often think somebody who might be talking about art or or literature and the, they're trying to pretend that they know so much. You could say that this person, that they're being a little pretentious,

The next adjective is cynical and another. It's another good one because I think I can definitely be cynical and it's just the belief that that other people are motivated by their own self interests. So for example, I think especially when it comes to politics, I'm a bit cynical. I think many people are cynical when, when talking about politics. So that's a great example as to when you might hear or even use this word,

The next adjective and, and this is a little more slang and that is cocky. And if someone is cocky, it just means that they are confident, usually in a bit of an arrogant and unpleasant way. And it can be kind of rude if somebody cocky because that means that they think that they're the best. They're number one. And you would say that, okay, this person is cocky. I think we often use this word when, when talking about sports and competition and people always like to say how, how good they are or that they're going to beat their opponent. And you could say, you know, yeah, they're, they're being a bit cocky.

I think all of us have been cocky at one point or another, whether it's talking about, you know, our, our school performance, our work performance, or like I said, sports. Next is conceited and this should be easy because it has a similar meaning to cocky. So somebody who is conceited, it just means that they are too proud of their actions and abilities. They think very highly of themselves and you could say, okay, this person is a bit conceited.

The next adjective is vain and it also has a bit of a similar meaning to conceded and cocky. So if somebody is vain, it just means that they have a strong interest in their appearance or, or even their abilities. But often I think it's usually talking about somebody's appearance, the way that they look, the way they style their hair, the clothes that they wear, and maybe they're always looking at themselves in the mirror and thinking, wow, I am just so amazing. Then you could say, you know that that person, they're pretty vain. Then we have diplomatic, which is a positive adjective. If you want to describe someone who has the ability to avoid offending others or , or even hurting their feelings that this is a person who's great at, at solving problems. If people are having, uh, some sort of conflict or you would want somebody to help them, help them solve the problem and you need somebody who is diplomatic. The next word is affable. And if somebody is affable, that just means that they are friendly and easy to talk to. So you might be talking about your friend, your neighbor, your teacher, your boss, and you could say, wow, they're there. They're affable. They're easy to get along with, easy to talk to, very friendly. I think I could say that all of you are affable because you're very easy to talk to. You write me so many wonderful comments and I hope you write some comments today. Just go on down below. Write a comment.

The next word is chatty now. Now I think many of you might be familiar with is adjective because to chat to someone just means to talk. So if you're describing somebody and you're saying that they are chatty, it means that they are talking a lot and usually in an informal way. So if somebody is chatty, they'll pretty much talk to you about anything. Then we have one more word that I just wanted to give you, but this word is a noun. It's not an adjective, but it's also a word that can be used to describe someone. And that is a klutz. And if someone is a klutz, then that just means that they are very clumsy. Uh, you know, perhaps a little foolish, a little awkward. I often associate it with, with somebody who's clumsy and I think of a person who's always knocking things over or dropping things. And I think, wow, that that person there are real klutz.

So that's a bonus one for you because it's not an adjective, it's a noun, but it's one that I think we can all relate to because at one point or another, I think we've all been a klutz and you know, we've just been clumsy. So I want to be diplomatic in my approach and I certainly don't want to be intimidating when I ask you to write to me in the comments and let me know which of these adjectives describe you. How would you describe yourself? Let me know in the comments. I just love hearing from you. I'm also going to be persistent and ask you again to hit that like button, especially if you learn something new.

LESSON 32 OF 749

15 Advanced Phrases w/ HAVE, DO & MAKE to Boost Your Proficiency

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I want to teach you some everyday words and phrases to help you build your vocabulary but in a very practical way because this is vocabulary that we use quite often and I'm talking about the verbs make do and have so I'm going to teach you the meaning of these phrases talk about how they're used in context as well as give you a variety of examples so let's make the most of it and keep building your vocabulary and we'll begin with the phrase that I just mentioned to make the most of this means means to take full advantage of something because it's not going to last long so generally this refers to some sort of opportunity maybe it's a beautiful day outside and I say well you should make the most of it or perhaps you're in New York City for only a couple of days and you want to make the most of it you want to build your vocabulary so you're watching this video you should make the most of it hit the like button right to me in the comments it's not going to last for forever we'll show your people how to use this land properly how to make the most of it on a ticking clock make the most of it we have a few minutes right now let's make the most of it then there's make do with this means to use what is available although it's really not enough or even what you wanted so there are many situations that you can use this phrase maybe you need a knife but only a fork is available and you say yes I'll make do with the fork or perhaps you're trying to go somewhere and you can get there faster by car but a bike is the only thing that's available and you say

I'll make do with it here are some news headlines so you can get a better idea as to how this phrase is used in context we need two pools in this town Orangeville residents make do with Tony rose pool closure the gender pension Gap even after work ends women must make do with less as Louisiana schools seek to prevent school shootings some make do with limited resources let's have a look at some more examples I'll just make do with no assistance no don't just give up maybe you haven't found the right person yet they're not going to go back to the way they were you make do with what's left I can't find any baking soda we going to have to make do with Colgate then we have to make amends this means to do something to show that you're sorry for your bad behavior in the past so in this case it is a little similar to makeup let's make up let's make amends the difference is that when you're going to use make amends it really means that you are actually doing or offering something to to show that you're sorry so if my wife is upset with me I may buy her some flowers in order to make amends I thought this was a fun little saying make amends real quick Karma does not joke around and yes I I do think it's always better to make amends even though it it doesn't always happen I've been making amends you weren't a amending you are avenging step nine of Narcotics Anonymous I'm here to make amends so I've been going through the 12 steps what are you up to now uh step nine yeah making amends I seek to make amends to pay for what I've done make a point of this is used to emphasize something or highlight a situation so one thing I want you to keep in mind is that you're often going to follow this phrase with a Jaren I could say I I make a point of calling my parents once a week and I just maybe want to highlight that or to give you a business example maybe I could say we need to make a point of offering our employees professional development opportunities and you just want to emphasize that this is important you know I make a point of never interfering in your personal affairs the folk who Thrive around here make a point of easing their neighbor burden seem somewh familiar have I threatened you before I make a point of avoiding familiarity with pirates then we have the phrase make peace with and you can make peace with someone or make peace with something and they really have two different meanings so when you make peace with someone it means that you need to stop fighting or disagreeing with someone and start working and living happily together so let's say that two people are fighting or arguing and I say you need to make peace with each other reach out and take it make peace with the Lannisters make peace with your sister and then make peace with yourself now when you make peace with something that means that you start to accept something that was worrying or annoying you and I could say uh well I made peace with the fact that I would never become a professional basketball player even though that's what I wanted when I was younger but I made peace with that a long time ago it's not going to change just make peace with it you know I've had to make peace with the fact that probably never going to get genuine accountability let's

the phrase to do one's part and this means to do what one is responsible for doing or is able to do so when I was younger I was supposed to help clean around the home and sometimes my parents didn't think that I was doing that and they would tell me you're not doing your part when it comes to protecting the environment I like to think that I'm I'm trying to do my part and that's also why I thought this was a funny little joke I'm doing my part to conserve water by drinking wine instead trust me we literally have no extra money so do your part sign your time card he will not know just do your part she wish 9 million socially conscious and unified citiz all just stepping up and doing their part to do your own thing I really like this phrase because means that you're going to do what you want without worrying what anyone else thinks of you

so I I think it has a positive connotation and I would encourage you to do your own thing don't worry what others think I know I am going to do my own thing and I'm going to continue doing my own thing so you should also do your own thing and I'm just going to keep saying that phrase do your own thing I'm not in hoodie and the Blowfish anymore y'all doing my own thing Just Do Your Own Thing get your own life I mean You Do Your Own Thing comfortable with yourself no thank you I'm doing my own thing this year then we have the phrase do your best this is a great phrase because it's so common and it just means to make the greatest effort that you possibly can and you would often use this to encourage someone I could say I want you to study hard and do your best on the exam or even though the team lost everyone did their best do your best it's all anybody can ask for I can do it just do your best I go do your best it's not too late for you to become a person of substance Russell please get my son home safely so we just talked about do your best now I want to talk about do your worst you you would think that these phrases are exact opposites because of best and worst but that not really if you tell someone do your worst it just means to do the most unpleasant or harmful things that you can so we're not talking about effort like in do your best we're talking about harm so you may often use this when there's some sort of Confrontation or competition perhaps someone is telling you that they're going to destroy your reputation and you say I'm not afraid of you do your worst and you're really challenging someone do your worst all right Monday do your worst I've lost track of the number of times I've been killed so go ahead do your worst so if you need to do your worst do your worst you've got the address of the hotel I'll be here waiting I am going to do my part and continue teaching you some useful phrases but this time with the verb have and the first phrase that I want to teach you is to have a onrack mind this means to think about one particular thing and nothing else now sometimes you may hear people use this phrase as more of a sexual innuendo suggesting that a guy has a onrack mind and is only thinking about sex but that's not always the case and to give you some more context here are some news headlines you have a one-track mind which is why multitasking is sabotaging

your productivity Kristoff Ire and maybe I'm mispronouncing the name this person is a French Sprinter and they say at the start lineup you have a onrack mind and finally you don't have to have a onrack mind to study law now let's look at some video examples using this phrase oh and then games something you have a one track mind I don't care just as long as it takes me where I want to go I have a one track mind don't I my one trck mind is telling me that I'm hungry no why not because my ex-girlfriend's getting married Jesus you got a one track mind it's always Katlyn Kaitlyn Kaitlyn next is have an in with this means to establish a connection with someone in a position of authority and often I think this phrase is kind of related to networking maybe you try to meet someone especially someone in a position of authority you try to establish a connection so that perhaps in the future you have an in with this person and it doesn't have to be someone with immense power it could just be a regular person who perhaps because of their job they have power in specific situations I could say I'll be able to get us into the concert because I have an inn with the security guard he's an old friend from high school here are some more examples maybe have an inn with a big client that we could get our foot in oh I have an end with the manager I delivered his baby and even better I have an end with the owner oh yeah we work together then there's the phrase to have mixed feelings this is another common phrase and it's used to say that you feel pleased and not pleased at the same time perhaps I ask you what do you think about the new employee policy and you say well I have mixed feelings about it I thought this was a fun example because there's a popular slogan I love New York you see it on t-shirts with a heart but I think maybe this t-shirt is a little more accurate I have mixed feelings about New York let's have a look at some more examples I have mixed feelings about being a parent I have mixed feelings about doing interviews I have mixed feelings honestly about Christmas how's that possible share the same blood the same mixed feelings towards B to have a presence of mind and really you would have a presence of mind to do something this refers to the ability to make good good decisions and react quickly and

calmly in a difficult situation or an emergency it's another way of saying that you were able to think quickly and make a good decision when the fire started she had the presence of mind to grab the fire extinguisher now I always like to inspire you so here are some inspirational quotes using this phrase presence of mind in all things I counsel be aware of thyself before all else it's very deep most important was to remain focused and always have have a presence of mine I hope that you have the presence of mind to write to me in the comments it's not necessarily an emergency but a good decision at least have the presence of mind to act civilized usually when someone has the presence of mind to ask themselves if they're going crazy it suggests they're not if I had lost my temper would I have had the presence of mine to leave my card and my insurance information then there's to have your hands tied this is used to say that someone is unable to act freely because something like a law or rule prevents it let's say that you would like my help and I would like to help you but for some reason I can't I might say sorry my hands are tied here are some more news headlines so you can get a better feel as to how this phrase is used in context fast food is targeting youths but local leaders have their hands tied border patrol agents have their hands tied priests fleas country with teen Valentine but police may have their hands tied let's have a look at some video examples totally disregard that last voicemail because you obviously have your hands tied good luck since his death my hands have been tied but I believe the universe has given us a gift you can't reward her for that my hands are tied I hope that you enjoyed the lesson and learned something new and if you did please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 33 OF 749

15 Useful Words to Say You're HAPPY

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Ioana singing: If you're happy and you know it clap your hands" How are you today? Are you happy? Maybe so-so? Well hopefully after watching this video, you'll not only feel happy, but thrilled, elated! You'll be walking on air! Because this lesson is all about happy words, or different ways to say you're happy! If improving your English makes you happy, join our social media classes. They will help you practice and improve every day.

Now, let's get to the lesson. Today, I'm going to teach you 15 words to express your happiness, because saying "I'm happy" can get a little boring sometimes, and may not fully express how you feel. So let's get to it! In this lesson, you'll learn 12 words and 3 idioms. So next time you feel happy, you'll know what to say! Joyful means feeling and expressing happiness. I think the key word here is "expressing", which means that when someone is joyful, they make sure to show their happiness. When someone is ecstatic, they're feeling or expressing overwhelming excitement or happiness. Elated means ecstatic and happy combined. Someone who's elated is in very high spirits.

This word means pleased or delighted. Glad usually takes a more subtle form of happiness, so when someone is glad, they might not be as expressive as when they're joyful. Many times you'll hear the sentence: "I'm glad to hear that" - which means you're happy, but maybe not overwhelmingly happy. Let's see another example: Someone or something that is upbeat is positive and optimistic. Lively means full of life and energy. So when someone or something is lively, we can feel that energy. Chipper is a synonym for lively, but perhaps a little more playful. Someone who is thrilled is extremely delighted or excited. Someone who is cheerful is noticeably happy and optimistic. We use blissful to describe someone or something that is happy and full of joy.

It's happiness in the purest form. The definition of euphoric is a state of extreme happiness and joy. It's like you can feel the happiness throughout your body and mind. Jolly means happy and cheerful. We usually use this word around the holidays, when we want to describe Santa Claus. While we have a preference to use it around the holidays, it's also possible to use it in everyday conversation. This idiom means blissfully happy. It's kind of a synonym for euphoric and blissful combined. When we use it, we try to say we're soooo happy, at the very pinnacle of bliss. This is another happy idiom. It means to feel elated. Over the moon is an idiom that means very pleased or delighted.

Let's practice what we've learned today! In the comments below, I want you to write a sentence about this picture using one of the words or idioms that we learned today. Got it? Easy? You'll do it? Good job! I also encourage you to read each other's sentences, because this will help reinforce your understanding of the words. Do you feel happy now? If yes, please like this video. Thanks for watching! We're thrilled, elated, over the moon to have you study English with us! We'll see you next time! Bye!

LESSON 34 OF 749

16 Useful Words & Phrases to Describe People

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

[Music] Hey everyone, my name is Wes. This is Interactive English, which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills. And today I want to help you build your vocabulary because I'm going to teach you some different words and phrases that you can use so that that you can be very specific if you want to talk about another person and describe their personality, their behavior. So there are different adjectives and and nouns that we can use to describe people. And I want to start with some adjectives. So the first word that I have for you is charismatic. other people and they can easily get people's attention. Just because you say that someone is charismatic, that does not mean that it's a good thing. It sounds like a good thing and it can be a compliment, but it does not always mean that the person you're talking about I is a good person. It's really just their behavior, the way they act, they have that influence and and they can easily get people's attention.

Well, because of the way they talk, the way they speak, and you could say that yes, this person is charismatic. The most popular scandal-free athletes of all time. He's heroic. He's charismatic. And he's retiring. the charismatic guy promising to make America great again. Incredibly charismatic. You mean to tell me this all happened cuz you were messing with the shadow man? He was very charismatic. Then we have the word chatty. And if somebody is chatty, it just means that well they like to talk a lot. Usually in a very friendly and and informal way. You could say he or she is chatty. Now, the one thing I would say about this word is that it's often used to make an observation about someone else. You you wouldn't often hear people say that, "Oh, I'm so chatty." It's not really it's not necessarily a good or a bad thing, but you would use it more to make an observation and talk about the way somebody else is acting that they are talking a lot. And you could use it to describe a person's uh somebody's personality.

She's so chatty. Maybe my parents are right. Maybe I'd be better off with an Indian girl. Something wrong. But you can start with clearing those empties. Great. I'll get right on it. Not very chatty today, are you? I don't know. Is there something you wanted to talk about? And the next word that I have for you, the next adjective is sirly. And this just means that someone is not very friendly and they're often in a bad mood. Let me show you a picture which really captures this word right here. All right. Now, we would often use these words to describe people, but you could use them to describe animals as well.

This picture, it is a perfect example of surirly because that that is one sirly cat. Sometimes you can come off a little sirly. What? I'm not sirly. That's it. She gets very sirly when you disobey a direct order. You're a different breed than our sort. You're sirly, suspicious. You don't play well with others. Then we have the phrase levelheaded. And if you describe someone as levelheaded, it means that that this person is calm and they're able to easily deal with difficult situations. And I think this is it's definitely a good thing if somebody calls you levelheaded. I think that all of us probably want to be levelheaded and and think that we can solve difficult situations and and remain calm. LA's so nice. Everyone's so genuine and level-headed.

Okay, first of all, women don't like to be called dame. Second, women appreciate calm uh levelheaded and uh responsible. Mom, I'm not stoned. I'm completely fine. In fact, I'm more clear and level-headed than I've ever been. Then we have the phrase easygoing. And this is used to describe someone who is well they're very relaxed and they they don't easily get worried or upset. And you could say that well this person they're just they're just easygoing. Nothing bothers them. They don't worry about anything because they're easygoing. I've always thought I was pretty easy going. You know it's not like I have the big issues. Disappointed with you, Margo. But you seem so easygoing. Thought you'd let me try on a dress.

What can I say? I'm an easygoing gal. Next is absent-minded. And this phrase is used to describe someone who easily forgets things or they're just not really paying attention to the things that are happening around them. And you could say that this person is a little absent-minded. I think it happens to all of us. Uh I forget things from time to time. And yeah, I would say that I can be absent-minded. waving goodbye with an absentminded smile. I thought you'd know about it. And so we do. Of course we do. I'm sorry I was being absent minded. Oh yes. Oh yes, of course. She is an old dear but a little absent minded. Then I have a couple of phrases that I'm going to put them together. And that is above average and below average. And these phrases are used to describe uh someone that is well higher or lower or better or worse than the usual amount or level. So you would use these phrases just to be a little more specific about your opinion as to this person's perhaps

Then we have the adjective grumpy. And if you say that someone is grumpy, it means that they are easily annoyed and maybe they're usually complaining. They're always they're complaining about something. You could say, "Gosh, you're you're always so grumpy." And to give you another example, let's just bring up another cat here. This is a picture of a grumpy cat. Now, let's switch and talk about some nouns that can be used to describe people. And the first one, because we just talked about someone who may be grumpy, is a grump. All right, we can use this word as a noun as well. And a grump is a person who's not a very friendly person and that it's somebody who usually is complaining about something. You could say that this person is a grump. Or you could have a little fun with the word and throw the adjective and noun together and say that somebody is a grumpy grump. They are really complaining a lot. They're a grumpy grump. Stanley Hudson is a grump. Everybody knows that. Miss Melons is out today. So we have Mr.

Cooper teach us biology. SUCH A GRANDMA. NO WAY. I bet you'd make way more money being nice than being a big grumpy grump to everyone all the time. The next noun that I have for you is a jack of all trades. And if you say that somebody is a jack of all trades, it refers to a person that is capable of doing many different jobs and they would typically do those jobs well. And when I say different jobs, I'm talking about a variety of of really different things. So perhaps somebody is able to fix cars. This person is a great programmer. This person is an excellent cook and they can do all of these different things and they are very capable at doing them. You could say that he or she is a jack of all trades. What if Big Head is sort of like a floating utility player? Kind of like a like a jack of all trades.

Listen, I'm so much more. Um I'm kind of a jack of all trades, if you will. The next phrase I have for you is a darkhorse. And this just refers to a person who is not expected to succeed or win, but then they suddenly do. They they suddenly do win. And you could say that this person, wow, they were a darkhorse, but they won the competition. So often it is used in that context when talking about some competition. Oo, a dark horse candidate. Late entry to the race. But what's this? I don't know. A dark horse is challenging G. Any contestants worth mentioning? Maybe. There's kind of a dark horse in the running. So, uh, here it is one more time. The dark horse for this year's Christmas number one. Christmas is all around.

Thank you, Billy. Then we have the phrase black sheep, which refers to a person who embarrasses a group or a family because they're they're different in some way and perhaps they've done something they've gotten into trouble or they've done something wrong and because of that and they've embarrassed the family, you could say that he or she is a black sheep. Now, it does not always have to mean that that they've done something wrong. It could just be that that they're just different in some way and maybe everybody else thinks it's a little strange. brother, sister, aunt, uncle, cousin who is a little different from everyone else. And maybe other people think that that it's a little strange. You could say that that this person is a black sheep. Third brother in the middle, Gary. I heard him. Yeah, the black sheep. The drunk. Do you know what's a black sheep?

No. It's like when you're different to everyone else. The cones are like family, Neil. Maybe they're about to become the black sheep. Everybody thinks I'm the black sheep. Well, I'll show them what a black sheep can do. Then we have the phrase know-it-all. And this refers to a person that just they think they know everything. and you could describe them and say that he or she is a know-it-all. And this is a phrase that it's you wouldn't use it as a compliment. So, it's not something you would say about yourself, but if somebody else they they're not being very humble and they're they're being a little too proud. They think they're so smart. You could tell them and say, "Oh, you're such a know-it-all." Which means you're not taking your s word like you should. You're such a know-it-all. She's so rigid and demanding here. She's a complete know-it-all.

Hey, it's me, the know-it-all. What are you doing here? Next is the phrase wise guy. And this refers to a person who is trying to be clever in a way that's a little annoying. So typically you would say this to a person not really to be very mean to them but really just kind of call them out on the way they are behaving the way they're acting. They're trying to be clever but they're really being a little annoying and say you're such you're such a wise guy. Stop stop being such a wise guy. DELIVERY RIGHT HERE. I CAUGHT A BAD PEPPERONI. A wise guy. Okay. Okay. Hey, who's the wise guy?

Hey. Hey. Hey, does this look like a petting zoo to you? Huh? Okay. All right, wise guy, you just earned a timeout. Then we have the phrase stick in the mud. And this is this is one of my favorite phrases. Uh it's it's a noun that's used to describe somebody who is old-fashioned and they just kind of want to avoid having fun. If somebody does not like to have fun and they're kind of ruining it for everyone else, you could say that they are a stick in the mud. Typically, if somebody is a a surirly person and maybe they're just complaining because they're so grumpy, you could tell them that that they are a stick in the mud as well.

Why don't you take a few pictures, have a few laughs? Jeez, Eddie, what a stick in the mud. You were a stick in the mud when we judged that beauty pageant and you're being a stick in the mud now. I am not a stick in the mud. I just want to stop a party from happening. Then we have the phrase yes man. And this is talking about a person who is always trying to please a superior and they are saying things and doing things in order to please that person. I I I think it's often used in the context of uh work because if somebody is always trying to make their boss happy and whatever their boss asks them to do, they just say yes. Andy's a yes man. Not all the time. Sometimes I'll say I don't like something. And he says he doesn't like it either. It's very presidential of me, don't you think? Absolutely. You're not turning into a yes man, are you? I'm becoming a corporate yes man. Like, yes, Mr. George Bush. Whatever you say, Mr. George Bush. Then we have the word sitter. Now, this noun refers to someone who who takes care of of someone else. Now, I I think the word is shortened. Typically, it's used to refer to a babysitter. a babysitter, someone who takes care and looks after a baby. But it could be shortened to just a sitter. You can also use this with other nouns as well. For example, you could say that somebody is a housesitter and they are taking care and looking after another person's house. Or perhaps they are a dog sitter or a catsitter and they are taking care of somebody else's pets. A babysitter, a house sitter, a cats sitter, a dog sitter, a pet sitter. I think that's about it for for sitters. Three cities in six days. My head is just pounding. I'm not ready for a dinner party.

I already got a sitter. Can you cancel her? So, what you're saying is if I can get an acceptable babysitter here before you leave, I can go patrol. Babysitter? I'm 14. I'm old enough to be a babysitter. And thank you for reminding me I can't find a freaking catsitter. I'm not going. Ch's regular dog sitter is ill. I wonder if he'd know enough to go to my brother's place. They in Paris. Maybe they have a house sitter. So, I hope you learn some new words and phrases, and I'm sure that you will remember them because you are not absent-minded. You You are a very levelheaded person. You will remember these words and phrases. And I I hope that you can use them if you're having a conversation.

Maybe you're feeling a little chatty and you're talking to other people and you can practice using these words and phrases and just tell them how much you know. but maybe they will think that you are a know-it-all. All right, if you enjoyed the lesson, please hit that like button. As always, thanks so much for watching and I'll see you next

LESSON 35 OF 749

17 Education Idioms & Phrases | Build your informal vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hey everyone welcome to today's lesson which is all about idioms and expressions and this is very useful because we often use idioms in informal conversation so this is going to be very good for your listening comprehension as well as your speaking fluency if you want to try and use these idioms depending on the situation that you're in so the idioms and expressions we will talk about today are all dealing with education so these are phrases that we have taken from education because they have to do with learning they have to do with school and that's how they started that's where they came from but often you're able to use them in a variety of contexts and a variety of situations so the first one that I have for you and this is one that I I it happens to me and that is to draw a blank and when somebody draws a blank means that they have no answer or no response to a question that was asked of them or it could also be used that if you're trying to think of something and you can't come come up with the answer or you can't come up with a response you could then tell somebody you know sorry right now I'm drawing a blank I can't think of an answer I'm drawing a blank cool can open again tomorrow explain to me again how that's a good thing drawing a blank reconstructive surgery I don't know I don't know Tony think I'm drawing a blank babe Peter I don't know why I'm drawing a blank on his last name Peter the next expression is back to the basics and when somebody goes back to the basics it's it's kind of exactly what it says you are returning to the beginning not only that but you're going back to the beginning and you're going to use a traditional method or a traditional approach that was successful in the past so oftentimes when you're going to try something people like to use new ideas and explore different options but they don't always work and if they don't work then somebody might say you know okay we need to go back to the basics because this other method worked in the past we need to go back and try it and use that method so we'll go back to the basics it's back to the basics classic Itchy and Scratchy it's a little similar to back to the drawing board in that case you are also going back to the beginning but this time you're going back to the beginning and you're starting over because what you did before wasn't successful so it doesn't really have to do with the method or approach that you're using it just means that you tried something it didn't work we got to go back to the drawing board and we'll try it again and again and again and again until we finally are successful wow okay that's not gonna work back to the drawing board all right everyone it's back to the drawing board Eagle rejected all of our ideas the next idiom is a copycat so this is an idiom that that comes from education I think all of us can relate to this when you're studying in school there are students that that cheat and they may copy off of another student and when you're copying somebody else that person can be referred to as a copycat they are copying your answers they're a copycat we can also use it in the sense of imitating somebody else if you are copying a person's uh movements if you're copying their gestures if you're copying the way that they speak then you could say that yes they are a copycat because you were yawning so I've I've just beyond so you're a copycat I know you wanted one for your hobby shop the janitor already gave me one nobody likes a copy the next idiom is to cover a lot of ground and when somebody says you know okay we're going to cover a lot of ground it's talking about you are covering a range of topics a lot of information so it's very common I think that in a classroom the teacher might say Okay throughout the semester we're going to cover a lot of ground there's going to be a lot of different things we're going to research a lot of different things we're going to do a lot of topics we're going to discuss we're going to cover a lot of ground so this idiom applies to school but it applies to basically anything that it is that you're learning so if you're learning about photography maybe you're learning yoga any type of class you could say yeah we're covering a lot of ground in this course we're specifically talking about building your vocabulary but at the same time there is so much information that you're learning about Advanced vocabulary idioms phrasal verbs we're covering a lot of ground well I've been picked up for loan sharking and racketeering but never convicted racketeering that covers a lot of ground then we've covered a lot of ground thank you this was very helpful we have to start early we've got a lot of ground to cover rule number one you can't question my ways then we have show of hands and this just means when a group of people would raise their hands in order to vote on something or or perhaps somebody would like to get information I think it's related back to school because in school teachers would ask questions to students and then they would raise their hands they wanted to give the answer to a question so this idiom is it's applicable I think any time that you're giving a presentation in front of another group of people whether it's at school or work or or just in any setting where you're speaking in front of an audience and you ask them a question and you want them to raise their hand you want them to be engaged in your presentation and then you could just start by saying Okay show of hands who has I don't know had some experience and people would raise their hands show of hands who has learned new vocabulary in this course I hope all of you are raising your hands right now and you're not drawing a blank okay anyone in this room think that I would accent Ross begging signals both hands again show of hands who here is familiar with the concept of topological insulators then we have to drop out of school and this is actually a phrasal verb and when somebody drops out of school it just means that they leave school they're they're not attending anymore and they didn't finish they didn't graduate they didn't finish the the program that they're in and they would drop out of school or drop out of the class or drop out of the program can also use it as a noun and refer to the person as a Dropout so if you say that somebody is a Dropout then that just means that yes they dropped out of school they didn't finish their schooling and finished the program whatever it is they're learning they're a Dropout I uh heard you dropped out of school why'd you drop out of school rummy tell you I decided drop off school and turn pro oh you're a College Dropout I'm a high school dropout she's also a police the next idiom has the word School in it and you could say that someone is from the old school or someone is of the old school and what this means is that a person is holding on to traditional values and beliefs that are not really relevant today or not relevant in the present so often I think it might be used in the context of perhaps a work environment and you're having to work with with other people and maybe somebody wants to uh try this old traditional method they have beliefs that were popular in the past but not so much anymore you could say you know well this person they're from the old school or they're of the old school you could also use it to say that an idea is from the old school or of the old school holding on to those traditional beliefs not really relevant in the present a kid I shouldn't have to explain myself from the old school don't raise your hands you give her your last name I haven't been my red Cardinals everything else I'm old school the next phrase is one that I really like and that is just a for effort so in school people will often get letter grades a b c d a is a a really good job so if somebody says the phrase a for effort they're talking about the effort that you put into it they are recognizing that that you put a lot of effort into something and they would tell you A for effort often I think it's said when somebody tries really hard to achieve something to accomplish some goal but they didn't quite get there and somebody could tell them you know you gave it your best a for effort and we can use this in a variety of context in which somebody is trying to do something maybe they're trying to learn something it didn't work out in the end but you could tell them A for effort to relate this back to one of my own experience variances I often think of of you know me trying to cook and I'm not a very good cook I I will try to cook different meals different dishes they don't always taste the best but at the same time I I could tell myself or somebody might tell me you know a for effort you tried you worked really hard even though the food doesn't taste like an A but I tried a for effort I don't do apologies so good will you get an A for effort this is amazing good um we're making progress a forever right then we have to learn something by heart and when somebody learns something by heart it just means that they have learned it really well they can do something automatically really with without even thinking about it because they've studied it again and again and again and they've learned it by heart so throughout this course we're just learning new vocabulary new idioms Expressions phrasal verbs and we're trying to repeat them over and over again that spaced repetition and in the end I hope that you're able to learn these words and their meanings by heart you're able to learn them by heart so that when you hear them in a conversation you understand what that person's trying to say but also when you're having a conversation you'll be able to speak and express your thoughts and opinions easily and accurately because you've learned these words by heart so please don't become a Dropout don't drop out of the course because if you do the next time you're having a conversation you will probably draw a blank and you won't be able to answer them because you didn't learn these words and phrases by heart so as you can see I can use these idioms naturally to express an idea to convey an opinion and now you understand them because you know their meaning also learn the municipal code you will learn them by heart okay so the next set of idioms they they all have the same meaning and that is to cut class to skip class or to play hooky and all three of these phrases they mean the same thing and it just means to to not go to class and not attend your lessons so somebody could cut class means the same thing as somebody who who skips class which means the same thing if somebody plays hooky they just don't go mostly hear in spoken English or use when you're having a conversation observing the school so that I can better evaluate applicants cool I'm cutting class cutting class is never a good idea did you know that Ari had been skipping her classes want to play hooky today oh maybe what do you got in mind we can do anything you want next is the idiom school of thought so when you're talking about the school of thought it just means that it's like a philosophy a way of thinking about some topic or some issue it's often used in the context like I think of somebody saying you know the general school of thought about some issue is this so when you want to talk about the the philosophy behind a certain topic you could just start out the sentence and say well the school of thought is this this is the the general philosophy the belief about this topic the school of thought Tyler is the one school of thought says they don't know nothing there are some schools of thought who of course say there are no other wines but Reds the next expression is to teach someone a lesson so again education school people are learning many lessons and they're learning all these new things but this is a little different because when you teach someone a lesson somebody needs to learn something but they need to learn something because they've done something wrong so if you say you know I'm going to teach this person a lesson they've done something wrong and instead of punishing them you're going to do something so that they realize they understand okay yeah I made a mistake thanks for teaching me the lesson I'm tempted to kiss again I see we could teach them a lesson why would that teach them a lesson I say you continue to grow accumulate power find this investor buy his business to teach him a lesson so you can teach somebody a lesson and then that other person will learn a lesson and learn a lesson it's kind of similar and that somebody made a mistake they did something wrong and they need to learn that and you'd say okay yes I learned my lesson I understand what I did wrong I learned my lesson so you can teach somebody a lesson and then that person will learn a lesson at least I hope that they learn a lesson because you don't want them to make that mistake again I hope you learned your lesson I hope you learned your lesson yeah sure did okay making fun of people is wrong then we have two expressions that are the exact same they're both phrasal verbs they have the same meaning and that is to goof off or to goof around and when somebody Goofs off or when they goof around it means that they're just wasting time they are procrastinating

they are playing around they're not being serious you could say yes somebody is goofing off or maybe you might tell them hey stop goofing around we need to get serious we need to finish our work stop goofing off I definitely think of this in school especially when I would teach children that it's hard sometimes to keep their attention it's very normal for them to get up want to move around and you might say Hey you know we need to stop goofing off stop goofing around let's let's get serious let's focus focus on what I'm trying to say even adults let's be honest I think we've all done it especially whether it's at school or at work we're not very serious we're wasting time and we're goofing around I think we've all done that are we gonna be goofing off like this every day uh we're not goofing off we're creating musical Fusion it's titled 101 ways to goof off at the office that's all the goofing around at Pam's desk and and hanging out with Pam it's finally caught up to him I was just goofing around then we have the idiom hit the books now to hit the books yeah you're not punching a book it's not it's not like that but what it means is to study really hard so in this case it's often used when talking about school or education that you're preparing for an exam you need to study really hard and you're going to hit the books so for example maybe you're preparing for some exam and your friend says hey let's go out tonight let's go do something and say Hey you know I can't do that I gotta hit the books I gotta hit the books because I need to prepare for an exam I I need to study really hard hit the books law school buddy I've been hitting the books pretty hard lately looks like he's interested in hitting more than the books dad I mean not not the one of those nerdy guys well I'll uh I'll let you to hit the books better go hit the books if I'm gonna use this test nice meeting you though another great idiom which I really like and it does apply to me perhaps it's applied to you at some point and that is to pull an all-nighter and if somebody pulls an all-nighter it just means that they have stayed up all night or they've just stayed up really late to study and to finish their work so at school I think quite often people will wait until the last minute to do their work they will procrastinate and then they have to work all night in order to finish and they have to pull an all-nighter so it also applies to work if you have to finish a report or a project and you have to work all night in order to finish then you would pull an all-nighter I think we can all relate to this because I've had deadlines before and they've been difficult to meet those deadlines and in order to do so I have to pull an all-nighter sometimes you might have to pull a few all-nighters in order to meet a deadline and to finish your work on time pull an all-nighter did this take you about 12 hours I pulled an all-nighter we've been pulling all-nighters to cram for this midterm tonight they need it first thing in the morning Peterson says we might be pulling an all-nighter so I hope you're able to learn all of these idioms by

that's just going to help you in the long run and even even some of these idioms over time and you hear somebody use one and you draw a blank and you can't remember the meaning or you want to use one in conversation and you draw a blank don't worry as long as you keep practicing hey I'll give you an a for effort and even now I hope that as I just have this conversation and I'm talking to you and I'm using these idioms that you can comprehend them and understand what I'm saying so show of hands who learns something new and found this lesson easy to follow and understand I hope all of you are raising your hands keep working hard keep hitting the books and I will see you

next

LESSON 36 OF 749

17 Super Useful Ways to Become FLUENT FAST

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today I'm going to talk to you about exactly what you need to do to become fluent and become fluent fast. That's coming up. [Music] What's up everyone? My name is Wes. This is Interactive English, which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills. And today I want to talk to you about how you can achieve English fluency and do so quickly. And the way that you're going to do that is by creating an English bubble. and you are going to surround yourself with the English language. It's like your own personal learning environment. And I want to talk to you about some useful ways in which you can shape that bubble and what you need to do in order to achieve fluency quickly.

Everybody can do it and that is read every day. I tell this to learners all the time and this is probably one of the best habits that you can get into because reading is going to help you build your vocabulary. you'll be able to see how correct grammar structures are being used. And you know, I understand that it's not possible to take a long book and read something every day. But just start with something simple and easy and even short. You can read a newspaper article or even just something that you read online. As long as you read something every day, then that is a huge step that you are taking towards achieving English fluency. The next thing that you can do is take some online classes.

The third thing you can do is listen to a podcast. And the reason I say you should listen to a podcast is because it's like you're listening to a conversation. When you're listening to a podcast, you don't have images that you can follow so that you understand what people are talking about. You really have to pay attention to what it is that you're hearing and try to put a picture in your mind. So, it's really a great way to hone your listening skills and understand conversational English. Another part of the English bubble is writing down new words and phrases. If you write down new words and phrases that you're learning, then then you're keeping a record of everything that you should review because that means that you can go back one week later or one month later, review the material.

Number five is focus on language that is suitable to you. And what I mean by that is not everybody's trying to learn the exact same thing in English. For example, you want to learn new vocabulary. then they may not need to study the vocabulary of a pilot. So, take that into consideration when you're trying to figure out, okay, what should I be studying? Think about what it is that you do, what is your job, what what are the things that you like? And those are the words and phrases that you should focus on learning. Those are the words and phrases that you should be writing down because this is the information that you want to use when you're having a conversation.

You're going to talk about your job. You're going to talk about the things that you're interested in. And if you have that information that's suitable to you, then you're going to be able to talk about these things easily and fluently. Number six is study other things in English. is a language learning method called content integrated language learning. And basically what this is is that you are learning about another topic, but you are doing so in English. This is what they do at international schools. You are studying other subjects in English. You are learning about math in English. You are learning about science in English. So again, think about those things that you are interested in. Maybe you like cars or sports or gardening and use that to learn English. Read about those things in English. Take some online classes about those things in English. This is what it means to form that English bubble and surround yourself with the language. Number seven, watch more of our lessons. We have over 200 English lessons to help you guys practice and improve your English skills. Many of them are interactive. We want you guys to be active language learners, and actually practice your listening skills, practice your speaking skills, practice your writing skills. That's what it's all about. So, go to our YouTube channel, scroll through the lessons, find one that you haven't seen, watch it, and then write to us in the comments. Number eight is find a study partner. This could be a friend, a family member, you could even talk to yourself in the mirror. The most important thing is that that you are practicing your skills. And if you're able to find a study partner, it's useful because it's going to help keep you motivated. It's also going to make you accountable to learning the language because you're bringing somebody else into your bubble.

you don't have a study partner, don't give up. Don't get discouraged. Just keep looking. Keep practicing. That is the most important thing. Number nine, start thinking in English. This is a great way to practice your skills that I don't think many people even consider. And it's something that's very easy to do because there are moments during the day where you you might not be doing anything. Maybe you're riding on a bus or maybe you're walking down the street. If you're able to take those moments, those brief moments, and say to yourself, okay, for the next minute, I'm just going to think in English. Whatever thoughts that are going on in my head, I'm just going to think about them in English. I'm going to think about those things that I see in English. I'm going to think about what it is that I feel in English.

If you can set aside a brief moment during the day to say, okay, I'm going to think in English. Then you are practicing all of your skills. You were using your vocabulary. You were using your grammar. you are using your pronunciation because you're speaking using your inside voice. And the more exposure that you get to the language, the stronger that your English bubble is, then this is just going to start happening naturally. You're just going to start thinking in English on your own. So, start thinking in English to start achieving fluency. weaknesses. If you can identify your weaknesses and focus on those, then that is going to help your overall fluency.

For example, listening is the most difficult language skill for me. So, whenever I'm learning another language, I I have to work extra hard when it comes to listening. And that also means that I need more listening exposure. I need to listen to more music. I need to listen to more conversations because the more listening exposure I get, the more I'll be able to improve my skills. And that means that my language skills are going to be more balanced because when we're talking about fluency, then we're talking about everything. We're not just talking about one language skill.

Number 11, develop a routine. this is a great habit to get into because if you're able to tell yourself okay I am going to study at this time on these days then that's going to help you keep track of your progress as well as make you accountable for your own learning. So if you're able to say okay on this day I'm going to read at this time I'm going to think in English and you can develop a routine and stick to that routine week after week after week then you will notice a huge difference in your fluency. Number 12, use subtitles to match words and phrases with their correct pronunciation. This this is very useful and it's something that I tell learners to do all the time. I understand that there are many people out there, they just want to focus on their listening skills and they don't want to use subtitles.

you'll be able to say them correctly. So, there's a lot of value in using subtitles to reinforce the correct pronunciation, which in turn improves your fluency. Number 13, practice your writing, even if it's just a little bit. And and again, try to do it each day. So, we've talked about reading, we've talked about listening, we've talked about finding a study partner so you can practice your speaking. Please, please, please do not forget about writing. It's easy, it's simple. You can write to us in the comments right now. It doesn't have to be a long message, but you're just practicing your language skills, and that's what it's all about because that's what's going to help you develop your fluency. Number 14 is stay around your level. And when I say this, I'm talking about listening and reading. So, for example, often learners will tell me, "I understand everything that you're saying, but when I turn on a movie, I don't understand anything." Well, that's because I naturally speak slower, especially after many, many, many years of teaching English. Somebody like me, I'm going to be easier to understand, which means that if you understand everything I'm saying, then this might be more to your level.

And when you practice at your level, that is when you give yourself the most benefit to improve your listening skills as well as your reading skills. Read at the appropriate level. So remember, when you're in your bubble, try to stay at your level or even just a little above your level. That's going to help you improve the most. The next thing that I want you to do is be realistic with your expectations. I've had learners ask me before, they say, you know, if I work really hard, can I learn English in 3 months? Everybody is a different type of learner. Some people are able to learn languages within two months. If if you're like me, then it's going to take you a longer time. The ultimate goal, the reason for creating this language learning environment, the reason for creating your English bubble is so that you can move as fast as you can for the type of learner that you are. Try not to worry too much about time because that might just raise your anxiety and and fill you more with stress and that's just going to make it harder to learn. But if you're able to do the things that I've been telling you to do, read a little bit each day, keep a notebook of new words and phrases, watch our videos, then you will be creating this English bubble. Then I promise you, you will be learning as fast as you possibly can.

Number 16, start a conversation. And when I say this, I I don't necessarily mean a conversation in which you are speaking to another person. If you can do that, then that's great. What I mean is try to find other ways to connect with people. Think about again what are those things that you're interested in. Let's say for example you are interested in fashion. Well, search different Facebook groups that talk about fashion and that the common language is in English. Start a conversation. Share the information that you know about fashion and try to connect with those people because again you're connecting with them in English. You might find somebody that you can write with back and forth and practice your English skills.

Maybe you'll be able to connect with them and actually have a spoken conversation with them. Again, you'll be practicing your English skills. So, I encourage you be proactive.

Start a conversation. It's going to help you connect with other people's so that you can improve your skills and achieve fluency. Number 17, don't be afraid to give your brain a rest. I I know that we talked about learning English fast, but again, you are going to learn as fast as you possibly can if you're going to be able to create this English bubble. But I know from time to time you might need a break. If that break is a few days, if that break is a week, it goes back to setting a schedule as well as having realistic expectations. But I understand we are not robots. If you need to give your brain a rest, then I encourage you to do so.

And if you're able to set that routine and keep that schedule, then you'll give yourself a break. And then when it's time, you'll jump back into it. And that is going to help you achieve English fluency, which is the ultimate goal. What I want you to do now is take all of those suggestions and use them to create your English bubble and surround yourself with the language because that is going to help you achieve fluency and achieve it quickly. If you enjoyed this lesson, please hit that like button.

LESSON 37 OF 749

17 Writing Tips That Will Help You Write Like a Pro!

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

writing is an incredibly useful way to communicate and that's why we should continue to improve our writing skills and this is not a one-time thing this is something that we should really be doing throughout our lifetime and that's why I want to share with you 17 practical tips to help you become a better writer and I'm going to share tips for structure style Clarity vocabulary and grammar now I know we're talking about writing but these first few tips are more about reading and the first one that I have for you is to read read your work out loud this is so simple yet people do not always do this and hearing your words out loud it's another way of processing information and that's why it can help you identify awkward phrasing repetition or just errors in the general flow of your writing so just listen to the following sentence maybe I'm writing a story and now I'm reading it out loud and I say I inquired for a discount and he was gentle enough to give me one when you hear this you're probably thinking wait sounds a little strange and there are a couple of reasons why the first one is inquired for in this case you would either inquire about something or ask for something either one of those works the other reason why it sounds a little weird is you're not going to say someone was gentle enough to do something a very common collocation is to say someone is kind enough to do something for you so when you read your work out loud it's really going to stop and make you think does this sound right the next tip is to proofread multiple times this is something that's overlooked some people don't do it at all and others may just do it once and that's it but when you proofread multiple rounds you're more likely to catch different types of Errors ranging from punctuation to the organization of ideas so the more that you proofread the more likely you are to catch mistakes it's like uh the more you practice a presentation the more likely you are to give a better presentation so definitely proof read multiple times something else you should be doing is reading your writing backwards and I I know this may sound a little strange so hear me out I want you to start at the end start with that last sentence and then read all the way back to the beginning and I'm not talking about reading the individual words backwards I'm talking about the sentences so why does this help when you read backwards you're able to concentrate more on the individual sentences so that you can find more technical mistakes like typos or grammar you're not going to get distracted by the general flow of the story and you can focus more on removing those small silly mistakes this next one is extremely important and it's also probably one of the more difficult ones I want you to read widely and consistently and this would require a fair bit of time because reading your own writing is just not the only thing you should be reading you should read different things read articles story books academic text there are a lot of different benefits to doing this because well you're going to get exposure to different writing styles you're going to be able to see the correct grammar structure you'll be able to build your vocabulary and not to mention I think it's just going to help you be more creative reading is going to greatly complement your writing these two skills go hand in hand now that we've covered reading let's talk about other tips like write every day just like read in consistently this is a great daily Habit to develop daily writing builds fluency which allows for constant Improvement and refinement use active voice this is a grammatical structure in which the subject of the sentence performs the action so we have an active sentence like my grandfather built the house versus a passive sentence like the house was built by my grandfather when you use the active voice it's going to make your writing more engaging direct and really just easier to understand that does not mean that you will never use the passive voice but for the vast majority of sentences you write you will use the active voice so make sure that you do that you should also vary sentence structure basically there are four different types of sentence structures simple I wake up early in the morning for work compound I get in my car and I drive into the city complex when I get to work I have meetings with my colleagues and compound complex after the workday ends my colleagues and I go to a pub but we never stay out too late changing sentence length and structure maintains reader interest and prevents monotony so vary your sentences variety is a good thing I would also encourage you to use strong verbs in my opinion verbs are perhaps the most important words in the sentence because they are descriptive and they give us a lot of information so when you use strong verbs it's going to help make your writing more Dynamic and precise to give you a quick example there are many common verbs like walk but there are other strong verbs that are really going to capture the reader's attention like trudge or Scamper or limp these verbs give us a lot more information the next tip is to use punctuation correctly this is when simple mistakes are often made and according to grammarly there are 14 different punctuation marks in English you absolutely need to use the most common ones correctly the period or full stop the comma and the question mark you will use these all the time when you're writing and I would even include the use of capitalization proper punctuation helps ensure Clarity and prevents misunderstandings perhaps you are familiar with this English meme let's eat Grandma versus let's eat eat Grandma punctuation saves lives it's true something else you should be doing eliminate wordiness and this is something you really can do as your proof reading multiple times though remember concise writing is clearer and more impactful and it's going to help the reader focus on your key message to give you a very quick example if I were to write something like I started my new job alongside the brother of my friend be careful with the preposition of we can make this more concise and I could write my friend's brother instead something to be mindful of I I come across this quite often now let's talk about a few things to avoid like avoid repetition and in this case writing and speaking are similar because people will notice if you continuously use the same vocabulary and that's why it's important to continuously use a variety of words and phrases repetition can make your writing feel tedious and redundant and being mindful of this will help keep your writing fresh and you'll be able to continuously improve your writing you're probably wondering why does he keep saying continuously I told you people will notice you should also avoid jargon and over complicated terms and this is when I think people may try to do a little too much when it comes to their language skills of course I think it's great to vary vocabulary but you don't need to use really Advanced words all the time unless you're writing for a very specific professional audience plain language is usually most effective and please do not go to the thesaurus and find a word that's really impressive even though you're not exactly sure how it's used and substitute it for plain language not all synonyms are used in the same context I see people do this all the time and it can make sentences sound very awkward you should also avoid cliches it goes without saying that cliches weaken your your writing making it sound unoriginal and predictable so better safe than sorry you really need to think outside the box and I'm sure you're you're picking up on the fact that I'm using some different cliches right now another practical tip is to outline before writing you need to organize your thoughts especially when it comes to academic writing outlining ensures that your writing has a clear structure and logical flow now if you're writing an email I would not expect that you come up with an outline however if you're writing an essay or a formal report an outline is a must it does not take long and it's going to make the writing process much smoother whenever you put pen to paper or hands to keyboard you should also use transitions bottom line it makes your writing easier to read Because transition words and phrases help guide The Reader through your thoughts and create smooth connections between ideas and and because you have an outline you'll be able to visually see where you need to use transitions which will then help you choose the appropriate words and phrases here is one of my favorite tips revise don't just edit often when people review their work they're they're looking for typos grammar mistakes redundancies which which is good don't get me wrong but that is part of editing you also need to revise and revising involves improving the overall structure and Clarity while editing Focus is on the smaller details like spelling and grammar so perhaps you need to reorganize some of your thoughts in order to make a stronger point do not be afraid to move things around I also think it's incredibly important to get feedback from others and sure it can be challenging to find other people to read your writing however fresh eyes can spot mistakes or areas of improvement that you might miss this is just a fact you may proofread something mult multiple times and then the first time that someone else reads your writing they spot a mistake that you miss and it can be frustrating because you think how how how did I miss this but it just reinforces the value of getting another set of eyes to read your work and give you some objective feedback so right now I would like you to practice your writing skills by writing to me in the comments you can write anything you want I just love hearing from you if you enjoyed this lesson and learned something new you can let me know by hitting that that like button as always thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 38 OF 749

1 HOUR LESSON - Advanced Grammar In Use

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I have an in-depth Advanced one-hour grammar lesson for you in which we are going to cover a variety of topics prepositions of place could have should have would have I have a challenging quiz for you and much more I've taken some of my best Advanced grammar lessons and put them together in this one video Lesson and if you are someone who enjoys improving your grammar skills Please Subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals so without further Ado

let's begin with prepositions which preposition should we use to complete this sentence in on or at actually you could use any of them all of them are correct it really just depends on the context and that's what I want to do in today's lesson I want to break it down for you so that you easily understand how to use each of these prepositions when talking about place and I'm also going to give you a little bit of a mini quiz at the end to see how much you've learned also if you'd like to get a PDF copy of today's lesson just click on the link Down Below in the description so let's begin with in and when you're thinking about in think about an enclosed space that you are surrounded on all sides and I I want to give you some well General ideas as to when you would use this preposition so you will use in to talk about locations within a larger area how many people live in this town you'll use in with a car taxi or van if I were to say hey we're waiting in the car it's used to talk about workplaces or Industries if someone asks where do you work I work in human resources or I work in fashion and if if you've seen many of my video lessons you you know I absolutely do not work in fashion it's my yeah my Fashion's pretty bad you would use in with water let's all get in the pool or the expression there's plenty of fish in the sea so again we're talking about the sea we're talking about water and you would use this expression to say that well if somebody's single and they're looking to have a relationship and find a partner you're saying this to to encourage them to keep looking that there's somebody out there for them don't give up hope there's plenty of fish in the sea we use this preposition with class I'm having trouble paying attention in class I'm enclosed in this space and we also use it with printed materials if you don't know the meaning of a word you can look it up in the dictionary and you can think about it that well that word it's surrounded by other pages so it's in the dictionary so just keep these in mind when you're thinking about in and now let's talk about on and when you will use this preposition and when it comes to on I want you to think about a a surface that something is attached to or touching something else so we use on to refer to the position of something on any surface your coffee is on the table I found some money on the sidewalk it's used to talk about a floor in a building I work on the seventh floor it also describes the position along a road or river or or by the sea or a lake I could say the car is on the road the boat is on the river again it's on that surface or or I could even say I grew up on the East Coast so I'm talking about the coast where I grew up on that surface and I would say on the East Coast so when you're talking about the coast East West West use on now the next few are technically not on the surface but I I still want you to use on so we're going to use it when talking about being on public transit like a bus or a plane I'm on a bus heading downtown or I'm on a plane to Chicago and I I know this can be a little tricky because we use in with a car like you're you're surrounded you're inclosed so one way to think about it is that you're going to use in with with smaller vehicles and you'll use on with larger modes of transportation but again there's always exceptions because you're still going to use on with a bike or motorcycle on a bike or on a motorcycle we use the preposition on with left or right my house is on the left oh no no no sorry it's on the right and we'll use this preposition with media as well did you see the new show on Netflix or you may be watching this lesson on YouTube so just just keep all of this in mind when it comes to using on so now let's talk about at and when to use this preposition and and when you think about at I want you to think of a point a specific location or position so of course we're going to use at when we're referring to the position or location as a point I I could say there's a package at the front door we use it to refer to an address I live at 44 Main Street and

and this can be a little confusing because if we're just talking about the street then we'll use on I live on Main Street on that surface but if I give the specific location 44 Main Street well now we're talking about a point so we're going to use at we use this preposition to refer to most shops or public places and and in this case I want you to think about a large your point so I I could say I'm shopping at the mall and you would use at even if you are in the mall because if somebody were to ask you like

hey where are you they're they're typically asking about your location so that's why you would use at and say I'm shopping at the mall we use it to refer to group activities I could ask you how many people were at your party we also use it with school or university I studied at a top Notch University and that's not really true I studied at a party school but you get the point with either of those we're going to use at and we use this preposition with work or home I could really say that right now I'm working at home so this should give you a better idea as to when you would use at now let's go back to our original sentence and I told you that all three prepositions are correct it it really just depends on on the context so if I say I'm in the lake well that just means that I'm physically in the water I'm surrounded by the water if I were to say I'm on the lake well now I'm talking about the surface so it it really implies that I'm probably on a boat and I'm out on the water and I'm on the lake and if I were to say I'm at the lake well now I'm talking about a specific location even though it's a larger area

if somebody were to ask where are you then I would say I'm at the lake because we're talking about location and right now I want to test your knowledge I have a little mini quiz for you I'm going to give you a sentence and I want you to think well which preposition best completes it in on or at I'll give you a moment to think about it and then I'll tell you the answer so your first sentence is I found a mistake M the first page which preposition would you use the answer is on so in this case we're talking about the surface of the page on the first page I found a mistake on the first page so so just keep this in mind if we're talking about a page we're going to use on and that is a little tricky because remember we're going to use in when talking about printed materials like a book so something is on a page but in a book here's your next sentence she felt proud the end of her month-long Journey what do you think the correct answer is at she felt proud at the end of her month-long Journey because we're talking about that that point that location she's at the end of her journey and these are really common phrases with at if we're talking about well at the beginning of something or at the end of something then there's this sentence there are no public toilets the city center the correct answer is in there are no public toilets in the city center we're going to use in because we're talking about a location within a larger area here's a question for you do you have anything your pockets I I think you know this the correct answer is in do you have anything in your pockets where talking about an enclosed area here's another one we wanted to sit M the front of the plane I'm trying to trick you a little bit but the the correct answer is at we wanted to sit at the front of the plane I I told you that with public transit you're going to use on on a plane but in this case we're talking about a specific location on a plane so in that case we're going to use at at the front of the plane how about this this one please refer to the graph the slide the correct answer is on please refer to the graph on the slide so once again we're talking about the surface of something on a page on a slide so how'd you do on the quiz I I want you to be honest let me know down in the comments because I just love hearing from you I should have joined the interactive English Community or I could have joined the interactive English community or I would have joined the interactive English community so today I want to talk to you about these modals should have could have and would have and they're often referred to as modals of lost opportunity because we use them to describe situations that we imagine are different now the good news is that you have not lost this opportunity if you would like to join the interactive English Community there is a link down in the description it is a great way for you and me to to keep in touch but let's get back to these modals because I I want to make sure that you are using them correctly and I think this is very useful because quite often we want to describe our feelings about past decisions

so you're going to use should have when something did not happen but you wish that it did happen you'll use could have when something was possible but it did not happen and you will use would have when something happened but you're just a m ining a different result now before we just Dive Right into these modals I want to talk to you about pronunciation and grammar because with pronunciation these modals will often get reduced so what's happening is that the H in half it's it's just going to get removed and then that vowel sound is going to to become more of awah so we're left with of and then the final D that consonant sound will get linked with that schah so it's like we have should of could have would have all right it's linked together and people may even reduce it further if they're speaking really fast and they're going to drop that V and you just hear the schah Shoulda Coulda would a but in general I think it's often you're going to hear these modals get reduced and you can listen to me as the lesson goes on I will I will reduce them the other thing I want to say uh when it comes to grammar is that with these modals you're going to follow them with the past participle so with with regular verbs you're just going to to use that Ed should have played could have called would have walked with irregular verbs you just need to know the past participle should have won could have broken would have bought now that we got grammar and pronunciation out of the way let let me give you a little more context with each of these modals and we'll begin with should have so when you think of should have think of um regret I I told you that something did not happen but you wish that it did happen so perhaps you're you're thinking about a past decision and somebody had a good idea or a recommendation and you did not listen to it and you lost that opportunity when when talking about that situation we can then use should have so

I'm I'm constantly asking you to subscribe to the channel and turn on notifications so let's just let's just imagine that uh you you don't do this and then in the future you're going to look back at this situation and you might say I should have listened to Wes uh my name's Wes by the way in case this is your first time here uh you'd say I really want to practice and improve my English skills therefore I should have subscribed to the channel and and turned on notifications now if you want to use should have in the negative should not have in that case it's like you regret something that was wrong I should not have yelled at my brother I should not have cheated on the exam I should not have eaten that and that's one that I feel like I I probably use from time to time yes I I should not have eaten that bad decision now let's move on to could have and with this modal I want you to think of possibility that's the one word I want you to keep in mind possibility I I told you that with this modal something was possible but it did not happen I was so tired I could have stayed in bed all day it did not happen but I it was possible and I know that I I give you a lot of examples so today I have a special guest the famous Marlon Brando is going to give you the next example you was my brother Charlie you should have looked out for me a little bit oh excellent Marlin a a little bit of review with should have so you should have looked out for me again something that did not happen but but he wishes that it did happen now I will make a quick little grammar correction you would not say you was instead you're going to use you were but that that's okay let's just focus on these modal so please continue you don't understand I could have had class I could have been a Contender I could have been somebody instead of a bum so at this moment he feels like a bum but those other things were possible I could have been a contender I could have been somebody and and what he's referring to is uh boxing he was a prize fighter I could have been a contender and then if we want to use the negative could not have in that case we're just saying the opposite and saying that something was impossible so before before I said I was so tired I could have stayed in bed all day that's talking about something that was possible if I changed that sentence around and said I had so much work to do

I could not have stayed in bed all day now I'm talking about something impossible I could not have stayed in bed because I had so much work and then there's wood have and with W have the word that I want you to remember and keep in mind is different because because when you use W have it's like something happened but you are imagining a different result something different from the the real situation and often you are going to use this modal with that third conditional those if statements so I could say the team would have won the championship if their best player had not gotten injured so in this case I'm imagining that different result because the real situation is that the best player was injured and the team did not win the championship I want to make a quick distinction between could have and would have because it's possible for you to use could have in that sentence the team could have won the championship but again in that case we're talking about a possibility if I say the team would have won the championship now it's more certain and that is the result that that I'm imagining so it's really a difference between possibility and certainty could have and would have you can also use W have to show that you wanted to do something but you were not able to I would have given you a ride but my car broke down and once again I could use the third conditional to say the same thing same meaning I would have given you a ride if my car had not broken down now using it in the negative would not have you're still imagining a different result but instead of imagining a result that would have happen you're imagining that your your real situation would not have happened if some other things occurred I would not have finished the project without your help so the real situation is that I did finish the project and I'm just imagining a different result or I if I had not been stuck in traffic I would not have been late for work so it can be a little tricky to to wrap your head around some of these examples just know that with would have your imagining a different result now something you may not have known about these modals is that you can use them together as an idiom should have could have would have mostly you people would use this in spoken English and they are going to reduce these modals should have could have would have or they would reduce it more and say should have could have would a so what what this means is that you are dismissing someone else's regret or worry about a past action or some lost opportunity and you're just dismissing that so it's kind of a cold response and it's just unsympathetic so let's say that we work together and you're a little upset with me because I I made you do more work and I'm telling you like yeah maybe maybe I should have worked harder so that you did not have to do my work for me and you're a little annoyed you're a little upset and you would say yeah should have could have would have uh it's already done it's too late I've already did your work

this is definitely the most common one that you are going to use when speaking or writing and I think well used to alone can be confusing because well dictionaries may look at it different ways Cambridge has used to as a modal verb Mariam Webster says that used to is an adjective as well as a verb McMillan dictionary has used to as a modal verb Oxford Learners dictionary also says that used to is a modal verb and dictionary.com has it as an adjective as well as a verb let's first make a distinction between used to as a modal verb or verb and used to as an adjective

now the the grammar is different the part of speech but also the meaning is different so right now let's let's get rid of the adjective forget about the adjective let's just focus on used to as a verb or modal verb and I keep saying verb modal verb as you saw some of the dictionaries uh have it listed differently and that is because in some ways used to acts like a modal verb and in other ways it it really doesn't but whether or not used to uh is considered a verb or a modal verb the meaning is the same and let's talk about the meaning because that is very important and what this means is it's talking about something that was repeatedly done in the past or or even a situation that existed in the past but the the thing is not done anymore or the situation does not not exist anymore today in the present so I could will give you some examples talking about myself I could say I used to live in South Korea that that is true that is a situation that existed in the past and when I lived in South Korea I used to run uh around this Lake twice a a week bum Moon Lake I used to run around it twice a week and that is something that I had done repeatedly except for the winter uh in the winter it was a bit too cold so during those months uh I used to sit on my ass I could say that sometimes not always in those sentences used to is a modal verb it is a helping verb and I already told you that it has some similarities to modal verbs like it it has one form it's not conjugated so I said I used to live in South Korea if I changed the subject to he it it's not going to change he used to live in South Korea but you used to it it can act differently from your average modal verb

uh for example with modal verbs you you're not going to follow it with to so I can say something well like I can swim or it will rain or you should write to me in the comments I I just love hearing from you you should write to me in the comments now with all of those sentences we have the modal verb and then we follow it with the infinitive the base verb there is no to an exception is used to I used to run around the lake and well even if I want to change the subject and talk about myself in the third person to show that the form is not going to change I could say in Winter Wes used to sit around on his ass but sometimes all right so two is going to come before the base verb and that's why I think if you're if you're trying trying to think about it I think it's best to consider

used to as just one phrase try to think about it together as one phrase used to questions and negative statements also make used to different from other modal verbs because if well if we're talking about questions typically we can just use the modal verb to create a question can he swim will it rain and if we're talking about negative statements then you're you're just going to use not with with a typical modal verb uh he cannot swim or it won't rain but this is not the case with used to of course used to it just has to be different than all the other modal verbs and I think this is also when people might say okay it acts more like a verb because if we're talking about questions used to it refers to the past so with questions you're going to use did and if you're going to make a negative statement then you're going to use did not so if we're going to use it uh as a question I could ask you did you use to study English and if I want to say a negative statement then I could say well I didn't used to have hair like this um and that's because I used to shave my head but more importantly than my shaved head is that you now see that used to has changed the spelling has changed to used to and this is what I want you to remember if we're talking about questions and negative statements you are going to use used to and you're going to spell it us I told you that the only distinction is in writing because well the pronunciation is the same whether you're saying used to or used to it's the same pronunciation the D and the T they blend together to create one sound so yeah the pronunciation it's really the same nobody's going to know if if you end up making a mistake because you're still just going to say used to or used to and now that you have a perfect understanding of used to being used as a modal verb slash verb let's now talk about used to being used as an adjective so the the first thing that I want to tell you is the meaning I told you that the meaning is different and what this means is that well it's referring to something that you are familiar with or that you are accustomed to and it often follows the verb to be so I could say well I am used to hot weather all right I'm just it's just something that I'm used to I'm not used to cold weather it's just something I'm not that familiar with and in this case because used to is an adjective it's not going to change whether we're talking about questions or negative statements you are always going to spell used to like this used uh another thing that I want to tell you about used to as an adjective just giving you another example I do not think any of us were used to staying the one thing that I really want you to remember from this lesson and I yes it's confusing but I think over time the more you listen the more you practice you're just going to get used to it I have studied English I have been studying English are these sentences the same or are they different let's find out I want to help you improve your grammar because I want to talk about the difference between two verb tenses the present perfect tense and the present perfect continuous and these two verb tenses can confuse many English Learners who may not be sure uh about how and when to use them as well as if there are any differences between these two tenses so before we talk about the differences between these two tenses I I want to focus on how and when we use them and

let's first begin with the present perfect tense which on its own can be very confusing because there are many languages that do not even have a present perfect tense so I I want to first begin with how you're going to form the present perfect you're going to have a helping verb and a main verb the helping verb is going to be have and the main verb is going to be the past participle and we often use the present perfect to talk about a finished action in the past at an unspecified time we don't know when it's happened and it may have happened once or even more than once so let's look at this sentence right here I've been to China there there I am right there again we have the helping verb have plus the past participle Ben it is the past participle of the verb to be and you know that this happened in the past it's finished but you don't know when it's an unspecified time I've been to China or I could say well I've been to Barcelona twice this happened in the past we don't know when but we know that it happened more than once there were two different trips to Barcelona one thing that I want to say about the present perfect tense is that when you use it the the result is really what matters it's like you're more interested in the result than the action and I will come back to this when I talk to you about the present perfect continuous so let's let's think this situation right here I'll I'll I'll use a question and say have you hit the like button all right this is a question in the present perfect the the helping verb have the past participle hit that's our main verb have you hit the like button and again

I I'm really more interested in that result and I really am and I hope you would say yes I have hit the like button it happened in the past sometime between when the video started and right now and if you have let me know write that to me in the comments just say yes I have hit the like button practice writing using the present perfect and then I will tell you that you are awesome all right so with all of those examples that I just gave you we were talking about finished actions in the past so let's now move to the present perfect continuous and let's look at how this verb tense is formed again we're going to use the helping verb have plus the past participle of the verb to be which is been have been plus our main verb with an ing at the end all right so in this case it's like we have two helping verbs have been and then the main verb and we use the present perfect continuous to talk about an unfinished action that started in the past it has continued to right now which is the present and then it will likely continue into the future so I could say well even like right now I've been teaching this lesson it's an unfinished action it started in the past it has continued until right now and it's going to continue into the future and I hope you keep watching now one thing that I will say about the present perfect continuous is that when you use this verb tense the focus is more on the action because something is continuing so with the present perfect tense the focus is on the result with the present perfect continuous the focus is more on the action one thing that I want to remind you of and the reason why I'm so close is because I want you to remember this is that there are many non-action verbs that that you should not use in the continuous tense and I'm putting a list of these verbs up here right now so you you should not use these verbs with the present perfect continuous but again with English there people are always breaking these rules especially in spoken English but just to give you an example the if I give you a sentence like oh I have an iPhone I'm talking about uh ownership possession I could use it in the present perfect tense and say yeah I've had an iPhone for a long time uh it's an iPhone 6 so it's pretty old but I could not use it in the continuous tense and say I've been having an iPhone that just sounds awkward so just keep that in mind there are many non-action verbs that you should just avoid using in the continuous tense so now let's look at some differences between the present perfect tense and the present perfect continuous and I want to make some quick comparisons so you can see a clear difference between these two verb tenses especially how the focus is different so let's look at these two sentences right here we have redecorated our home and we have been redecorating our home the sentence in the present perfect we have redecorated our home it's talking about an action that started in the past and it's now finished we don't know when it started we don't know when it ended but the focus is on that result that yes it's it's finished the home it's it has been redecorated with the present perfect continuous we're talking about an unfinished action it started in the past and it's still going on right now so the focus is on that action that continuing action also and this may help you know well when you should use the present perfect continuous if we're talking about an unfinished action that started in the recent past people may use the verb tense with the words recently or lately so I could say well

recently we've been redecorating our home or lately we've been redecorating our home that tells me that this action it's started in the recent past it's a continuing action that's gone until now and yes it's probably going to continue into the future here are another couple of sentences I have thought about buying a new phone or I've been thinking about buying a new phone so with the present perfect it suggests that okay I I thought about this in the past and then maybe I decided Well no not to buy a new phone it's just something I thought about and then I stopped thinking about it and as you can see I still have this old iPhone 6 and maybe I just made the decision not to buy one if I use the present perfect continuous and say well I've been thinking about buying a new phone that that suggest that I have not made a decision not yet I'm still thinking about it and maybe maybe in the future I'm going to make a decision and upgrade and get a new phone because yes this iPhone 6 it's pretty old and then we get to these two sentences right here the sentences that you have been waiting for this entire lesson I have studied English versus I have been studying English and the difference between these two sentences is nothing well pretty much nothing because they are interchangeable you can use them and they they basically mean the same thing because with both of these sentences we're talking about an unfinished action and I know this can be a bit confusing because you're probably thinking like wait a second Wes you told us that the present perfect tense is used to talk about finished actions at an unspecified time in the past yes that is true but you can also use the present perfect tense to talk about an unfinished action that started in the past and and it's gone on for a duration of time or since a point in time and those are two key words that I really want you to remember and be aware of because we often use the present perfect with those words for and since so I could say I have studied English for three years a duration of time or I could say I've studied English since 2018 both of those sentences mean the exact same thing the only difference is for and since I could also say this using the present perfect continuous I've been studying English for 3 years or I've been studying English since 2018 so if somebody were to ask you how long have you been learning English you could respond with any one of those sentences it's it's really your pick there there's not much difference between them but there is a very there there is very slight difference of course I didn't want to I didn't want to disappoint you I wanted to really get into details here so I was saving it for the very end and let let's talk about those slight differences right now which is going to help you kind of well not only improve your comprehension but your overall fluency as well so the good news is is that when the present perfect and the present perfect continuous are basically interchangeable and they pretty much mean the same thing we're only talking about a handful of verbs we're talking about the verbs like teach play learn study and work all right so those are five verbs that when you're using either verb tense they're fairly interchangeable and they mean the same thing but again there there may be a slight difference in a certain context situation it may be more appropriate to use one over the other so let let's look at these sentences right here we've lived in Budapest for 4 years and we've been living in Budapest since 2017 so just looking at them generally speaking they're very similar they're they pretty much the same you could use them interchangeably but there there may be a slight difference when talking about the permanent versus temporary so let me give you a couple of other sentences that I think are probably a little easier to understand when I talk about the difference between permanent and temporary so you're more likely to use the present perfect tense when when talking about an unfinished action that's more permanent and you're more likely to use the present perfect continuous when you're you're talking about an unfinished action that's perhaps temporary so I could say well I've worked for the company for 25 years I I'm using the present perfect it's unfinished because I still work for the company and and it's more permanent it it makes you think well I'm not looking for a job I'm not going to change jobs I'm just giving you this information I've worked for the company for 25 years if I I say this that well I usually work downtown but I've been working at home ever since the pandemic started in this case I'm

I'm referring to an action that started in the past it's unfinished because I'm still working at home but it's only temporary it makes you think that in the future then perhaps I I'm not going to be working at home anymore I'm talking about a temporary situation I've been working at home ever since the pandemic started so hopefully that makes it a little easier to understand the difference when I say permanent versus temporary and you could even apply this to other sentences that you may use interchangeably so those two sentences that I told you a moment ago we have lived in Budapest for four years or we've been living in Budapest since 2017 in general uh you could use either one but again if you use the present perfect if I say we've lived in Budapest since 2017 then it it's a more permanent situation it might make you think well uh we're not currently looking to change the place that we live that we're probably going to stay in Budapest if I say it using the present perfect continuous the focus is on that action that that we're we're still living here it's unfinished but it makes you think it may only be temporary because in the future that that's going to change if the focus is on that action in all likelihood that action is going to change in the future in which case we would well will move somewhere else and that this is only temporary and if you were to ask me I would say the second one we've been living in Budapest since 2017 because this is probably not going to be our permanent home in the future we will likely move somewhere else so even though with those five verbs work play Live teach study you can use these verb tenses interchangeably you you could read a little more information into it if you want to think about whether something is going to be more permanent or if something is temporary let's see how well you know your grammar so I'm going to give you a question I'll give you a moment to think of the answer and then I will tell you the answer and explain why it is correct so let's begin with our first question right here if somebody were to say whatever you do don't leave me alone talking to Wes he's so okay how would you complete that sentence are you going to use a bored or B boring so I hope that you chose B boring that is the correct answer he's so boring so this can be a little confusing the difference between Ed and ing adjectives in short you're going to use Ed adjectives to talk about the way you feel you're going to use ing adjectives to describe uh a situation a thing or just the a person's characteristic in this case we're talking about a characteristic of mine that I'm boring and this is just an example of course I hope that you do not think that I am boring I would rather you say that maybe I am amusing or interesting or charming I would take any of those ing adjectives here's your next challenging question if I had taken my medicine this morning M

right now are you going to use a I would have felt sick or B I wouldn't feel sick so I said it's challenging and difficult because we're talking about a mixed conditional which means the answer is B I wouldn't feel sick if I had taken my medicine this morning I wouldn't feel sick right now in this case we're mixing the second and third conditional so we have an imaginary condition because we're imagining a different past which is the third conditional if I had taken my medicine this morning so I did not take it and that leads us in to a hypothetical result in the present I wouldn't feel sick right now another way to think about it is with these two statements right here I didn't take my medicine this morning therefore I feel sick right now I'm saying the same thing with that mixed conditional if I had taken my medicine this morning I wouldn't feel sick right now here is your next question I don't know what are you going to say where I should go or where should I go this is something I noticed that many Learners commonly confuse so that what we're talking about that blank is really a noun clause which means the answer is a I don't know where I should go so a noun clause it's a dependent clause that has a subject and a verb and just know that it quite often noun clauses are going to begin with words like that or how or those wh words like who what when why or where and then we have this question right here the movie M at 8:00 p.m. or you could say the movie M at 8:00 how are you going to complete that sentence are you going to use a will start B starts or C is starting so for this one I I guarantee that you got the correct answer and that is because all of them are correct it's a little bit of a trick question you could use will start to talk about things that that will happen in the future you could use start the present simple to refer to scheduled events in the future and you could also use is starting the present continuous when talking about future Arrangements even though all are correct it really just depends on the context when deciding which one you're going to use so let me try to give you some context and tell you how my mind works as to how I would choose which one of these so I I think overwhelmingly I am going to use the present simple and just say starts if somebody were to ask me hey what time's the movie I would say the movie starts at 8:00 I would probably use is starting if I kind of want to emphasize and highlight the time in that case maybe I'm trying to say well okay I want you to be there all right don't be late just remember the movie is starting at 8:00 so when you use the present continuous you're really referring to that point in time so I'm really trying to make that clear the movie started at 8:00 and then to be honest I would probably use will start less frequently I might use it if I'm thinking about maybe other things that are also going to happen in the future if I were thinking to myself well um I'll have to eat dinner before the movie and then the movie will start at 8:00 and after the movie um I'll have to go home because I have to work tomorrow so hopefully that gives you a little more context as to when you might use these different answers here is your next question I recommend that everyone watching this video that like button all right are you going to say hit that like button or hit that like button so once again this can be a bit tricky the answer is a hit we're talking about the subjunctive mood and we use this to talk about desires wishes or suggestions now grammatically speaking in that noun clause that's right we're talking about another noun clause that everyone watching this video hit that like button in that noun clause you're going to use the base verb when we're talking about the subjunctive mood and this can be a little tricky if the subject is perhaps in the third person like he she or it or if we're talking about an indefinite pronoun like everyone now in spoken English people may not always follow follow

this rule so if I'm going to use the subjunctive mood I I could say something like I wish I were faster I wish I were taller I wish I were living in a big beautiful home along the coast overlooking the ocean so in spoken English you may hear somebody say I wish I was taller I wish I were taller I wish I was taller it can be confusing but you will hear both in spoken English next we have this question I M English for several months and I plan to continue improving my language skills are you going to use a have studied or B have been studying so we're talking about the difference between the present perfect and the present perfect continuous all right I hope that you chose B have been studying I've been studying English for several months and I plan to continue improving my language skills so b i it is I think it's the correct answer you could use a but I think B is the better answer and let me explain so the present perfect and the present perfect continuous it can be confusing because they they are sometimes interchangeable especially if we're talking about an unfinished action which in this case we are but you're going to use the present perfect continuous more specifically when you're talking about an action that's started in the past it's continued to the present and then will likely continue into the future and it's the second part of this sentence and I plan to continue improving my language skills that is why I say B have been studying is the better answer here's the next question M making progress we could not finish before the deadline are you going to use a in spite of or B although okay so I hope that you chose a in spite of in spite of making progress we could not finish before the deadline so both in spite of and although they're referring to contrasting ideas the the only real difference is the way that you use them and I'm talking about the structure of the sentence after in spite of we're going to use a noun a Jaren which is that ing form or a pronoun after although we're going to use a subject and a verb so in our sentence you have making that is a Jaren so you're going to use in spite of in spite of making progress now I I could use although and say the same thing and use a subject and a verb and I would say although we made progress we could not finish before the deadline so just remember that in spite of making progress is a phrase whereas although we made progress is a clause they're really

the same it it just depends on how you want to structure the sentence here's your next question talking about prepositions last night we left M New York City it was a long flight but we're really excited to see the Big Apple are you going to complete this sentence with two from or four which preposition completes this sentence last night we left M New York city so the answer is C4 last night we left for New York City

now I know prepositions can be tricky and the best thing you can do is just practice them like we're doing right now so let me explain this the second sentence that is important it was a long flight but we're excited to see the Big Apple that tells us that the destination is New York City therefore we're not going to use from and normally if we're talking about a place you would go to a place but our verb is leave you're not going to use to when the verb is leave you're going to use for if you're talking about going to a destination you leave for someplace last night we left for New York City your next question M did you invite to the party are you going to use a who or be whom the correct answer is be whom whom did you invite to the party I I would say that a is also correct in spok in English and I will I will talk about that in just a moment but who and whom can be confusing but think of it this way you're going to use who when the unknown is referring to the subject and you'll use whom when the unknown is referring to the object so all we have to do is take our question and change it into a statement and I could say well I invited him to the party or I invited her to the party him and her those are objects so in that case I'm going to use whom whom did you invite to the party now I said that a is correct in spoken English because well yeah people just don't follow the rules I think it's quite common in in places like the United States which is where I'm from most people will use who instead of whom and I am somebody who also does this if

I were to ask this question I would just say who did you invite to the party so just keep that in mind that this is another one of those rules in spoken English that people will tend to break who versus whom here is another question I bought a gift for my little girl it's this um this little stuff puppy right here I hope she enjoys M gift are you going to use a the or no article which one I hope that you chose be the I hope she enjoys the gift that is the correct answer so really what we're talking about is the rule of first mention and what this rule says is that the first time you mention a a singular noun you're going to use the indefinite article a or an and the second time that you mention that same noun you're going to use the definite article the' because it is now known so this is a very useful

LESSON 39 OF 749

1 HOUR LESSON - Useful Idioms & Expressions to Build Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's learn some useful idioms to help you build your vocabulary and this is important because we often use idioms in just casual conversation you'll hear them in movies and TV shows so it's going to help your listening comprehension and if you are someone who enjoys building your vocabulary Please Subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals and before we begin I want to make a quick announcement if you would like to practice and improve your speaking skills you can join my speaking course it's all about trying to help you speak confidently speak clearly and speak naturally each week there is a different speaking topic you will learn vocabulary and idioms related to that topic we do engaging speaking activities I'll teach you some of the language nuances like when to use certain words and phrases and there are also pronunciation video lessons included in the course so check out that link Down Below in the description if you would like to sign up or learn more and when you click on that link you will find a special discount just for you that's all I have to say so let's begin our lesson and learn some useful idioms I want to talk to you about some common idioms and expressions that that you can use in everyday conversation and this will really help improve your your comprehension in overall English fluency so the first idiom that I want to talk to you about is to turn over a new leaf and this just means to start fresh to start new you really want to to change your attitude or your circumstances so for example maybe somebody might lose their job and they say okay I need to turn over a new Leaf I need to start fresh and I need to change these circumstances I need to start looking for another job start a new start fresh maybe a road trip is exactly what I need right now I'm turning over a new Leaf starting tomorrow I am turning over a new Leaf time with you is my my number one priority I'm turning over to New Leaf and my good luck Starts Now the next idiom is the Autumn years and well Autumn is another word for fall and if somebody's referring to the Autumn years they're talking about uh the later point in someone's life they would refer to it as the Autumn years when somebody gets older and yes this this is not your Autumn years that's our little girl Emmy she she's just a little baby but when you're talking about later on in somebody's life you may hear you may hear them refer to it and say the Autumn years you're getting a little philosophical for me I suppose so they say it happens in the Autumn years I may teach I may write a book whatever the hell one does when one approaches the Autumn of one's years then we have the idiom to drive someone nuts and this is relevant I think of fall I often think of nuts you can find them on the ground and nuts is also an informal word uh kind of slang that means the same as crazy so if you Drive someone nuts it just means that you making them crazy perhaps a person could be driving you nuts or maybe a situation is is just driving you nuts it's making you crazy hey yeah I'm not going to mince words Mitchell kid is driving me nuts you better think your lucky stars I'm not in this competition because I would eat you for breakfast you're driving me nuts babe you your mother drives you nuts then we have one of my favorite idioms cuz I like I like using it from time to time especially when I feel sick and that idiom is under the weather and you say that somebody maybe feels a little bit under the weather and what it means is that person is kind of starting to feel a little sick so it's not like they're really sick it's just maybe they're a little sick or they're starting to feel sick and say yeah I'm feeling feeling a little bit under the weather right now yeah um heard you were under the weather oh I uh I didn't think I was going to get to see you until tomorrow yeah well Bernadette's a little under the weather but this you sound unwell well I have been feeling a little under the WEA but I'm feeling much better now next is neck of the woods and if you hear somebody talking about like oh for example what are you doing in my neck of the woods they're talking about a particular area or maybe even a particular neighborhood so that's what it means neck of the woods and often times yeah people might ask a question like I just did and they say Hey you know you see somebody in your neighborhood and you say hey what what are you doing my neck of the woods or perhaps in the office that you work at somebody in another department comes and visits you in your department and you say hey yeah what are you doing in my neck of the woods what are you doing in in this particular area this what brings you to my neck of the woods a few errands

I'm going to be in your neck of the woods soon and um it would be very nice to see you well if you ever get down in my neck of the woods you got a place to stay another idiom with Woods is not out of the woods because when I think of the Fall I often think of the woods and if you say that you are not out of the woods it just means that you are not out of danger so out of the woods is talking about out of danger and I think most of the time you hear it with the word not somebody is trying to say that they are not safe they are still in a dangerous area they are not out of the woods just yet I think you might hear this in like TV shows and movies if somebody is being chased by another person or a group of people and they they haven't lost that group they're still being chased they say you know we're not we're not out of the woods just yet we need to keep running Mike's going to be okay can you see him not out of the woods yet I guess one of you could go in for just a minute the heart be stronger but we're not out of the woods need to get things going now the cord is wrapped around the neck the next idiom is shaking like a leaf and if somebody is shaking like a leaf it's a way to describe somebody who is trembling this person is shaking they're trembling mostly because of fear you can say oh oh they they were shaking like a leaf the same way that in Autumn Leaves they tremble they shake and then they fall to the ground and again if somebody is trembling then you could say they are shaking like a leaf come set in your chair de you're shaking like a leaf he's going to be on muscle muscle shaking like a leaf how's he going to do anything he wanted to talk about his father's symptoms he Skyped and there he was he was shaking like a leaf then we have to get wind of something and if you get wind of something it just means that you hear some rumor about something it could be a rumor about something or a rumor about someone and and you get wind of this information you learn about it you hear about it you could say yeah you know I I got wind of that I heard about that rumor or I heard that piece of information to get wind of something I thought the publicity would really help zip couch boy once the Press gets wind of this you know bolivians get wind of this you know what they're going to say they're going to say you wear pissy pants if the Community gets into morning jogging oh God help us then we have the apple of someone's eye and if if you're talking about the apple of someone's eye it just refers to a person who is loved the most by someone else so for for example yes I could say that that Emmy right here you are the apple of my eye that yes she is love the most by me she is the apple of my eye um as well as you want they are both they are the apples of my eye so if you describe someone as the apple of your eye it just means that they are loved the most by you what are you doing want kiss oh look who it is my husband the apple of my eye hello oh apple of my eye love of my life night and [Music] day I mean his household was a joyous place and his wife Dolly well she was the apple of his eye then we have the idiom cold turkey and you you just got to include this because turkey Thanksgiving it is a very very popular word around the around fall so if somebody you might talk about quitting cold turkey and what that means cold turkey is that somebody stops a bad habit immediately and and maybe suddenly as well and you would quit something cold turkey often I think of smokers somebody is a smoker they've been smoking for years and then they just suddenly quit they would say I quit cold turkey so any kind of bad habit that somebody might have whether it's smoking or drinking and then they suddenly stop you could say that they quit cold turkey so no it's not your fault you know it's partly my phone cuz I made you quit cold turkey you're right Lisa love isn't about fixing someone I'm just going to give her up cold turkey you need to prove to Tara that you can be trusted cold turkey Jacks no booze no weed I'm serious the world can't just quit on oil and nuclear power or cold turkey you'll dismantle our entire economy overnight so there you have it those are some great idioms that you can use in everyday conversation they are all related to the fall but you can use them in a variety of different situations and context you are someone who loves sports then you are definitely going to love this idiom lesson I'm going to teach you some idioms that are related to sports that doesn't mean that you can only use these idioms when talking about sports they can be used in a variety of different situations I'll give you some example sentences as well as show you some videos so you can see how these idioms are used in context so let's begin the first idiom is a tennis idiom and it is the ball is in your court and what this means is that it is up to you it is your responsibility to do something or to make a decision the ball is in your court so example when when you're playing tennis you hit the ball to somebody else and then the ball is in their court it's up to them to act so this can be used in a variety of context it could be used in business in a negotiation for example maybe you make an offer to buy something and then you'd say well okay here's my offer the ball is in your court it is your responsibility to make a decision now or tell me what you want to do and we often use this idiom as just a standalone statement and you would tell somebody you know the ball is in your court now it's up to you the ball's in your court call me back if you want balls in your court I said no would me right back in the driver's seat so the ball is in his court the next idiom is to get off the hook and if we're talking about hooks you can probably guess that this is a fishing idiom when you're fishing you use a hook to catch the fish so if a fish gets off the hook then they are able to escape danger they're able to escape punishment and that's exactly what this idiom means you are escaping responsibility for something that that you are no longer responsible for this this action that happened that was bad or wrong you are no longer going to get punished for this thing you are able to get off the hook I don't have a choice I guess I'm kind of hoping you'll come back over the rail and me off the hook here so for example when I think of this idiom because I'm a teacher I think of students that when they don't do their homework and maybe there's a punishment and they're trying to think of an excuse I might tell them and say you know you're you're not going to get off the hook that easy you are not getting off the hook that easy mister and that is a common sentence in which you might hear this idiom being used that you would tell someone you're not going to get off the hook that easy that you you need to be held responsible for for something that happens you're not going to have it completely removed you're going to have to suffer the consequences a little bit you're not going to get off the hook that easy then we have a baseball idiom go to bat for someone to go to bat for someone means just to defend somebody so in baseball when you go to bat for another player player that that you're basically helping that person out they don't have to bat because you're going to do it for them you're going to help that person you are going to defend them just go to bat for them I'm tired of going to bat for you and your show I want to thank you for going to bat for me last week

next is a hunting idiom and this idiom I is used quite often and it is to give it your best shot and often people would just say it as a sentence and just say give it your best shot and just means that you should just try your hardest do your best so when you're hunting even though I'm not a hunter you are shooting something and you want to give it your best shot you tell people this all the time whether they're doing sports or or business you would tell them and encourage them and say give it your best shot I'll go ahead and give it your best shot come on then Nigel give it your best shots okay o Conor Give Me Your Best Shot so for example I would tell you guys this if you're thinking that learning English is too difficult I don't know if I could do it I would encourage you and say you know give it your best shot just try your best that's all that we're asking you do give it your best shot next is an idiom that comes from horse racing and that is the home stretch and if you're talking about the home stretch you're talking about the end so when talking about horse racing at the the end of the race you might hear somebody say the horses are coming down the home stretch they're getting close to the end and you can use this when you are getting close to the end of something specifically when you're about to complete something or finish something so with this lesson uh I'm just about halfway through it I'm not quite in the home stretch just yet we're almost done home stretch this is the home stretch all we got to do is focus ain't tough you're in the home stretch next is a golf idiom and that is not up to par so in golf you you have a score that you try to get for each hole and if you match that score then that would be par so that's your the average score that's what you want to do if somebody's not up to par then that just means that they're not good enough to do a a job or a position and you you just don't have the skills or abilities to do something and somebody might say you know uh yeah it's you know this work it it's not up to par so if I'm not up to a par performance-wise Jim this isn't exactly a Turn on there's a thing called proposition 48 says that if your grades aren't up to par and take the SAT if you score 700 or more you can get into college I hope these video lessons are are definitely up to par for for you guys I hope so next is a boxing idiom to throw in the towel and in boxing if somebody throws in the towel then that just means they give up the match is over and that's exactly what it means to give up something so if you're tired of doing something you don't want to do it anymore you'd say you know I'm I'm just going to throw in the towel I'm done I give up or you might hear it being used that somebody's you know they're trying to encourage you and tell you not to give up and they'd say don't throw in the towel don't throw in the towel just yet keep going keep working hard they're throwing in the towel he says once the debts are paid there wouldn't be too much left round after round I kept getting franker to patch me up he's talking about throwing in a towel but he ain't my manager he can't throw in nothing maybe it's time to throw in the towel if you guys are thinking you know I'm done learning English it's too difficult I don't want to do it I would tell you don't give up don't throw in the towel just yet and I'm not going to let you off the hook that easy I'm always going to encourage you and tell you to keep going and give it your best shot and I'm just going to keep using these idioms over and over so that you'll remember them let's just keep going we're coming down the home stretch which means we're getting close to the end but don't leave just yet I have some more great idioms for you and this next one is a football idiom it's an American football idiom and I'm sure some of you might be rolling your eyes like H American football nobody watches that but this idiom is a good one and it is blindsided and if somebody is blindsided basketball a slam dunk is when you take the ball and you slam it and hang on to the Rim Yeah I I can't slam dunk the basketball I can't jump so if something is a slam dunk then it just means it's a sure thing it's easy to do it's easy to accomplish you know that you're going to do this thing and you say well you know it's a slam dunk so you're watching this video right now and I'm thinking like hm I wonder if they're going to hit that like button but I know you know it's a slam dunk it's a sure thing you're going to hit that like button right unless you think this lesson's not up to par it's a slam dunk I hope it's a real slam dunk to me this decision is a slam dunk the next idiom is call the shots this is a Billiards idiom

because when you're playing Billiards you often have to call your shots and point to the pocket where you want to shoot the ball so if somebody calls the shots it just means they are making the decisions you might often hear this idiom in business because there's a hierarchy of people from the boss the manager and then you and your boss would call the shots they would be making the decisions I call the shots I do what I want to do so you're calling the shots now huh I'm was going to see nothing but the bench this year you ain't calling the shots You'll Play so I'm a bit curious if you knew some of these idioms already I hope that you weren't completely blindsided by these idioms and I hope that you can go on to use them and try to use them and give it your best shot right now we're going to walk right out that door and I'm going to find some super useful and common idioms to help you improve your fluency let's go today I am out and about I'm outside and I'm going to try to find some different idioms to help you improve your overall fluency so let's just go let's go let's get out of here second I should probably take you with me and the camera here we go so here we have some bushes and the next uh idiom that I want to teach you is to beat around the bush and what it means if somebody is beating around the bush it just means that uh let me have a seat real quick it means that somebody is not speaking directly or they're speaking indirectly so instead of saying what's on their mind instead of just saying it straightforward they beat around the bush and they kind of maybe give you

Clues and sometimes the reason you do this and you don't say things directly is because you're trying not to upset someone and I think this is very common in certain environments like work or home if you're talking to a colleague and you don't want to upset them and you have some news that you need to tell them you might beat around the bush or at home something happens and it's bad news and you don't want to tell your mother father husband wife you might uh beat around the bush instead of just coming right out and saying it directly so I think this is something that well I think a lot of us do it uh some of us I think are very direct and we don't beat around the bush but I think a common way this idiom is used is somebody is speaking indirectly and the other person would say stop beating around the bush just tell me tell me what you have to say stop beating around the bush please I will never beat around the bush like that in have a seat I'm not going to beat around the bush here will you don't have to beat around the bush I know exactly what you're getting at another great idiom is to bark up the wrong tree and what this means is that you're trying to tell someone that they're making a mistake that whatever they're saying or doing is wrong and it's almost like you know what the the right answer is or what this person should be doing and they're making a mistake and you could tell them look you're barking up the wrong tree th this is a mistake you shouldn't be barking up this tree you should be barking up that tree over there I've got my BDI on you you're barking up the wrong tree and there's heaven but who's that confucious boy have I been barking up the wrong tree so you can see right behind me here is the river and a river well a river will flow so the next idiom that I have for you is to go with the flow and what this means if you say well I'm going to go with the flow it means that you are going to accept a situation and kind of relax you're not going to try to to change things you're just you're just going to go with the flow so I think this is a great idiom that can be used if somebody might be asking well what are you going to do you're going to enter a situation and what what's your reaction going to be and say well I'm just going to go with the flow I'm not going to try to control things I'm going to relax I'm going to see what everybody body else is doing and I'm just going to accept what is going on I'm going to go with the flow when I'm traveling especially with a group of people and everybody maybe they want to do different things I like to just go with the flow but you know what we're not going to rush this time we're just going to go with the flow so you're on board now yeah I just go with the flow a good fighter needs to know how to improvise to go with the flow oh I don't care you know me I just go with the flow all right so let me show you this right here here is a bud all right and that's going to help you understand the next idiom which is to nip something in the bud so if you think of like um well like a flower like we're looking at right now before a flower blossoms it's in these the bud and then the bud will Blossom so to nip something in the bud is to stop something at an early stage and you're stopping it before it becomes established and most of the time you're going to use it and say okay you know the situation you know what you need to stop and you might say we need to nip this in the bud we need to stop it we need to stop something at this early stage before it develops before it grows before it becomes a thing something that's established and then you cannot stop it anymore and you want to nip it in the bud I never should have let her do this Max from thinking in the first place going to nip this thing in the bud is going to make a public apology tomorrow on hard ball yeah I I got to nip this in the bud this has catastrophe written all over it and you can expect the same thing from everyone in this office if you don't nip this whole Employee of the Month situation in the bud so the next one that I have for you it's actually an expression and that is to knock on wood and if somebody says this it means that they are just hoping for good luck to happen and you could say it to somebody else El and just say you know knock on wood and actually I don't know if this is real wood but you will hear this quite often if you want to well wish someone luck or hope that they have good luck for a performance or a test or basically anything and you just say you know knock on wood or maybe you want to you're you want to give hope to yourself for something you're getting ready to do so I I I wish for the best I hope I do well knock on wood actually this would be my first Fay into trial process I haven't had to go to court yet KN on wood let him see he's not the only one who builds solid houses you know I think you'll be pretty impressed knock on wood so all along right here these are well these are rocks actually they're kind of like uh they're more like pebbles but it really has to do with the the next uh idiom that I want to teach you and that is if you say that someone is living under a rock and if somebody says this if you hear it it means that if somebody has been living under a rock it means that this person is ignorant to something that is well known that there is some event something is happening that you think everybody should know about and if somebody says well I don't know about this thing then you could ask like whoa what's wrong with you have you been living under a rock so if you hear this expression it means that yeah they're referring to somebody who is ignorant to some news some information that is very well known that you think everybody should know about to be living under a rock they all work together God have you been living under a rock no David geta have I been living under a rock yeah that song Is My Jam hi am the Beast Master from the movie Beast Master what rock have you been living under this what have you been living under a rock this is the new meme cat breed Taylor Swift reporting so we're outside having a little bit of a picnic right now and you can see that that this right here is grass uh there's there's quite a bit of it and I have it's it's actually not an idiom it's a phrase that I want to teach you and that is Grassroots because I think this is a very useful uh phrase to know and especially it's something you may hear if you're listening to the news and what it means is it's talking about the the basic level of some activity or organization or even some cause and I think I think that's how uh people use it quite often if you're talking about some Grassroots campaign and it's happening at the most basic level um people getting informed people becoming motivated to create some change and you could say that their their campaign it's it's Grassroots it's happening at that basic level so I wanted to teach you that phrase because well we're outside and there's plenty of grass the Tea Party presents itself as a Grassroots movement uh which means it should be fiercely resistant to central control I understand that Grassroots activism actually runs in your family so I opted for a more Grassroots approach to get the word out so I'm not going to beat around the bush those are all the idioms I have for you this lesson and I hope you learn some new ones if you did please hit that like button we are now going to play in these fountains right here thank you guys so much for watching and I will see you next time do you love idioms today we're talking about love idioms today we'll talk to you about 10 love idioms and these are idioms that don't necessarily have the word love in them but they are used to describe love and relationships so the first love idiom is to fancy someone and this is most mostly use in British English and it means to like someone and their company so it's not just to like someone but to enjoy spending time with them so if you enjoy spending time with someone and you really like them you would say that you fancy them you fancy that person the couple is on their first date it seems like they fancy each other number two is to fall for someone and to fall for someone means to develop romantic feelings for someone over a period of time it could be a short period of time or it could be a long period of time but that's how you say that you fall for someone I fell for West when we first started working together so number three is head over heels in love with someone so this one can be either head over heels in love or just head over heels and it just means completely and deeply in love with someone when some somebody's head over heels in love with someone else they cannot think of any other person this is the only person on their mind it's all that you think about you're very very very very into this person so you would say that you're Head Over Heels he felt head of our heels in love with her and they got married within a month number four is lydy have you heard this one before lovey doy I hear it quite a bit and it's uh kind of a way that people act it really describes how people act and how people are so you can say that two people act very lovey-dovey with each other uh that means that they're very affectionate and they really show their affection towards each other but very strongly very much and sometimes it's more viewed as a negative thing like H they're so lovey-dovey it can be almost a little too much but it's an act it's how you act towards each other they're so cute together and they're so lovey-dovey [Music] number five to be smitten it means to be strongly attracted to someone it's almost like you were smacked by love and now you're super in love with this person or very very attracted to them he is smitten with her [Music] smile number six to get hitched this is used quite a bit and it means to get married to get hitched to get married Wes and I got hitched in New York at the [Music] courthouse number seven to tie the knot this is another one that's just a synonym for uh to get hitched so it also means to get married to tie the knot my parents tied the knot in a beautiful Church number eight to go through a bit of a rough patch now this can be used as to go through a bit of a rough patch or to just go through a rough patch what it means is when a couple is having trouble a period of problems in their lives you know something goes bad and then they're constantly fighting or arguing or they just have some issues we're saying that they're going through a rough patch or a bit of a rough patch this usually means when you say that that the period is finite and that things are going to get better they're going through a bit of a rough patch right now but they'll be okay number nine double date double date means an activity that two couples do together so it can really mean any kind of activity but many times it just means like a date like going some somewhere to a picnic or to the movies or to a bar just two couples hanging out with each other it's a double date my parents always went on double dates with my aunt and uncle because all four of them were best friends and finally number 10 on the rocks on the Rocks is a relationship experiencing difficulties and is likely to fail on the Rocks doesn't necessarily have to describe a relationship between a couple but it can really be used to describe any kind of relationship like if you don't get along with your mother or your father you can say that your relationship with them is on the Rocks the man is sad because the relationship with his son is on the Rocks let's talk about some weird weird and strange idioms in English and an idiom is a fixed set of words that have a particular meaning that's very different than the meaning of the individual words so if I say something is a piece of cake many of you may be familiar with this idiom I'm not talking about food I'm just saying that something is easy and that is also it's a bit of a strange idiom as well let's begin with our first idiom which is pardon my friend French so this is a phrase that is used to apologize for some offensive language if you say some a word that is bad you would then follow it with this idiom and you might say pardon my French if you were to say like this is pardon my French it's almost like you're you're trying to say that the bad word is part of another language but this idiom is used in a really a specific context if you're talking to another person or perhaps a group of people and you kind of want to to show respect and you want to be polite but for some reason you really need to say this bad word that use this offensive language so you would follow it with pardon my French it's like you're trying to say that well hey this is not the way I normally speak I usually I do not use this language and you would say something that might be offensive and then follow it with pardon my French yeah this is not to say I don't get a ration of in every conversation pardon my French pardon my French today's been gosh dang sugar show the fact is the industry is all of us by the balls pardon my French your honor then we have to weasel out of something and I like this idiom because well I like idioms that have animals in them and to weasel out of something it means you're trying to avoid something by being dishonest and I think we could all relate to this idiom if you have some housework to do I know that I have housework that I have to do sometimes my wife might ask me to do something and I'm like well wait I got I got to go somewhere I'll be right back and yeah I try to weasel out of doing the housework I think again we can all relate to this one to weasel out of something hey stroker 10 bucks for the cage don't weasel out on me I'd be taking an even bigger risk I didn't hand this to you personally you're not going to weasel out of my deal again if you can weasel me out of this physical I will blow your mind by doing something incredibly holy at some point amen hold your horses this is well I think this is actually probably one of the more common idioms and it just means that you're you're telling somebody to be patient to wait a moment calm down relax hold your horses and I it is a very strange idiom because I have no idea how hold your horses somehow became be patient but that's the way it is so this is good idiom if you want to use it and tell somebody hey just be patient just calm down wait a second hold your horses hold your horses I'm coming well apparently it is cuz you know this is taking forever it's forever hold your horses this is disch in yeah hold your horses down in front come on sweetie hold your horses buddy the next strange idiom is pot calling the kettle black and this idiom is used to point out uh hypocrisy so if there's a situation and you're you're trying to point out this hypocrisy you would just say that that statement you'd say well that's that's the pot calling the kettle black so to to help give you a little more context and meaning say that you are trying to weasel out of something and I tell you like hey you should not avoid this you should do it you should not try to weasel out of it and then later on you learn that I am also trying to maybe weasel out of the same thing or something else and then you would tell me you point out that hypocrisy and you would say well that's the pot calling the kettle black why don't you go put some clothes on well isn't that the pot calling the kettle black or African-American suddenly she's thinking of filing a restraining order well isn't thought the pot calling the kettle black drinking while at school is just stupid and most importantly any of guys drinking at all is illegal it's a fair amount of the pot calling the kettle black then we have kitten Kaboodle and this this weird idiom means well the whole group uh of something of people the the entire amount all of something and I think people would use this maybe to to give emphasis when you tell somebody that you want well everything I want it all I want the whole kitten Kaboodle that's be that's the whole kitten Kaboodle catch you Ladi last week my stock was worth twice what it is now I'm thinking about getting out in a whole kitten kaboo L it boys I see a vast Improvement not too late to change your mind lot of good cups want to drop the whole kitten cool who wouldn't then we have tongue and cheek and this idiom yeah it's really it's the meaning is very different than those individual words because this idiom means that you are just not being serious you're making a joke but maybe you're you're saying it in a serious way like you're being sarcastic and you could say that well it's just a little tongue and Chic and I think often you might hear people use it in that way they're telling somebody else they're explaining that they're just joking that they're being sarcastic and you would say yeah it's just it's just a little tongue-in cheek after he was threatened by a group that somewhat tongue-in Chic called itself the gay we know you're as straight as an Oklahoma Highway seems like kind of an opportunity missed would have been funny well I I feel that they were just trying to be tongue-in-cheek ah a wink face I guess that could be helpful if I'm saying something tongue-in cheek here is a very weird idiom and that is wet behind the ears and it has a pretty well straightforward meaning if you would describe somebody as wet behind the ears you're basically saying that they're inexperienced and I don't know well I don't know how this came about that wet behind the ears became somebody who's inexperienced but it's it's good to know and I could say that yeah when I first started making these video lessons I was wet behind the ears I felt a little uncomfortable being in front of a camera the the quality of the videos were not that great and yeah it because I was wet behind the ears you graduated 6 years ago so you're 27 28 yeah why you don't look at thank God my last assistant was only 23 and still wet behind the ears in fact even you and some wet behind the ears FBI agent decided to put some informant in my cartel next is gungho and if you say that you are gungho it means you're very excited and eager to do something I am always gung-ho to teach you guys new English lessons each week especially ones that help you build your vocabulary that is something that I am gung-ho about and I hope that you are gung-ho to hit that like button why don't you let your new assistant take all this down wow you were gung-ho you're getting a new assistant we were all pretty happy when Jeff came around he became really gung-ho about abid's documentary yes his arm is paralyzed yes his legs are paralyzed why is everyone so gung-ho to connect those two conditions then we have a very weird idiom which is mind your p's and q's and I in my opinion I think this idiom is perhaps a bit older it's not one that I have heard in quite some time and what it means if somebody tells you to mind your Ps and q's they're really telling you to mind your manners to be careful about the way that you behave and I I think people might use it more often if you're talking to somebody perhaps a child or somebody who's just really being very immature you could tell them to to M their p's and q's that's right Capital City toi and former member of the Soviet Union and we kindly request y'all mind your pe's and q's now I want everybody to mind their p's and q's that means no

effing and jeffin the next idiom is a bull in a china shop and often you you would say that perhaps you're talking about a person and you would say that someone is like a bull in a china shop and what that means is that this person is not really careful in the way that they move around or even behave and the idiom if you think about it it makes sense because if you have a china shop China it's very uh very fragile very delicate a bull is not the animal that you would want to have in a china shop because everything's going to break so in a way it's almost like you're saying that somebody is just not delicate in a particular in handling a particular situation and you could say that that they were acting like a bull in a china shop like an elephant in a china shop in

China shop anyhow hey I am Kurt get out now get out bow in China shop out of my house my temple this is why I come to find peace dog you're coming in here like an emotional bull in a china shop then we have this strange idiom to bite the dust and I really like this idiom because I am a fan of Queen and they have a famous song called Another One Bites the Dust and if you say that someone or something Bites the Dust it means well to die to come to an end or to fail so if you don't succeed at whatever you were attempting to do you could tell somebody yeah like I I was trying to to jump over this on my bike and I just bit the dust I did not succeed I failed or if you want to talk about well something dying probably more common you would refer to uh maybe an insect as opposed to a person because you don't want to talk about people that way you don't want to act like a bull in a china shop you want to be a little more caring but if we're talking about like a mosquito and you kill a mosquito then yes that mosquito bit the dust it means his current relationship is about ready to bite the dust hard ass counselors bullies all bite the dust but Timmy Still Standing I'm laughing because yeah this next idiom I think is very strange I have no idea where it came from but Bob's your uncle and this idiom you make may hear it in the US from time to time but I think it's more common in the UK and Ireland and what it means is it's really just a way of saying well there it is it's done that's it and often I think people would use it after giving a set of instructions you're telling somebody to do something and then once you're finished telling them what to do you could just end it with Bob your uncle sit down big smiles plant the bug underneath the table easy peasy Japanese Bobs your uncle that's say so I I could give you guys some instructions and say you know first watch this entire lesson second hit that like button third write to me in the comments and Bob's your uncle there you have it it's done it's over Bob's your uncle to you like shopping like I do cuz if you do I have some new shopping idioms for you and because this is a very very common subject you are going to hear these idioms all the time so what I'm going to do is I'll give you the idioms a little bit of an explanation of how and when they're used and then an example sentence so let's get to it our first idiom is window shopping to Window Shop means to just look in the window of a store without buying anything and just kind of look and see what what is there and this is probably the one I like the least and uh the reason is because when you window shop for something you don't actually shop you don't actually go inside the store store and and buy stuff you just look which I guess it can be fun sometimes but most of the time I think it's more fun when you actually buy things we've got a lot of window shopping to do plus this is the perfect time to catch up on my window shopping I'm very well aware that there are many people who like to Window Shop and I the only thing I like to window shop for is I think like furniture and interior design stuff that can be kind of fun it gives me ideas I like to window shop for antiques so how about you what do you like to window shop for do you like it is it annoying what do you think the next IDM is ripoff a ripoff and this is used as a noun or a verb so something can be a ripoff or somebody can rip you off and either way it's not a good thing because when something is a ripoff it means that it costs way more than it should way more what what a ripoff I got ripped off a ripoff is kind of kind of an informal way to say that um somebody's stealing from you so if something's a ripoff you almost feel like somebody was trying to steal money from you that's that's how much you're paying for this particular item it's a ripoff $4 for an avocado that's a ripoff the next idiom is shop till you drop you may have heard this one uh I I hear it in movies all the time everyone always talks about how they like to shop till they drop I think it's a it's a catchy IDM because it Rhymes it it just means to shop for a really really long time until you become exhausted so if you have ever shopped till you drop you know that feeling of the end of your shopping day when you're just like tired and ready to take a nap or something at Christmas time I usually shop till I drop for the perfect gifts the next EDM is retail therapy or shopping therapy you could say either one they mean the same thing what this means is to shop to make yourself feel better so just kind of like what it sounds like this is just something that we do if we've had a bad day or if we've had a rough time sometimes we just need a little retail therapy or shopping therapy I had a bad day at work so I did a little retail therapy on my way home the next one is bargain hunting and when you Bargain Hunt you are looking for deals that is what a bargain is is a deal so bargain hunting means actively searching for really really good deals on things that you shop for anyway now we are going bargain hunting I'm not going to blow this by bargain hunting I like finding good deals but I don't think I have the patience to always go bargain hunting my mom loves to go bargain hunting on Black Friday the next idiom is to shoplift and this is a little bit of a bad one because you know it involves a CME which is never good to shoplift means to steal something from a store you shoplift you take it and hide it and walk out with it without paying for it it's not a good thing don't don't shoplift the girl shoplifted some candy from the store fit like a glove is our next idiom and we usually use it for clothes or some kind of article of clothing because when something fits like a glove it means it fits you perfectly it looks like it was meant for your body and you know it's the perfect size the perfect shape for you fits like a glove 68 years since I wore this uniform still fits me like a glove and everyone loves to find something that fits like a glove it makes us feel great I love my new shoes they fit like a glove our next stum is like a bull in a china shop I know it sounds like a mouthful but it's it's it's going to a very specific idiom what it is it's kind of what you imagine it to be so if you imagine a bull in a china shop you know it would destroy everything so because everything is breakable it's porcelain so it would break you know I'm obviously going to have to go talk to bowl in a

china shop you're coming in here like an emotional bull in a china shop the idiom kind of means the same thing if somebody behaves like a bull in a china shop they are acting recklessly they are acting clumsily they they are causing trouble he marched into the meeting like a bull in a china shop our next idium is a shopping spree and the shopping spree is kind of a short period of time in which somebody buys a lot of things the word spree it just means kind of a short period of time and it kind of shows like a lot of things that are happening in a short period of time when I got pregnant I went on a shopping spree for baby clothes our next DM is pay through the nose and this one's really funny for me for some reason just imagine taking out money out of our noses it's actually not that funny in real life because when you pay through the nose it means you end up paying a lot of money for something usually more than the fair price make them pay through the nose fact they'll pay through the nose for it so it's it's not really a a fair price that you're paying you're paying a lot more than that so it's not such a good thing we waited until the last moment to get our plane tickets so we had to pay through the nose I'm going to teach you some very common and useful American idioms and expressions that you might hear if you are talking to somebody who is from the United States or maybe you can use some of these if you plan to visit the US so believe me when I tell you that this lesson it's going to be a piece of cake and that is actually the first idiom that I want to teach you many of you are are probably familiar with this I wanted to start with something a little easier and and then it'll get a bit more challenging but if we say that something is a piece of cake it just means that something is very easy so I told you that this lesson it's going to be a piece of cake I'm going to teach you these idioms and expressions and after I explain them and tell you how to use them I I think that you will have a better understanding and like I said it's just going to improve your overall fluency so this lesson it's a piece of cake what's the sound of one hand clapping piece of cake oh Bart it's a 3,000-year-old riddle with no answer and every task you undertake becomes a piece of cake what about a race based on

Merit right each person individually mhm piece of cake then we have the phrase run late or run behind and they they both mean the same thing it just means to be late for something now I I guess I could say that I use this phrase quite often and I would tell people that that I'm running late and I I would use it often because yes I am sometimes late for appointments or if I'm going to meet somebody but I would call ahead and tell them hey you know don't worry I'm I'm just running a little late so in that case I think it also implies that you are on your way to to get somewhere or if you're talking about about perhaps like a project and you say you tell your boss you know I'm running a little behind you're telling them that it it may be late but that you're working on it so again this is a great expression I think uh especially if you were somebody who who tends to be late for things you could just tell somebody hey you know I'm running a little late but I will be there it's only four blocks but they are so slow I'm running late too we're running late H we're always running late we're running a little behind schedule hi sorry I'm late I've been running behind om then we have the expression to get the hang of something and this just means to learn something that's not quite obvious so for example I think often you would use this when talking about some type of game or activity you're trying to learn it and and get a little bit better at it and in that case you could you could tell somebody you know I'm I'm starting to get the hang of this I'm starting to feel a little more comfortable I understand it a little bit better and I'm starting to get the hang of it one thing I would like to point out with this expression is that it is often going to end with that pronoun it so in that case it's almost like you know what it is you know the game or activity that somebody is talking about and if you're trying to learn it a little bit better then you're trying to get the hang of it or starting to get the hang of it or you could say he he is getting the hang of it but you know the activity so it's often going to end with that pronoun it don't worry you'll get the hang of it you're going to get the hang of it we'll help you how's he doing haven't quite gotten the hang of it yet then we have the phrase all set and this just means that that you are ready and you are everything is in order so it's something that maybe you could ask to somebody if you want to know if they're ready and you could say Hey you know all set or you could tell somebody if you want to say that you are organized you're prepared and you are ready to go and you'd say you know I'm I'm all set we're all set we are ready we're organized we're prepared you could also say just to throw in another expression good to go it means the same thing if somebody says you know I'm good to go that means that they are ready they're all set ready ready all set okay we're all set let rip is it okay if I put out some candy that Pam brought back from Puerto Rico sure thanks for asking Pam we're all set let me know what you got El good to go weapons good to go you're good to go then we have the expression to sound like a broken record and it really means well kind of exactly what it says and that is that somebody is just repeating something again and again especially when it's not really necessary and you would say to another person like oh you know you sound like a broken record you just keep repeating repeating the same thing again and again and again especially when you don't want to hear it then you could use this expression and say that someone sounds like a broken record I hope that I don't sound like a broken record because I do I tend to repeat things again and again so so that you have a better understanding of all of these idioms and expressions because I just I just want you to get the hang of it you know I know I sound like a broken record we are buddies you're going to murder me like you murder my father you people sound like a broken record baby baby baby you sound like a broken record next is the phrase pitch in and this just means that you start doing something as a group especially something that is helpful so if you are working with a group of people maybe a team you want everyone to pitch in you want everyone to do some work the something that's helpful for the group or the team and in that case you want everyone to pitch in in but it's used in in that context that you might ask someone who may not be helping and you would tell them to pitch in or say you need to pitch in but it is to to do something that's helpful everyone here has a job we all pitch in glad he could pitch in he needs all the help he can get by the way if you need help with that I'm more than happy to pitch in then we have the idiom to blow off some steam and this just means to to do something or to say something that helps you get rid of of some energy often some some negative energy that if you're you're angry or upset you might try to perhaps you go for a run and you just want to blow off some steam you just want to want to get rid of that energy so you could use it when talking about a a an activity that you do something physical in order to blow off some steam or maybe it's something that you you say to someone perhaps you even might yell at someone and you're just you're trying to blow off some steam time to thing no let him go he needs to blow off some steam I've never seen him like that give the big lug a break even he needs to blow off some steam been working so hard this semester really need to go crazy

you know blow off some steam you still seem stressed you want to blow up some steam then we have the expression it's not rocket science so this is a statement that somebody would say to another person if they want to express that something is not really difficult and it's it should be easy to understand and you'd say no look it's not rocket science the listen for this if you're watching a TV show or movie because again if somebody wants to say that like look this is not difficult they might tell somebody you know it's not rocket science so I would tell you guys you know learning these idioms and expressions it's not rocket science I think it's a piece of cake and if you just keep practicing a little bit each and every day then you're really going to get the hang of it caller apologize it's not rocket science I mean fixing your hair is not exactly rocket science because I don't want to go by myself Barb it's not rocket science you just tell your parents you're going to stay at my place afterwards then we have the expression to table something and this just means to postpone a discussion until a later time and often I think it might be used in business perhaps you're having a meeting with a group of people and and you have a list of items that you're going to go through but you want to discuss one of them at a later time you might say you know let's let's table this item for right now and then we will discuss it later so you could table some item if it's on an agenda or maybe you could just table some discussion and you will talk about it at a later time to table something suppose that we table this discussion until let's say the second nope is gone I I think what the Dan is trying to say is uh there'll be time to talk about that we can table that for a later date what is your job exactly besides making balloon animals protecting your reality okay guys can we can we table this discussion right now the fact is is that we have this stuff next is the idiom to jump on the bandwagon and this just means to start supporting something or to even start doing something because it's trendy or fashionable often I I think I would use this ium uh when talking about sports that if there is a sport team that just suddenly started winning and then everybody they they like this team all of a sudden they're they're a huge fan then you could say look you know uh he he just jumped on the bandwagon he only likes the team because everybody else does he's supporting this team he jumped on the bandwagon of course this has happened to me if I'm living somewhere and then that that city has a sports team they become really great yeah I jump on the bandwagon everything's echo-friendly this echo-friendly that I just haven't jumped on the bandwagon yet millions of people got on the anti- Denmark bandwagon show me some kind of kindness not jumping on the let's get me family bandwagon let's stick with sports for right now because cheapest tickets which are usually high up there in the stadium and I would sit in the nose bed section can you take me to a concert with my new friend Harper sure why not it'll be nose bleeder obstructed view seat but you know what I have a friend uh he's got a couple of seats if uh if you don't mind the nose bed section they're yours no we don't care we just want to go then we have the idiom to fall through the cracks and and this just means to overlook something so if you are perhaps doing some project you don't want to overlook the details you don't want anything to fall through the cracks I need you to be sure that things don't fall through the cracks basically I need you to be more like Dean here you do it every week and you forgot things are falling through the cracks I'm pretty sure you've worn that sweater 4 days in a row this whole uh single parent thing everything is just falling through the cracks so what did I tell you those idioms and expressions piece of cake all right it it's not rocket science and I'm sorry I know that I sound like a broken record because I keep repeating these these same idioms and expressions over and over again I hope you're not upset with me but if you are a little upset and you think you need to blow off some steam then I would suggest that you check out another video Lesson I hope that you enjoy these lessons and that you just you jump on the internet active English bandwagon jump on the interactive English bandwagon and because okay I I can't think of anymore I just trying to review as much as I can thank you guys so much for watching I hope you learn some new idioms and expressions and I will see you next time

LESSON 40 OF 749

20+ ANIMAL GROUP NAMES | Useful Vocabulary Lesson

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hey everyone welcome to interactive English my name is Wes and this channel is all about helping you practice and improve your English and today I have a fun vocabulary lesson for you because I want to talk to you about the animal groups I want to talk to you about the different names for animal groups and this is a great way to build and expand your vocabulary because sometimes well we talk about animals and if they are in groups it's nice to be able to know how to refer to these animals and the word that we use in English to call these animals so that's what I want to talk to you about today so thank you guys for joining me if you you know if you're joining me in the chat in the comments write your name tell me where you're from because I just want to hear from you so hello lollie Orlando Angela Samuel

Petrie gertrudis ELISA thank you guys for joining me today let's just let's just get right to it so I told you today we're going to talk to you about animal groups and what I'm going to do I'm just going to show you the animal and then tell you the name of the group what we would call a group of of animals so

let's just start with this when we when we're talking about the names of these groups they're called Co we we use collective nouns and these nouns these are nouns that we use to refer to a group of animals we could use it to refer to a group of people but when we assign a name to it it is a collective noun so let's first do you see that picture right there we're gonna start with this picture now if you have a picture of these aunt what know they're up here these animals right here what would you call a group of birds what do you think and this I think is one of the more common ones that if we're talking about a group of birds then you would say that it is a flock a flock of so flock this is the collective noun that you would use when you are referring to a group of birds now one thing you should know about the word flock that this is actually a generic name that can be used for any large group of animals or people so flock is a very generic one that's why I said I think this may be the most common one so you can use it to talk about a flock of birds a flock of sheep if you want to refer to even a group of children you could say wow there was just a flock of children at the zoo they were all running around it was a flock of children you could say a group of children as well but this is just to show you that flock it can be used as a generic name for any large group or maybe you travel somewhere and there were a flock of tourists there were so many tourists it was a large group so you can use flock to refer to a large group let's look at a few more are you ready so as you can see you have a bunch of elephants here if we're talking about a group of elephants think about it I want you to see as we go through these think about the word that you would use to describe these animals a group of elephants is a parade a parade of elephants if you see a group and like wow okay that parade of elephants that is the word that you use to refer to a group now what about these birds in particular now these blackbirds if you don't know they are crows crows are blackbirds that you find out on on farms that's where you you might have heard the word a scarecrow which are those that it looks like almost like a person they stick them out in the field to scare away the crows so if you have a group of crows it is called a murder a murder of crows a murder is a group now one thing that you might be wondering is where do these names come from because I think often you might hear some words like a flock that is more common that that is something that you may read about or hear or you may even use if you're talking about a group of birds that you see or you want to describe a large group some of these other words I think are a little more specific maybe you might read about them if you are reading about an arc academic book or an article that is about nature and animals then you might see some of these terms but some of them they're like a parade of elephants a murder of crows you probably like okay where do these come from and this is great stuff because I have learned a lot when doin doing this lesson because some of these names I don't think some many native speakers don't know many of these words because again it's not something you're going to go out and use in everyday English but it is fun so these names just for a little context they are called name terms of venery and this is derived from English hunting tradition in the late Middle Ages so people that would hunt back then they came up with these terms and there's this book called the book of Saint albums which was published in 1486 now this book is from it's a collection of essays from different authors and they didn't really name the authors but one name that did come up in the book was julianna burners and she is one of the known authors and they came up with these names to refer to groups of animals oxford dictionary believes that the names were of butterflies this is a group of butterflies alright the next one I think this one I think may be a little more common Lions I think you find lions as characters and stories movies as well and lions also they you find them in groups quite often so if there is a group of lions do you know what word refers to a group of lions right you're right it in the shaft right it in the comments again I try to try to see if you can come up with these and it's a good way again you're building your vocabulary you're learning new words because you know what a lion is but a group of lions is called a pride a pride of lions and again now that you know the story about these this group of people came up with these names and they were just fun entertaining names some of them make sense like lions you think of strength and pride you're proud a pride of lions what about the next one here we have some ants and I'm sure all of you you have seen ants especially as a group they they work I think many of them they work really hard and if you have a group of ants that live together that is called a colony a colony of ants now one thing I will show you as the the same with flock you could have a flock of birds or a flock of sheep some of these collective nouns you can use to refer to more than than one animal as well as there may be different collective nouns that can refer to one animal which I will show you so if you're talking about a colony this is a collective noun that can refer to a colony events a colony of bees as I said you could have more than one collective noun you could also say that there is a swarm of bees that is another collective noun when talking about bees you could have a colony of rats as well as a colony of penguins so again with collective nouns you may have more than one to describe an animal so you can have a colony of penguins and there are two more words that can describe a group of penguins it can describe a group of penguins that are outside of the water and then there's another word that describes a group of penguins when they are in the water and they're swimming around so those are there are three different collective nouns when talking about a group of penguins so in general you could say a colony of penguins but if the penguin is outside of the water it is called a raft a group of penguins out of the water is a raft of penguins and if the Penguins are swimming in the water a group of penguins is called a waddle a waddle of penguins the next one let's keep moving on a lot a lot of these to go over with you today and again I don't expect you to memorize all of these the the best way to learn it is just to get exposure to to do a lesson like this and you see it once and then if you read about it later on eventually you'll start to to take hold of that vocabulary word up in your head and it'll just become a part of your active vocabulary so this is just a way to get some exposure and learn about some of these new words so a fish a group of fish if you have a group of fish such as those swimming right here around that coral you would talk about a school a school of fish and again I think this one may be a little more common because there's well most of the planet is water and fish again it's something you might read about in articles storybooks maybe in movies and you would talk about a group as a school a school of fish the next one this is a good one a group of owls now this is one that I again I don't think there are many people that probably don't know this because typically I don't know if we think of as groups but if we're talking about a group of owls when you think of owls I think most people think of the word wise owls are very smart they're very wise they have a lot of wisdom and in that case a group of owls is called a parliament so just like that yeah just like the form of government if if you have a group of owls it is called a parliament now this right here this is a jellyfish you find these jellyfish out in the ocean you don't maybe want to swim with them because those tentacles they can they can sting you but if you have a group of jellyfish again some of these words are just I think very funny very entertaining a little crazy a group of jellyfish is called a smack alright and then we have what about these guys right here these hippos what do you think a group of hippos so these are very large animals these hippos right here and a group if you have a group of these hippos it is called a bloat a bloat and I think when way you could think about this I feel like hippos are very big they have very big stomachs and if your stomach if you eat too much and your stomach feels a little it feels it just feels like it's expanded it's too big a little heavy you could say you feel bloated your stomach is bloated so a group of hippos is called a bloat what about this one maybe a little easier I think again this might be a little more common because these are wolves and wolves are often found in groups so typically wolves will hunt together they will live together in a group and we call that group what what do you think do you guys know a group of wolves I told you I think it's a little more common because I think again these animals they live in groups it is a pack a pack of wolves now we can use pack to talk about other animals as well for example you could say a pack of wolves a pack of dogs or even a pack of mules so that is my picture of a wolf it does look a little bit like a dog - so I guess we'll stick with it and then here is a mule down there which if you don't know what a mule is it is when you have a male donkey mate with a female horse when a donkey mates with a horse then you get a mule and mules they're typically used for carrying things up hills so a pack of wolves pack of dogs and a pack of mules the next one we have are these giraffe what do you think giraffe if you have a group of giraffe together what do you think that's called any guesses and again this one I think the way I would say they're common it really depends on where you live because some of these animals may be native to your country and you may see them quite often other times maybe you've never seen a giraffe except for at the zoo so it may not be as relevant but that's why I said like a flock of birds I think is more common but if you have a group of giraffe it's called a tower and again think about it it makes it makes a little sense towers they're very high they're very tall giraffe are very tall animals so a group of giraffe is called a tower a tower of giraffe the next one those right there these little guys right here are porcupines porcupines are those animals I don't know if you can see on there they have those sharp needles and they're very sharp and if you Schiff you touch a needle you can get what there's a verb that goes with it if you touch something sharp you say ow I just got mmm and then think about that word and then think about well what is the name of the group because again once I show you the word I think you'll think oh this makes sense if you have a group of porcupines that have those really that those sharp needles on their backs if you touch something sharp you can get pricked and like oh I just got pricked so a group of porcupines is called a prickle a group of porcupines is a prickle the next one I think this one again this is a little easier because when you think of cows farming it's something that I think people are a little more familiar with so if you're talking about a group of cows which again you might often find cows in a group you would refer to it as a what what do you think a group of cows if you don't know you're in luck because I'm going to tell you a group of cows is called a herd a herd of cows the next one that I have for you is this one and this one is well this is a panda and I think this one is I think it's a little humorous and I was actually very surprised I had no idea what a group of pandas is called it is an endangered animal they are you there are many pandas still in China but it's not an animal that I think you see in your everyday life but a group of pandas any guesses as to what that is write that in the chat write that in the comments I was very surprised to learn that a group of pandas is called an embarrassment actually if you look it up a group of pandas is called an embarrassment so there are many many many names out there for these groups of animals again these are collective nouns that you use to refer to these animals so here again here is the list that we've gone over if we're talking about a flock a parade a flutter a colony and the ones that I would say that I think are more important that you will likely hear about or you may even want to use would be words like a flock a flock of birds because there are birds everywhere or maybe a school of fish or if you're talking about animals that you know always belong in a group like a group of wolves a pack of wolves or even Lions I think a pride of lions those are I think a little more important because you're more likely to hear about if you're watching a movie or TV show or read about if you're reading a magazine or some news article on nature but the other ones again I think they're they can be a little more fun to learn I think that's very interesting to learn these some of them were new to me I had no idea a group of pandas is called an embarrassment but this again is just a good way to build your vocabulary to try to learn some new words so that the next time you're having a conversation if you happen to be talking about these animals maybe you can listen for these group names or even try to use them the next time you are having a conversation and discussing these groups so again thank you guys so much for joining me I know we went through this pretty quickly today and went through all these lessons

let's let's review them quickly because this was pretty fast so again these are all collective nouns if you don't know the names of these and we have the name of a group of birds is a flock if we have a group of elephants it is a parade a raid of elephants then we have a murder of crows next was a flutter of butterflies then we had a pride of lions a group of lions next would be a colony of ants I told you a colony has several different names penguins you could have a colony of penguins you could have a raft of penguins outside the water a waddle of penguins inside the water then there is a school of fish a Parliament of owls a smack of jellyfish that is a entertaining one a bloat of hippos could say that you could think that you are a little bloated a pack of wolves which i think is a little more of a common one we had a tower of giraffe a prickle of porcupines a herd of cows an embarrassment of pandas so these are some of the animal groups if you are interested in learning some more let me throw a couple links here and these are the these are the references that I used this is one of them and here is another one and they list a bunch of animal names because I I just went over a few of them with you I just chose these right here to go over with you today but if you're interested in learning more check out those links in the chat right there so thank you guys so much for joining me for today's lesson again if you guys want to make a connection with us if you want to join the interactive English community online subscribe to our newsletter we will give you access to the secret fluency lesson and there is a link to that right there if you want to subscribe email with us stay connected with us thank you guys for joining me thank you give some shout outs lolly app min Romina milena Thank You Aidan Aziza SMAW Maremma thank you guys for joining me today Maria Katty putri Angela al Abraham Yun sorry if i mispronounce names Hani CeCe I hope that you have maybe learned some new words if you did learn a new word please hit that like button show us some love and again this is just a great way to get exposure to the language learn some new words and as you continue to read about these words as you continue to hear about them then you will actually put these words into your active memory and they will just become a part of your vocabulary so hope you guys have a wonderful day enjoy the rest of your weekend and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 41 OF 749

20 Advanced Nouns to Describe People

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today i am going to teach you 20 nouns that describe people that's coming up [Music] hey everyone my name is wes from interactiveenglishvideos.com and this channel it's all about helping you practice and improve your english skills and today i have a vocabulary lesson for you because i am going to teach you 20 different nouns that that describe people and they describe people's profession their their personalities or even their characteristics so i don't expect you to memorize every single one of these i think you are probably already familiar with some of them and that's great it's great review but what i'd like you to do for the nouns that you learn that okay they're new nouns i want you to try to associate them with somebody that you know because that's just going to help you remember the meaning of the noun so let's begin with uh professions like somebody's work or or maybe a position that they have and the first noun that i have for you is co-worker so a co-worker that i think many of you may be familiar with that that is just somebody that you work with it is your co-worker now the the one thing i want to highlight with this noun is that co the that prefix at the beginning of this co because what that is short for is cooperation so it's talking about people working together co-co-workers we can also use it with other nouns as well for example you may hear somebody is the co-founder that they started a company with another person they were working together or maybe on a sports team somebody could be the co-captain these two people they are cooperating and and they are the leaders of the team or in a newsroom somebody who is an anchor they do the news there might be a co-anchor there's two people cooperating working together and they are co-anchors

so keep that in mind when you see those two letters at the front of a word co co-workers then we have the noun backup and if you say that somebody is a backup then that just means they are there to help and support someone else and in this case i usually think of perhaps a sports team that you have the the primary player for some position but then they have a backup if they get injured or hurt there's a backup and somebody else will will take their place so a backup supports or helps another person neither of them are married by the time they're 40 they marry each other you mean a backup yeah exactly help well we could use a backup it's obvious we should take dr eva's lair by force and be my backup son back up that's fairly condescending the next noun is escort and this is talking about a person who will accompany another person to some type of social event and they they would be your escort they go with you to this party the this function whatever event it is and they are your escort you could also use it as a verb and this person could be escorting you to the party keep in mind be careful with this word because as a noun it also means someone who is paid to go with another person to some type of social event and even usually have sex afterwards so in that case it could be synonymous with the word prostitute so keep that in mind before you go somewhere and you tell somebody hey you know this evening i am an escort but generally it means that you are going with somebody to some type of social event in escort then we have entrepreneur this is actually a word that comes from french and it just refers to a person who starts a business and you could say that that he or she is an entrepreneur they are starting your own business then we have the noun mediator now a mediator is a person who tries to find some solution in order to solve a disagreement and when i think of a mediator it could be a person who is finding solutions to help solve problems with a divorce or perhaps a a company if there are two companies that really disagree about something they may try to hire or find a mediator to help solve this problem rather than spend all day in court we have decided to settle our dispute using a mediator all right this is going to be an ugly ass divorce we're going to get a mediator you should settle this yeah but unfortunately my friendship to each of you precludes my getting involved what you need is an impartial mediator and then there is an organizer and this is just refers to a person who plans or prepares an event and you could say that that they are an organizer and again it's a little bit of a vague word that you it doesn't really specifically say what they are organizing but if you were referring to somebody who is in charge of planning the event or activity you'd say that this person is the organizer now i want to talk about personalities and in this case i'm talking about the type of person that someone is so someone could be a philanthropist and they like to help the poor they really like to help those who are in need and maybe a little less fortunate than others and they are a philanthropist or you could say that somebody is an advocate and if somebody is an advocate then it means that they they really support something or or maybe they could support someone as well and they are an advocate sometimes this word may be followed with the preposition for so you would say that somebody is an advocate for some cause maybe somebody could be an advocate for women's rights so whatever cause somebody might be passionate about they really believe in it they would be considered an advocate she's an advocate for superheroes it's a new job i've long been an advocate for diversity because i've always been an advocate of women in the workplace like sometimes it does feel like industry was more protected than my son and that's what motivated me to become an advocate a person could also be an anarchist and this describes somebody who kind of wants to destroy government or existing laws and you could refer to them as an anarchist or perhaps a person could be an alpha and if you say that somebody is an alpha it means that they are they are strong they are powerful and they just like to be in charge and you might often hear this noun used with the word personality and you would say that somebody they have an alpha personality i am an alpha you're a madman but not an alpha if you want to beat an alpha you have to be an alpha next you can say that someone is an innovator and if you describe a person as being an innovator you are just saying that they are well they're really creative and they often introduce new change or new ideas they are an innovator or perhaps maybe somebody is a visionary and if you describe somebody in this way a visionary is a person who is able to see what what society or what technology or what maybe even a country will look like in the future that they know what the future might look like because they are a visionary often i think it's used to describe people who maybe work in technology and they're able to come up with all these great ideas because they are also innovators and then you could say that someone is a good samaritan and if you refer to somebody as a good samaritan it just means they like to help people who are in trouble and i this is a great word i think all of us should try to be good samaritans i'm i'm just a good samaritan we had robbie all wrong he wasn't a peeping tom he was a good samaritan we're just wasting this boy's time then aren't we i'll tell you what i'll be a good smirk what's the cheapest gun you got now let's talk about nouns that that describe people's characteristics their emotions their behaviors and we could say that someone is a klutz and if a person is a klutz it means that they are well pretty clumsy and even a bit silly and foolish so if if i am always falling down and tripping and i have no balance whatsoever you might say wow wes you're such a klutz i really gave fell in the shower such a class i'm so sorry i fell okay i've just i've been such a classic oh my what the heck what the we have to go we could also say that someone is a brat and this is talking about well usually a child who behaves badly and you would say he is a brat she is a brat you could use it to describe an adult but mostly i think it's used to talk about a child a brat or you could say somebody's a genius that's that's a nice thing to say to someone because it's talking about a person who has a very rare skill or they're very talented in some way way beyond everyone else and you could say that this person is a genius then we have an optimist this is a great word i like to think that i am an optimist and it is describing a person who always tries to find the good in some situation and you really try to have a positive attitude no matter what's happening and you could say that that this person is an optimist we could also describe someone as a pessimist which is pretty much the opposite and it means that a person is they always find the bad in some situation or they always think that something is going to go terribly wrong and you could say that they are a pessimist so again try to be an optimist i think it's always good to try and stay positive think about the good things try to be an optimist run away

live in the tear garden you're an optimist it could be anywhere in the world i'll never see him again it's over i thought you were an optimist miss lemon you're such a pessimist you know what my motto is everything always works out for the best and i have my it's about the effectiveness of this medicine too well donald are you becoming a pessimist you could also say that someone is an sob and i just wanted to include at least one acronym so sob is an acronym that stands for son of a it's not something that that you want well you don't want somebody to refer to you as an sob and i hope that you don't have to refer to many other people as an sob because what it is it's just it's another way of saying that somebody is just a jerk they're an ass and it's it's just not a nice thing to say to somebody if you call them an sob but unfortunately i think probably all of us if we really wanted to we could think of somebody we know who's kind of an sob god of night lord of the smoke and mirror a shape-shifter powerful sob he was really sorry about it of course that sob i know your syntomia's just a mean little sob and then we have the word heartthrob and this noun is talking about a famous singer or an actor that many women are attracted to and you would say that he is a heartthrob and actually wait i think i kind of made a mistake it's talking about singers actors or even english teachers yeah believe it or not heartthrobs i don't see karen i see dawson's creek heartthrob james van der beek what kind of things are the way you stop that i can't help it i feel like a teen heartthrob and i understand you've recently become engaged to young heartthrob crooner josh groban so in the comments i want you to write to me and tell me which noun describes you all right which noun do you think accurately describes your profession your personality or maybe any of your characteristics let me know in the comments i hope that you learned some new nouns in this lesson if you did please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and i will see you next

LESSON 42 OF 749

20 POSITIVE PHRASAL VERBS TO SURVIVE 2020

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

so 2020 it uh i think it's fair to say it's been a rough year i wanted to try and focus on something a little more positive so in today's lesson i want to teach you 20 phrasal verbs that all have a positive meaning that's coming up hey everyone my name is wes this is interactive english which is the channel you want to be watching to improve your english and achieve fluency and today i have a lesson that i hope will be a little more positive and uplifting because i want to teach you 20 different phrasal verbs that have all positive meanings and i think because i'm already telling you that all of these phrasal verbs have a positive meaning i think that will make them a little bit easier to understand and possibly remember because you can connect it to that feeling you can connect it to something that is positive and i also have some positive news that i want to share with you about today's sponsor which is lingoda because at the end of the lesson i want to talk to you about the lingoda team challenge this is a great opportunity for you to improve your english i'll give you a lot more information and really tell you how this will make a positive change in your life and others the first phrasal verb that i have for you is believe in and this just means to feel confident about something or someone often i think we use it when we're talking about a person and you might say that you believe in someone for example you all want to improve your english and i truly i believe in you i feel that if you keep working hard and practicing and watching these video lessons i believe in you and i think that you will achieve your fluency goals then we have a three-word phrasal verb which is brush up on and typically you would say that you're going to brush up on something which means that you are going to improve your knowledge or skill in well in something that you have learned before but you've kind of forgotten let's say that you studied english in the past you've forgotten a little bit but you're going to improve your knowledge and you're going to brush up on your skills read some books brush up on your history the quiz monday brush up on chapters three and four yeah i need to housebreak our new police dog plus it couldn't hurt ralphie to brush up on the fundamentals get along this is a very common phrasal verb and it's used to talk about two or more people that are just friendly with each other and i think it's very important that everyone try to get along

next is the phrasal verb get over you get over something and what this is talking about is that you return to a normal state of health or happiness after some bad experience and you might get over an illness or perhaps you get over a bad breakup and you just return to your normal state then we have the phrasal verb get through and to get through something means that you are trying to survive it you're trying to endure it and then you will you will reach the end and everything will be better and often i think you would use this phrasal verb if you want to offer some encouragement some support and you might hear somebody say look you're you're gonna get through this i believe in you you're gonna get through this just get through today i'll be there tomorrow afternoon but we're just gonna have to find a way to get through this get through this together next is go beyond and to go beyond just means to be more than or do more than what is expected and often you may hear people use it with this expression to go above and beyond that if you do more than what is expected of you then somebody might say that you just went above and beyond then we have goof off or goof around they mean the same thing and it pretty much means to avoid doing something and maybe you're wasting time and i've included them in this lesson about staying positive because when you are dealing with some type of really bad experience i think all of us need to relax a little bit and it can be helpful to goof off or goof around and it just helps us it could help you get through the day are we gonna be goofing off like this every day uh we're not goofing off but what they really want is an excuse to goof off and not study for finals i can goof around jd i i can goof around hard this says they only pay you 100 bucks a week yeah but all i really do is goof around all day then we have help out and i think often you may find a pronoun between the verb and the preposition to help someone out and this means that you are just you're doing some work for somebody else or maybe you're giving them some money and you are helping a person out you guys you can help me out if you want and hit that like button down below then we have the phrasal verb keep at and if you keep at something if somebody tells you to keep at it they just want you to continue working at something and i think often this is really a little more encouraging that if somebody's thinking about giving up and they're thinking about quitting and you want them to stay positive and really get through it you might tell them look i i believe in you you just need to keep at it then we have the phrasal verb keep up which is very similar if somebody tells you hey keep it up then they're telling you to continue working and maintain the effort that you're putting in or perhaps you're you're doing a great job and they want you to continue doing a good job and they may tell you to to keep it up so that's a little bit of a slight difference i think if somebody's going to tell you to keep at it then i think they want to encourage you if maybe you're having a difficult time or if you're doing well and they want you to continue doing well and working they may tell you to keep it up keep up the good work there's too much at stake i can't just write superman off we need him you're right we should keep at it no i should keep at it right your department's killing babe hey my pleasure my treasure keep it up then we have light up and to light up is just to look happy and often i think people may use it to describe someone's face and they would say oh like uh her face just lit up that she became very happy or maybe somebody might use the expression to light up the room that is somebody's presence that they enter and maybe you say they just light up the room they make everyone happy then we have look forward to it is a three-word phrasal verb and it means to feel very excited about something that that's going to happen in the future for example i look forward to 2021.

i look forward to the tournament i look forward to tomorrow night i look forward to your call i look forward to meeting her look up this phrasal verb means to become better and often i think you would hear somebody say something like things are looking up things are becoming better they're starting to look up next is the phrasal verb pay off and if something pays off then it results in success for example people might say well hard work pays off if you work really hard then then it's going to pay off it's going to result in success then we have the phrasal verb pull through and pull through is talking about someone who becomes well again after a serious illness and if somebody is very ill they're in the hospital you want them to pull through and become well again next is the phrasal verb settle down and that means to become well familiar with a place and just be happy about it often i think people might use it when they're they're talking about the future or something like that and they'd say later on in life i just want to settle down and have a family and just enjoy life we'll claim our land and then we'll marry and finally settle down you do want to settle down don't you shannon yes i want to settle down i will say you know kyle used to be just like us hanging out drinking and stuff but he seems happier that he settled down then we have sort out which means that you are dealing with a problem in a successful way so if you have a problem you might tell somebody that i you know i just need to sort this out i need to deal with it successfully i'm going to sort it out because you want to stay positive i i really hope that you sort out all of your problems then we have the phrasal verb straighten up and if you say that someone straightens up it's a positive phrasal verb because it means that they are behaving well after behaving poorly so if somebody has maybe they have some problems they have some issues you might tell that person to to straighten up and you'd say i really want you to straighten up i want you to behave well you really you should sort out all your problems go settle down and just try to be happy and work hard and in the end it's all going to pay off work through this phrasal verb means that you're trying to manage a problem that has different parts so it could be a problem that is a little complicated and you could say that you're trying to work through it you want to work through it so that afterwards everything is better then we have the phrasal verb work up and if you are trying to work your way up it means you're you're trying to make progress and typically i think you're you're trying to achieve some type of level or position for example you may hear people talk about the phrase to work your way up the corporate ladder you're trying to improve and make progress in the company and and work your way up the ladder now i want to tell you about a great opportunity to improve your english fluency and i think it will really pay off and i'm talking about the lingoda team challenge that's right when it comes to learning a language you you are not alone you can now do it as a team and this is a great way to win some cool prizes as well as donate classes to a good cause and i will tell you about all that in just a moment if you don't already know about lingoda it is an online language school where you can study english business english spanish german or french and you get to study with a native speaking teacher in small group classes and that's great because it gives you more opportunities to speak you can build your vocabulary work on your pronunciation do all of the things that you need to do to go above and beyond your fluency goals i've even studied with lingoda i wanted to brush up on my spanish so i took some spanish classes and it was a great learning experience so let me tell you more about the lingoda team challenge because when you participate you have two options you can do the challenge in which case you will study for seven weeks and take 21 classes three classes per week or you can do the super challenge in which case you will also study for seven weeks but you will take 35 classes so you'll be doing five classes per week now you can do the challenge or the super challenge as an individual or you can do it as a team and i highly recommend that you do this as a team because you will benefit more from this and very soon i will tell you why no matter whether you do this as an individual or with a team if you finish 100 of your classes lingoda will donate 20 of your attended classes to those in need with the lingoda language scholarship and these scholarships help those affected by covid 19 and just can't afford to pay for online classes so when you sign up and you do the challenge or the super challenge and attend 100 of the classes you you're not only helping yourself and supporting your own education you're also supporting somebody else's education as well and i think that's so important with it with everything going on in the world today i think that's exactly what we need more giving more helping and when you are supporting and helping somebody else out with their education there's just nothing more positive than that so i want to take a moment and tell you about some of the benefits you will get by forming a team because when you form a team you can become eligible to win some very cool prizes so the goal of a team is to qualify for those prizes and in order to qualify every team member must do three things the first thing that you must do is attend 100 of your classes

the next thing that everyone must do is just take no more than one class per day and then the third thing is that each team member must take the same number of classes throughout the week so everyone on the team must do the challenge and they're taking three classes per week or everyone on the team must do the super challenge and take five classes per week and in case you're wondering about that first place prize it is a weekend trip to one of the following cities to practice your language skills another reason why you should form a team is because you can get 10 euro cash back for each person who joins your team and you can get a maximum of 110 euro cash back if you get 11 people to join all you have to do is use the name wes interactive when you fill out the team registration form so on that form you should see something like are you invited by an influencer and that is when you will use wes interactive to get 10 euro cash back for each team member all team members must sign up by november 1st and everyone must complete the seven week challenge within 63 days of purchase and by december 20th from november 10th to december 15th you will receive weekly updates of the team's results so that's really a great way to motivate each other you can click on the link in the description to learn more about the lingoda team challenge then start building your team so that you can win those cool prizes and donate to a good cause and remember use the name wes interactive when you complete the team registration form so this it's this is really a great opportunity for you to learn and improve your speaking fluency for you to support someone else's learning as well as just well n2020 on a positive note

LESSON 43 OF 749

225 Useful Collocations You MUST Know | 1-Hour Vocabulary Masterclass

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Prepare yourself because I am going to teach you over 225 phrases to truly help you build your vocabulary. And I say truly build your vocabulary because I'm going to teach you different collocations which are words that are frequently used together. Now, many of these words you may already be familiar with, and that is a good thing because you should be using these collocations in order to sound more natural and fluent because if you tell me something like, I would like to raise my vocabulary, I understand you, it's grammatically correct, but it sounds awkward, you're not going to use the verb raise when talking about vocabulary. These are collocations. I want to start out with words that are at a B2, C1, and C2 level and go over some of the useful and common collocations with those words to help you be more descriptive and precise. Let's begin. Yeah, I want to help you supercharge your vocabulary by learning many different collocations, which are words that are frequently used together. And when you use them in conversation, it's just going to help you sound more natural. So, in this lesson, I'm going to teach you over 50 different collocations ranging from levels B2 to C2. So, the phrases that we're going to look at are more upper intermediate to advanced. Now, I'm not going to lie to you. Building your vocabulary is something that may take a considerable amount of time, but learning collocations can be somewhat of a shortcut. So, let's begin with some B2 collocations and with a word that I've already mentioned, considerable. This is an adjective that means very large or much. And there are some great adjective noun collocations such as a considerable amount of something. Previously I mentioned a considerable amount of time or you could say that you're making a considerable difference or you're making considerable progress or you have considerable influence over someone and this collocation you may follow it with that preposition over. Besides, we have to do a considerable amount of paperwork. Whether you might go back and use your considerable influence and ask your cabin colleagues if they might reconsider. And I am confident that learning collocations will make a considerable difference in building your vocabulary.

And if that is what you'd like to do, please subscribe, turn on notifications, that way I can become your teacher. My name is Wes. The channel is Interactive English. It's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals. And if you follow my video lessons, I think that you will make considerable progress. Okay? See how just natural that sounds? Let's continue with our next set of collocations that have the noun feedback. So, this is information or statements of opinion about something such as a product and saying whether it's successful or liked. So you may give feedback or provide feedback or even offer feedback. And give, provide, and offer, those are really synonyms.

You may also get feedback as well as receive feedback. And once again, get and receive, those are synonyms. And this may seem simple, but this is when I hear people make mistakes and they may say tell feedback instead of give feedback. So these are some great verb noun collocations. There are also some very common adjective noun collocations because I think overwhelmingly people may talk about positive feedback or negative feedback. The next word that I want to look at is deeply. We're going to mix it up with an adverb. So deeply means extremely or strongly and it is a great way to add emphasis. So there are some adverb adjective collocations that well may have a positive connotation or a negative connotation. Let's start with the negative. You may say that you are deeply worried about something or deeply concerned about something. So either of those collocations you may follow with that preposition about. You could also refer to something or someone as deeply flawed. So in this case, you may be talking about a deeply flawed plan or maybe a deeply flawed individual. I'm deeply worried about aging. The US is deeply concerned about an escalating conflict that will not end well for either side. He's deeply flawed and somehow somehow some way we raised a child. For those that may be a bit more positive, if you're apologizing, you could say that you are deeply sorry. Or maybe you were deeply moved by something and it just affected you emotionally and you're going to follow this with by or you could say that you are deeply in love and he is deeply sorry. I told him that I was deeply moved by a statement. I was in love with her and she was in love with me and we were so deeply in love.

Then we have the word controversial and I have two different sets of collocations with this noun which means causing disagreement or discussion. So let's start with some adjective noun collocations. Maybe you're going to debate a controversial issue or say that someone made a controversial decision. Or if you're talking about a person, you could say, "Well, this person is a controversial figure." And I'm sure right now you can think of someone who you would refer to as a controversial figure and they're really causing disagreement. And then there are some common adverb adjective collocations if you want to say someone or something is extremely controversial or highly controversial. And we can build on top of this and say that someone is a highly controversial figure. And now we're using them all together. Can you think of someone who you would consider a highly controversial figure? Let me know down in the comments. Then we have the word wisdom which means using knowledge or experience to make good decisions.

And there are only two collocations that I want to look at. The first one is an adjective noun collocation which is conventional wisdom. And in this case, the meaning changes slightly. So if we're talking about conventional wisdom, it refers to opinions or theories that have existed for a long time and that most people agree with. And this is a common collocation, conventional wisdom. Conventional wisdom suggests that our next move is to resume hostilities to fight. Well, conventional wisdom says good fleeing will always beat good chasing, but the stats say put your money on the guy with the gun. I have another adjective noun collocation, except this time wisdom is the adjective. And I'm talking about a wisdom tooth or wisdom teeth. So, this is the last tooth to come in at the back of each side of your upper and lower jaw. And often you may have to get well this tooth or even the teeth removed your wisdom tooth or wisdom teeth.

Dental emergency. I'm getting my wisdom teeth pulled and count up all of the extra painkillers that I had left over from my wisdom tooth surgery. Let's move on to some C1 words and some of those common collocations. And we'll begin with the verb call. So, this is a verb that has well multiple meanings. But in this case, we're talking about arranging for something to happen, such as a particular event and usually something official. And there are some great verb noun collocations such as to call a meeting or more specifically to call an emergency meeting. And you could also call for something. And we're going to follow the verb with for. And I have a few different examples. You could call for a strike or call for an election or call for a halt to something. Those are some great collocations with this verb.

Next is the word tedious. It's a word that I don't really like the meaning of it, but I like using it because it's very descriptive. It's an adjective that means boring or uninteresting. So, we can use this to describe some specific nouns and those are the collocations. You might talk about a tedious job or tedious work or even a tedious task. So once again, job, work, task. They're they're similar. They're synonyms, but great nouns to use with this adjective. Jerry selection is tedious work. It's the only way to get through yet another tedious and useless task. And then let's throw in a phrasal verb. Why not? Bubble over. And we're going to follow the phrasal verb with the word with. to bubble over with something. It means to be very excited or enthusiastic. And there are some great phrasal verb noun collocations such as to bubble over with excitement or to bubble over with enthusiasm or even to bubble over with emotion. And hopefully it makes it a little easier to grasp these collocations because excitement, enthusiasm, emotion, once again, they're really synonyms. I am bubbling over with excitement to continue teaching you more collocations with the next word which is burning. And no, I'm not talking about fire. This word has a couple of different meanings. And I want to talk to you about collocations with each. So the first meaning would refer to something that is very strong. And there are some great adjective noun collocations like a burning desire or a burning ambition. So, it's a great way to add emphasis. Firefighters have a passion for their work. Arsonists just have a burning desire.

Is that even a joke? It's a word play or parody. The next meaning is a subject or question that must be dealt with or answered quickly. And there are also a couple adjective noun collocations with this meaning. Maybe you're talking about a burning issue or even a burning question. So again, we're really adding emphasis because we're not talking about a normal question. We're talking about a burning question. You look like a boy with a burning question. One that my tarot cards can answer better than any book. Then we have the verb capture. And the meaning that we're going to talk about is to feel interested or excited by something. And there are a few different verb noun collocations such as to capture the imagination or to capture the attention or to capture the interest. And you could follow each of these collocations with the word of to capture the imagination of someone. We could also put a pronoun between the verb and the noun. I could say that, well, someone's trying to capture the audience's attention or something captured my imagination. And I hope that this lesson has captured your interest. And if it has, and you've learned something new, you can let me know by hitting that like button. Let's continue with some C2 words, which are a little more advanced. And we'll talk about some of those collocations. And we'll begin with the word underlying. This means that something is real, but it's not immediately obvious. I have several adjective noun collocations like an underlying cause or an underlying condition. And these you may hear somebody use medically. Perhaps a doctor may talk about an underlying condition or the underlying cause of some illness.

As of right now, the mortality rate is fluctuating between 25 and 30% depending upon underlying medical conditions. You could also say that something is the underlying principle or perhaps uh an underlying motivation. Maybe you want to improve your English for more work opportunities, but perhaps you also maybe want to date someone and have the relationship in English. And you could say that maybe that is an underlying motivation. It's real, but it's not obvious. Next is the word framework. We're talking about a system of rules, ideas, or beliefs that is used to decide something. And you may hear people use this word with a few different adjective noun collocations talking about a legal framework or a regulatory framework or even a theoretical framework. Then there's the word expenditure which refers to the total amount of money a government organization or even a person spends. And a few different adjective noun collocations include government expenditure or annual expenditure or even personal expenditure. We also have a couple of verb noun collocations such as to cut expenditure or even to reduce expenditure. something that I think many businesses try to do with current and projected deficits. We need to cut expenditures by 32%. Then we have the word literal. It refers to a word's original or basic meaning. And there are a few different adjective noun collocations that I want to share with you. You may talk about the literal meaning of something or perhaps the literal interpretation or even use it in the phrase in a literal sense. Look, what's an M7G677? A black hole. In what sense? In a literal sense. And then finite. I don't know why I said it like that. Finite. This adjective means having a limit or end. And a few different adjective noun collocations with this word include finite resources or a finite number or a finite amount.

Those are some great phrases with this word. We just learned a lot of different collocations and I do not expect you to remember all of these. I think you're probably already familiar with many of these words, but it's all about recognizing which words are frequently used together. That's what collocations are. and your brain is going to start recognizing that pattern so that when you're having a conversation, you're just going to end up using the words together and you'll sound a lot more natural. I know I'm giving you a lot right now and I hope that you don't think this is a tedious task. I just want you to be able to recognize the words that are used together. That's why I'm showing them to you. I'm saying them.

interest. And the way that I want to do that right now is by talking about a word that is overused by everyone, myself included. And I want to share with you some useful collocations that you can use instead. So this is really going to add flavor to your vocabulary. Today I have a very important lesson for you. But let let's just get this out of here because I want to help you supercharge your vocabulary. I want to teach you many different words and phrases that you can use instead of saying very because the word very it's a very common it's a very common word. I just used it several times then.

It's probably one of the most overused words in English. I end up using it all the time. It's an adverb that means really or to a high degree. opportunity for all of you to greatly build your vocabulary. And there are two different ways that you can do this. I'm going to talk to you about both. The first way that you can do this is by learning some different synonyms for the word very. And here are some right here. These are all adverbs that typically come before an adjective to form a collocation. Words that are frequently used together. So, these are some very common and useful phrases that I'm getting ready to teach you. And I'm going to give you a lot.

I do not expect you to remember all of them, but the more that you hear these phrases and that you see them, you're just going to end up making a mental note, and that's very important. So, let's begin with the first adverb, which is pretty. Now, pretty, it has a similar meaning, but it's it's extremely useful because we often use pretty with some some very common and simple adjectives and their opposites. So, you might hear somebody say that something is pretty good, or they may say it's pretty bad. Perhaps you're trying to do something and you have no problems and you say, "Wow, that was pretty easy." Or if there were a lot of problems, you might say, "It was pretty difficult." Maybe somebody's moving pretty fast. I do not want to do that in this lesson.

I'll probably move pretty slow because that'll make it easier for you to understand. Or you're describing somebody and you say that they are pretty smart. And the opposite of that would be pretty dumb. The next adverb, which is probably more of a direct synonym, is extremely, which means a a very high degree. And I'll probably throw in some varies throughout the lesson, but you you could say something is extremely important. perhaps it's extremely dangerous. Maybe you are extremely grateful for something. Or you could describe uh something and say it's extremely difficult. And I've now used difficult twice. Really just to show you that you can use different words and mix them together because there is a difference.

Or maybe you say that you are awfully sorry. Or perhaps you're talking about a place that is awfully crowded. Then we have the word truly. I love this synonym. You could say that you are truly thankful. Or perhaps you're truly passionate about something. Or maybe you're truly happy. And we could also use truly with a synonym for happy. It's another collocation and say you are truly content. So either one. Truly happy, truly content. Great phrases to know immensely. And this just makes me think well like very big. But this adverb is used in some very common collocations. I threw another very in just now. And you could hear somebody describe a person and say that they are immensely talented.

something is immensely popular. I I wish my video lessons were immensely popular. Or maybe you describe something as immensely useful. Or you could talk about a business and say that it is immensely profitable. So, I just taught you some truly remarkable, which is which is another collocation with truly truly remarkable synonyms that you can use instead of saying very. And I I don't think these phrases are extremely difficult to learn, but I do feel that they are immensely useful in helping you build your vocabulary. And I'm really trying to emphasize these synonyms. But now let's look at the second way that you can supercharge your vocabulary and avoid using the word very. And that is by using more precise language. So I think quite often people will use very with a a simple adjective such as the adjectives that you see up here. And instead of using very along with one of these adjectives, you can use a word that is more descriptive. It's more exact. And this is going to help you more accurately express your thoughts, opinions, and ideas. So, let's start with very good. And you might use well, very good to describe uh an event, a party, a festival. And instead of saying very good, there are so many different words that you can choose from. You could say that something is incredible, amazing, those are two very common adjectives, or spectacular. And then if you want to use a couple of adjectives which may not be as common, maybe you could say something is phenomenal or breathtaking. I love that adjective. I've never had anyone describe one of my lessons as breathtaking. I've just been waiting. I've been waiting to hear that down in the comments. And then the same goes for very bad. There are many different words that you can choose from that are going to be more descriptive than just saying very bad like terrible or horrible. Those are those are very common adjectives, great words to use instead of saying very bad. You could also say that well something is lousy or dreadful. That's that is very bad. And then probably I I think the strongest word maybe that you could use would be atrocious. I I really hope I I don't see that word down in the comments. Then we come to very happy. Now I have already taught you one way that you could avoid using very if you want to use another adverb and you could say that that you are truly happy. But you could also just use one word instead to be a bit more descriptive. And instead of saying very happy, you have several choices. You could say that that you are cheerful or you are delighted or elated or one of my favorites is ecstatic. That that if I am very happy, I would I love saying that I am just ecstatic. And then you could also say that that you are jubilant. All of those words mean that you are at some level of extreme happiness. You're very happy. But if you're not feeling very happy, and you're actually feeling the opposite of that, very sad, then again, there are many words that you could use that would be a little more specific and tell somebody, well, just how sad you are, but also maybe give an indication as to why you may be sad. So, just in general, an informal word that you could use is down. If you're feeling down, then yeah, you're you're just sad. But if there's maybe love involved in some way, perhaps you could tell somebody that you're heartbroken and then they know that, well, this may have to do with with ending some relationship and they know that love is involved. Or if you want to express that there's no hope, maybe you tell somebody that you you're just you feel dejected. Or bitter. That's another good one. And bitter makes me think that. Well, not only are you sad, but you're also a little angry. And then you could say that you feel wistful. Wistful is like you're sad because you're you're thinking about the past. Maybe there was a bad memory and I was thinking about it and and I became wistful. Beautiful is another common adjective that well people use very with very beautiful. And instead of saying that somebody looks very beautiful, you could say, well, that they look lovely or or they look marvelous. Or if you want to make it a little more intense, a little stronger, you could say that somebody looks gorgeous. Or you could say elegant. That's another great word. It makes me think of somebody who might look a little more formal, a little more dressed up. You could use elegant. Or I've saved the best for last. Stunning.

Stunning is a great word. The next time that you you see someone and you want to say that they look very beautiful, just say stunning. They look stunning. Another common adjective that's used with very is tired. Very tired. And I I think instead of saying very tired, probably the most common word that people would use is exhausted. I I use that one quite often. Instead of saying very tired, I would say I'm just exhausted. Or if you want to use a word that's more informal, you could say that you're drained. Or another informal word is beat. I'm I'm beat. And then there is exasperated. And with exasperated, it makes me think, well, you're tired mostly like up here in your mind that you're you're annoyed, you're bothered by something, and you you feel tired, and you're just you'd say you're exasperated. And then if we're talking about work, people get very tired because of work. You could say that you're just burnt out and and you need to take a break. You need to relax because right now you're you're burnt out.

Now, when most people think of collocations, they think of verb noun collocations or adjective noun collocations. These are very I I shouldn't say very. These are immensely popular parts of speech. previously demonstrated with the word very, do not underestimate the power of adverbs. These are words that modify verbs and adjectives and they really add emphasis to whatever it is that we're talking about. They are descriptive. Actually, let's let's add some emphasis. They are incredibly descriptive words, which is why I want to give you more adverb collocations that you should know and use. I want to talk to you about adverb collocations. The idea again is not for you to memorize every single one of these. I think you may already be familiar with many of them. So, a lot of it will just be review, but it's just getting that exposure so that you know which words go together. So let's begin with the adverb strongly. This is it's often used to emphasize. Some of the more common ones would be well you could strongly condemn that you really are are upset with someone and you might strongly condemn them for for doing this thing or perhaps you could strongly disagree with someone. You it's not just your normal level of disagreement. you want to emphasize that and say that you strongly disagree. You could also strongly suggest something that you want to make sure that this person well probably does what you are telling them to do. So you may strongly suggest something. Now if you want to add a little more to it and really kind of tell them look look this is what you should do then you might strongly recommend something. So suggest and recommend, they're they're pretty similar, but I think recommend has that extra little like, well, okay, this is what I think you should do.

So you could strongly suggest something, but if that person doesn't listen, then you might strongly recommend it. You could also strongly support someone. you would strongly support them. The next adverb is fully. And this adverb is kind of just like talking about something that that's complete. For example, you could say that you are fully aware that you know everything that's going on around you and and you are fully aware of some situation. For example, I could say that I am fully aware that you are not going to memorize all of these collocations. But in that case, I I strongly suggest that you keep practicing that maybe you rewatch the lesson again because that is just going to help you build your vocabulary. You could also say that that a person if you're describing them, they are fully awake. They are they are definitely awake. They are completely awake. But you want to say they are fully awake. I hope that you guys are fully awake right now as you are watching this lesson. You would also use fully to say that something perhaps a a program or a machine it is fully operational. That everything works. It's fully operational. And finally, you can use it with the adjective upright and say that that someone may be standing fully upright. I I always try to stand fully upright, but it doesn't always happen and and I end up slouching like this. But I I try to stand fully upright. The next adverb that I have, well, it's actually two adverbs that can be used interchangeably. And those two adverbs are absolutely and utterly. Now, you can use either of these adverbs when when talking about the adjectives that I'm about to teach you, but sometimes I think it may be more common to use one over the other. And as we go through these, I I will tell you which one. So both of these adverbs they they kind of mean like like definitely or for sure.

For example, you we can use it and say that someone is absolutely alone or utterly alone. Either one works, but in this case, I think it's probably a little more common to use utterly and say that well they they are they are utterly alone. Sometimes it's not good to be alone. So let's let's put a positive spin on it. And I could say that somebody could be absolutely amazed or utterly amazed. I think either one of these adverbs goes well with this adjective. If you again just want to add a little flavor to it and say, "Wow, you know, I I was absolutely amazed when I saw the movie. It was incredible. I was absolutely amazed." Or you could well we could use it with the adjective appalled and say that you were maybe you really didn't like something. You thought it was terrible and you were absolutely appalled by this thing or utterly appalled. Again, either adverb I think goes well with this adjective. We could say that something or or even someone is absolutely beautiful or utterly beautiful. I think in in this case, I I guess for me, I would tend to use absolutely more often than I would use utterly. If I'm talking about something that's beautiful, I'd probably say that it is absolutely beautiful. You could also be absolutely convinced of something or utterly convinced. And and in this case, I think both of them are quite common, but well, I'll tell you my personal take. I and this I think I would probably use utterly. Then we could use these adverbs with the adjective devastated that that maybe you could say we were absolutely devastated. We were utterly devastated when we heard the news. I think either of them go very well with this adjective. You could also say that a person might be absolutely furious or even utterly furious. Between these two adverbs, I would probably go with absolutely, but either one works.

absolutely furious, utterly furious. Then we could describe a person's feeling and say that they were absolutely miserable or even utterly miserable. Both of them work well. So if you want to really say that a situation was bad, perhaps you got caught out in the rain and you were stuck there and you got soaking wet and you just felt absolutely miserable. These adverbs also go well with the adjective ridiculous. And you could describe well either a person or probably more often a situation and say that it that it was absolutely ridiculous or utterly ridiculous. And finally, you could use it with the adjective stupid and again describe a person or even a situation and say it was absolutely stupid or utterly stupid. Both of them work well. Especially if if stupid is just not good enough and you really want to say just how stupid it was. You could say that it was absolutely stupid or utterly stupid. Then we have the adverb deeply. And this is it's just talking about a great amount. For example, you could use it with uh the adjective concerned. and you would say that you are deeply concerned about something or it's quite often used with regret and you might deeply regret something. If you really want to say that you are well you you really are upset about this and you you wish that it had never happened you could start out and say well I deeply regret that this thing happened. Then we could use it with the adjective divided and say that well perhaps people are deeply divided. I think if you're talking about politics that is a great example. You could say I can't believe that that people are so deeply divided that they won't listen to each other. They strongly disagree and they are deeply divided. And I am utterly amazed at how absolutely ridiculous it is sometimes that people are so deeply divided. And finally, we can use it with ashamed. And you could somebody could say that they are deeply ashamed about something. So with all of these, keep in mind that they they all kind of have a negative connotation. It it's not talking about something that's overwhelmingly positive. if you are saying that that people are deeply divided or you're deeply concerned about something or you deeply regret it or you're just deeply ashamed. So keep that in mind. Next we have the adverb highly.

And this really well it it kind of means the same as very. You're you're talking about a degree. And I think it does have more of a positive connotation to it. So we we can start out and you might say that something is highly unlikely that it's probably not going to happen. You could say it's highly unlikely that this thing will happen. You could also use it with recommend that you highly recommend something. Now, this is a little different than strongly recommend because I think when you highly recommend something, you're kind of telling that person that well, you think this is the best. It is the very best and that's why you highly recommend it.

If you strongly recommend it, you do think it's really good, but it's kind of like you're you're maybe pushing it a little more on that person and you really want them to do it. So they they are a little different in that way. But if you think something is is great, it's it's absolutely the very best, you could highly recommend it. We could describe a situation and say that well maybe it's highly unusual. That is a a common collocation as well as highly controversial. That this it's it's not just it's not just controversial, it's very controversial, it's highly controversial. We could also say that something is highly sophisticated. It's it's very complex. It's detailed. Maybe we're talking about some advanced science and we say, "Wow, this it's just highly sophisticated." Or you could describe a person and say that they are highly educated that they have gone to university, they have their masters, their PhD, and you would describe this person and say, "Well, they are a highly educated individual." Perhaps then you could describe a person who is highly educated and say that he or she is highly intelligent. They're they're not just very smart, they are highly intelligent. And sometimes if a person is highly intelligent, they may get a job in which they are highly paid. That they are earning a lot of money and they are highly paid at their job. Now, let's kind of go in the opposite direction and talk about the adverb grossly. It it means pretty much the same like very you're talking about a degree, but I say that it's kind of in the opposite direction because most of these collocations have a negative connotation. For example, you could say that something is grossly exaggerated, that it's really it's not close to the truth, that some story, something that happened and you'd say, "Well, it was grossly exaggerated." Or maybe you're describing a person and say that they were grossly negligent, that they made a mistake, they were negligent, but it was a very careless mistake. and you could say that they were grossly negligent. We could also use it with the adjective inaccurate and say that something is grossly inaccurate. If somebody's telling a story that was grossly exaggerated, you would you could then say, "Wow, that is just grossly inaccurate. That is not what happened.

It was grossly inaccurate." We could also say that somebody may be grossly mistreated and that is not a good situation. If somebody is mistreated and if they are mistreated well really bad then you could say they are grossly mistreated. You could also describe a situation and say that something was grossly unfair. It just really wasn't fair. It was grossly unfair. Or perhaps say that someone was grossly reckless. That they didn't care about what happened to others and they were grossly reckless. Their behavior was grossly reckless. Or you could use it and say that a person might be grossly misled, that they were not told the truth. They were led to believe something that was grossly inaccurate. And in this case, you could say that they were grossly misled. And finally, we could say that well something or even someone was grossly underestimated.

And in the case of describing a person, maybe that sounds a little surprising and like, oh, we we grossly underestimated this person's value. They surprised everyone. And that would be a good thing. But if you're talking about a situation, perhaps that you were trying to plan for something, but you grossly underestimated what would happen. And in that case, that would be more of a negative connotation and you might grossly underestimate the results, which means you were wrong. And yeah, that that that might not be a good situation. Then we have the adverb mildly, which really just means slight or or not much. And you could say that a person is mildly upset. They're just a little upset.

They're mildly upset. Or maybe they are mildly concerned about something there. There's something that they should be a little concerned about and you could say that they are mildly concerned or perhaps uh a person is mildly surprised by something that happened. So this is a great adverb to again just give that that extra little bit of information a and use mildly to describe that maybe the way you feel. You're mildly upset, you're mildly concerned, or you're mildly surprised. Then we have the adverb widely. And this it's a great adverb. I like using it because it really just means like universal. It's talking about everything or everyone. And you could say that something is widely available. That you can find this thing anywhere everywhere. It's widely available. Or maybe you want to say that you're talking about some information that everybody knows about and you'd say that it is widely known. And finally we can use it with accepted and say that something is widely accepted. Everybody accepts this information as the truth. It is widely accepted. And finally we have the adverb perfectly. It is another great adverb and to make some very common collocations in which you're saying that well things are okay. But I think it's used in the context that somebody might be saying the the opposite and then you're trying to say no no no it's like this. For example, you might use it with the adjective normal perfectly normal. Somebody might be trying to say that well things are a little strange. This is a little weird. And you would say well no no no everything is perfectly normal. So, for example, perhaps I know many of you, you're you're learning English. It's quite uh it's quite common to make mistakes, but it doesn't make people feel good. So, I could then say, "Hey, don't worry about it. It's perfectly normal to make mistakes. It's not strange. It's not weird. It's perfectly normal." You could also say that that something is perfectly acceptable. That that this thing is just fine. It's perfectly acceptable. Or maybe you could say that somebody is perfectly willing to do something. They're willing to do it. They are perfectly willing to do it.

And again, maybe it would be used in a context where somebody is may you think that they're not willing to do it and they say, "No, no, I'm perfectly willing to do this thing." So, I hope that that all of this made sense. I know that I gave you a lot of collocations today, but again, the idea is not that you you're going to memorize each and every one of these. Over time, you are going to learn all of these different collocations. And not only that, you will be able to use them correctly. I am utterly convinced that this will be the case. You will learn all of them because you are highly intelligent. Let's get back to the basics and have a look at some everyday phrases. And I'm going to present this next part kind of like a quiz. And once again, I think you probably already know many of these words. And if this is review, that's great. This review is essential because people use these collocations all the time and you should too. I want to start out today's lesson with a question. How would you complete this sentence? What word would you use to complete this sentence? It's been a really m day. Just one problem after another. You may have used a variety of adjectives. You could have said it it's been a really rough day. Or perhaps you said it's been a bad day or a difficult day or even a tough day. These are all adjectives that we can use with the word day and they are frequently used together because they are collocations and that's what I want to talk to you about today in order to help you build, develop, and grow your vocabulary. So, let's go back to that first sentence. And the adjective that I want to use is rough.

A rough day. It was just difficult. We've actually had a bit of a rough day. We just returned from a trip and the airline destroyed our stroller. That That's a true story, but I I don't want to I don't want to make this about me. I want to make it more about you and building your vocabulary. The next one that I want to talk to you about is a rough draft. somebody says that they've done a rough draft, it means that they have done some work but it is incomplete. They they've only started the process and you could say it was a rough draft. Often it's used when talking about something that you're writing and the writing is not finished. The paper, the essay, whatever it is, you might just say, "Well, I've only done a rough draft." You can also use this adjective with estimate and somebody might ask for a rough estimate, which is an approximation.

They're telling a story. They say, "Yeah, you know, I I grew up in a really rough neighborhood or I used to live in a rough neighborhood and it was a bit dangerous, but yeah, that's where that's where they were living. It was a rough neighborhood." Now, I want you to try and complete this sentence. All right? I I hope you didn't think I was just going to tell you all of these collocations. I I want you to try and work for it. Which of those words would you use to complete it? We'll give it a m of paint and then it's finished. What do you think? I hope you said be touch a touch of paint. This is the next set of collocations that I want to teach you and that is those with touch. So this is a noun noun collocation. If you're talking about a touch of something, you're you're talking about a slight amount.

For example, a touch of paint. A slight amount of paint. Or perhaps you could say that that you have a touch of the flu. For example, finishing touch. And this is talking about small details at the end of something. Maybe you want to put the finishing touches on something that you're creating. You're just adding those small details. We can also say that that something is a nice touch. And in this case, we're talking about something that makes another thing better. For example, maybe you are painting a picture and somebody suggests, "Oh, maybe you should put this down there in the corner." And you think, "Yeah, okay, that that's a nice touch. It makes the painting better." If we're talking about a person and we say that someone has a nice touch, in this case, we're saying that they do something very well.

For example, maybe there there's a basketball player and he or she shoots the ball very well. you say, "Wow, you know, this person, they just have a really nice touch. They're a great shooter." So, in that case, I think it's commonly used when talking about sports and athletics, and you want to say that that somebody has a nice touch. A person may also have a soft touch. And in this case, we're we're just saying that something is delicate, that that it's very nice. It's comforting that that somebody has a soft touch. I don't know if I would describe myself and say that I have a soft touch, but perhaps you do. I I don't know. Now look at this sentence and tell me which word best completes it. Someday I hope to m a world record. I hope that you chose see break a record. Someday I hope to break a world record. I don't think I am going to do it, but but maybe you will. I don't know. But let's talk about some collocations with break.

And these are all verb noun collocations. So to break a record, this just means to do something better than anybody else. You break a record. There is also an expression that's pretty common. You might tell somebody to break a leg. And if you tell somebody, hey, break a leg, then you're just wishing them luck. It's actually, this is an informal expression that somebody's getting ready to do something. Perhaps they have a performance or they're going to do a show and you say, hey, you know, good luck. Break a leg. promise which is not good. This just means that you don't do what you say you will do. Break a promise. You frequently hear that one. Or you can break the ice.

This is another idiom which means that you are trying to start a conversation between strangers or you're trying to make a tense situation a little less tense. For me, I often think of a classroom because the very first time that that I have a class with students, I will try to break the ice and we will do different activities so that everybody gets to know each other a little better. To break the ice, then you can break the law. This is something else that you can break. It's not good because if you break the law, then it is illegal. You shouldn't do it. I hope that you don't break the law. Here is your next question.

And this time, I'm not going to give you any options. I want you to tell me which verb do you think best completes this sentence. I need you to do me a All right. I'm sorry. I just told you the answer. favor. All right. I I apologize. We're talking about verb noun collocations using do. Do someone a favor. And if you do someone a favor, then you are just doing something for that person in order to help them do a favor. People may also have to do housework, which are the things you have to do around the home. You may have to do laundry or do the dishes. There's a lot of different housework that that people just have to do. You may also hear somebody like me tell you to do your best. If you haven't known any of the answers to these questions, that's okay. I want you to keep participating. I want you to keep watching and learning with us because I I just want you to do your best. And if you do your best, then then you are going to learn and build your vocabulary.

And that is the most important thing of all. Just do your best. Another do collocation is to do harm. And in this case, you are well, it's just not something good. You don't want to do harm to others. You also don't want to do harm to yourself. There are so many different collocations with do and they are so important because we use them all the time. Here's another sentence for you. I spend too much m editing these videos. And and this is quite true. I do spend too much m editing these videos. I almost said the answer right then, but I didn't. But I hope you said time. I spend too much time editing these videos. So, you can spend time. This is a common verb noun collocation.

So, not only can you spend time, you can also waste time, in which case you are not using your time wisely. I hope that you don't waste time, and you're certainly not wasting your time learning these different collocations and building your vocabulary. You can also kill time, which means that you are just doing something unimportant while you wait for something else to happen. So, you can kill time walking around a mall. You can kill some time watching TV. Until something else happens, you're just going to do something unimportant and kill time. There's another collocation that's pretty similar to kill time, and that is pass the time. You do something to pass the time. And in this case, you again, you are doing some activity. It's not super important.

I like to read books to pass the time. that that you are just trying to occupy your time by doing something and you're trying to pass the time. Then there's an expression that I just wanted to throw in there, but it is frequently used and that is to say right on time. If someone is right on time, then then they are there right when they should be right on time. I try to be right on time, but most of the time it doesn't happen. I always do my best to be right on time, but especially if I'm having a bad day, not going to be right on time. And I hope you hope you recognize these collocations that that I continue to use. Let's look at this sentence right here. We're not going to go much further.

What do you think? This is a verb noun collocation. And actually, it is a phrasal verb. That is a hint for you. And I hope that you said run out. Run out of gas. I want to talk about some collocations with run out. You run out of something. So, if something like a car runs out of gas, then it just means there there's none left. It runs out.

Now, the way that we use this phrasal verb, the the meaning can change a little bit. For example, if we use it in the present continuous and we say that that we are running out of something, then it just means that there is a little bit left. There's still some left, but it's it's about to be gone very quickly. If we use it in the past tense and we say that we ran out of something, then it just means that that there's none left, that that's it. So, if a car is running out of gas, there's still a little bit left. If it ran out of gas, then then there's none. You can also run out of patience, which is another common collocation.

think in this case, people may tend to give you a little bit of a warning and they may say, you know, be careful. Hey, I I'm running out of patience. I'm starting to run out of patience. There's just a little bit left. So, so be careful. And if somebody's already ran out of patience, then yeah, they're they're gonna be pretty upset with you. There are many different things that you can run out of. You can run out of time. You can run out of money. And the worst of all, you can run out of coffee. I hate it when that happens because in the morning I need my coffee. Here is another sentence for you. And and this is this is a little bit of a bigger sentence. and all of those blanks. It's the same word. You shouldn't be wasting m. Instead, you should invest your m or you can donate m to your favorite charity. Which word am I talking about?

I hope that you can take a quick look at this and know that I am talking about money. Collocations with money. These are all verb noun collocations. So you can waste money which means that you are spending money in a carefree and careless way and you are just wasting it on things that you probably don't need. You can also invest money. You can buy stocks or maybe even buy a home. Those are good ways to invest money. Or if you're feeling very charitable, you can donate money. You can give money to your favorite cause, your favorite charity and donate your money. Some more collocations with money include save money. I think it's always a good idea to save money because you never know when you're going to need it. And along those lines, you can also set aside some money.

And this just means that you you you have some money. It you're you're not going to spend it because you might need it for something important. We can also add to it to create the expression set aside some money for a rainy day that that you have this money for a time when you absolutely need it. you set aside some money for a rainy day. We always try to save money. That that's very important to us. And we also like to donate money when when we can. always we we try not to waste money because if we do that, then we're going to run out of money. And there's a very quick review, a quick money review for you. Now, I I want you to do me a favor and and help put the finishing touch on this lesson. And all you have to do is hit that like button if you enjoy learning these different collocations and building your vocabulary.

Do you promise? You promise that you're going to do that? Okay, so we finished right on time and I'm not even wearing a watch right now. I have something fun for you. It's a throwback video. And by that, I mean it it's an older lesson. Perhaps you can tell I may look a bit younger. But in this lesson, I'm going to talk about a couple of super common verbs, make and do. And I'm going to point out different collocations with these verbs because to be honest, this is when I hear people make small mistakes and they confuse these two verbs. So, the production values may be a bit lower. Like I said, it's a throwback video.

But it is a little more energetic. I add some music. So, let's have some fun. Today, I'm going to talk to you about some common words that are used with some common verbs. And those verbs are make and do. [Music] So, let's look at some common collocations. And I want to start with the verb make. And generally speaking, when we use make, we're talking about things that we create, things that we might build. Keep that in mind as we go through these different categories and I talk about these collocations. First, let's start with food because who doesn't love food? Now, when we're thinking of things that we make, things that we create, in the morning, I usually make some coffee. It's the first thing I do in the morning. And then I make breakfast. We can also make lunch and we can make dinner. Uh something else that we make, we might make a cake for dessert.

I love cake. Starting to get hungry now. So I need to start let's let's move on and talk about something else. We can also use make if we're talking about stuff that has been built like a product. It could be made of something. Maybe it's made of gold. That would be really nice and it's probably expensive. Or it could be made from something else. If something is made from grapes, like this bottle of wine that's that's already been opened by someone. What when did you open this? Also, when talking about products, we can find out like where something is made on tags in our shirt. things will say made in.

Wonder where this one's made. Can't What? Okay, that's not going to work. Uh, I don't know where this is made. We also use make when talking about plans because you can Well, you can make a plan. You can make a decision. And well, maybe if you haven't made a decision, somebody might tell you, "Make up your mind." Make a decision. Make up your mind. Make also helps us talk about reactions. So, for example, something could make you happy, like this lesson. And you can give it a thumbs up if it makes you happy. I hope not. Maybe it makes you sleepy. I I don't know. Wake up. We're not done yet. We use make to talk about money. Yeah. Make money, make a profit. And with your job, we say that's how people make a living. Make money. Make make money money. Some other common expressions with make. You can make a mistake. You can also make a phone call. You can make a sound. You can make a promise. And if you end up breaking that promise, then you can just make an excuse. There are actually many, many, many, many other collocations with make. These are just some of them, a few of them that I think are really common. So, I recommend that you keep studying, keep learning, and help build build your vocabulary. So, let's have a look at do and some of the common collocations with this verb and the nouns that follow. We use do generally speaking when we're we're talking about some type of activity. For example, maybe performing an action. You can do the dishes. You can do some exercise. You can also do the laundry. That reminds me, you need to do some laundry. We can also use do to talk about some kind of work like you can do your homework or you can do your job or you can even do chores around the house. Finally, we can use do to talk about non-specific activities like do something or do anything or maybe do everything. So, those are some common collocations with do. Again, there are others out there and I think they're great to learn because it'll just help you expand and build your vocabulary. So, now we're going to do a quick practice and I'm going to quiz you on what we just learned. I'm going to give you a sentence and I want you to complete the sentence with either make or do. So, I want you to say out loud which verb would complete the collocation. And I'm not going to show you the sentence. So, this is going to be a bit of a listening exercise. Which one, which verb would complete this sentence? If you're not positive, just try and think think of what comes naturally. And if it helps, try to repeat the whole sentence and fill in either make or do. I'll give you a few moments and then afterwards, I I'll go over the answer with you. Are you ready?

I hope that you do a good job. Let's begin. That was pretty cheesy. She's going to m her hair and nails for the party. She's going to m her hair and nails for the party. So, if we're talking about hair and nails, it would be more of an activity and we would use do. She's going to do her hair and nails for the party. Do hair. Do nails. Let's look at the next one. Someday I hope to m a lot of money. Someday I hope to m a lot of money. If we're talking about money, money, money, money, money. We make money. Someday I hope to make a lot of money. I hope to make money. I don't know if we'll make a lot of money someday. Maybe. We'll see. Here's the next one. Did you m the assignment for class? Did you m the assignment for class? Here we are talking about some kind of work. Remember you do homework. So in this example, did you do the assignment for class? Do the assignment. Do work. Here's another. I just want to sit back, relax, and m nothing.

I just want to sit back, relax, and m nothing. In this sentence, we're talking about a non-specific activity. Nothing. So, you would do nothing. I just want to sit back, relax, and do nothing. The beach. I don't need to do anything. I just want to do nothing and relax and do nothing. Here's another. I'm going to m soup for lunch. I'm going to m soup for lunch. Talking about food. Food that I I want to eat. Make I want to make food. Make some food. That's wasn't the sentence. I'm going to make soup for lunch. That's what you would do. You would make soup. Make lunch. And I need to make some lunch because I'm hungry. Probably won't make soup. Maybe I'll make a sandwich.

Here's another one. Going on vacation will always m me smile. Going on vacation will always m me smile. This is a reaction to something, a reaction that causes a smile. Going on vacation will always make me smile. It's true because when you're on vacation, you can do nothing. I hope you enjoyed that activity. And if you did and you did a good job, let me know. Write that in the comments. I just want to say I am a big believer in learning collocations to build your vocabulary. They're incredibly useful, which is why I wanted to put together this longer, more detailed masterclass lesson on collocations. I hope that you learned something new, but even if you didn't, trust me, getting this review was highly beneficial because it's going to help you avoid making small mistakes in the future. If you enjoyed the lesson, you can let me know by hitting that like button. As always, thanks so much for watching and I will see you next time.

So long.

LESSON 44 OF 749

25 Academic English Words You MUST Know | Great for University, IELTS, and TOEFL

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today I'm going to talk to you about 25 useful academic words that you can use for the IELTS, TOEFL, essays, reports, presentations... They're just good words to know. That's coming up. Welcome to today's lesson, which is all about helping you build and expand your vocabulary. Because I'm going to talk to you about 25 useful academic words, and these are words that are taken from the academic word list, which is a list of the most commonly used academic words.

Now because they're so common, you may already be familiar with some of these words. And that's great. But it's really important to not only just know these words, but know how they're pronounced as well as seeing how they're used in context so it gives you a better sense of how to use these words correctly. So I'm going to try and do a few things for you. I'm going to give you the word. I'm going to show you how the word is phonetically pronounced. Give you the part of speech, the meaning, as well as an example sentence.

Now these words are not in order of importance. I just put them in alphabetical order. And as we get through them, I'm going to give you a little tip about how you can build and expand your vocabulary. So let's begin. The first word that I have for you is achieve. And this word has two syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. To achieve is a verb, and it just means to bring to a successful end. To carry through. To accomplish something. To achieve something. We can use it in an example sentence and say...

Next is acquisition. And this word has four syllables, and the stress is on that third syllable. Acquisition is a noun, and it means the act of gaining possession of something. Acquisition. Number three is administration. And administration has five syllables with the stress on that fourth syllable. This word is a noun, and it just means the the management of any business, office, or organization. And they would all have an administration to make decisions and decide what that business, office, or organization should be doing.

Another great word is affect. And affect has two syllables, and the stresses on that second syllable. This is a verb and to effect something means to have an influence on someone or something, or to produce a change in someone or something. That's what it means to affect someone or something. Next is appropriate. Now this word does have two meanings and I'm going to give you both of them.

Let's first start with the adjective appropriate. The word has four syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable. Now, keep in mind that last syllable which has that short I sound. And if something is appropriate then that means that it is suitable or fitting for a particular purpose, occasion, or event. It's appropriate. This word can also be a verb: to appropriate. It has four syllables, the stress is still on the second syllable. But the fourth syllable has that long A sound. And to appropriate means to kind of set apart, to authorize for some specific purpose or use. Number six is authority. And authority has four syllables, and the stress is on that second syllable.

This word is a noun that has two slightly different meanings. The first one would be to have the moral or legal right, or the ability to control something. The next meaning if someone is an authority. That means that they are an accepted source of information. They're reliable. It's accepted. They're an authority. Number seven: compensation. This word has four syllables and the stress is on that third syllable. I think many of us love this noun because it's talking about money that is paid to someone for their services. Or maybe it was paid to somebody for for loss or damage or some problem. And often it's used with the verb "receive." To receive compensation.

Next is consequences. This word has four syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. Now, it's often used as a plural noun because we're talking about consequences. And the meaning of consequences is the effect, result, or outcome from something that happened earlier. From something that happened before. And then there might be consequences. It's usually used in a negative context because it's often something that's not good. Consequences. Number nine: data. This word has two syllables, and the stress is on that first syllable. For the pronunciation, you might also hear data. I think they're a little interchangeable. Most common I believe would be data. But again, I think you could use either one and people are going to understand you.

This word is a noun and it's talking about facts, statistics, or individual items of information. Data. Number ten: derived. This word has two syllables, the stress is on the second syllable. This is a verb that is often used in the past and it means to obtain or receive from a source or origin. And it's often followed by the preposition "from." Something is derived from something else.

Next...distinction. This word has three syllables, the stress is on that second syllable. This word is a noun that means recognizing or noting the difference. Even between two things that appear to be fairly similar. And it's often used with certain adjectives. For example, there could be a clear distinction between two things. Or you could have a remarkable distinction. Number twelve: focus. The word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. This is a noun that means the central point of attraction, attention, or activity. The focus.

Now that we're about halfway through I want to give you a quick tip on how you can build and expand your vocabulary. I think it's very useful when you're learning new words to learn the other words in the word family. So for example, you might have the verb "to cooperate." Learn the other words in the word family like "cooperative," which is the adjective and "cooperation," which is the noun. So learning word families...it's a great, as well as an easy way, to really, really expand your vocabulary. Number thirteen: framework. The word has two syllables, and the stress is on the first syllable. This noun has two meanings. The first is a structure that is composed of parts that are joined or fitted together.

So for example, you could design something. A building or a project, and it will have a framework. It also means a system of rules or ideas that is used to plan or decide something. And we might use this word with some common adjectives and say that there is a legal framework or maybe a broad framework or even a simple framework. And we can use it in an example sentence and say... Number fourteen: journal. It has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. The word is a noun that also has two meanings. The first is just a record of occurrences, experiences, or even observations. People might keep a journal.

It can also be a periodical or magazine that's published for a specific group or or even profession. Journal. Number fifteen: legislation. This has four syllables and the stress is on that third syllable. And legislation is a noun that means the act of making or enacting laws. And it's often used with the verb "pass." To pass legislation. To make new laws. Number sixteen: obtained. It has two syllables. The stress is on that second syllable. And the stress is on that second syllable because this is a verb. To obtain. To obtain something. And this means to to come into the possession of. To get, to acquire something either by asking for it, buying it, working for it, or or even making it.

To obtain something. Number seventeen: participation. This word has five syllables. The stress is on that fourth syllable. This is a noun that means that you are involved in or you are taking part in something. Number eighteen: perceived. It has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable. This is a verb that's often used in the past tense. And it means to become aware of, to know, or or identify something by using your senses. Number nineteen: perspective. It has three syllables. The stress is on the second syllable. And this noun simply means a particular way of considering or looking at something. And we often use it with certain adjectives.

For example, someone might have a different perspective. Or they might have a unique perspective. Number twenty: previous. This word has three syllables. The stress is on that first syllable. And this is an adjective that means coming or occurring before something else. Number twenty-one is relevant. It has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable. This is also an adjective that means connected with with what is happening or being discussed. It's relevant. Number twenty-two: sought. Has one syllable. That's it. This is a verb and it is the past tense of "seek." And it means that you're trying to find or get something, especially that's not a physical object. Number twenty-three: subsequent.

It has three syllables and the stress is on the first syllable. This is an adjective that means occurring or coming later. It's happening after something else. And keep in mind that it's often followed by the preposition "to." Number twenty-four: survey. This word has two syllables and depending on whether it's the noun or the verb It's going to change the syllable stress. If talking about the noun, the stress is on the first syllable. And this is an examination of opinions, behaviors made by asking people questions. If we're talking about the verb, to survey, the stress is on the second syllable. And this means to look at or examine all of something, especially carefully.

Thanks so much for watching, and I'll see you next time.

LESSON 45 OF 749

25 Academic English Words You Should Know | Great for University, IELTS, or TOEFL

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I want to teach you 25 academic words that you should know and these words have been taken from the academic word list which is an excellent resource for English Learners those who are in University or would like to attend or those preparing for the ielt or TOEFL there's a lot to go over so let's get started the first word is arbitrary this adjective means that something is based on an idea or a desire or chance rather than reason and there are some common collocations with this word these are words that are frequently used together so someone may talk about an arbitrary decision or an arbitrary choice or even an arbitrary date it's a great academic word the board made an arbitrary decision When selecting the new CEO then there's inherent this means that something is existing as a natural or basic part of something and often this is used as an attributive adjective which means it's going to come before the noun like when talking about an inherent problem or an inherent risk here are some more examples there are certain inherent risks that come with the territory it's an inherent weakness of the breed so you're saying that friendship contains within it inherent obligation to maintain confidence is now personally I think there is inherent value in building your vocabulary and that is why I recommend you subscribe to the channel turn on notifications so that I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals so let's continue with an adverb not withstanding this means despite the fact or thing mentioned so I could say despite injuries the team still won the championship and I can express the same idea and use this word by saying injuries notwithstanding the team still won the championship here are some news headlines so you can get a better feel as to how this word is used in context judicial review notwithstanding examining sex and gender rights in public education Ukraine visit notwithstanding does India have any real influence on today's geopolitical rivalries Trump's claims notwithstanding us elections are more secure than ever the next word Norm this refers to an accepted standard or way of Behaving or doing things that most people agree with and as you can see this word has become more commonly used over time maybe when talking about social norms or political Norms having one child per family is becoming the norm in some countries then there's straightforward I like this adjective because it just means easy to understand or simple so thinking academically there may be an assignment that's straightforward or perhaps instructions are straightforward or maybe somebody gives a presentation that's straightforward so what part of no more karate did you not understand

seems pretty straightforward would you tell me about patient confidentiality it's very straightforward without your permission I can't disclose anything you tell me to anyone furthermore this is an adverb that is incredibly useful and common when speaking or writing and it just means in addition or more importantly now often you're going to use this at the beginning of a statement because you're really just adding more information here's an example children will receive a quality Education First furthermore lunch will be provided to all students then we have enormous now this is an adjective that you may already be familiar with and I hope that you're using it it just means extremely large it's a great way to add emphasis think about it there is a difference between me saying that's a big spider versus that's an enormous spider one is a little scarier than the other but because it's a descriptive word it can be really helpful in an academic sense and there are some use ful collocations with this adjective perhaps something has an enormous impact or there's an enormous difference or maybe an enormous amount of something so it's a great way to add emphasis there has been an enormous amount of theft due to fishing scams this is true there is an enormous amount of theft due to fishing scams but thanks to today's video partner you can protect your online activity using nordvpn all you have to do is click on the link in the description nordvpn.com interactive English nowadays using the internet is the norm I'm going to keep using these words and there's an inherent risk anytime you're online but nordvpn provides a gateway to a more private and secure internet nordvpn can help protect you from fishing scams which is when scammers pretend to be someone you trust in order to get access to your private information like passwords or banking details I get these emails all the time this literally happen happened to me recently thankfully I didn't fall for it but these messages are getting more and more difficult to spot but by using nordvpn's threat protection you will be protected from malicious links websites and malware and for every purchase of a 2-year plan you will receive four bonus months on top when you use my link nordvpn.com interactive English furthermore and I'm adding information there is a 30-day money bet guarantee so do not make any arbitrary decisions when it comes to your online activity check out nordvpn.com interactive English to get your exclusive offer the link is in the description let's continue with more academic vocabulary and the next word that I have for you is precise this just means exact and accurate now this is a word that I use a lot when encouraging you to build your vocabulary because the more precise words that you use when expressing your thoughts opinions and ideas well it's going to allow you to be more descriptive with which means people are going to have an easier time understanding what you're saying his colleagues were impressed by his presentation because it was clear and precise next is deviate this is a great example of a precise verb because it means to change from the usual way or to go in a different direction and often you're going to follow this verb with the preposition from to deviate from and here are some more news headlines to demonstrate that BCD survey 2third of Travelers deviate from policy riverboard to deviate from Plan 2014 that was a while ago nearly 50% of doctor prescriptions deviate from guidelines fine study that is not good but something that is good is our next word explicit this adjective means clear and exact and there are some common collocations with this word maybe talking about explicit directions or explicit it instructions maybe somebody has an explicit purpose or gives you an explicit warning the professor gave the class explicit directions for completing the assignment phenomenon this is a fun word especially when saying it phenomenon this means that something exist and can be felt seen tasted Etc especially something that is strange or unusual now I said it's a fun word to say so I want you to think about the pronunciation because it can be a little challenging it's a longer word it has four syllables the stress is on that second syllable phenomenon phenomenon now here are some useful collocations with this word and I want you to listen to the pronunciation as well it's a natural phenomenon phenomenon to encounter unexplained phenomena to understand an inexplicable phenomenon Ros do that it's a most interesting phenomenon then there's mediate this means to talk talk to two separate people or groups who are involved in a disagreement in order to come up with an agreement or find a solution to their problems and really this verb is used in a more formal context like law or business or maybe even an international conflict H I could say negotiators tried to mediate between the two sides and that's one thing I want to point out is that this verb is often followed by between to mediate between two people or groups several countries mediated a peace agreement between the two Nations then we have undergo this is a very useful verb because we can use it in a variety of contexts because it means to experience something unpleasant or something that involves change and one thing I want you to keep in mind is the conjugation undergo underwent undergone now when talking about something unpleasant think about perhaps a medical situation to undergo surgery

or to undergo treatment she's undergone several surgeries on her knee now if something involves change and you're really highlighting the change and that is why you might say that something is going to undergo a change or undergo a transformation the world is undergoing a technological transformation due to AI likewise this is an adverb that you have probably heard of it just means in the same way but perhaps you've heard of it in a more informal context in which it just means like well me too if I were to say I didn't like the show and then someone else says likewise but it can still be useful in an academic context let me show you these are real sentences that I've taken from the Cambridge English Corpus likewise a pathogen will rarely be found in 100% of diseased persons or the opposing view that dialects are organized in a Continuum without sharp boundaries is likewise popular I I know that these examples are out of context but I just want to show you how the word may be used but keep in mind it can also be used informally to mean me too the next word that I want to teach you is via this is a preposition that actually has a couple of different meanings depending on whether you're talking about travel or use talking about travel it just means going through or stopping at a place on a way to another place very similar to by way of we drove via Route 66 on our road trip to Las Vegas now if talking about use then via can refer to a particular machine system or person used to send or receive something reports have been coming in via satellite then there's finite this means having a limit or end and there are many useful ications with this word but here here are some of them perhaps a finite amount of something or a finite resource or a finite number or a finite supply of something because there's a finite number of pickles we only have a finite amount of time to save it this universe is finite its resource is finite if life is left unchecked life will cease to exist ideology this refers to a set of beliefs or principles especially one that is based on a political system system party or organization this is exchange ideas on a particular subject often in order to reach a decision on what action to take so this is a great verb to use in the context of working with someone else because you may need to confer with someone and I'd like to point out that you're often going to follow this verb with the preposition with to confer with someone here are some more news headlines so you can see how it's used in context Vietnam ready to confer with the US on human trafficking religious freedom two- fifths of advisers want to confer with investment Specialists and local Delaware officials confer with Congressional Delegation in DC widespread this means existing or happening in many places and or among many people now you could say that something is widespread but I think often you're going to use this as an attributive adjective it's going to come before the noun perhaps when talking about widespread support or widespread corruption or maybe even widespread hunger the attack on civilians Drew widespread condemnation next is rigid this adjective has two meanings the first would be not permitting any change so in this case think about rules or a schedule he has maintained a rigid schedule while working on the project it also means stiff or fixed like something is not able to be bent or moved here's an example the plastic chair was rigid and she was unable to get comfortable the next word is one that I think we can all relate to and that is reluctant this is a pretty common adjective and it means not willing to do something and therefore slow to do it and often you're going to follow this word with the preposition too you are reluctant to do something the other words in the word family are also pretty common so we have the adjective reluctant the adverb reluctantly and the noun reluctance he was reluctant to remove it it is with great reluctance that I have agreed to this calling oh right I reluctantly accept your proposal justify this means to give or be good reason for so you could say that maybe one action justifies another in English there's a pretty well-known expression the ends justify the means which refers to well wrong and unfair methods are okay to use if the overall goal is good the ends justify the means he lied on his resume in order to get the job perhaps he thinks the ends justify the means next is radical this is an adjective that's pretty common so you may be familiar with it it just means believing or expressing the belief that there should be great or extreme social or political change this is another great word to add emphasis and some common collocations include radical change radical views or maybe talking about a radical candidate here are some more news headlines so you can see how it's used in context radical left and radical right are indistinguishable from Outcast to Heroes Ghana's women footballers enjoy radical change inste status Mexico's Senate approves radical plan to elect all judges and then there's whereas this is a conjunction that is used to compare and contrast the features of different people or things I could say well you are trying to improve your English skills whereas I am working on my Spanish so just keep that in mind we're comparing and contrasting she works slowly and precisely whereas I tend to rush and make mistakes I know I just gave you a lot of words so go back review them try to practice using them when speaking and writing they're very useful in an academic context as well as conversationally if you enjoyed the lesson and learned something new please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 46 OF 749

25 Academic Words You Need to Know | Perfect for University, IELTS, or TOEFL

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's talk about 25 important academic words that you should know that's coming up hey everyone my name is wes this is interactive english which uh the channel is all about trying to help you practice and improve your english skills and today is a lesson to help you build your vocabulary because i want to teach you 25 important academic words that you should try to put in your vocabulary now i say that these are academic words which means they're probably more often used in for in university or perhaps at work if you're giving a presentation or maybe if you're taking an exam like the ielts or toefl these are all words from the academic word list and if you don't know what that is it is a list of the most commonly used academic words i will put a link down in the description linking you to the list if you would like to get a little more information about it i will also include all of the words from this lesson down in the description if you would like to review so as we go through these words i will tell you the meaning i will give you the part of speech i will also show you the ipa so that you know how the word is pronounced and finally i will give you an example sentence so that you can see how the word is used in context and hopefully that will give you a better understanding of the meaning so let's begin with uh the 25 important words that i want to talk to you about in this lesson the first word that i have for you is adequate it is an adjective and it means that you have enough of something or a satisfactory amount of something that is for a particular purpose and often you may use this word with a amount you have an adequate amount of something that is a common collocation for example the squirrel stored an adequate amount of food to last the winter then we have the word analysis this is a noun and somebody would do an analysis and you're talking about a very careful study or examination of something often i i think you might use this word when talking about perhaps research or something with science and you would do an analysis you could also use it with words such as detailed you do a detailed analysis or perhaps close you could perform a close analysis of something a close analysis of the report revealed misleading information next is the word constraints so constraints it's a noun and it refers to something that controls what you're able to do by keeping you within some limit so for example if you're doing something perhaps you're doing a research project you're trying to do an analysis of something and you have to follow certain guidelines and maybe you think those guidelines are constraints because you can't go outside of those guidelines you have to work within these limits and you could refer to those as constraints due to time constraints they had to work longer hours to finish construction corresponding this is an adjective and it means it's like similar to or connected with or caused by something else and you're really referring to a relationship between two different things the company increased its profits by 10

compared to the corresponding period last year then we have cycle this is a noun and it's talking about a group of events that are happening in a particular order and they may be following each other in a particular order and then it's repeated and you could refer to this as a cycle scientists continue to learn more and more about the life cycle of a butterfly dominant this is an adjective it's an adjective that i think you could really use to show some emphasis because what it means is that something is more important something is stronger or something is more noticeable than anything else you could say that it is dominant he is the most dominant player on the basketball court then we have exclude this is a verb to exclude someone or to exclude something and it's talking about preventing someone or something from joining a group or even participating in a particular activity to exclude no one wants to be excluded from the group next is the word hence this is an adverb and it really means that that this is the reason for something uh or this is the explanation as to why this is happening hence he ate too much for breakfast hence his stomach ache implication this is a noun and it's talking about the effect that an action or decision will have on something else in the future and you might use it with uh words such as broad there are broad implications that it could have an effect on on many different things it's wide ranging broad implications for example the new environmental law will have broad implications on people's ability to develop land then we have indicate this is a verb to indicate something and it means to to show to point or to make clear in some way to indicate the survey indicates that most something needs maintenance or you may say that you have to do some maintenance the city really needs to do more road maintenance then we have maximum so this can be either a noun or an adjective the meaning is really the same because it's talking about being the largest amount or number that is allowed or possible the maximum or you could use it as an adjective for example the car has reached its maximum speed and then the opposite of maximum is minimum you can also use this as either a noun or an adjective and it's talking about the smallest amount or number allowed or possible minimum in order to save money we need to keep our spending to a minimum normal this is an adjective that means that well everything is the same it's usual it's as it would be expected to be and i think of maybe you go to the doctor and it's always great news when they tell you that hey everything's normal every now and then it's normal for couples to argue next is the word obvious this is an adjective and you're basically saying that something is easy to see recognize or or understand and often i think this adjective will come after the verb to be if you want to say something is obvious or perhaps you want to say that something is not obvious the answer to the problem is not obvious then we have parameters this is a noun and it refers to a set of facts that really it establishes limits on how something can be done or how it must be done so so those limits that really determine how something must be done though those are parameters the department of health established the parameters for the experiment period so this word is a noun and it's just talking about a length of time a period and often you may use it that entire phrase and you might refer to a period of time i've already used this word in one of the previous examples when i taught you the word corresponding so let's have another look at that sentence the company increased its profits by 10 compared to the corresponding period last year proportion this is a noun and when i think of the word proportion i often think of math because it's talking about the number or amount of a group of something or or a part of something when compared to the whole and when you're talking about that amount that group or part and compared to the whole you're talking about a proportion and you may use this word with the adjectives small or large like a small proportion or a large proportion for example children make up a large proportion of the world's population reliance this word is a noun and it's talking about the state of depending on or trusting in something or someone often i think you are going to follow this word with the preposition on a reliance on something or a reliance on someone the world's reliance on oil has been bad for the environment next is the word role and this is a noun it's talking about the position or purpose that something or someone has in a situation in society in relationship or even an organization and you could say that that this is a person's role or this is something's role it's their it's their purpose teachers play an important role in the learning process then we have the word sequence this is a noun and it's talking about a series of related things or events and really like the order in which they follow each other and that that's actually a common phrase a collocation that that people will use they're talking about a sequence of events there was a terrible sequence of events that led to their divorce then we have the word shift and this could be either a verb or a noun to shift or as a noun a shift and it's talking about causing someone or something to change change direction or maybe even change a position and it's more referring to a slight change so you could say there was a shift like a change and you're using it as a noun or we could use it as a verb like in this example right here a boxer will often shift their weight from one foot to another then we have the word variables this is a noun and you're talking about a number amount or a situation that can change so if something can change then those are variables there are certain variables such as the weather which will determine how fast we can drive so those are 25 important academic words that i hope you can go out and use if you are in school or maybe you're getting ready to take the ielts or toefl or even for work i think these words are very useful and i hope you learned some new ones as well again i will leave a word list down in the description in case you would like to review and if you enjoyed the lesson please hit that like button as always thanks so much for watching and i'll see you next time

LESSON 47 OF 749

25 Academic Words You Should Know for University, IELTS, and TOEFL

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today I'm going to talk to you about 25 academic words that you should know. Now before I blow your mind with these academic words, I want to remind you to join our social media classes. It is a great way to practice your English. So in this lesson I am going to go over 25 academic words with you. Which is very important if you are in university or if you are going to attend university. Or maybe if you're going to take the IELTS or TOEFL exam. Or if you're just in some sort of job that requires some more academic vocabulary, this lesson will help. The words that I'm going to be talking to you about today come from the Academic Word List.

It is a list of the most common academic vocabulary words used in English. So I'm going to give you the word, its part of speech, its meaning as well as an example sentence. so you can see how it's used in context. And if possible, maybe I'll throw in a picture or two so we can spice things up a bit. Keep in mind, some of these words have more than one meaning. But in today's lesson, I'm just going to go over the more popular use of these academic words. Also, in order to expand your vocabulary, I would highly recommend learning the words in the word family. It is really going to help build your vocabulary.

So for example, we have the verb DECIDE. If it's a noun, it's DECISION. And then the adjective is DECISIVE. They all have similar meanings, but they're different words depending on the part of speech. But if you're able to learn all of the words in the word family, it'll really help you build your vocabulary and become more proficient in English. Okay, so let's begin. I just put these words in alphabetical order. They're not really ordered by importance or anything. You should learn all of them. So let's begin, but before we do I need to free up a little space around here so... Okay, I think that's a little better. It gives us a little more room to go over these words.

The first word is ALTERNATIVE. So this just means an additional choice or a possible or remaining choice. So for example, you might hear people say... We have no additional choice. We have to do this or we have to do that. You could also say... That taking the bus was the additional choice. It wasn't the first choice. It is the alternative. Taking the bus.

Number two is ASSESSMENT. And this is just an evaluation of something. Some of you may be familiar with it because you might hear it in school where they want to do some sort of an evaluation and give you an assessment. And most of us probably don't like assessments. But we can use it in a sentence and say... They wanted to evaluate it. And maybe they go through their checklist and do an assessment and see how the operations are functioning.

Number three is BENEFIT. And benefit means something that is good or something that is advantageous. So this is a good thing when you have a benefit. And we can use it in a sentence and say... And that benefit might be she gets the fly for free. That is a benefit. It's a good situation. Who doesn't want to fly for free? Number four is COMPLEX.

Now, if something is complex, it just means it has many different connected parts that are unique. And they are twisted and tied together and may be very difficult to understand. So a few words that this is often used with is maybe a complex situation. Or a complex problem. Or maybe there's a complex issue. These are some words that complex is often used to describe. We could then use it in a sentence and say... If you're a doctor and doing surgery...that is not simple. It's probably pretty complex. Number five is the word concept.

Now a concept is an idea about something that you form in your mind. So say that you are thinking of something new and different and you come up with a concept to try to explain that idea and show other people. Let's use it in a sentence and say... We might not be exactly sure how we're going to do it. But we need to come up with different ideas about how this can be done and think about what it can be like. Which makes it an interesting concept. Number six is a very important word, conclusion. And this just means the end or close. This is important in academic writing or if you're giving a presentation because you frequently hear the words IN CONCLUSION.

Which tells people like...okay, this is the end this is the final result. What is the end or the close? Who knows? Maybe I had too much to drink. Maybe I was just singing karaoke really, really badly. In conclusion, they kick me out Number seven is

CONDUCT. And this means to organize or lead an activity. Don't confuse it with the noun, conduct. Which means somebody's behavior. This is the verb conduct. The stress is on the second syllable.

Now there are many different things that we can conduct. But some of the more common ones are you can conduct research. Or you can conduct business. Or maybe you can conduct a meeting. These are common ways that we can use the verb conduct. So for example, we could also say... He leads these science experiments. He does these. He conducts these science experiments. And hopefully they're safe and nothing explodes Number eight is consistent.

Now this just means not moving away from principles or not being contradictory. So for example, we could say that... Maybe there is a good student and a bad student, and they both cheat on an exam. And the rule says that if you cheat you will be punished. So the teacher punishes both of them and not just the bad student. Which means the rules apply to everyone and not just some. The teacher is consistent. Number nine is CONTEXT.

Now, this is just a statement that can either be written or spoken and surrounds a specific words or phrase. I tell students all the time, "Try to understand the meaning of a word by putting it in context. If you can understand what's being said at the beginning and what's being said at the end. Then you probably can guess what this one word or phrase means. So for example, maybe we have a passage that reads... Well, if I don't know what the word perilous means, I can put it in context. Dark clouds. No one returned. Well, these are bad things so maybe perilous means something that is dangerous or even life-threatening.

We can put it in context. Number ten is COORDINATION. This is just a combination of parts or people that are working together. We must have coordination if we're going to succeed. If there's no coordination, then that's not good. Number eleven is ENVIRONMENT. And this is the condition of your surroundings and the surroundings. And those surroundings could be geography, could be society, could even be your mood It is the condition of those surroundings. Your environment. I wouldn't want to be in that meeting. Number twelve...ESTIMATE. To estimate is a verb that means to make an approximate guess or judgement. So we could say... ..which is pretty good. Number thirteen is FACTOR. And a factor is just something that contributes to a particular result.

So we can say... And those factors might be poverty. Could be police presence or maybe even cleanliness. There are several factors. Number fourteen...FUNCTION. This is the purpose for which something is designed. What is its function? What is its purpose? For example we could say... And who knows. Perhaps it has other functions as well. Finding hotels. Finding rental cars. It might have several functions. Number fifteen...IDENTIFIED. And this just means to recognize something or someone. Commonly, it's used in the past tense, and it is followed by a direct object. We identified something. For example... What did we identify? We identified something. The three different factors. Number sixteen...IMPACT. And impact is the strong effect or influence that something has on a situation or on a person.

And a common question that you might hear about something is... How is this going to affect the situation or the person? What is the impact? Number seventeen is INDICATE. And to indicate is just to point out or show something. For example, we could say that... What do they indicate? What do they show us? They indicate that people are unhappy. Number eighteen...INVESTMENT. And an investment is the use of money or capital to receive a profit or an appreciation in value. And there are all sorts of investments that we can make. So for example... Well, maybe not this home. But...yeah, yeah. This one is more like it. This is probably a good investment.

Number nineteen is MAJOR. And major is just an adjective used to describe that something is greater in size, extent, or importance. And it is often associated with something that is like bad news. For example, we could say... Major. Number twenty...METHOD. Method is a technique, plan, or way of doing something. Especially when there is a plan in place. So it's something that you tend to think out beforehand. What is the method that we are going to use? For example... The scientific method. Number twenty-one is OCCUR. And this is something that happens or takes place. So for example, we can say that... That is when it happens and takes place. It occurs in winter.

Number twenty-two is POTENTIAL. And this is something that could possibly happen. But maybe it might not come to pass. It has potential. For example... So it is something that is likely to happen, but it might not come to pass. He has potential because he's a good athlete. Number twenty-three is PRIMARY. And primary just means the first of importance. And there are a couple of synonyms for primary such as chief or principal. But it just means the first of importance. So for example, we could say... There were other things, but this was the primary cause. Number twenty-four is RANGE.

That you should study and that you should practice. And again, I would recommend learning the other words in the word family. If you like this lesson and you learned something new, hit that thumbs up button. And also remember to subscribe to our channel for more video lessons on how you can practice and improve your English. Thanks for watching. We hope you enjoyed this vocabulary lesson and learned some new words. We'll see you next time.

LESSON 48 OF 749

25 Advanced Adjectives to Describe Places

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Let's talk about some advanced adjectives that you can use to describe places. And let's go ahead and begin and talk about some words you can use to describe like well the landscape, mountains, beaches, uh lakes. So the first word that I have for you is serene. It just means calm and peaceful. So in this case, it's like you're saying that the landscape looks undisturbed. It's very calm. It's very peaceful. I could say, "When driving through the countryside, the landscape appeared serene." Now, you can use this word to describe other things. You could say, "A person looks serene." And so, I just want you to know that yes, these adjectives are very useful. You can use them to describe different places, different things. I just want to give you something to associate each word with. So, the next word that I have for you is stunning. And if you're describing some something you see the landscape as stunning, it means it's extremely beautiful. So this word is often used with the word view. And you might talk about a stunning view. I could say that if you go to Yosemite National Park, there are so many stunning views. And this is true. I would highly recommend you visit Yosemite if you ever travel to the US. And if you are somebody who would like to have a stunning vocabulary, then please subscribe to the channel and turn on notifications so that I can become your teacher. My name is Wes and the channel is Interactive English and that's what it's all about. Just trying to help you practice and improve your English skills. The next adjective that I have for you is picturesque. This means that something is visually attractive. So that suffix on the end there that e s q u e it means like or resembling. So in this case you're it's like you're saying something looks like or resembles a picture or a painting. And I could say the view from the mountaintop was picturesque. It looked like it belonged maybe on a postcard. The next adjective is desolate. Desolate. If you're describing a place as desolate, it means empty and not attractive. And this this definitely has more of a negative connotation. So I might think of the desert. It's very empty. It's not a place that that I want to spend a lot of time. So I could describe it as desolate. Or I could say after the fire, the forest looked desolate and lifeless. It was empty. It's unattractive. It's desolate. Then we have the word unspoiled. This is a great word. Now, now spoiled means something is ruined.

So, that has a negative connotation. So, unspoiled has a positive connotation. And you're saying that something is beautiful because it has not been damaged or ruined by people or development. And you could describe some land as unspoiled. I could say the rainforest is unspoiled, which is what makes it so unique. And the next word is pristine. Pristine means well in very good condition. And often people may use this with the word condition. Something is in pristine condition. But if we're talking about a place, I would think that well this place is well-kept. There's no trash. And when I think of the word pristine, I would think of Japan. If you've ever been there and you even you drive outside the city, it looks pristine. There there's no trash.

It's really wellmaintained and it's looks in very good condition. Next, I want I want to talk to you about words that you can use to describe the atmosphere of a place. These are great adjectives to talk about well the mood or the feeling of a place like tranquil. So tranquil means well peaceful and calm really without any noise. It's very similar to serene, but in my opinion, serene would more often be used to talk about the way a place looks, whereas tranquil really captures like that feeling of calm and peacefulness. I could say, I traveled to this picturesque beach with stunning views and it was so tranquil. It was just very calm and and peaceful. The next adjective is vibrant. I really like this one. It means exciting, energetic, full of enthusiasm. And you could use it to describe like a city and talk about the atmosphere. It's very vibrant. But I think this word is great for describing things like festivals and talking about the atmosphere. I could say that carnival is one of the most vibrant festivals in the world. The colors, the dancing, just the mood, it's just Yes, it's definitely vibrant. And the next adjective is homey. So, if you say that a place is homey, it means that it's just comfortable and cozy. And notice it has the word home in it because I think people often associate home as being comfortable and cozy. But in this case, you're not going to use it to talk about your home. You would really use it to talk about another place like uh a hotel or a room. So, I could say that I stayed in a small hotel along the coast with a homey atmosphere. And then we have the word bustling. Bustling means very active and busy. And you could think of uh big cities. Big cities have an atmosphere that is bustling. For example, Time Square in New York City is always bustling with tourists. All right? just has that atmosphere, that busy mood, that busy feeling. And speaking of cities, let's talk about some adjectives that you can use to describe cities or towns, like renown.

So, if you say that a city or town is renowned for something, it means that it's famous for something. And you're typically going to follow this adjective with the word for. I could say that Paris is renowned for the Eiffel Tower. All right? People think of this landmark when they think of Paris or Italy is renowned for pizza. I think connecting it with food. This is a great way to use this adjective. A place is renowned for some food. Cosmopolitan is a great adjective. It means including people from many different countries. So Hong Kong is a cosmopolitan city. New York City is a cosmopolitan city. Then we have walkable. And I included this one because I like places that are walkable. I like to walk. It means that a place is well easy or safe to walk in. And you have that suffix that able which means able to do. You're able to walk. And I think often you're going to use this adjective and say that maybe a place is easily walkable or it's not walkable. I could say the city had many pedestrian streets, so it was easily walkable. And then there's overcrowded, which means containing too many people or things. And if you're going to use it to describe a place, you're probably referring to too many people. And it's a great word for adding emphasis instead of just saying a place is crowded. I remember traveling to Dravnik, Croatia. It's a beautiful city, but the old town was definitely overcrowded. Next is spacious. This is a word that I really like and it just means large with a lot of open space. And if you describe a city or town as spacious, perhaps you're talking about well like the streets or just the layout. Maybe there are a lot of parks and it makes it feel like it's spacious. Uh parts of New York City are overcrowded, but if you go to Central Park, it is a spacious area.

Another great adjective is charming. It just means pleasant or attractive. And maybe when traveling, I could say, "I discovered this charming little street that was very spacious and not overcrowded." Then we have quaint. And this is a little different than charming because it means attractive because of being old-fashioned. So maybe I could tell you that I walked down this charming cobblestone street that had these quaint little cafes on both sides. And now let's talk about describing buildings, structures, or landmarks with adjectives like iconic. And iconic means very famous or popular. And it's often referring to the symbol of something. And you may even use this word with landmark and talk about an iconic landmark. So if you travel to Sydney, Australia, the opera house is an iconic landmark. And then there's contemporary, which means belonging to the present.

And often you're going to use this adjective to talk about, well, the architecture, the way that buildings or homes look. So I could say that, well, Dubai is a very modern city with contemporary architecture. And I'm really talking about the way the buildings look, majestic. It means beautiful, powerful, and causing great admiration. And you could describe a structure as majestic. I could say the London Tower Bridge is majestic. The Golden Gate Bridge is majestic. The Liberty Bridge in Budapest right outside my door is majestic. And those are just some examples. You don't have to describe only bridges as majestic.

Now, let's talk about some adjectives that are well not so good like goddy. So, if you say that, well, a building or a structure looks goddy, then you're really saying that it's just unpleasantly bright or showy. So, I think that Las Vegas has some goddy hotels and casinos. I know some others might think that they look majestic, but I think they look a little goaudy. [gasps] Then, there's another useful adjective, dilapidated, which means old and in poor condition. So, think of like a building that's well, it's starting to fall apart. So, if I said that the neighborhood was abandoned a long time ago and now the buildings are dilapidated. And then I have a few words to talk about. Well, just like a general location when referring to some place, like out of the way. And if you say that someplace is out of the way, it means that it's well just far away from where people usually live or go. And yes, you're probably referring to like a building or structure like uh a restaurant. Uh I could say, "We ate at this out of the way restaurant, but the food was really great." I'm really saying that the location was just far away from where people usually go. And then I have an idiom which is also an adjective phrase and that is off the beaten path or you could say off the beaten track. Both of them are okay. And this just means that a place is well not known or popular. And typically you're going to use this in a positive sense. I could tell you that I went hiking in Corkavado National Park in Costa Rica. It there were not many people around. It was off the beaten path and and I really like that. And then we have godforsaken. And you would use this adjective to describe a place that is well unattractive and contains nothing interesting or pleasant. And often you may use it with the word place and you talk about a godforsaken place. And the other thing I would say is you might use this like in the moment like you to to express your temporary feeling about a place. Perhaps you're having a bad day. You're frustrated and you feel that just yes some place is just a god-forsaken place. I could say summer in Florida is extremely hot and Disney World is usually overcrowded. And if I were there, I'd probably think, I just want to get out of this god-forsaken place. There are too many people. It's too hot. Yeah. I just It just sounds like a god-forsaken place to me. So, I know I gave you a lot of adjectives in this lesson, and I hope that you learned some new words. If you did, you can let me know by hitting that like button. As always, thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time.

LESSON 49 OF 749

25 Grammar Rules on When to Use THE

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today i want to talk to you about the most common word in the english language the [Music] hey everyone my name is wes from interactiveenglishvideos.com and this channel is all about helping you practice and improve your english skills and today i have a grammar lesson for you because i want to teach you 25 rules that you can follow so that you know when to use the article the if you are a person that loves learning grammar rules because you think that rules make it a little easier for you to follow than this lesson is for you so the first rule that i have for you is you are going to use the when you are talking about things that you have already mentioned this is sometimes called the rule of first mention because the first time you mention something you will use the indefinite article a or n but the next time the second time that you mention it you will use the definite article the let me give you an example so you know what i'm talking about look at this picture here is a man with a bucket he has water in the bucket so the first time i mentioned the noun bucket i used that indefinite article but the second time i mention it it's already been mentioned i'm going to use the then i could go on and say there is a plant next to the man he is watering the plant all right but now when you are talking selling some story you're not going to emphasize the just like i did i just wanted to make sure it was easy for you to understand so the second time that i mentioned all of those things i used the we also use the when there is only one of something and we we kind of just assume that there is only one so maybe i go to a restaurant and i ask somebody where's the toilet i just assume that there is only one toilet in that restaurant so i would use the or maybe i could say we went for a walk in the park or even we drove to the mall downtown in that case downtown we just assumed that there is only one mall we drove to the mall downtown we use the when we want to refer to specific count nouns those nouns that we can count one two three four five so for example maybe you come over and visit me and i tell you you know make yourself comfortable have a seat on the couch i say have a seat on the couch it's specific you know that i'm really just talking about one because yes i only there is only one couch in my home even though it is a count noun the couch or maybe i often i ask you and i say please can you hit the like button it's specific there's just one like button so yeah please go ahead hit that like button please hit the like button we also use the to refer to specific non-count nouns those non-countable nouns for example i i could ask somebody please pass me the salt salt is a non-count noun or maybe i this is something when when we travel i always just just to be safe i always ask people you know is is the water safe to drink is the tap water safe to drink water is a non-count noun but i will use the is the water safe to drink we use the to refer to objects that are unique the sun the moon the sky we also use the to refer to people that are unique as well the boss the president the pope yes there's only one pope and then we use the before superlatives she is the smartest person in the class wes is the best english teacher in the world all right or maybe you you could be thinking you know what this guy is the worst whether or not you think i'm the best or the worst all i care about is that you remember we use the before superlatives the fastest the the most comfortable the spiciest the most beautiful the before superlatives we use the before ordinal numbers now this is not always going to be the case but if you're talking about a very common sentence that somebody might use with ordinal numbers and they say this is the time something happened this is the first time that something happened for example if i were again to ask you please hit the like button then i could say you know this is the second time that i've asked you to do that so yes please just go ahead and do it all right this is the second time i've asked that we use the with clauses introduced by only this is the only day i have available or maybe i could say you are the only person that i trust we also use the when we talk about decades the 1960s or perhaps somebody might just say the 70s that's when i was born or the 80s gotta love those one-hit wonders if you want to refer to groups of people like those collective nouns you are going to use the uh for example the french the british the elderly the police the rich the poor those are all collective nouns and you will use that definite article the we also use the if we want to talk about rivers the amazon the Nile we use the if we want to talk about mountain ranges as well the rockies the andes the alps oceans that's another rule if you're talking about oceans you need to use the so i i could ask you what is your favorite ocean is it the atlantic ocean or the pacific ocean we use the if we're talking about deserts uh the sahara desert i've never been to the sahara desert i've driven through the mojave desert but i've never been to the sahara but either way we gotta use the before those deserts we use the when talking about certain points on the globe the north pole the south pole the equator we also use this definite article if we're talking about the names of islands especially as a group the bahamas and especially if you can follow the name with the word islands then you know okay use the the hawaiian islands the galapagos islands we use the when talking about countries with plural names like the the philippines or the netherlands i think it may just be those two all right but just remember countries with plural names use the we're also going to use the when talking about countries with a name that really it says the type of state it is like kingdom or republic so for example i i could say the united states i i am from the us or the united kingdom or even the republic of china we use the when talking about the names of newspapers the new york times or the washington post now there there will be some exceptions to this rule and i think it's just because maybe the newspaper wants to be creative and have a catchy name but in general you're going to use the before the names of newspapers you will also use the before the names of buildings or structures like the empire state building or the great wall of china or the pyramids you need to use the when talking about monuments like the statue of liberty or the statue of david or even the taj mahal you will use the when talking about museums as well such as the louvre or the metropolitan museum of art that is that's probably the last museum that i visited you will use the when talking about the names of hotels uh like the marriott or the hilton there again there will be some exceptions to this rule and you are going to use the when talking about the names of families you're in this in this case you're talking about not not individual people but the family as a group so like the movie harry potter you you might hear people say the potters when talking about the family or a very famous family they have their own tv show the kardashians so those are 25 rules that you can follow so that you know when to use the definite article the now you do not need to memorize all of these rules what i would encourage you to do is is just get more exposure to the language because the more you read the more you listen you are just going to learn these rules naturally and then you'll be able to use the definite article correctly when you're writing or just having a conversation that is what i would recommend if you enjoyed this lesson again i just well please hit the like button this is now the third time that i've asked you to do that and thank you guys so much for watching and i'll see you next time

LESSON 50 OF 749

25 Jobs & Occupations | Advanced English Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hey everyone welcome to another interactive english lesson my name is wes and at this channel we're all about helping you practice and improve your english skills and if you are new here please write to me let me know in the comments i just love hearing from all of you guys but especially new people to our channel so what we're going to talk about today are it's a it's a lesson to help you build your vocabulary we're going to talk about certain words that describe somebody's job or their occupation and i think this is very useful because this is something that people talk about all the time if you want to well share and talk about your own job or maybe talk about your dream job so it's it's useful vocabulary for you to know before i show you the job or the occupation i'm going to give you some clues and see if you can think of the word i'm talking about and then i will show you the word and it's going to go from easier to more difficult so i've tried to go make this list from beginner to advanced so we're going to start out a little easier and this is a job that somebody would have at the beach and if this person they work at the beach and they're supposed to make sure that everyone is safe all right i hope that you were thinking that this word is a lifeguard i don't know if it's just in the united states or other countries too i always think that they're wearing red that they have a red swimsuit and that is a lifeguard all right the next word um

the next job is somebody who well works with languages and what they would do is they would they would interpret one language for another person we're talking about somebody who is a translator you could say interpreter as well that's perfectly fine translator interpreter uh they they mean the same thing i think translator might be a little more common a little more official all right the next job is this is a person who works in somebody's home and they go to the home if they're going to fix maybe some of the pipes or maybe there's a problem with the toilet uh who would you call if you have a problem with your your toilet or your sink you would call this person i hope that you said that you would call a plumber the next job is somebody who works with money all right that's your key word right there money all right somebody who works with money and they end up doing a lot of math most businesses have somebody who does this position i am talking about an accountant the next job um that i want to talk to you guys about is it's an animal doctor specifically a doctor for pets somebody who works with pets and they are a doctor they are a veterinarian most of the time

this word is shortened to vet uh because the it is a longer word the pronunciation veterinarian uh can be a little challenging the next job is this person works in well with the law they work in a courtroom and this person would be the the leader of the courtroom pretty much the boss if i'm talking about somebody who makes the decisions of whether somebody is guilty or not guilty in that case we're talking about a judge all right

the next job is it's going to get a little more difficult as we go through this this is a person who works with meat all right they work with meat like uh beef lamb chicken and it's typically like a small shop and this is where you would go to buy meat and the person that works there we call them what we're talking about a butcher somebody who is a butcher works with meat and this is where you this is the person that you would buy meat from the next job is this person works at in a building or perhaps they work in a school and it's the person that would clean the building so they would mop the floors they would clean the windows they might take out the trash i'm talking about a janitor or you could also say a custodian that's another word i think more commonly people would talk about a janitor somebody who's cleaning a building so let's continue and i again i think they're getting a little more difficult perhaps some of you may be familiar with many of these and that's great it's always good to review so the next job is somebody who would help people buy a home so if you are looking for a home and you want to buy a home you would contact this person the profession that i'm looking for is a real estate agent so a real estate agent is who you would call if you want to buy a home and they would take you around and they would show you different homes that might be for sale the next word this is a well it's a doctor if you have to if you have to do something it's very serious and you go into the doctor and they may have to open you up what would you call that type of doctor this person is a surgeon all right the next profession uh that i want to talk to you about the next occupation is somebody who would design a home so the person that would design either a home or a building what would you call this person and i am talking about an architect so an architect is the person who would do the design the next uh the next job moving into sports a little bit so what would you call the person who is making decisions in baseball and this is the person who makes sure that the rules are followed i'm talking about an umpire so in most sports if you're talking about football like soccer or american football basketball the person is called a referee they make sure that both teams follow the rules and they enforce the rules in baseball that person is called an umpire all right let's continue get a little more difficult at least i think some of them might be a little easier so this is a person who drives a car for a living this person could work for a business that would drive people to different places perhaps drive people to the airport or they could work with a specific person or a specific family and they would drive that family around i hope that you said chauffeur a chauffeur is a occupation in which someone is driving a car for a living the next job that i have is this is a person who works with flowers and they work at a shop that sells flowers if there is some type of holiday or special occasion we might want to buy flowers for someone and you would go see a florist the next word that i have is this person works at a university and it would be the person who is the head of the university i'm talking about the university's administration and you would call that person the dean if we're specifically talking about a university the head of a university would be uh referred to as the dean of the university or you could say the the president as well um the next word that i have for you is this person works in an uh well this person would drive an ambulance or they ride in an ambulance they would go um pick people up who are sick or injured and they try to help these people what do you call what is the name of that person who works in an ambulance the person is called a paramedic let's continue the the next job is somebody who works with uh well the mail and this person would deliver boxes to people if i want to send a box in the mail and i really want to make sure that it gets there i might hire this person if you have something that you want to deliver even if it's not a box and you want to bring something important or bring something valuable to another place you're going to hire this person the profession that i'm talking about is a courier this is the person who is responsible for delivering a box or it could be other items as well but typically i think of something that is more expensive or perhaps it's like a document that is very important and you want to make sure it gets there you're probably going to hire a courier all right the next job is somebody who would work at a hotel and this person would be responsible for helping people bring their luggage to the hotel room often you might find this person around the lobby what do you call this person i used to i used to work at a hotel this was one of my first jobs so typically the word that i have is a bellhop uh you may hear the word bellboy as well that's another very common word the next word uh the next job is this is a person that works outside and they would try to discover ancient artifacts they would try to dig up these ancient artifacts or ancient ruins in order to learn more about it what do you call that person i said they work outside an archaeologist except this i don't know if i would this is a fake archaeologist indiana jones that's not really the life of an archaeologist going around and having all these adventures i think an archaeologist's job looks more like this where you are outside and you are digging slowly trying to discover some parts of a building or bones the next job that i have is okay this is the person who is the leader of an orchestra and everybody watches this person so they know when to start playing and when to stop playing and they're the ones who lead the orchestra you would call them what a conductor all right excellent so the person who leads an orchestra would be a conductor you could also say the word maestro i was trying to look up the difference between a conductor and a maestro it said like a maestro is more of a famous conductor all right a few more jobs for you this person is on a construction site this is the leader of the construction site they're going to be telling people what to do where to go and this is the person that you would want to talk to it's a foreman a foreman is the person who is the boss at a construction site so typically every construction site has a foreman this next person works in a funeral home so this person is their job is to make sure that the body looks looks kept and looks looks presentable for the funeral do you guys know what do you call that's a very specific job because again i'm talking about a very specific situation the job that i have is a mortician an undertaker is the same thing the word undertaker is a bit more informal and it's actually a euphemism for mortician the next job that i have for you is this is a person that if um if you have a position that that is very high up in a company and they need to fill that position this person will go around and look for qualified people to fill a position instead of them like trying to just find many different applicants they will hire somebody to go look for the best people to to do this for this job the job is a head hunter so again specifically a head hunter is talking about somebody who would look for high level positions the next position is somebody who works at a bar and it's really the bartender's assistant sometimes bars can get really busy and the bartender would have an assistant and this assistant would be maybe they would be collecting cups or glasses and cleaning them they would change the kegs they go restock alcohol bottles that are empty this person is called a bar back i don't know where this word came from originally but somebody who is an assistant to a bartender would be a bar back then we have another word for you i don't have to give you many hints it is a doctor for the foot i will be very impressed if some of you get this because i think when you're talking about medicine you can get very specific with certain specialties if we're talking about a doctor for the foot it's a podiatrist so i hope that uh you learn some new words i hope some of these jobs were different for you and again if you guys like what we do here at interactive english and whoa uh i disappeared for a second you can check us out youtube memberships patreon links are in the description down below so those are some different jobs and professions and what i would ask all of you is to well let me know about your job your profession i love learning about all of you write to me in the comments tell me about your job your occupation i would just love to hear from you guys i hope you learned some new words and i hope you enjoyed the lesson please if you did hit that like button and i will see you guys next time so long

LESSON 51 OF 749

25 Jobs & Occupations | Vocabulary Lesson (Live-Stream)

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hey everyone welcome to another interactive english lesson my name is wes and at this channel we're all about helping you practice and improve your english skills and if you are new here please write to me let me know in the comments i just love hearing from all of you guys but especially new people to our channel so what we're going to talk about today are it's a it's a lesson to help you build your vocabulary because we're going to be talking about specific jobs and occupations

now the the first thing you may be wondering is well what's the difference between a job and an occupation they're basically synonyms i think overwhelmingly people use the word job much more than they would occupation i think the word occupation is a little more formal which is why you may find it if you are filling out some kind of form or an application it may ask you for your occupation but they're essentially the same thing so we're going to talk about certain words that describe somebody's job or their occupation and i think this is very useful because this is something that people talk about all the time if you want to well share and talk about your own job or maybe talk about your dream job so it's it's useful vocabulary for you to know so the way that i'm gonna do this is uh before i tell you uh before i show you the job or the occupation i'm gonna give you some clues and see if you can think of the word i'm talking about and then i will show you the word and what i want you guys to do who are hitting the chat if you want to to practice participate as we go through these different jobs and professions maybe right what do you think about this job what do you think about this profession what words would you use to describe it is it scary if it's something that is maybe you think it's very boring all right so thank you guys so much for joining me today uh lali angela uh mitni lucia um shia abdul rahman mandi learning with mehran lessons excellent kareem muhammad thank you guys for joining me today so let's just go into our first word so and it's going to go from easier to more difficult so i've tried to go make this list from beginner to advanced so we're going to start out a little easier and this is a job that somebody would have at the beach and if this person they work at the beach and they're supposed to make sure that everyone is safe all right i hope that you were thinking that this word is a lifeguard so a lifeguard is somebody if you travel to the ocean and you are at a very popular beach there is a good chance that you will see these people lifeguards working at the beach usually uh i don't know if it's just in the united states or other countries too i always think that they're wearing red that they have a red swimsuit uh and that is a lifeguard all right the next word um the next job is somebody who well works with languages and what they would do is they would they would interpret

one language for another person and this is a job that maybe many of you you're learning english perhaps you're learning other languages and maybe you would like to have this job and you go with somebody to some type of meeting and you listen in one language and then you tell what that person is saying to another person what would you call that uh exactly yes kdwd perfect we're talking about somebody who is a translator a translator uh this is the uh it's a noun so in this case i was talking about a person whose job is a translator but the verb to translate from one language into another is also a very common word you could say interpreter as well that's perfectly fine translator interpreter uh they they mean the same thing i think translator might be a little more common a little more official all right the next job is this is a person who works in somebody's home and they go to the home if they're going to fix maybe some of the pipes or maybe there's a problem with the toilet uh who would you call if you have a problem with your your toilet or your sink you would call this person all right what do you guys think um i hope that you said that you would call a plumber so a plumber is a person who works with like i said they work around the home if they if somebody needed to fix anything that would have pipes like the toilet or the sink or the shower and you would want to contact a plumber the next job is somebody who works with money all right that's your key word right there money all right somebody who works with money and they end up doing a lot of math most businesses have somebody who does this position and they work with the comp they they work with uh money and finances to make sure that um that that everything adds up and you would want uh this per or if you want help with your own money or finances you might want to contact this type of person excellent english vibes i am talking about yes yamila mohammed an accountant so if again i think it's a very common job and there are many different there are different types of accountants most businesses will have an accountant so this is something that you maybe if you work in this job yeah i'm an accountant all right the next job um that i want to talk to you guys about is it's an animal doctor all right that's that's all i'm gonna say is a doctor for animals specifically a doctor for pets all right what would you call this person who is a doctor for pets i think

many of you you may be familiar with this job this profession somebody who works with pets and they are a doctor they are a veterinarian all right a veterinarian a person who takes care of animals uh cats dogs birds and yes excellent lolly english vibes kathy perfect um you know many most people most of the time this word is shortened to vet uh because the it is a longer word the pronunciation veterinarian uh can be a little challenging that t u h v e t e r that t is kind of pronounced as a d like uh especially in the united states it's that flap t sound which is more of a d veterinarian veterinarian veterinarian so a vet or a veterinarian the next job is this person works in well with the law and specifically they work in a courtroom and this person would be the the leader of the courtroom pretty much the boss of the courtroom and what this person would do is they would listen and they make decisions in regard to the law perhaps if somebody is guilty or not guilty or if there's a jury this is the person who would kind of be the leader for the jury if the jury is going to make a decision so this was the person in the courtroom who is the leader uh who will maybe make the decisions that's the key word they would make the decisions if something is guilty or not all right i think this one maybe threw some people off because if i'm talking about somebody who makes the decisions of whether somebody is guilty or not guilty in that case we're talking about a judge so a judge would be the leader of a courtroom i know some people put down lawyer a lawyer is a person who works with the law and they would represent someone else and a lawyer would argue if perhaps a person is either guilty or not guilty and they would make that argument to a judge who would be pretty much the boss of the courtroom judge would be the boss of the courtroom if you're just joining us right now we are going over 25 different jobs and occupations which is a great way to build your vocabulary because we talk about work quite often all right the next job is it's going to get a little more difficult as we go through this this is a person who works with meat all right they work with meat like uh beef lamb chicken and it's typically like a small shop and this is where you would go to buy meat and the person that works there we call them what and often i think of this person as somebody who would well have like a knife especially like one of those cleavers those big giant knives um and you would call them excellent uh lolly lila english vibes perfect you we're talking about a butcher somebody who is a butcher works with meat and this is where you this is the person that you would buy meat from uh you would go see the butcher and sometimes it's in a smaller shop other times i think in perhaps a grocery store there is a butcher and you would go and buy the meat there uh the next job is this person works at uh in a building or perhaps they work in a school and it's the person that would clean the building so they would mop the floors they would clean the windows they might take out the trash so it's a very common job because in any type of office building you need these peoples that you have

this person would work at an office building they work at a school they would work in an airport and what do you call that person who would be responsible for cleaning that building and making sure that everything is clean all right um excellent uh yes kathy alex i'm talking about a janitor or you could also say a custodian that's another word i think more commonly people would talk about a janitor somebody who's cleaning a building somebody mentioned maybe a housekeeper one difference would be housekeepers really just going to work in a home this is specifically talking about somebody who would work in an office building or an airport would have a janitor schools and they would be responsible for cleaning uh excellent yes rod perfect you could also say cleaner as well i think um if somebody cleaner could be a lot of different things but i think if somebody specifically said that they work as a janitor then you know that they are cleaning some building or some office all right

um hey what's up silvio excellent uh rod glad you guys can join us so let's continue and i again i think they're getting a little more difficult perhaps some of you may be familiar with many of these and that's great it's always good to review so the next job is somebody who would help people buy a home so if you are looking for a home and you want to buy a home you would contact this person this person does not own the home but they are the person who would help facilitate the sale of a home so this person technically works with both the homeowner and any any person who would be interested in buying the home so think about think about it that way if you want to buy a home who would you contact which person would you call so the the word uh yes excellent um the what i have because again there's a few different words you could use but the word i was looking for the profession that i'm looking for is a real estate agent so a real estate agent is who you would call if you want to buy a home and they would take you around and they would show you different homes that might be for sale you could also say a realtor as well that it means the same thing but a real estate agent specifically person who would help people find a home to buy the next word this is a well it's a doctor if you have to if you have to do something it's very serious and you go into the doctor and they may have to open you up if they open you up and they try they have to fix something i'm trying to use words so that i don't give away the answer what would you call that type of doctor

it's something for that would definitely be more serious and you would go into a doctor perhaps you go into the hospital and if they have to open up the body um and do some work this person is a surgeon excellent you guys rock that uh lolly mahmood uh mahdi we're so surgery remember surgery a surgeon is the person specifically it's the person who's doing the operation surgery is the noun which is talking about the process and somebody would say that they they have to have surgery or i'm going to get surgery and they're going to go through that process but surgeon is the the specific the job all right the next profession uh that i want to talk to you about the next occupation is somebody who would design a home so the person that would design either a home or a building what would you call this person what is their job they they

well they would do quite a bit of math and they would kind of they would make an outline of the home or the building um and this is before you would start construction before you actually start building this home uh or this office this is the person that you would need to talk to and they're the ones who do the design and i am talking about an architect yes you would want to contact an architect great job raj lali um uh eloisa yeah mila perfect all right excellent gotta give some try to give some shout outs here when i can't so an architect is the person who would do the design the next uh the next job moving into sports a little bit so what would you call the person who is making decisions in baseball all right so think about baseball that specific sport and this is the person who makes sure that the rules are followed and i i'm telling you to think of baseball and i'll tell you why in just a moment so the person whose job it is to make sure that both teams are following the rules this person makes sure this is the person that would enforce the rules as well what would you call that person in baseball all right do we have any baseball fans out there um so some of you are putting referee and the reason i chose baseball is because it's a different word it this person is the referee for baseball but we don't call them the referee i saw one right answer uh i think alex is the person who gave me the answer i'm talking about an umpire so in most sports if you're talking about football like soccer or american football basketball the person is called a referee they make sure that both teams follow the rules and they enforce the rules in baseball that person is called an umpire all right i don't know why it's different but again that's why i was trying to tell you focus a little more on baseball but we would call that person an umpire all right let's continue get a little more difficult at least i think some of them might be a little easier so this is a person who drives a car for a living and they would drive another person and i usually think that this person could work for a business that would drive people to different places perhaps drive people to the airport or they could work with a specific person or a specific family and they would drive that family around what do you think what would you call uh that person i hope that you said yes holly excellent i hope that you said chauffeur a chauffeur is a occupation in which someone is driving a car for a living and again it could be that they work for a person a family or even a business and they would drive people around i think you could say that somebody is a driver but chauffeur is more specific because a driver i don't know it could be for driving for anything maybe uh maybe you're a nascar driver i don't know and you're doing it for sports so the next job that i have

is this is a person who works with flowers and they work at a shop that sells flowers so sometimes i might go buy roses for my wife and i would go to this store and i buy some roses and i would talk to a what person works at uh works at this type of store they sell flowers and i think this is a a job that i don't know how common it is but it's certainly something that i think we all deal with if there is some type of holiday or special occasion we might want to buy flowers for someone and you would go see a florist excellent you guys rocking that yes nice many of you got that one so a florist is a person that would sell flowers the next word that i have is this person works at a university and it would be the person who is the head of the university what would you call that person who is at the very top the leader of the university um is what this person would be called and specifically i'm talking about a university and again i think even within a university there are different departments and even the the head of a department could also have this name but the the person who is the head of the university's administration i'm going to add that word in there i'm talking about the university's administration and you would call that person the dean excellent wow uh supple uh busa khan sorry all these people flying by excellent um so again the when i think of a school in general like a high school then i would think of maybe a principal or even a headmaster but if we're specifically talking about a university the head of a university would be uh referred to as the dean of the university or you could say the the president as well um the next word that i have for you is this person works in an uh well this person would drive an ambulance or they ride in an ambulance so in general i guess they would they they would work for the hospital and the person that would either drive the ambulance or they would ride along in the ambulance and they would go um pick people up who are sick or injured and they try to help these people what do you call what is the name of that person who works in an ambulance all right and if you don't know what an ambulance is it is that that car that that you would see at a hospital that would go around and try to if there was an emergency you would call and send somebody to send the ambulance and these people work uh in the ambulance all right uh close we've got a couple people uh omg85 uh anna thoseus uh maria the person is called a paramedic so a paramedic would be somebody i would say that works in an ambulance because there's no real difference between the person driving and another person who is riding along both people are trained uh medically to help others so it doesn't matter whether somebody's driving or riding in the back or wherever they are all paramedics and that person is called a paramedic all right let's continue the the next job is somebody who works with uh well the mail and this person would deliver boxes to people i think most the time they they deliver boxes i guess they could deliver envelopes and i would say that this is a more formal position and it's a position that somebody would have if you want to if i want to send a box in the mail and i really want to make sure that it gets there i might hire this person to bring this box to this other place or even if you have something that you want to deliver even if it's not a box and you want to bring something important or bring something valuable to another place you're going to hire this person because they are a professional at traveling from one place to the next all right so the profession that i'm talking about is a courier all right and the difference between a courier and a mailman i think a courier is like this is a bit more formal it's a bit more of a professional position so if i wanted to send something very valuable in the mail i might not go to the post office because i might be a little worried that they're going to lose it something's going to go wrong but you can go see if you want to pay a little extra money and it costs more you can bring it to a courier and this is the person who is responsible for delivering a box or it could be other items as well but typically i think of something that is more expensive or perhaps it's like a document that is very important and you want to make sure it gets there you're probably going to hire a courier all right the next job is somebody who would work at a hotel and this person would be responsible for helping people bring their luggage from the well from their car to the hotel room often you might find this person around the lobby they help customers they help people that are staying at the hotel and typically they would bring the luggage to the person's room and they wheel around those those carts what do you call this person i used to i used to work at a hotel this was one of my first jobs um and i would you would bring luggage to people's rooms what what do you call that um that person who would bring luggage uh yes uh christina eloisa turned it out so typically the the word that i have is a bellhop uh you may hear the word bellboy as well that's another very common word uh but a bellhop is just general because i don't know um i i think belle boy you could say that for for boys if a girl had that job because then you could say a bell girl a bellhop could be for either a man or a woman but a bellhop they wheel around you can see those little carts with the luggage on it and they would bring it to people's rooms um the next word the next job is this is a person that works outside and they would try to discover ancient artifacts so for example if this person is trying they're trying to learn a little bit more about history or uh some city or some building they would go there and they would try to dig up these ancient artifacts or ancient ruins in order to learn more about it what do you call that person it is kind of a a type of science i guess you could say it would fall under that category but somebody who would um and i guess like even like dinosaur bones uh that would be the same thing but somebody who would work more with uh with history yes exactly uh i think you guys got it specifically we're talking about uh i said they work outside an archaeologist except uh this i don't know if i would this is a a fake archaeologist indiana jones that's not really the life of an archaeologist going around and having all these adventures i think an archaeologist's job looks more like this where you are outside and you are digging slowly trying to discover some parts of a building or bones or anything i think it is a very maybe a very tedious job uh it takes a long time so the next job that i have is okay this is the person well very specifically this is the person who is the leader of an orchestra so somebody who is part of an orchestra that would play music but the person who is the leader and everybody watches this person so they know when to start playing and when to stop playing and they're the ones who lead the orchestra you would call them what i hope that you guys are thinking of uh [Music] this person is called a conductor all right excellent so the person who leads an orchestra would be a conductor you could also say the word maestro i was trying to look up the difference between a conductor and a maestro it said like a maestro is more of a famous conductor so somebody's really famous and well-known then the conductor becomes a maestro but it's basically the same thing the leader of an orchestra all right a few more jobs for you this person is on a construction site this is the leader of the construction site so if you are perhaps a construction site for a building there are going to be different people working at that construction site but this person is the leader they're going to be telling people what to do where to go and this is the person that you would want to talk to they are the leader at this construction site what do you call that person these now that i'm getting into a little more advanced words i hope that you said or if you knew it uh yes caravan perfect it's a foreman a foreman is the person who is the boss at a construction site so typically every construction site has a formant the difference between some people like an engineer the different an engineer i think would be somebody who does some of the designs and they would also be at the construction site but the foreman is the actual person who is um the boss of the construction and the building that's going on uh as you can see like that crane in the back there so a foreman would be the boss this next person works in a funeral home and when somebody dies they there is a funeral for this person this job this person is responsible for making sure that the body of the the dead individual looks nice and presentable because at some funerals people might go around and there is a casket which is open and people might go in and look at the body so this person is their job is to make sure that the body looks looks kept and looks looks presentable

for the funeral do you guys know what do you call that's a very specific job because again i'm talking about a very specific situation all right um excellent yes so the job that i have is a mortician now a mortician this this is the person that if you are having um if there's somebody that would make sure that the body looks presentable you would call them a mortician an undertaker is the same thing the word undertaker is a bit more informal and it's actually a euphemism for mortician so i think of if somebody is talking about their job and this is what they do i think they're more likely to say that they are a mortician as instead of using the word undertaker both of them mean the same thing but undertaker is definitely a bit more informal all right the next job that i have for you is this is a person that if um if you have a position that that is very high up in a company and they they need to fill that position this person will go around and look for qualified people to fill a position at a company and i'm talking about again i'm talking about positions that are very high up there um ceo cfo um a really high uh manager and it's a very important position and instead of them like trying to just find many different applicants they will hire somebody to go look for the best people to to do this uh for this job so what do you call that kind of person that would go around and search for high level individuals all right um excellent yes uh sarah the job is a head hunter so again specifically a head hunter is talking about somebody who would look for high level positions because i know some of you put down a recruiter the difference is a recruiter would really look for a recruiter would look to fill many different positions whether it's a high position or a low position head hunters specifically look for high level positions like ceos um cfos uh coos i'm doing all these acronyms uh chief executive officer chief operating officer um those are high level high paid positions and you want to find the most qualified people so you may go the company may go look for a headhunter in order to find those people so it's a good word to know all right again these are a little more advanced the next position is somebody who works at a bar and it's really the bartender's assistant what would you call the assistant of a bartender and and you might not know this word unless you have had a job and you've worked at a bar or maybe if you've just spent a lot of time at a bar

a bartender i think you know what somebody who works at a bar and they serve drinks but sometimes bars can get really busy and the bartender would have an assistant and this assistant would be maybe they would be collecting cups or glasses and cleaning them they would change the kegs if one keg ran out they'd go get the other one and they'd change it real quickly they'd go restock um alcohol bottles that are empty all right what do you think all right so this again is a very specific word unless you work there this person is called a bar back i don't know where this word came from originally but somebody who is an assistant to a bartender would be a bar back and typically i think of somebody who is a bar back is perhaps a younger person maybe they don't have training or experience as a bartender perhaps they want to be a bartender in the future and they start out as a bar back and they would be getting like cups and glasses they would be restocking the shelves and bottles or changing the kegs and you would call that person a bar back some of you put busboy busboy is a little different that's talking about somebody who would work in the restaurant the person at a restaurant who would clean the tables would be the busboy so this is uh a bar back all right then uh we have another word for you i don't have to give you many hints it is a doctor for the foot all right so if we're talking about doctors and medicine there's many different types of doctors out there there are many different specialties so if you have a problem with the foot you would go see this doctor this is a specific doctor that you would go to uh

for the foot it's a foot doctor what do you call that person all right um i will be very impressed if some of you get this because i think when you're talking about medicine you can get very specific with certain specialties so you would go see perhaps if there is a problem with your foot um it could be maybe i don't know you you twisted it the wrong way perhaps even you have a fungus i don't really know um some of you are close the word uh pediatrics pediatrician that is a doctor for children you're talking about a children's doctor if we're talking about a doctor for the foot it's a podiatrist a podiatrist is uh the doctor for the foot all right very specific it's not a word that you're going to use or hear in everyday english but again it's always good to learn different words in order to build your vocabulary so if something happened and you really hurt your foot or you needed to go get it checked out you may go see a podiatrist all right so i hope that uh you learn some new words i hope some of these jobs were different for you and again if you guys like what we do here at interactive english and whoa uh i disappeared for a second and you want to show us some love uh you guys can check us out we are active we have where we go there i am okay you can check us out youtube memberships patreon i have some there are some patrons and uh youtube members i saw today uh lolly rod um somebody else uh i saw as well always appreciate your guys support we couldn't have we couldn't do all this without you links are in the description down below so those are some different jobs and professions and what i would ask all of you is to well let me know about your job your profession i love learning about all of you write to me in the comments tell me about your job your occupation i would just love to hear from you guys so thank you guys so much for joining me and uh let's give some shout outs thank you thank you to uh magali uh rod mohammed um mandi eloisa trinidad fazuja uh donaire matthias um giovanna laura what is patreon pa patreon is just a it's a platform that um people can give rewards and it's a way to support creators um but links are down in the description below if you guys want to check that out thank you guys mohammed uh albatross abdulrahman angela devi i guess go on and on thank you guys so much for being here i hope you learned some new words and i hope you enjoyed the lesson please if you did hit that like button and i will see you guys next time so long

LESSON 52 OF 749

25 Most Common Adjectives You NEED to Know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

So today, we have a really fun lesson for you. We are talking about the 25 most common adjectives in English. So today, we are going to share with you the 25 most common adjectives in English. And these are taken from the Oxford English Corpus, which is just a collection of the English language. Keep in mind that if you study English you should really, really know these 25 words. So we're going to tell you the adjective and also give you an example sentence. So we're going to count down from #25. And we don't know each other's adjectives, so we're going to try and think of a sentence just right off the top of our head.

So number twenty-five - the 25th most common adjectives in English is ABLE. You can speak more than that. No? I can understand like five. Twenty-four is SAME. Can you believe it? Yeah. Scandalous. Number twenty-three - I actually thought this one would be higher but it's not - is BAD. Oh. I'm surprised in the higher too. I thought you were going to say Wes is a bad boy. Can we talk all his socks and sandal phase. Number twenty-two is PUBLIC. Public park. What's wrong with the public park? Nothing. I just...I had a weird image in... It's...it's a fine example. Number twenty-one is FEW. He has like two shirts. No I don't. I have like four.

And two pairs of jeans. It's few. Number twenty - and this one I thought would be higher too - IMPORTANT. Really? Alright... Something is important. Number nineteen - YOUNG. Can you give us a sentence while we're young? Wes is a young man. What's wrong with "Wes is a young man"? Wes is a...because it's not true. Wes is not a young man. That's a terrible sentence. Eighteen is EARLY. Okay, this is true. I am not an early riser. That is...yes. Yes, I hate early mornings Yeah, we got it. Number seventeen is NEXT. Number sixteen is LARGE. It is large. Quite large. Number fifteen - quite fittingly - is SMALL. They're so cute. They're so small.

I like this one. Number fourteen is DIFFERENT. Sometimes. It can be a good thing. Yeah. We should all be different. Number thirteen is HIGH. Yeah. High. Okay. What are you thinking about? High heels. High building. Yeah. If a person is high then they've been smoking something. Drugs. In case that wasn't clear for you. Number twelve is BIG. Is big? Can't wait. Big meal. Indian. Yeah, that's true. We're going to go get some Indian. Have a big meal. Number eleven... I kind of want to give the sentence, but never mind. Number eleven is RIGHT. Oh no. Wes is going to say "Wes is always right." It's not true. That is a good sentence. Thank you. Yes.

It's annoying because he's usually right. Why is that annoying? Put yourself in my shoes. But we're on... we're on...we're on the same team. So it's good. But you love to tell me that you're always right. That's why I'm a bad boy. Top ten! Wahoo! This is also appropriate for Wes - OLD. What? Old? All right to be fair, I'd say... How old is it Wes? Probably...I don't know, maybe seven or eight years. We met five years ago, and you had it. I know I said it's like seven or eight years. It's old. Like its owner. What? Number nine is OTHER. So if somebody asks like "Oh, can I have that one?" I can say...

Yeah. Something else. You could say like "What did you do the other day?" Oh, yeah. Other day. Number eight is OWN. Or like it's something that's yours. Yeah. My very own camera. I can't believe my own luck. Number seven is LITTLE. It's a nice word. It's cute. I'm trying to think of a cute sentence. It should be first thing that pops your head. Go! Go! Go! Go! Okay. You don't want a big cat? No. A little one. I want a big cat. I want a little one. I want a big chubby cat. I expected this to be where it is - GREAT. Number six is GREAT. Great. I would say...

Ioana, she's great. That's true. I am great. Even though I'm always right. We've entered the top five. Do you think other people are as excited about adjectives as we are? Probably not. So number five is LONG. I was really tired so yesterday felt like a long day. I think a lot of people use it in that way. Like "Ah, it's been a long day." Number four is LAST. Okay, like... You could say last week, last month, last year. When we ran our marathon, we came in last. When we ran the marathon, yeah, we were almost last. Almost. We weren't quite last. There were four people after us.

Number three - it's interesting how close they are together because number three is FIRST. We were nowhere close to first. I was going to talk about my first kiss, but it's inappropriate. Yeah, people talk about first kiss, first date. Yeah, I guess that's why probably first is probably more common than last. Okay the second one, second to last...second to first... Number two is NEW. I was going to say new clothes. Yeah, I need a new pair of shoes. So the number one adjective - the most popular adjective in English is... You're screaming in my ear. GOOD. Number one is GOOD. I like that that's the first one. That is a good adjective. Yeah, it's good.

I don't think that's surprising at all. We use good all the time. How are things? - Good. Basically anything. How are you doing? - Good. That's like the answer to everything. Keep in mind, these are Important adjectives so you should know these, learn these, study these. Dream of these. So now we want to know, which adjective do you use the most. Which one is your favorite? Write it in the comments. We want to hear from you guys. If you enjoyed this lesson, please don't forget hit that LIKE button. And if you enjoy learning English with us, we appreciate it if you subscribe. Thank you guys so much for watching, and we'll see you next time.

See you. Bye.

LESSON 53 OF 749

25 Most Common English Verbs You NEED to Know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Okay. Are you read? You sure? Are you guys ready? I hope so because today we are going to talk to you about the 25 most common verbs in English. That's coming up. Yay. How was that intro? You think that was kind of off the cuff like? So today we are going to tell you the 25 most common verbs in English. These are verbs you really, really, really need to know. And this - these verbs - this list is from a study that was conducted using the Oxford English Corpus, which is basically a huge collection of written texts that were examined so they could find out which ones are the most frequent.

So this is a list of the most frequently used verbs which means these are verbs that you guys should know. You really need to know them. Super important. Very important verbs. They're super important. You should know these verbs. You should know them. Did we say that you should know these verbs? You should know them. You need to know them. Okay, okay, okay. Okay, so what we're going to do is we're going to give you...stop laughing. Okay. Okay. So what we're going to do is we're going to give you these 25 verbs. But with each one, we will give you the conjugation. So we'll give you the present tense form, the past tense, and then the past participle from of the verb.

What are the most frequently used verbs in English? What are they? We're going to tell you. All right. Let's begin. So the number one verb - drumroll. Drumroll. is, really to no surprise, the verb TO BE. It is the most common verb in English. So in the present, you would use IS or ARE depending on the subject. The past WAS/WERE and the past participle is BEEN. That's true. You confirm you confirm that? It's correct. You agree? He's not lying to you guys. Number two is HAVE or HAS. And in the past its HAD. Past participle also HAD.

Number three...the third most common verb in English is TO DO. So in the present DO or DOES, in the past DID, and the past participle is DONE. Number four...SAY. Say or says. TO SAY or SAYS. The past tense is SAID and the past participle also SAID. Number five is TO GET. So the present simple GET/GETS. The past tense GOT. And the past participle can be either GOT or GOTTEN. So got is the more common form in British English. And Americans will sometimes say gotten. So for example, because we are from the United States, we say gotten. Number six is TO MAKE. So that's MAKE/MAKES. Past as MADE. What's the past participle?

MADE. I don't know why I keep forgetting these. It's good practice for us. Yeah. I guess. Everyone has to memorize these, including native English speakers. So everyone has to memorize. Because there's a lot of irregular verbs. Pretty much all of them are irregular verbs. Number seven is TO GO. And...so the present simple GO/GOES. The past tense is WENT and the past participle GONE. Gone with the wind. Gone somewhere. With the wind. What? Gone with the Wind. That is a movie. Yes. It's out of focus. Number eight is KNOW. Not no. But "to know." Okay, let's backtrack. Okay, number eight is TO KNOW. In the present tense, we have KNOW/KNOWS. In the past tense we have KNEW and in the past participle it's KNOWN.

We know. Number nine is TO TAKE. So in the present tense TAKE/TAKES. In the past TOOK and the past participle is TAKEN. No, not "tooken." TAKEN. Listen to him. Number ten...TO SEE. You look like such a dork. What? This is SEE. SEE. Number ten is TO SEE. Number ten is TO SEE. I'm okay Number ten is to... Number ten is... Number ten is TO SEE. So in the present tense...like how we did that? In the present tense... We were working on that for a while. A long time. In the present is we have SEE/SEES. And in the past it's SAW. And in the past participle SEEN. Out of the top ten, which is your favorite verb?

KNOW. Why? Do you know why? I do know why because it's...first of all it sounds like another word. So it's like, if you know one word you know two words. And second because I like knowledge. I like to know things. Are you going to ask me? Do you care? You don't care what my favorite verb is. I want to share my favorite verb. Fine. What's yours? I would say...I like GO. Because it's kind of... You're what? You're going. No. It's just a good action. I just like the the action. Like, "Hey, let's go!"

Let's go. Let's go. Let's do it. Let's do it. Let's go. Let's continue our... let's continue our list. Number eleven is TO COME. So in the... Number eleven is TO COME, so... You're terrible. Number eleven is TO COME. So in the present simple you'd have COME/COMES. In the past COME, and in the past participle is just COME...again. She keeps laughing when I say, "Come." It's a popular verb all right. No. I'm sure. To come. Okay. You got to stop. It's popular verb. People use it a lot. People come and go all the time. They come and go. Don't they? Yes, they do. Are we done with the innuendos? Okay, I like this one.

Another regular verb. Wow, two in a row. Amazing. Incredible. It's a good one TO WANT. I like it. I want...to tickle Wes. Number fifteen is TO GIVE. So in present simple GIVE/GIVES. In the past it is GAVE, and the past participle is GIVEN. Are you sure? Are you 100% sure? Why? Is it not... This is another regular verb. So number sixteen is TO USE. In the present tense, this is USE/USES. Past tense USED and past participle USED as well. Rocking along with these regular verbs now. Number seventeen - just when I say that - is FIND, another irregular verb. So in the present simple we have FIND/FINDS. Past tense is FOUND and the past participle is also FOUND.

Memorize it. Practice it. Use it. Number eighteen is TO TELL. Present tense...TELL/TELLS. Past tense...TOLD. And past participle...TOLD. It is funny because these are...these are so common, but at the same time thinking of the conjugation I'm still like - wait a second. You have to think about it. Wait, which is that? Wait, what's the past participle? But if you have to say it in a sentence I think we'll say it quickly. Yeah, yeah. It's no problem. Number nineteen is TO ASK. So present simple ASK/ASKS. And the past is ASKED. And the past participle ASKED as well. It sounded like you said "assed." Wait, let me say it again. So the present is ASK/ASKS.

And the past is ASKED. And the past participle is also ASKED. I'm trying to get "asked." I know I was laughing because your eyes are like bulging out. Every time you say it you're like "ASKS." And then it was ASKED. Asked. That -ed has that T sound because the K is voiceless. There we go. Number twenty - it's another regular verb - in the present tense we have... What's the verb? Number twenty is TO WORK. And this is another regular verb. So in the present we have WORK/WORKS. Past tense WORKED. Past participle WORKED. Number twenty-one TO SEEM. And the present SEEM/SEEMS. In the past - because it's regular - SEEMED.

And the past participle is also SEEMED. And it's true. Number twenty-two is TO FEEL. This one in the present tense is FEEL/FEELS. Past tense FELT. Past participle FELT. Twenty-three...TO TRY. So we have TRY/TRIES in the present. The past...TRIED and the past participle TRIED. Ends with a -y so we use -ied. Number twenty-four is TO LEAVE. In the present tense this is LEAVE/LEAVES. Past tense LEFT. Past participle LEFT. And number twenty-five - the last of the most common English verbs - is TO CALL. So we have CALL/CALLS in the present. CALLED in the past, and the past participle is CALLED. So out of all of these verbs, which one is your favorite now?

Is it still TO KNOW? I think so actually. Oh no. Can I change my answer? Yeah. I like TO GIVE. I like give. Okay. That's a good one. That's funny because mine would be TO WANT. I like TO WANT something. That's what I was going to say. Number fourteen...TO WANT. Yes. Next year, WANT - it's making its way to the top. Sure. I like GIVE. And KNOW. What about TO COME?

Now, what we want you to do is in the comments tell us which of these verbs is your favorite. Or tell us which one that you think you use the most. Which one is most common for you? And write that in the comments. We want to know. We hope you give us... I'm trying to use your favorite verb. Give us a comment! We hope you enjoyed this lesson and know all of these verbs and that you can conjugate these verbs because that is very important. If you like this lesson, please give us a thumbs up. And as always thanks for watching. We'll see you next time. Bye Is that better? Yeah, sure.

LESSON 54 OF 749

25 Most Common Nouns in English | Words You Need to Know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today we are going to talk to you about the 25 most common nouns in English. That's coming up. I keep doing this It's your thing now Yeah Welcome to today's lesson. So today we're going to talk to you about the 25 most common nouns in English. And these are nouns that were taken from the Oxford English Corpus, which is just basically a collection of the English language and for more information, we'll leave a link in the description We're going to each say a word and the other person has to come up with a quick example on the spot using that word.

Now we don't know each other's nouns So we're going to try and do it just off the top of our head. Are you ready? Are YOU ready? Yes Alright, here we go. That was a terrible. So number 25 is fact Really? Yes, fact. Okay. Wow, alright, so a sentence with fact If you study with us, you will learn English. That is a fact. Fact. True story.

Number 24 is problem. Can't think of one right now. This morning I had a problem. What is it? We didn't have any water so I couldn't wash my hair. It's the first thing I came up with. Wes: That's not a fact. Okay, number 23 is group. Group, okay: Let's form a study group so we can learn together. Come together, group of people.

Number 22 is number. My favorite number is six. Is it really? 6, oh.? Yeah, cause you were born on the six. Yeah, my favorite number is... six. It's when we got married. Oh, yeah. We also got married on the 6th because it was already my favorite number - I Yea, 6 is my favorite number too. I think it's strange for the place it's in, but number 21 is company. Company mm-hmm Okay, we hope to start a company. Company- a business, yeah. But you could have company like a group of people. I think it's probably more the business.

Number 20 is government. government, okay um sentence with government The US government just shut down not too long ago. It did shut down temporarily. Yeah, the government did. Good, good example. Number 19 is point. Point? Point. Okay, so this is a noun, not a verb. Alright, alright, so I if somebody is right, then I could say: Yea, you know: you have a point. Or it could be a point like you can score points in a match. These multiple meaning words can really probably drive up the way it's used.

Number 18 is case. apparently a case Okay, so you could say that was a hard hard case to crack. You see this in these like mystery... like Sherlock Holmes or something, solves a case. Or I bought a case of beer. Really, did you? No, I didn't but it's a good example, right? A case of something. Okay, so number 17 is week. like weekday. Oh! I thought you were talking about weak- like in "not strong". I was like: That's an adjective! Week, okay. I could say: Hey, what are you going to do this week? What are you doing this week? 16 (That's where we're at, right?) 16 is work. This one I expected, obviously. It's a popular word.

This noun's kind of got you, huh? Well, no because it's such a common noun, that there's so many things that you can use it with. You could say: I go to work at 7 a.m. Every morning or something... or I start work at 5. Ah, see... now they're coming to me. Number 15 is place. Okay: We live in a nice place.

Number 14: woman. Well: My mother is an extraordinary woman. It's a good word. Do you think she's watching this right now? If you are: Ciao, mama! Hi, Lali! Number 13: eye. I was thinking the pronoun. I was thinking: Oh, this is easy. You can say: oh, you got beautiful eyes. People tell me that all the time. He does. He has really beautiful eyes. Big blue eyes.

Number 12 is child. Oh, that's a cute one. Oh gosh. Um. Okay. The child was very annoying. I guess. What are you trying to say? Number 11 is part. There are many different car parts. Number 10! We have entered the top 10. 25 most common nouns... Number 10 is hand. Wes writes with his left hand My left hand, it's true. Number 9 is life. life You could say like: We have a great life. We get to work with all of you guys. It's great life.

Number 8 is world. Um I'd love to travel the world. If you could go anywhere in the world right now, where would you go? Argentina. You? I would go to... I think I would go to Korea actually, yeah. I used to live there. I miss Korean food. Why am I not surprised that this word is more common than the other one? Number 7 is man. I am a man. That's my sentence. I am an extraordinary man. How about that? You're just copying my sentence. I am copying your sentence!

Number 6 - and I actually probably thought this would be higher up is- thing. Thing Oh yeah, that's a good one. My favorite thing to eat is chocolate. I think it's one of those words that a lot of teachers would tell you not to use. Be more specific. Tell me: what thing are you talking about? Number five! We're getting close to number one! Oh, I have to say it! That's you, yeah. Number five: day. Day. Oh, okay, you could say, well: What's your favorite part of the day? What's your favorite part of the day?

Number 4 is way. I can see why this is so popular - cause you can ask: Which way are you going? or... I always think of that song: Show me the way I forget who sings it, but... Number three is year. year, okay um This year is 2018. It's very factual. Yes, this year, 2018, it's going to be a great year. Number two- the second most popular noun in the English language- is... I forgot, wait, hold on. I want to make sure I get it. Oh okay. Yes number two is person.

Let's see... My favorite person is a cat. Just kidding! Sorry mm-hmm. Wes is my favorite person. Thank you. Oh Because I'm an extraordinary man? Eh. Number one. Are you ready? I really like that this is number one actually. One is time. time Just a question I think most people ask: What time is it? What time is it? Out of all of these nouns, which is your favorite? Which one do you think? Which one do you like? A Woman. I like world. So, speaking of favorite nouns... Now we want to hear from you guys, and why don't you tell us: What is your favorite noun on this list? Write it in the comments, let us know.

If you guys enjoyed this lesson, or if you enjoyed hearing about the 25 most common nouns, give us a like. Thank you guys so much for watching, and we'll see you next time. Bye. Bye

LESSON 55 OF 749

25 Super Useful Phrases You Will Use Again and Again

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's talk about some very common english expressions that you should know that's coming up [Music] everyone my name is wes from interactive english and the channel it's all about helping you practice and improve your english so that you can achieve fluency and today i want to talk to you about 25 very common phrases that you will hear people use again and again and again and these are also phrases that that you should also be using over and over because they're just that common and you you may be familiar with many of these phrases already that's great but if you're not this is an excellent way to build your vocabulary and it's also good for your listening so that you can easily identify them and recognize them if somebody else is saying them so the first phrase that i have for you well this is one that i use all the time

it's just a very uh simple greeting a way of saying hello is just how's it going how's it going so uh i i say this when i see other people how's it going and notice that how is is contracted to house and going you you're not really going to hear that g at the end it's going to get dropped how's it going how's it going the next phrase is uh well it's another question how's that sound so this is a phrase that you would hear people say if they if maybe they make a suggestion and they want to know what you think and i think most of the time they want you to agree like oh what do you think about that how does that sound you can have the name for thousand dollars how's that sound then we have never mind all right if if somebody says something and maybe they don't want to repeat themselves or they just uh they don't want to talk about something anymore never mind speaking of repeating oneself

another common question that somebody may ask especially if uh you're somebody who's learning english if you don't always understand someone you could just say uh you know could you repeat that could you repeat that if you want to be polite you can throw a please on the end could you repeat that please i think personally if i don't understand someone and that that happens from time to time i'll usually throw a sorry at the beginning and then say it i'd say oh sorry could you repeat that uh and then they would say it again could you repeat that you repeat that please peter i'm sorry can you repeat that then we have um what do you mean all right this if you don't understand something that someone is explaining to you then you could just tell them you know what do you what do you mean if you want to be more specific and a very common phrase it's a question what does mean if they're if you're talking about a specific word what does mean great question especially for somebody who's learning english because if you don't understand something i think it's great to always ask of like a new word what does um mean what does rhetorically mean what does ostentatious mean what does potential mean then we have the phrase uh which is again is if you meet somebody where are you from i i ask this to many of you if i'm communicating with you in the comments i might ask you you know where are you from and notice when i say that the u i'm not i'm pronouncing it more with a schwa sound yeah when i say it just quickly where are you from next is the phrase what time is it i think throughout the day if you're somebody like me i don't wear a watch i might ask uh another person especially a friend somebody i'm with a colleague what time is it the next one is i was just about to hmm like you're you're just about to do something and i think when you're just talking with somebody else you you could use this uh or you may hear it quite often again the two has more of a schwa sound i was just about uh oh i was just about to call you uh i was just about to leave you were just about to do something you know i was just about to give up i was just about to ask you i was just about to say that i was just about to head out then we have uh another great phrase very common thanks so much and i'm gonna actually add a preposition after that thanks so much for something because i think oftentimes people will say why they are thanking someone and four it can kind of sound like fur so uh thanks so much for for hitting that like button i hope i hope you hit the like button or thanks so much for watching this video then we have be careful i think this is something that well you're gonna hear all the time and i think you might say it to somebody else if they're doing something could be dangerous be careful next i don't mean to bother you but and then you would ask a question so for example if i have to interrupt someone else and maybe i'm asking directions maybe i'm asking him hey what time is it i might start out and say that i don't mean to bother you but uh listen uh i don't mean to bother you but believe me i i think i may have left my hat in your apartment so uh i thought i'd just come by later and pick it up i don't mean to bother you but my name is lois griffin for me to bother

then we have i haven't heard about that so if somebody's talking about something you have no idea about this thing you just tell them yeah i haven't heard about that next is a question just who cares i think this is something that you will use when you are well maybe you disagree with someone and you could just tell them hey who cares next time that that is the next phrase that i want to tell you and if this is one that that i use uh quite often if i can't do something right now i just say you know next time and that phrase it's good to know and that is the other phrase that i wanted to follow up uh uh on and it's just saying yeah good to know that if if you're getting some new information hey it's good to know the church will read that as us suing them so will everybody else good to know

honestly you are straight up cursed good to know protect your eyes she's a gouger good to know i'm not dead good to know next is let me know if you want somebody to reply or tell you something later on just say let me know and keep in mind that that let me is is connected and just sounds like let me know that works it's a great phrase i love using it if you want to agree with someone that you're just saying okay that works then we have i have no idea if somebody is asking you uh maybe to give them some information or and you just don't know tell them you know i have no idea then we have the phrase let me think about that so again let me is kind of connected and you you can hear that let me think about that let me think about that hold on let me think about that yes that'll work uh well let me think about that let me think about that okay then we have this phrase which i think is great if you are shopping and maybe you don't plan on buying anything and somebody comes over and says can i help you you could just tell them i'm just looking around i'm just looking around so it's great if you're out shopping and you you don't want you don't want to talk to anybody maybe you don't want to talk to one of the employees and you just tell them hey i'm just looking around i'll be there in a second this is a this is a phrase that i love to use if uh i'm doing something and i have to go do something else and yeah i might tell my wife hey i'll be there in a second you could also say i'll be there in a moment either one usually i'm i won't definitely i'm definitely not there in a second and sometimes it takes longer than a moment but it's just a phrase that i like to use i'll be there in a second come on i'll be there i'll be there next thanks can you take your brother downstairs i'll be there in a second waitress we'll be in a second it's ready we'll be there in a second all right i hope that you recognize and understand all of those phrases because again these are these are phrases that you will use over and over and over and it's it's not really a problem that you're going to use them again and again because i think they're just very relevant in everyday conversation if you enjoyed this lesson please hit that like button as always thanks so much for watching and i'll see you next time

LESSON 56 OF 749

25 Useful Words that You Should NOT Mispronounce

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today, we'll talk about 25 difficult words for English learners to pronounce. If you haven't done it already, please make sure to join our social media classes where you can practice and improve your English. So a while back, we did a pronunciation video talking about common words that English learners often mispronounce. And then we asked you which words you had difficulty pronouncing, and we got some of your feedback. So today we're going to talk to you about 25 words that you guys told us were difficult to pronounce. As we go over these words, we are going to give you the phonetic spelling Which means that we are going to show you the words exactly how they sound.

Some of you may be familiar with the International Phonetic Alphabet. Others of you may not be, but I think everyone can understand and follow phonetic spelling. We will also show you how many syllables each word has, and remember a syllable is just one unit of sound. In addition, we will show you which syllable is stressed. So hopefully this information will help give you a better idea as to how to pronounce each of these individual words. If you want even more practice you can repeat the word after we say them. Practice makes perfect. It's true. Also keep in mind that in this video we are doing the American pronunciation of these words.

Which is important to mention because some of the words may differ in their American pronunciation versus the British pronunciation. So yeah, keep that in mind. We'll be doing the American pronunciation. Because we're American. So the first word, fittingly, is the word pronunciation Now, there are two things about this word that could be a little tricky. First, that C actually sounds like you're saying the letter C Pronunciation. And the word ends with the -tion, which sounds like /shuhn/. Anytime that you see these four letters together at the of a word, it's pronounced as /shuhn/. Also, a pronunciation rule is that when a word ends with the -tion, the stress is going to fall on the syllable before.

So in this case... Pronunciation. Wow, that pronunciation is flawless. The next one is characterization. And this one is difficult to pronounce, firstly, because it's so long. So let's break it apart. The first two letters, the CH, many times in English they make a /ch/ sound, so you would expect in this case that they would make the /ch/ sound like in channel. But not here. The way that it's pronounced is with the /k/ sound like the K sound. The other thing is that those last four letters, the -tion, are just like in any other instance in English read as /shuhn/. And remember to stress that syllable before... the /shuhn/. Say with me. Say it fast.

I think I'm comfortable with that characterization as well. Number three is museum. Now this word can be tricky for two reasons. The first is that first syllable...that /myoo/ has like an M sound combined with like saying the word YOU. That S is also going to sound like a Z. Let's go to the museum. Let's go. It's easy. We haven't been to any museums lately. It's not like that, okay? And I'm not going to any museum. Well I'm not going back in this storage.

The next word is disadvantage. And this one might be a little bit difficult because if we look at the last four letters, the -tage, I think they're easy to mispronounce. It's...it's kind of the /tij/ sound that is very quick. So it's not /tage/. It's /tij/. So we say... You're at a real disadvantage. Next...unfortunate. So this word can be troublesome because that TU actually sounds like a /choo/ That's it. Unfortunate. It was an unfortunate error. We're fixing it.

The next word is occupation. This one might be a little difficult because of the C sound. Maybe if you look at it you think, "Oh, it's a C." Pronounced like a C, but it's actually pronounced like a Q sound. So it's... And remember to stress the syllable before the /shuhn/. Like that...with that kind of emphasis? Occupation would be the correct way to say it. That's better. Please state your name and occupation.

The next word is cucumber. So this word can definitely be confusing because of the letter C. That first C sounds like a Q sound...Q, Q. Alright. And the next C just has a /k/ sound like a K. There are some other words that begin with the letters CU, where that C also sounds like a Q sound like cube or cute. And then there are some other words that begin with CU that don't follow that at all and sound like a /k/ sound like cup or... cupboard or... Anything else with cup. Curve. So, cucumber can really be a little tricky. What do you got a cucumber? I'm chill, I'm chill as a cucumber man.

The next word is tongue. Now, the pronunciation of this word is all sorts of crazy. First off, it only has one syllable. And that O sounds like a U. And it would rhyme with words like sung or rung or... Tongue. Lung. Tongue...lung, yea. That's another one. Tongue...there you have it. Not porno tongue, church tongue. The next word is assume. And this one has a couple little tricks to it. The first one is that the first syllable is a schwa, so it makes it an /uh/ sound. So we can say... And the second one is that the U in there does not make a U sound but an /oo/ sound. We say...

Okay, I will assume reputation Next is diary. So this word can be a little confusing because it is three syllables. It's not two. And the first syllable has that long I sound. That /dahy/... followed by the schwa.../dahy-uh/ and then the Y at the end has a long E sound. Do you keep a diary? Do you? I don't. Dear diary. Love makes you do crazy things.

The next word is category. And here, what's tricky is the T sound because it's not an actual T sound. It's like a flap T or the American T. But it's kind of a D sound. So it's... Muted D even. You can barely hear it. What's the first category here? The first category is the hound group. The next word is schedule. So this word has two syllable. And it can be confusing because of that CH. It doesn't have a CH sound. It has a /k/ sound like a K sound. And the -dule sounds like /jool/. Especially when you say it fast... Precisely on schedule.

The next word is physics. This one is also a little tricky even though it's short. There are a couple things to mention. The PH sound in English sounds like a /f/. Like a /f/...like an f sound. So it's... The other one is that the Y sound is not a /y/ sound but it's like a shortened I sound. And the third thing is that the S is pronounced like a Z. So put it all together and you have... In physics...well, we talk about physics. Properties of physics.

The next word is curtail. So this word has two syllables and the second syllable has that long A sound... tail. Like you're talking about an animal's tail. Not curdle. Can we curtail this performance piece? The next word is chemistry. And chemistry is derived from kimia which comes from alchimia which is an Arabic term derived from Greek. It has a long story. But what that means is that the pronunciation is a little bit different. So it's not a /ch/ sound but instead a /k/.../k/ sound. So it's... Are you studying? Yeah, chemistry. I hate chemistry. Me too. Next is poignant. So this word...that GN has that nasal sound. That poignant. Which is different from some other words that also have a GN like pregnant.

Alright. So this GN is that nasal sound. Is that nasal sound poignant poignant? And then there's the most poignant irony of all. Next we have hippopotamus. I like this word. There used to be a song called "I want a hippopotamus for Christmas." I want a hippopotamus for Christmas. Only a hippopotamus will do. I want a hippopotamus for Christmas. I...they're kind of cute. Hippopotamus is confusing because it's so freaking long. It's like a million syllables. Really? What you have to do is just break it down and say... And quickly... Yeah, practice one syllable at a time. Yeah, you kind of have to. Hmm...say hippopotamus.

The next word, sticking with our animal theme, is rhinoceros. And this word can be confusing because the H is silent and the C sounds like an S. I want to rhinoceros for Christmas. Because the rhinoceros speaks English. The next word is science. I don't know why I did that. Science. How do we pronounce it? We pronounce it like science. Okay, the next word is science. And what's important in this word's pronunciation is that the C is not pronounced. So we don't say...I don't even know how you would mispronounce that. That's difficult, right? But to just make it easy we just omit the C. So we say science. The C is silent like in scissors. You also don't say the C there.

Science? What sort of science? The next word is silhouette. This word is borrowed from French, so I'm not really going to try to explain why it's pronounced the way it is. It's just silhouette. And it sounds...I think the same in French. Like pirouette. What are you doing this weekend because your silhouette is kicking? Number 22 is arouse. And arouse has a couple things you need to remember. The first one is that the O and U combination creates a diphthong. The /ou/ sound. And the next thing is that the S makes a Z sound. So you have... If he can arouse that kind of passion.

The next word is unique. And the pronunciation of this word is unique because the letter U sounds like you are just saying the actual name of the letter U. The -que at the end has a /k/ sound. Like a K sound. And then there is a tongue twister that is difficult to pronounce if you want to say it really, really fast. Unique New York. Unique New York. Unique New York. Accident...ooo this one...I like this one. I like it because I have so many students who always, always, always mispronounce this one because you have the two Cs and they each have a separate sound. So the first C is like a K sound and the second C is like an S sound.

So we say... We don't say... We say... Yeah it's accident. These accidents aren't accidents. An accident? An accident? Yeah, but it was an accident man. An accident. Really? And the last word, number 25, is dumb. And the only thing you need to know about this word is that the B is silent. Wes can be dumb sometimes. You're dumb. Dumb luck. Dumbass. Yeah, pretty dumb. So what we'd like you to do is in the comments below please write any other words that you may have trouble pronouncing. If you have a hard time saying it, please write it down. Who knows, maybe we'll make another video. Or maybe we won't. Who's to say. We might. Thanks for watching and we will see you next time.

Bye.

LESSON 57 OF 749

25 Ways to Say "Thank you" in English

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

we just hit 500 000 subscribers which is an amazing landmark and i just want to say thank you and i was actually going to just make a short video but then i thought why not make a longer vocabulary lesson teaching you many different ways to say thank you because this is a very common and useful phrase that you will use quite often and if you enjoy building your vocabulary then please subscribe help us get to a million turn on notifications that way i can become your english teacher my name is wes the channel is interactive english and it's just all about helping you reach your fluency goals and if you'd like a pdf copy of today's lesson with all of these different ways to say thank you check out the link down in the description so

let's begin with thanks it's short and sweet it's very casual but then you can add to this with other words especially if you want to give it a little more emphasis and say thanks so much you could also add emphasis by saying thanks a ton or thanks a million those are two other ones that you could use they're not as common i think most of the time if people want to add emphasis they'll just say thanks so much

now if someone has done maybe multiple things for you you could tell them thanks for everything all right and then if you want to thank somebody for something that maybe they have not done yet you could say thanks in advance and you might tell them this because perhaps you're not going to be there when they do this thing for you so i could say to you thanks in advance for hitting that like button maybe you haven't done it yet but you will before the lesson ends so i could say thanks in advance now if you have already hit the like button then i i would just say thanks so much for hitting that like button we also have thanks a lot and this one is also pretty common it adds a little more emphasis than just saying thanks but the one thing i would say about this one is that sometimes people use it

sarcastically when they don't want to thank you so for example if you are doing something that's important and i interrupt you and you make a mistake you might say oh gee thanks a lot wes now i've made a mistake i have to do it over again thanks a lot so just just listen for how people are using this one great now you stretched it out thanks a lot michael's not gay

now he hates me thanks a lot eat the fly get it thanks a lot now if you want to say to someone that yes i am absolutely not thanking you and you want it to be perfectly clear then you could say thanks for nothing that somebody else has just not helped you at all and you would say this maybe if you're upset or angry and you say thanks for nothing but i don't want to focus on ways to not say thank you i want to help you build your vocabulary and tell you different ways that you can actually thank someone so let's just continue with the next one i'm so grateful so this one is it's a little more heartfelt it's also adding emphasis and then you could add to this if you would like to be more descriptive and say i'm so grateful for something and then you would just say whatever it is that you're grateful for i could tell you that i am so grateful for your support over the years really helping this channel become what it is today so i am so grateful for your support i appreciate it this one it's one that i like to use and it's very common and you're just it's another way of saying thanks now you can add a little more emphasis give it a little more oomph if you want to tell someone i really appreciate it and then let's go a little more old school and you could say much obliged so this this phrase in the united states it's seen as being a bit more formal and it's not as common i still think people do use this in the uk so that's it's a little distinction between british english and american english much obliged cheers this one is also it's more common in the uk it's part of british english people may use it in the us from time to time short and simple same as saying thanks you could also tell someone i can't thank you enough this one is really adding emphasis saying that you really really appreciate something i can't thank you enough you could also tell someone many thanks now i've included this one because i wanted to give you one that you may see more in writing than here in spoken english so many thanks is a way that people might close an email or maybe they'll end a text message that way and just say many thanks but it is a phrase that you'll probably use more in writing instead of spoken english i owe you one so in this case it's like you're you're telling someone that you owe them a favor and that you will do something for them in the future i owe you one now i will say that with this phrase people may not say it literally because it is used just casually instead of saying thank you hey i owe you one now if you want to add a little emphasis to this so that perhaps it is a bit more literal that you will do a favor for this other person then you could say i owe you big time and if you want to even be more literal because you're so thankful you could tell someone how can i repay you in this case you really do want to to do a favor for the other person because you're so thankful it's beautiful how can i ever repay you thank you tiny tom cruise how can we ever repay you amazing how can i ever repay you then we have you're too kind it's just acknowledging that someone has done something nice for you you're too kind if you want to add a little more emphasis to it and use the word kind then you could say that's so kind of you yeah you know it's a little stronger that's so kind of you it means the world to me this is a great statement if you want to tell someone that you truly appreciate something that that they've done it means the world to me so i could tell you it means the world to me when you write to me in the comments because you've just taken the time to send me a message it means the world to me i couldn't have done it without you so this is a great statement if you want to well let someone know that you needed their help or support and i i really like this one because it's a little more inclusive than just saying thank you so who i i could tell you that growing this channel and getting it to where it is today i couldn't have done it without you i really appreciate it and you are just so kind so you can use some of these phrases one right after the other listen for that that's something that people will do from time to time and then there's oh you shouldn't have so this is a good one because it's a little more specific you are telling someone that that they were very generous and it wasn't necessary so maybe you helped me out it was very generous it wasn't necessary and i could say oh you shouldn't have you're too kind mike you shouldn't have oh no you shouldn't have open it oh you shouldn't have oh it's my pleasure no really shouldn't have i brought my own stopped and got him take out and finally we have please accept my sincere gratitude so this one it's not as common it's pretty formal if you're going to tell someone this it means that you just truly appreciate something and typically you might say this to someone who is like an authority figure they're of a higher position and you could say please accept my sincere gratitude i'm i'm just really appreciative of what you've done so i hope that you learned some new phrases and can now go out and use them the next time you want to tell someone thank you or instead of saying thank you you can use one of these phrases if you enjoyed the lesson please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching i always say that at the end of these lessons thank you for helping us get to 500 000 subscribers and i will see you next time so long

LESSON 58 OF 749

25 Words Learners Mispronounce | American Pronunciation + Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's talk about 25 words that are difficult to pronounce that's coming up hey everyone my name is Wes from interactive English videos calm and well this channel it's all about helping you practice and improve your English skills and today I want to help you improve your pronunciation by teaching you 25 words that are very difficult to pronounce and they can sometimes confuse English learners so I'm going to tell you the word and I will give you the meaning as well because well what's the point in learning how to pronounce a word if you don't know what it means in addition I am also going to show you the pronunciation that's right you heard me correctly I'm going to show you both the phonetic spelling and the IPA and I think seeing this will help you understand a little bit better how to pronounce these words correctly and finally I am going to pronounce the word for you I am going to say it slowly clearly I will say it several times and I would also encourage you to say the word as well say it out loud because that is the best way to practice your pronunciation keep in mind that I am from the United States so I will be giving you the American pronunciation of these words these are words that you might hear quite often and actually I just I just wanted to say that because often is the first word that I wanted to talk to you about this word it means something that happens frequently or many times it has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable often the second syllable has that schwa sound which is an a sound it is the most common sound in the English language and previously I did a lesson talking about the schwa sound I will put that up here if you want to check that out I recommend that you do because it is a very common sound that sound often now this word can be a bit confusing because you're not going to hear that T it is a silent letter a silent T often it is a word that I'm being very serious right now that I use quite often try to listen for it throughout this lesson and see how many times you hear say this word often the next word is paradigm and this is a model or clear example of something a paradigm it's a noun and it has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable paradigm that second syllable again it has that schwa sound but I think that final syllable that that IgM that spelling can throw people off a little bit that third syllable I'm paradigm then we have the word caveat which is a warning to consider something before taking any action the word has three syllables and the stress also it's on that first syllable caveat caveat I think this word is a bit challenging because when you just look at the spelling you might not think that it has three syllables but it does that second syllable has a long e sound e caveat caveat so you might hear somebody use this word and tell somebody well there's one caveat and then they would actually tell the person whatever that warning is for them to take into consideration one caveat the guy who runs the place is little temperamental really referred to as the Soup Nazi then we have cupboard which refers to a piece of furniture that we use to store things and it usually has shelves covered the word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable cupboard notice that the word is spelled with the P but when I say it it sounds a little more like a B sound cupboard cupboard and the word is also very confusing because when you see it it looks like well it's spelled with two words cup and board but you're not going to pronounce that second syllable like board it's just going to be bird cupboard cupboard and if you look around the home I think quite often you are going to find a cupboard now let's talk about a few medical words such as Alzheimer's and sometimes you may hear it used with the word disease and people would say Alzheimer's disease and it's talking about a disease that results in memory loss Alzheimer's now the word has three syllables and the stress is on that first syllable and I think that first syllable is what makes this word a little challenging alts it sounds like alts Alzheimer's Alzheimer's what do I have Alzheimer's disease I know people with Alzheimer's then we have the word or actually phrase because it's two words heimlich manoeuvre now this is talking about an emergency method that someone would use if if a person is choking and you would give that person the Heimlich maneuver

now Heimlich has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable Heimlich and I think that second syllable even though it's spelled with ACH it's not a CH sound it is more of a cake sound Heimlich and maneuver has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable this is also a challenging word to pronounce maneuver the Heimlich maneuver you would give someone the Heimlich maneuver and then there is the word asthma which is talking about a person who would have difficulty breathing you would say they have asthma the word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable that second syllable has that schwa again the sound asthma and again this word the spelling may not match up with the pronunciation because that a s th it's really pronounced as just like as like an z sound as asthma then we have the word mischievous and this is talking about behaving in a bad way but not usually intended to cause any real harm you just say maybe somebody is mischievous the word has three syllables the stress is on that first syllable and both that second and third syllable have that schwa sound but again the spelling can kind of throw you off when you want to say and pronounce this word so keep that in mind especially that second syllable that that sound mischievous mischievous today with me mischievous and then we have the word Coxon now this is a word that probably you may not have heard of before because it's a word that is used in the the sport of rowing or crewing and this is the person that sits in the back of the boat and they would give instructions to the other people who are rowing and that person is the Coxon it has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable again that second syllable can be a bit confusing has that schwa even though the spelling just does not look like that at all Coxon I wrote through it Harvard Oh Harvard over you a cocksman Coxon then we have the word close which is a very common word I'm sure you know what it means it's talking about things that we wear to cover our body but it is a word that is a little confusing the pronunciation because of that spelling it's just one syllable close close everybody is wearing clothes I assume that you're wearing clothes I really don't know but as you can see I I am wearing clothes I wear them quite often yes not always but okay anyway let moving on the next word is prescription this is talking about a note from a doctor and it just shows the medicine that a person needs to take and you would get a prescription from the doctor the word has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable prescription prescription I think the word is a little confusing because of that PR e it's not a pre sound it's more of a prick prick prescription Oh need a prescription what the hell is this it's a prescription we use drugs prescription drugs you know the kind of dentist has access to then we have the word perspire which just means to sweat and somebody would perspire the word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable perspire then we have the word boutique which is talking about a shop that would sell a small shop that would sell clothes shoes jewelry and you could say it is a boutique it has two syllables the stress again is on that second syllable and of course with this one I think you can see that the spelling is not really in line with the pronunciation boutique that second syllable that that TI qu e it's pronounced like teak boutique you're planning on opening your own boutique owner of Elizabeth Albert a boutique that sells some of the top women's fashions on the Burbank stress they're actually from a very expensive boutique

next is a word that is very common we use it often and that is police and I think many of you probably know what it means it's talking about a person responsible for for protecting people and making sure that people obey the laws the police now the word has two syllables the stress is on that second syllable that first syllable you hear that schwa that pup-pup but that second syllable that's spelling that Li si E is pronounced lys police police maybe I hope I hope that you never have to call the police then we have the word debris which is talking about small pieces that are basically torn off of something that that's larger debris the word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable debris now that first syllable also it has that schwa sound that and that second syllable has a long e sound even though the spelling is a little different we're going to end it with that long e sound debris debris say it with me debris and you might use or actually hear this word if there is something like a natural disaster an earthquake and things get torn and afterwards there there might be debris on the ground debris then we have marijuana this is talking about well it's it's a plant and when it's dried people might smoke it and it's it's still illegal in many countries and it's it's called marijuana the word has four syllables and the stress is on that third syllable it that wah-wah marijuana so say this word with me I'll say it slowly marijuana that second and four syllable you hear that schwa that marijuana so keep in mind that the spelling is nothing like the pronunciation that third syllable that wha that is the stress marijuana marijuana it's marijuana marijuana a marijuana cigarette next is the word February this is well it's the second month of the year it's a word we use quite often and I feel like I'm just gonna catch myself saying often again and again and again anyway the word has four syllables the stress is on that first syllable but I think this word is challenging because of the those two R's in there Feb rue air II February February say with me February again it's a word it's great word to practice because you will probably use it if you are having a conversation especially if it is the month of February all right February next is the word rural and this is just talking about the countryside and you may hear somebody use it with the word area a rural area the word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable rural the the word is challenging because of those two R's in their rural rural say it with me rural a rural area then we have the word sorbet and this is talking about a food of juice water and sugar and it's frozen sorbet it has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable and again listen to the pronunciation sorbet it's not pronounced the way it's spelled sorbet that be et is pronounced as BAE sorbet let's continue with a rhyming word which is valet and this is a person who works at a hotel or restaurant and in parks people's cars they are the valet the word has two syllables the stress is again on that second syllable and the problem is the same that le T is pronounced Lai valet valet parking is five dollars because of of a good thing we use valet parking next is the word regime which refers to a a system of government the word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable regime and that that second syllable notice it has that long e sound regime regime and then we have the word vineyard which is talking about land where people will whether they would grow vines specifically they would grow grapes and used for making wine and you would say that this place it's a vineyard a wine vineyard the word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable and that first syllable it can be a little challenging because you you you have that short I sound vineyard vineyard a vineyard next is the word coupon and this is talking about a piece of paper or maybe even an on line code that somebody can use to get something for free or at a cheaper price and they would use a coupon the word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable and that first syllable can be challenging because that cou is just pronounced as ku coupon a coupon then we have the word hyperbole and this refers to the way that somebody is speaking or writing they do this to make things sound bigger and better and you could say that they are just using hyperbole the word has four syllables and the stress is on that second syllable hyperbole now I think with this word just just keep in mind it has four syllables and when you say the word you are going to hear all four of those syllables hyperbola that bol E is pronounced Boley for example if I said this is the absolute most amazing and best English Channel in the world alright you might think that that is hyperbole oh I hope not I really hope that you do love these English lessons but just as an example of what it means

hyperbole when someone says we've got people everywhere we expect to be hyperbole entirely it is not hyperbole to say we're in a great financial situation and finally we have a very common word which is receipt this is well it's a piece of paper that shows that you've paid for something the word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable receipt now the spelling again just does not match up with the pronunciation there is a silent P in there you are not going to hear that P that second syllable just sounds like seat receipt if you go and buy something you will probably get a receipt wow that was a lot of words that we just went through now I will do another lesson next week but there's one caveat alright one caveat and that is I want you to write to me in the comments write a word that you think is difficult to pronounce because that will give me some ideas for future pronunciation lessons I want to make sure that I am helping you if you enjoy this lesson please hit that like button as always thank you guys so much for watching and I will see you next time

LESSON 59 OF 749

3-WORD PHRASAL VERBS THAT ARE GOOD TO KNOW

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

welcome to today's lesson it's good to be back i feel like i've taken a short little break from these live lessons but i'm glad to be back and i have a fun lesson for you today it's a little bit of a quiz lesson i am going to see how well you know some of your three word phrasal verbs and i think uh well just to go ahead and show you my little slide where it has that scary emoji face i think when people learners think of phrasal verbs it can be a little scary because the meaning that many of them have multiple meanings and then if you change the the preposition then the meaning of the phrasal verb is going to change completely so i think there's a lot to learn when it comes to phrasal verbs and trying to use the correct one in conversation because that's the other thing phrasal verbs are quite common in just casual conversation but today we're gonna focus on three word phrasal verbs which i think may sound a little more daunting may sound a little like oh no i have enough trouble with two words but i think it may actually even be a little easier and as we go through this lesson i'm going to talk about why and how you can learn these the meaning of these phrasal verbs and then try and go out and use them because i think that it might be a little easier i do want to say a quick hello to some of you who are with me if you are new please write to me in the comments tell me your name tell me where you're from write to me in the chat i always love hearing from new people but i also like seeing um some familiar names as well hello sleepwalker angela judith uh takaya juliana yashar good to see you uh as we go through the lesson i'll try to give some more shout outs because i i want you guys to participate i'm gonna give you some questions i want you to think of the answer write it in the chat even if you're watching this later write it in the comments it's always good to practice because that that is what interactive english is all about so as i mentioned we're talking about three word phrasal verbs and i i kind of want to start out by just basically breaking down and showing you well what is a three-word phrasal verb very similar to a two-word phrasal verb you have a verb and you have plus a particle and another particle and i i said particle right here most of the time i think people think of preposition which often times the verb is followed by a preposition sometimes it could be followed by an adverb which is why technically people would say well you have a verb plus a particle and i've given you this example right down here this is very common because i i think the the phrasal verbs that i'm going to talk to you about in this lesson i think they're very useful because these are words these are phrases that you're going to hear quite often all right so look forward to if you look forward to something it just means that you are excited about some future event something is going to happen and you say well i look forward to it i look forward to to traveling um during my next vacation so this is a perfect example of a three-word phrasal verb and i think many of them you're probably going to be a little familiar with i'll give you one more example i look forward to speaking with you all right and the reason i could say that and give you that example is because yes uh if you would like to speak with me i want to make a quick little announcement i'm getting ready to start another one of my speak up courses which is a speaking course you can see it right here it's all about trying to help you speak confidently speak clearly speak naturally enrollment is now open and classes are going to begin in august there is a link down below in the description if you want more information or if you're interested in signing up i've also pinned a comment here uh with the link as well so really each week you're going to have a lesson with me so you'll talk with me as well as some of your other classmates each week there is a different discussion topic so you're going to learn to talk about a variety of different topics we do different speaking activities there's a lot included in the course including weekly video lessons pronunciation videos lesson previews a couple of audio lessons as well so check that out if you would like to improve your speaking fluency which is why i say i look forward to speaking with you or look forward to speaking uh i look forward to speaking with you and the last thing i want to mention oh yes please if you are going to sign up you can use the code i'll write this in the chat use the code speak 10 to get a 10 discount all right um so check out that link in the description for more information and remember use that code to get a 10 discount i'll make i'll say another reminder at the end but i want to jump in to the lesson right now and let's look at some of these phrasal verbs i look forward to to teaching you these phrasal verbs the first part what i've done i want to start out make it a little easier and then as we go through this it'll get a little more challenging so i've given you an example of well the blank that is the three word phrasal verb and i'm trying to give you an example of it being used in context think about somebody actually saying this sentence right here and then down below right here i have given you the meaning of the phrasal verb i want you to think about okay what three word phrasal verb would complete that sentence and has the meaning to tolerate or endure something you could say uh i'm sick and tired of your crap i'm not going to um it anymore all right what do you think write your answers in the chat uh or in the comments if you're watching it later and then we'll talk a little bit more about it sick and tired is a very it's a it's a common binomial uh pair it's a phrase that just means you're really exhausted and really frustrated uh with something and you might hear somebody say yeah i'm sick and tired of your crap i'm not going to um it anymore excellent uh see some great answers yes carolina um dipanjan uh anawat um gokvan sorry my mispronounced name put up with that is the the three for word phrasal verb that we're looking for it means that you are tolerating or enduring something oftentimes i would say that because i want to tell you a little bit about how you're going to use these in just general conversation oftentimes i think you're going to use this in the negative and you're talking about something that you are not going to tolerate anymore you are not going to put up with it or you don't want to put up with it anymore so often you will hear people use this when talking about the negative saying that they just they they can no longer endure this thing and they're not going to put up with it anymore very common very useful three-word phrasal verb let's continue here's the next one all right again think about the the situation that somebody's actually saying this all right you lied and cheated and i'm going to tell everyone what you did you won't um this again that blank that is your three word phrasal verb and the meaning the meaning of this phrasal verb is to succeed in avoiding punishment for something okay so think about uh again think about the meaning you're putting it into that that context and what phrase are you going to use don't try to think about the three individual words think about it as a phrase and one phrase because again these these are words that are used together to complete this uh sentence this phrase excellent uh yes um yufla takayao uh shikai perfects uh lamore angela ashar to to get away with something if you get away with something it means that like like it says down there a lot of these meanings i've taken from uh cambridge dictionary you succeed in avoiding punishment for something you get away with it and i think that statement that i said at the end is uh it's a statement that you will hear maybe in a tv show or movie uh somebody telling somebody else that you you won't be able to avoid punishment you're not going to get away with this you're not going to get away with this so excellent again this is another it's another very common three word phrasal verb to get away with something uh here we go let's continue and then i am going to switch up the way that i'm doing this quiz in just a little bit just again as i make it a little more difficult so again if you're just joining us right now we are doing a lesson on three word phrasal verbs i think it's very important and if you enjoy learning about phrasal verbs please go ahead hit that like button let me know it tells me that i need to do more lessons like this so here's another one the meaning would be i think this is another very common one you're ending some type of romantic relationship so think about the context right here you should ask her out on a date i heard that she with her previous boyfriend a few months ago so what

what what three word phrasal verb or again think of it as a phrase what phrase is going to um complete that sentence and i just realized i made a mistake well i didn't make a mistake but i kind of gave you part of the answer um as i did this i think i spotted it uh earlier but i forgot to delete one of the words so i gave you the last part um of this phrasal verb the third word but yes excellent um uh bung woo sleepwalker uh dreary morgianna the the answer is to break up with and again you see i forgot to delete with there uh i so i gave you that part of it and right here yeah so you could get rid of one of those with so it shouldn't say with with but um in this case you know you remember that if you wanted to get technical and i think many of you put that in your answer you we're talking about the past tense

so the main verb that the verb is going to you use it in the past or the present um or the future so in this case we're talking about a few months ago she broke up with her previous boyfriend a few months ago broke up with that is the correct answer to break up with that is the three-word phrasal verb you're ending a romantic relationship here is the next one what do you guys think children should not um they're parents it's disrespectful so think about the situation what phrase would you put in there what could children possibly do there's quite a few things that would be disrespectful and the meaning of this phrase is to respond in really a rude and well defiant manner and you are well i don't want to give you i don't want to give you the answer make it too easy but i'm giving you the context i'm giving you the meaning so what three words what phrase would best complete this sentence excellent i already seen some great answers um anko lemur yashar angela the correct answer is to talk back to to talk back to someone means that you are talking to them in a very rude and defiant manner often times you're using this to you're talking back to someone in a position of authority so in this example that i gave you parents are in a position of authority children should respect their parents in general they should not talk back to them so thinking about it along those lines if you're thinking about a position of authority you might hear people talk about well students talking back to their teacher person in a position of authority or maybe an employee talking back to their boss again a position of authority so it's not something you would use like oh

they were you're talking back to your friend it's really used in that context of somebody is in a higher position some position of authority and you're talking back to them um all right let's uh keep going i told you that i'm going to make it a little more challenging as we go through this i hope that you're familiar with some of the phrasal verbs that we just talked about i will review them at the very end and show you them as well as the meaning just to remind you once more but it's always good to practice kind of really helps it helps you put it up there in your active memory so that you can more easily use it when the time comes and you're having a conversation and you want to use these uh three word phrasal verbs so the way that i'm going to make it a little more challenging right here is i'm giving you a sentence i'm not giving you the meaning and i'm giving you two of the three words so i'm giving you part of the phrasal verb and you need to think of well the context try to determine well what is the meaning of this phrasal verb and i think that's going to help you once you kind of can put it in context the meaning you can start thinking of words to put in there to complete that phrase so yesterday we m out of milk so i went to the store to buy some more so that is your three word phrasal verb there's only one word missing which you can tell is that verb right there um so what do you think hello oh excellent lolly catrudus good to see you guys vicky and gustav um excellent thanks for joining so i think as i was kind of going through this you guys are really putting it in here perfect um

we're talking about the verb run but again if you want to be very specific about this example yesterday you would need to use the past tense yesterday we ran out of milk so i went to the store to buy some more to run out of something means that well you've just used up all the supply of something i i think you would hear people use this phrasal verb talking about maybe uh food something that might be in your refrigerator like this example right here oh we ran out of milk um or you run out of something else and then you need to go to the store and get more people might use it um thinking about well like a car and maybe you're getting low on gas and you can say oh we're running out of gas you're using up the supply it's almost done so those i think are some common ways in which you may hear people use this phrasal verb to run out of awesome so maybe you guys rock that one maybe it was not as difficult as i thought but that's okay i think um i the ones i started with i think are definitely a bit more common i am going to get into some more phrasal verbs that are probably not as common so it may be a little more challenging in that regard so here's the next one again i'm giving you now i'm giving you the verb and those two particles that follow the next two words are missing so what do you think see if you can um come up oh no wait i don't wanna i almost just used it in context there anyway she's so imaginative i don't know where she comes her ideas so we're missing two words i basically kind of uh just gave it away a little bit but i think many of you um know it this is another one i i think is a pretty common uh phrasal verb the answer yes uh just give some quick shout outs to kyo sleepwalker um simple guy uh zine gertrudis we're talking about come up with she's so imaginative i don't know where she comes up with her ideas when you come up with something you suggest or think of an idea or plan and often i think uh people you might hear people use this if they're kind of stating that hey

we need to cut we need to come up with a plan and somebody might say that if you're talking to a group of people or another person like what do you think we need to come up with a plan do you have any ideas um and this again i think is a fairly common phrase that you might hear somebody use to come up with uh the next one and i promise i won't give away this this answer this one i think is a little more challenging so again think about the context it was an unhealthy relationship so she eventually decided to um out her partner you have those three words in this case i'm giving you the middle word out so what two words are you gonna put around it to form this phrase it's an unhealthy relationship she decided to what uh her partner so think about again you know think about the meaning really like what is she doing in this situation and then try to think about the phrase it might be a little easier than you just trying to think about words to try to to plug in there so this one yeah i said it's a little more challenging it's not as common and the reason why i say it's maybe not as common is because it really is referring to a specific situation um such as like some relationship and this may happen so i'm gonna tell you the answer because i haven't um seeing the answer when some some people were saying like get out of i could say if you were trying to get out of a relationship sure absolutely you could use that to get out of a relationship but in this case i'm talking about somebody's partner all right their their boyfriend girlfriend husband wife it's an unhealthy relationship so you might say yes exactly um vicky would be great if that's true please hit that like button let's look at the next one i appreciate you helping me on such short notice you more than [Music] for yesterday's mistake so here in this again i'm giving you the last part of this phrasal verb i'm giving you the last word you need to come up with uh the verb plus another particle um think of the situation i appreciate you helping me on such short notice somebody's very grateful they're very happy and then they're making this comment i'm you more than for yesterday's mistake so they're saying this to another person who apparently they made some kind of uh mistake before previously and it's like the other person is saying that it's it's okay and as i talk my way through this i'm kind of giving you the meaning of this three-word phrasal verb but some of you have shown uh that you knew the answer excellent uh takayo ana um simple guy amandeep we're talking about uh made up you made up for something and again because we're talking about something that happened yesterday yesterday's mistake we use it in the past tense i appreciate you helping me on such short notice you more than made up for yesterday's mistake the meaning of it if you um make up for something it's like you're making something that was bad and you're making it kind of become good you're or you're making it so it's not as bad so if there was a problem and you make up for it then you've done something right and you're you've made the situation less worse or maybe you've turned around and you've just made it into a good thing positive thing all right so let's keep going i have a few more uh some more questions for you as we learn some more phrasal verbs

again i hope some of these are new for you and we will review at the end uh this the way that i'm gonna do this is we're gonna kind of walk through it i'm going to start by giving you the meaning and think about maybe if you can think about a phrase that has this meaning and then i'm going to give you a sentence using it in context to make it a little easier and then finally i'll just tell you the answer so the meaning of this phrase which this three-word phrasal verb is to think that someone is less important than you and again this one i would say probably not as common it's uh used in specific uh instances but to think that someone is less important than you what do you what do you think all right let me know let me know all right so to think that someone's less important let me give you the example sent well i don't i think i just gave you the answer quickly um the the neighborhood is so pretentious some people um others because they are not so wealthy all right here's the context maybe some of you saw the answer as i put it up there quickly um pretentious again this would be a word like a context clue if you're trying to figure this out pretentious means that basically somebody you know they have their nose up in the air um they they think less of others so in that case if we're talking about some neighborhood some group of people and they think well these people are not as wealthy then they might um them which again um excellent uh just to give you we're talking about the phrase uh angela yashar shikaya wang uh amundi perfect king kong or no almost king kong we're talking about the the answer is look down on if you look down on someone you basically it's like you think that someone is less important than you and you would say that they look down on this but i told you it's probably not as common it's used in this specific instance where you have one person or a group of people who might think that they are more important and they look down on others of course this is not a good thing so it's not a phrasal verb that i hope that you are trying like want to use because it's not a good thing to look down on others

let's go to the next one so the meaning of this one is to do whatever is necessary to stay level or equal with someone or something and i think this one is a bit more common you do whatever is necessary to stay level or equal with someone or something what do you think could this phrase possibly be let me give you an example sentence uh to make it a little more a little easier so you can try and think about how it's used in context you know the meaning working and studying it's too it's too much it's too much for me right now i'm having trouble mmm my classes okay the situation somebody's trying to work they're trying to study perhaps at university or somewhere else and they're saying it's too much i'm having trouble my classes what is the answer all right excellent um i think some of you excellent perfect

uh great job uh yashar alexander mohammed we're talking about now if you want to get techno the answer is keep up with but in this case if you were filling it um you completing it you're having trouble keeping up with i'm having trouble keeping up with my classes because in that situation you're having trouble doing something so keeping up with i'm having trouble keeping up with my classes so to keep up with means to do whatever's necessary you're trying to stay at that level or equal with someone or something and i think i said i think this is a little i think this is probably more common there are different situations in which you could use this phrasal verb if you are talking about you're having trouble trying to understand something or maintain a certain pace you're like i just can't keep up uh i just can't keep up with uh the the class or even doing something um physical like say that you're running and you're running with somebody else and that person's faster than you and you're having trouble staying with them and you're i'm having i can't keep up with you uh is another way that you could use this uh three-word phrasal verb so i think this is a good one good one to know then we have this meaning right here to tell the truth or to admit that you are responsible for something i think this one's a little more challenging um i every time i say that i feel like everybody gets the correct answer but when you're you're telling the truth and you're basically admitting like yes all right it's it's my fault it's my responsibility what phrase has this meaning three words all right let me give you a sentence uh to make it a little bit easier all right excellent uh rod thank you for uh thank you for becoming a member thank you i appreciate it so here is the sentence whatever i whenever i make a mistake i don't try to make excuses i try to um it so i really i'm giving you you know the meaning and i'm really kind of giving you a situation in which it's not maybe i don't know hopefully it'll help you as you kind of see it used in context but somebody's perhaps picture them saying saying this maybe i'm talking to you like you know whenever i make a mistake i don't try to make excuses i try to um it all right what do you think i haven't uh haven't seen too many answers for this one which makes me think people are thinking about it uh maybe it's still processing or maybe they're not sure don't want to take a chance i told you this is a little more more challenging the correct answer is to own up to to own up to something that's what i was going for if you own up to it you're like that meaning you're saying okay yes i am responsible uh it's completely my fault i'm gonna own up to it i think often um if i want to give you another example as to how somebody may use it perhaps you're probably trying maybe you're trying to give somebody advice and you're telling them like look admit the truth you need to own up to it uh tell them this person it was your responsibility you should own up to it own up to it uh oftentimes people might follow it with your mistakes like own up to your mistakes i try to own up to my mistakes but it is difficult i think it's difficult for all of us to own up to our mistakes and to admit that you might be wrong about something but from time to time i think it's important we need to own up to it all right then we have this one which i think i don't know how much help this is going to be these are definitely more more challenging i told you as we go through this it's going to get a little more difficult the meaning is to seem to be all right to seem to be and hopeful maybe let me give you some a con some more context i had heard bad things about him but when we met he um a stand-up guy and if you say that last part um stand up if somebody's a stand-up guy or a stand-up person in general it basically means that they're well a good person a nice person and it's an informal phrase oftentimes people i think use it with guy and say oh this person's uh a stand-up guy that they're a nice person a good person so that's what that means so think about the context i heard bad things about him about this person but then we met and he um a stand-up guy think about a phrase what do you think you would put in there um that has that meaning to seem to be and wow i'm impressed i thought this one was uh gonna be a bit more difficult um but seems like some of you know the answer yes julia um rayon perfect uh so the the phrase that we're looking for that i was looking for is come comes across as so our in this case came across as we're talking about the past past tense sorry uh but when we met in the past he came across as a stand-up guy and it means that this person seemed to be a good person i would say in this case

if you're saying somebody comes across as something often i think it's used you you're probably referring to people somebody comes across as and then you're referring to maybe a part of their personality like this person they they came across as a stand-up guy or maybe you could say you know she she came across as a very hard worker and you're referring to some part of their their personality and you could say it seems to be this way this person came across as this way and you're kind of sharing your opinion so this one is a a little a little trickier so i said at the end i wanted to i want to review them right now and kind of just talk a little bit about why i think this hopefully could be a little easier so these are these were the answers to the first set of questions that i gave you and one thing i think when you're thinking about learning these phrasal verbs and you could try to think of them a little differently than two-word phrasal verbs because again with these if the preposition changes it is going to have a different meaning but what i would recommend is think about it as just one phrase put up with and if you think about that entire phrase together having that one meaning don't focus too much on the individual words think about it as a phrase learn it as a phrase understand the meaning and then try to think about how uh you may use it in context i told you that's a pretty common one to put up with something i said people often use it in the negative saying look i'm not going to put up with this anymore i'm not going to tolerate it so first off think about it as a phrase

the next thing i would say let me show you the next ones um these were the next set of phrasal verbs that we talked about is that these really these phrasal verbs are uh inseparable so sometimes when you have the when you have these two word phrasal verbs um that might be transitive which means they take a direct object for example put on put on is a phrasal verb you put on uh shoes or put on clothes it's it's transitive so you can split the verb and the particle or in that case the verb and the preposition put your shoes on or put your clothes on and you'd say that that phrasal verb is separable if we're talking about three word phrasal verbs they're not separable so you don't have to worry about putting the object in between the the verb and the particle in this case so this is one way in which i think three word phrasal verbs are perhaps a little easier than than trying to deal with and learn two word phrasal verbs and then here are the the last set i told you that i think these were i thought these were maybe a little more challenging because they may they may not be as common perhaps because they're used in a specific uh specific instance like to look down on someone of course that's not a good thing um keep up with i think is probably a little bit uh more common and i just realized i did sorry i made a mistake there uh remember to keep up with that's the wrong meaning it is to stay um at the same level or uh as someone or something and you're trying to keep up own up to uh is one that i think was a little more challenging and come across as so my hope my hope is that you guys learned something new from this lesson um if you did if you want to show us some love i really appreciate rod you're becoming a member there are links in the description to sponsor and support the the channel and the last thing just as a quick reminder if you would like to speak with me many of you ask about that i do have another speaking course it's getting ready to start in august there's a link to that as well in the description it's all about helping you speak confidently clearly speak naturally the i've also pinned a comment and uh just for good measure i'll go ahead and throw the link in the chat right here as well if you're interested in joining my speaking course and improving your speaking fluency thank you guys so much for joining me today i again i hope that you enjoyed it but most importantly i just hope that when i do these lessons that everybody's able to learn something new just one thing new that maybe they didn't know before about the meaning of something for example we're talking about phrasal verbs or perhaps maybe you learned a bit more about how it's used and when it's used that um that makes me happy all right so it's been great seeing you guys again i am gonna start doing these live lessons more regularly now i did take a bit of a hiatus but i'll try to give you guys as much up-to-date information as to when they will be so thank you so much uh for being here rod um uh gettrudus lolly i really appreciate it to kyle juliana good to see both of you again they were in uh the the speak up course uh and i got to talk with all of you directly so i really know i really know the two of you um and thank you uh sleepwalker uh joelle manuel just necklace trying to give some last minute shout outs morgana um christina uh demos simple guy eloisa angela all right i'm going to wrap things up hope you have a wonderful

LESSON 60 OF 749

3-WORD PHRASAL VERBS | Build Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's learn some three word phrasal verbs okay that's right I said three word phrasal verbs and I don't want to waste your time so let's just begin and the first phrasal verb that I have for you is to live up to and what this means is to be as good as was expected so it's like you have this expectation and something meets your expectation and therefore you could say that it lives up to your expectation or it lives up to your standard those are two common collocations with this phrasal verb so I could also give you an example and say you know my parents put a lot of pressure on me and I don't know if I'm ever going to be able to live up to their expectations or maybe I could tell you that well the new restaurant was amazing and the food certainly lived up to our expectation

okay so it's just it was as good as was expected you don't have to live up to anybody else's expectations You Are Who We Are because if you get what you want you'll deserve it if you don't you'll manage and I really hope that these video lessons are living up to your expectations I will always try my best so please go ahead subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals and if you would like to download a copy of the lesson notes these slides that are right next to me check out the link down in the description the next phrasal verb that I have for you is get rid of so you could get rid of someone or you could get rid of something they're a little similar but also well slightly different so if we're talking about a person and you want to get rid of someone it means to to really just find a way to make that person leave because you do not want to be around them any longer so of course it's not really a nice thing if you're like oh gosh we need to we need to get rid of this person and and you just want them to leave but you could think of it in the well the context of siblings you have like an older brother or sister and a younger brother or a sister and in that case sometimes you know a younger brother or sister can May bother the older one and they might annoy them and they would oh I just you know I just need to get rid of my little brother he's really bothering me or if maybe I don't know maybe if you don't like me and we're going to be at the same party you can say oh Wes is coming to the party he's going to ruin everything we need to get rid of him so in that case you would just want to find some way for well to get me to leave and get rid of me now if we're talking about getting rid of something in that case you're really just talking about removing something that you no longer want often I think people are talking about throwing something away maybe I well I have this pen and it no longer works and I'm just gonna get rid of it or perhaps there's this toy that I have it's broken yeah why keep it around let's just get rid of it now I'll be honest this is a phrasal verb that I hear quite often because well sometimes my socks they'll develop a little bit of a hole and at that point my wife will tell me okay you need to get rid of your socks and this okay like I don't like to go shopping and often obviously so it gets a little bit of a hole actually this is a a rather big hole it's quite embarrassing so I should probably uh get rid of these socks but this is a useful and common phrasal verb you can get rid of someone or get rid of something he forbade me to touch it well if you don't like it get rid of it and put it in the closet the next one is to brush up on and what this means is to improve your knowledge of something that you already learned but partly forgotten and I I think we can all relate to this that we we do something for some time we learn it and then we step away and stop and yeah if we want to continue in the future we say wow I really need to brush up on this thing and you could even relate it to language learning I think you know learning a language is continuous I think over the course of many years and people will start and then stop up and then start again so in that case like I could say I really need to brush up on my Spanish I have lived in a couple of different Spanish-speaking countries but for the last five years I really have not spoken much Spanish and I've forgotten quite a bit and I could say yeah I really need to brush up on my Spanish or maybe you might be thinking um you know I would really like to brush up on my speaking skills and if that's the case then you're in luck because enrollment is now open for my speaking course so if you would like to brush up on your speaking skills build your vocabulary meet people from around the world then you can sign up for my speaking course the course is for intermediate to Advanced speakers and it's all about trying to help you speak confidently speak clearly and speak naturally check out the link down in the description and when you go to the course page you will find a special discount just for you each week there is a different speaking topic you will learn vocabulary related to that topic we do engaging speaking activities we warm up each lesson with something related to pronunciation connected speech there are also pronunciation video lessons included in the course and I will teach you some of the language nuances like when to use certain words and phrases so click on the link below if you'd like to sign up or learn more about the course and just really brush up on your skills and I truly believe that the course will live up to your expectations it's good to try and get a little review as I make these announcements but let's continue with some more three word phrasal verbs listen in on so this means to listen to a private conversation especially secretly so I think you would often use this phrasal verb with the word conversation you would listen in on someone's conversation now if we're talking about like secretly doing this and it's intentional well then it's really a synonym with the verb to eavesdrop to eavesdrop on someone but like I said with listen in on typically you're going to say listen in on their conversation so maybe I I want to know what they're saying so I'm gonna get a little closer so I can listen in on their conversation okay and it's secret it's intentional now you could also use this phrasal verb in the context of just overhearing a conversation and perhaps it's it's not your plan but someone is being really loud on a bus or a plane and you can't help but listen in on their conversation I could say the guy next to me was on his phone and I couldn't help but listen in on his conversation and I could tell that he was talking to his little girl and I think if someone were listening and on my my conversation and I was talking to my little girl they they could tell just because of the way that I'm speaking I'm very animated and loud like oh hello wow that's amazing you're incredible like yesterday she was actually she was showing me some of her artwork and that's what I was saying I was like wow that's amazing this is incredible you're so talented I you know I think she was going for more of a Jackson Pollock type of style but I will definitely not be getting rid of these you're the fixer you've been listening in on our conversation huh what's that that's one of the bugs you played I found it in the overhead light then we have to come down with and this means to catch or show signs of an illness and I think that we can all relate to this phrasal verb it's a very useful phrasal verb and I think often people are going to use it when talking about a cold or the flu or really just something and not really specifying the illness so if I were to say you know I think I'm starting to come down with a cold so in that case I'm telling you that okay this is just beginning I'm starting to come down with a cold or like I said you could use it with something and in which case you know maybe uh I I say to you hey you know it's cold outside you should really put on a jacket or you're going to come down with something I don't know what it is but it's like I'm I'm telling you you should take care of yourself or you could come down with something the only thing I'm fighting is this cold I'm coming down with Mom that's a beautiful thought next is the phrasal verb to get away from and this one has a couple of different meanings it means to avoid being caught so I could say the thief was able to get away from the police and in that case the the thief was able to escape and avoid being caught it also means to go away from and you're really going away from some place so I could tell you you know I can't get away from the office until this evening so in that case I'm saying I just can't leave this place until this time I can't get away from the office until this evening and then you may hear people use this phrasal verb in the expression I just want to get away from it all so if somebody were to say that what they mean is they just want to go some somewhere and forget about all their problems and relax and you say I just I just need to get away from it all what you doing just some heavy thinking this Spotlight is the only place that I could go get away from it all then we have look up to this is a great phrasal verb it means to respect and admire someone and really you would look up to someone so I I've always looked up to my father he's kind he's Fair he treats people well and well nowadays I think that many kids look up to celebrities or athletes or even people on YouTube and right now I would like to know who do you look up to let me know down in the comments you can practice using this phrasal verb and go easy on your brother okay looks up to you in his eyes you have everything then there stand up for which means to defend or support a particular idea or to defend or support a person who is being criticized or attacked so you would stand up for something or stand up for someone I could say you know when it comes to bullies you should stand up for yourself and you may hear people use this with that reflexive pronoun stand up for yourself or I could say you know it's important that people stand up for their rights they're going to defend and support that particular idea and stand up for their rights you're a smart successful young man with an adorable little belly stand up for yourself yeah I'll talk to her before the party next is the phrasal verb cut down on and this means to eat or drink less of a particular thing usually in order to improve your health so you you would cut

use it when talking about young children they grow quickly and they are often growing out of their clothes it also means to become too mature to maintain a childish habit so really we're talking about someone's behavior and you could say that they grew out of this or sometimes you could say well they just they didn't grow out of it um if I were to say something like well you know I still sleep with a stuffed animal and I just never grew out of it so again that that would be an example of a childish habit that well people grow out of and of course it's just an example I do not sleep with a stuffed bunny that would be really silly of me it also means to come into existence and in this case we're really referring to an idea so I could say the idea for the story grew out of her passion for human rights and that's how it came into existence it grew out of her passion for human rights I want my son back pay that relax Chris is just going through a phase he'll grow out of it just like you grew out of your Walk Like an Egyptian phase I hope that this lesson lived up to your expectations and if you would like to continue brushing up on your English skills you can watch another lesson or even join my speaking course the link is down in the description if you learn something new and learn some new phrasal verbs please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 61 OF 749

3-WORD PHRASES VERBS to Supercharge Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

three-word phrasal verbs that is what I want to teach you today in order to help you supercharge your vocabulary and if you like building your vocabulary Please Subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals and I love helping you build your vocabulary because it's such an important part of the way we communicate and phrasal verbs are very common in just casual conversation and if you would like to access the lesson notes right here join my email Community click on the link in the description if you're already a part of the community don't worry I'll send them to you so this is very useful as far as just casual conversation goes because phrasal verbs are a little bit more informal and I want to look at some that

I think are pretty common as far as three-word phrasal verbs go and that's why I said these are some that you should know so first let's start out like what are phrasal verbs and like the building blocks basically you have the verb Plus instead of just one particle two particles and I've given you this example look forward to and the meaning down below if you look forward to something you're just excited about a future event and this I thought was a little funny mug talking about 40 and things to look forward to and yeah they're just some kind kind of I'll try to share with you some funny and humorous jokes or images just because I think it does make learning that much more captivating if you can find some humor in it now of course this is a quiz lesson I would love you to participate write your answers in the chat in the comments because after all this is interactive English so to start out I am giving you a sentence but I've Tak Tak away the verb so you have the verb plus two particles but I'm not giving you the main verb I'm not interested in going to the party this weekend I just don't up to it so the phrasal verb the blank verb plus up to so that together makes the entire three-word phrasal verb I just don't M to it up to it so think about the context you're not interested in something you don't I almost gave it away you you just would say look I just don't what what verb would be missing and I feel like as you know as I keep talking I just mention the verb because the answer is to feel up to it I don't feel up to it and the meaning is to you really you you have the strength or energy to do something I will point out that just like this example I think often people may use it to talk about something they don't have the strength to do and in that case you would say yeah I just don't feel up to it or he or she is not feeling up to doing something all right excellent great job everyone Loi well done uh great to see you now one resource that I wanted to point out and I was going to play it for you but I was having some technical difficulties is yish so there are other you know there are different uh sites that you can use if you would like to see how these words and phrases are used in context uish is one of them you can put in feel up to and then it gives you different videos in which somebody is using the the phrase the idiom the vocabulary word and it just reinforces the meaning so again I was going to play it for you I'll get it working at some point uh just to provide you some more examples what do you think of this one we should have away with this department years ago because the company has been losing a lot of money so the three-word phrasal verb we're missing the verb but the two particles away with to M away with this department years ago because the company has been losing money we should have what what what is the main verb that is missing as part of this three-word phrasal verb again write your answers in the comments in the chats now if you wanted to if I really wanted to get specific and I'm looking for the precise response think about the the verb tense all right you're using that modal we should have

what so the missing verb in this case is done done away with or the phrasal verb to do away with something if you do away with something you're you're just getting rid of it you stop using it we should have done away with this department years ago because the company has been losing a lot of money all right well done Joanne Julia Fabio just give some quick shoutouts to to give you uh a little more context here are some news headlines this is another resource that I'll use from time to time to show you how the word or phrase is used so here are some news headlines US news world report uh college rankings should do away with peer assessment and just get rid of it Trump trying to do away with every check and balance ahead of second term I feel like a lot of the lection stuff anytime I look for news articles

now they they have a specific meaning and in this case I'm giving you a context which I think often somebody would end up using this three-word phrasal verb I'll get around to it eventually so you would use this when talking about something that you are supposed to do or that you need to do and you're having this conversation like in the example and say I haven't found time to fix the door I'll get around to it eventually and you get around to doing something so in that case it means to do something that you have intended to do for a long time very useful in conversation somebody asked did you do it and you said well I haven't gotten around to it or I'll get around to it uh tomorrow I'll get around to it eventually and you always hear that get get around to get around to get around to and that is why I thought this was kind of funny uh talking about somebody who maybe procrastinates and it's like yeah I've been meaning to do it but you know I'll I'll get around to it so here is an example this is kind of like a gag gift a joke that you can buy and that is a round to it I don't know what uh then there is no the real meaning of it but just thinking of this is a round to it I am going to get a round to it and now you can also get around to it and if somebody says wait where is this look I got around to it um here's the next one parents May up on their kids to make sure they're doing their homework I think this is true you have kids who are in school you want to make sure that they're working hard they're doing the things that they should be doing for example their homework and from time to time you may M up on your kids there is a verb missing here which which verb is best going to complete this to M up on their kids well done uh Ana talal uh we're talking about the verb check to check up on someone parents May check up on their kids to make sure that they're doing their their homework if you check up on someone you're discovering like just well what are they doing you know just to make sure that you know they're doing what they should be doing but also to see how someone is so this phrasal verb this three-word phrasal verb I think it does have a positive connotation it's good when you check up on someone else uh and make sure they're doing what they should be doing or that you know everything's okay and you want to check up on your friend or your colleague or you check up on a family member I think we should never forget the people who take time out of their day to check up on you anytime someone says hey I'm just call in to see how you're doing uh how are things and they're just you know checking up on on you making sure that everything is all right like I said it does have more of a positive connotation here is the next question it's just you and me we need to M out for each other and we have that three-word phrasal verb M out for this is a little bit of a shout out to the TV show Supernatural in case you're wondering like who are these people this is one of my my wife's favorite shows I you know I was never much of a fan but just to you know give a little shout out uh she really loved this show when it was out so it's about two brothers and it's just the two of them so this it fits this situation we need to M out for each other now the missing verb that I hope that as you see this it's like okay you can kind of put it together is look to look out for each other so if you look out for someone you you're just making sure that that person is treated well that they're being taken care of and you're just looking out for another person now one thing I want to say about this three-word phrasal verb we talked about you know positive connotation negative connotation if you are looking out for someone else I think it does have more of a positive connotation I am looking out for you because I want to make sure that you are learning new things building your vocabulary and it is more positive I'm going to look out like in the example sentence I'm going to look out for my younger brother if you're using it with a reflexive pronoun I'm looking out for myself in that case it has more of a negative connotation that you only want what is best for you so if we're using it with that reflexive pronoun it's more negative he's only looking out for himself she's only looking out for herself or or I'm only looking out for myself something to keep in mind with this phrasal verb I just I like that picture of the the kitten right there I don't think I'll be able to up to my mother's expectations we have have the the missing verb plus the two particles up to M up to my mother's expectations a key word in this sentence is expectations because this is a collocation with this three-word phrasal verb I don't think I'll ever be able to up to my mother's expectations and yeah that cat looks like it just has that that look in their eye like oh no how am I ever going to be able to live up to my mother's expectations well done uh be happy Julia nice so if you live up to someone something it's basically to do as well as or or good as other people expect and I just said that a common cocation with this 3word phrasal verb is expectation to live up to someone's expectations and really you know do meet that standard of what they expect of you to live up to here is the next one she is not going to up with his nonsense anymore she's not going to up with his nonsense anymore hopefully I think maybe I don't know maybe it's a little easier this is uh like I said these are common phrases she's not going to M up to up with with his nonsense anymore so we have the verb followed by up with is our three-word phrasal verb so the verb that's missing the one that I hope that uh you can think of or that you thought of as you're reading this sentence is put up with again I think this is a common three-word phrasal verb that you're going to hear movies TV shows you'll read it in a story or a news article um well done Loli Orlando uh Manuel to put up with to accept to basically accept or continue to accept something you know some unpleasant situation or experience to put up with something or put up with someone uh here's another fun little joke it's not you it's me and my lack of desire to put up with your anymore so this is a fun little joke using this three word phrasal verb to put up with someone or to put up with someone's crap so let's make it uh maybe a little more challenging now I'm you know blanking out the three words so the three-word phrasal verb is missing but I'm giving you the meaning down below so perhaps giving you the meaning as well as the the sentence the context you can think of the appropriate three-word phrasal verb to complete the sentence sentence after struggling with his grades he decided to school the meaning of this phrasal verb is to not do something that you were going to do or you just you stop doing it before you finish and this we're starting out a little easy uh because I feel like probably you'll get this you've heard this before it is common especially when talking about school or education and if you stop going in this case you might drop out of school after struggling with his grades he decided to drop out of school excellent a um what are we at Johan hakeim nice so one thing I wanted to share when it comes to this I wanted to share with you some common collocations collocations are words that are frequently used together so if we have our three-word phrasal verb drop out of well what some things that people may drop out of they drop out of school they drop out of University drop out of college or maybe you drop out of a competition or drop out of a Race So those are some common nouns that may get used with this three-word phrasal verb to drop out of something well played uh here's another little followup another little joke uh this is why people drop out of school it says sorry that's not correct the correct answer is 14 and your answer is 14 and people get frustrated they're done with it and maybe they they drop out again this is just a little Good Humor using this phrasal verb to drop out of what do you think about this one you're not going to this giving you the picture maybe is a little bit of a hint and the meaning of this three-word phrasal verb is to succeed in avoiding punishment for something and in I'm using in the negative and I'm telling somebody look you're not gonna um this maybe something gets stolen and I'm chasing after the person and I'm yelling this you're not going to this this three-word phrasal verb is another one that's very common I feel like you've heard it before especially when I show you the answer I feel like then sometimes that light bulb goes off and it's like oh yes I know this phrase I've heard it before and in this case we're talking about to get away with you're not going to get away with this I'm sure you've heard maybe this in movies TV shows somebody would say this to the bad guy you're not going to get away with this you're not going to avoid punishment you're not going to get away with this here's an example of it being used this is actually the title of a TV show I'm not really familiar with it I've heard it before because I feel like it's pretty popular pretty well known how to get away with murder but how to get away with something and avoid that punishment get away with what do you think this is uh a news article I told you that when I look for news examples it seems like everything's still political even though the the US election is over some Harris rally attendees M this is the three-word phrasal verb it's missing M heat in Houston talking about Houston Texas taken to the hospital so this was a situation at a rally Texas is a very hot state so some Harris rally attendees heat in Houston taken to hospital this was the result after they three-word phrasal verb the the heat now the meaning is to become unconscious for a short period of time due to something something and well in this case we're talking about due to the heat what three-word phrasal verb is often used now sometimes it could be used as a two-word phrasal verb and you become unconscious and in this case

we're using it as a three-word phrasal verb because we're we're specifying the something someone became unconscious due to this thing due to the heat so the phrase that we're missing here I think got some close answers but but not quite is pass out from when you pass out from something you become unconscious for a short period of time so to pass out is to become unconscious to faint if I wanted to add more information I can then use the other particle from to pass out from the heat here are some other examples down here if I I just Googled like things that you might pass out from and it just gives you a list down here you could pass out from low blood pressure you could pass out from alcohol you could pass out from uh what else do we have here hyper hyperventilation you could pass out from anxiety so these are just a list of some things that a person could pass out from what do you think in the US when you turn 18 it is not uncommon for some kids to the house I know that culturally this is perhaps a little different from other countries because 18 it's still considered young but in the US when you turn 18 it is not uncommon for some kids to M the house we're talking about a three-word phrasal verb that means to stop living or occupying a particular place most of the time it does have to do with the home or the house but not always it could be some other you could use this three-word phrasal verb to talk about something else and in this case we would I would say that in the US it is not uncommon for some kids to move out of the house you move out of someplace

in this case the house or the home you just stop living there excellent uh Loi Macy Joanne well played so here is the next one and this is a this is a real picture of our uh our home some time ago I'm constantly having to my little girl all right you could see all those toys there they're kind of scattered everywhere it can make a little bit of a mess and in order to clean this is what I would say I would say this sentence to you oh I'm constantly having to my little girl I think parents do this when they have kids especially when they're younger and the meaning of this three word phrasal verb is to just clean a mess that's created by someone else and you are going to that person so in this case I'm the one who's cleaning this mess that you see on the table uh now now she's older

so she does help a little bit but I'm constantly having to my little girl so I will say there are there are maybe a couple of different verbs that you could use there's one that I was going for clean up after it that would work as well you're cleaning the mess you clean up after someone there is another verb that you could use that has this that same meaning if I did not want to use clean as the main verb I see a lot of answers everybody's like oh clean up after clean up after that is correct I could say that I'm constantly having to clean up clean up after my little girl however the verb that I was looking for which has this meaning is also pickup after to pick up after someone is just cleaning a mess that someone has made just to clarify again if you want to say clean up after that also works but to pick up after someone is you you are cleaning up that mess to give you some fun examples uh you sometimes you might see these signs when people are out they're walking their dog and here are some signs please pick up after your dog poop pollutes or attention dog owners please pick up after your dog thank you attention dogs G gerve Ruff woof woof good day good dog um or this one I like over there in the far Corner dear dog please make C certain your owner is always attached with a leash and is properly trained to pick up after you thank you so you could even in these context use cleanup but I think it is common when you want to talk about cleaning up after someone someone to pick up to pick after Up After Your Dog to pick up after your your kid excellent well done all right great job Rafaela good to see you excellent how about uh this one I'm gonna give you a movie recommendation too if you are you know I'm into education this is not about language education it has to do with math but the movie Stand and Deliver it is an older movie is about a math teacher who refused to his students the meaning of this three-word phrasal verb is to accept someone or something to expect someone or something to fail so if you expect something to fail then what what are you you are this thing so keep in mind that in this case I'm using it well this is being used in the negative somebody refused to do this which means that they refused for these students to fail so the movie Stand and Deliver is about a math teacher who refused to his students and the answer is to give up on you refuse to give up on someone I'm I believe in you I'm going to help you I'm going to stay with you I got your back and I refuse to give up on you and that is true I'm not going to to give up on you guys so this movie is this it's it's about math for the most part it is a good movie it is educ you know it's an education movie I mean mostly because it's about a math teacher and I believe this is a true story from a long time ago this person just refused to give up on uh his students there's uh this is the a picture of the movie Stand and Deliver you can see a very young Lou Diamond Phil sitting in the desk there who plays the role of a student which shows you just how old this movie is I believe it's from the 80s maybe um but not a bad movie you can check it out how about this one if you your job it may be difficult to find another if you m your job it may be difficult to find another it means to stop doing something that you have agreed to do before it is completed what phrasal verb What three-word phrasal verb fits this situation if you m your job it may be difficult to find another one that you're you're just going to stop doing something that well you've you've agreed to do so the answer in this case and maybe the picture is a a little bit of a hint but the three-word phrasal verb that is missing is to walk out on this one may be a little trickier but in this context if you walk out on something in this case your job then you just stop doing it before this agreed upon period and you're just going to walk out on your job you're going to walk out on your company or if you walk out on someone then you're just you're leaving and it's done it's over and you walk out on someone or something to walk out on how about uh oh to give you a little more context again hopefully this helps when you see some of these new head news headlines so the first one Black Friday strike Amazon workers in UK and us to walk out on busiest shopping day of the year and they're going to walk out on it and just you know stop doing Turkish lawmakers either others walk out on Israel at Geneva meeting and they just walk out on in this case the the country or the representatives and then finally Trump supporters walk out on Maga rally before it ends so and they they leave and they walk out on this thing that's going on this event here is a little review some of the the phrasal verbs that we were talking about again I think they're commonly used they're great for casual conversation and of course right now I would like to know how you did again if you want to get these lesson notes check out the link Down Below in the description and I just want you to continue building your vocabulary a little at a time if you enjoyed the lesson and learned something new please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and I will see you

next time

LESSON 62 OF 749

30+ Ways to Use the Word ASS | American Expressions

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hey everyone today I just want to talk to you about one word and that word is ass hello and welcome to another interactive English lesson my name is Wes from interactive English videos comm which this channel it's all about helping you practice and improve your English skills and today is it's a little bit of a vocabulary lesson for you because I am going to talk about what one word which is ass and all of the different ways that this word is used in English now there are many ways that this word is used which are very offensive it's not these are not things that you want to say to other people so what I'm doing by teaching you this is I'm not trying to encourage you to go out and use some of these words you have to watch what you say but I'm doing this for two reasons first is to help with your comprehension because these are words and phrases that you may hear if you are watching a movie or a TV show or even listening to music and the second reason is because it really shows you just how strange and unusual the English language can be so let's begin by talking about well the the meaning of this word in general and there are three primary meanings for the word ask that if you were to look up the word in a dictionary the first three meanings for this word that you will find well is that it just means the word donkey it is the word for this animal and ass is it donkey it also means a but somebody's but you could say ass and finally if you call someone an ass it means that you're saying this person is just a jerk a stupid person and again it can be very offensive to call someone an ass those are I think the three most common meanings for this word but you can use it in many different ways which I'm about to show you right now but one thing I want you to keep in mind is that a lot of what we're going to talk about these words and phrases are primarily used in spoken English it's not stuff you're going to find in writing but it's mostly for spoken English so let's begin with talking about using this word in order to emphasize or intensify another adjective so you can use it with an adjective before a noun and it does not change the meaning at all it just makes it makes that adjective a little more intense let me tell you what I'm talking about so you could say that someone is well maybe they are a broke-ass person and what that means is that this person is broke it does not change the meaning so for example maybe there there's a girl and she says that she has a broke-ass boyfriend that this person this boyfriend he has no money or perhaps you could say long ass and and in this case I've used this before if I have been traveling for a long time and I arrive and I'm tired and I tell someone wow I just I just took a long-ass flight and in this case again it does not change the meaning I'm talking about a long time a long-ass flight forlorn sDrive you gonna be waiting a long last time you could also say lazy ass and this just means that a person is lazy or perhaps even a cold

ass night if you're talking about the weather and you just want to intensify the adjective cold and you could say wow it was a cold ass night so in all of those examples we use ass with those adjectives in order to to emphasize the meaning and the meaning doesn't change now we cannot do this with just any adjective sometimes it could mean well the opposite for example if you say that this person is a badass you're not saying that this person is bad or terrible in this case it really means the opposite of bad which is saying that this person is good or great that you say that maybe somebody is a badass soccer player that they play really well or maybe a badass musician or maybe I would like to think that I am a badass teacher which would mean that I I would like to think that I am a good teacher but even though

I have not been called a badass teacher I definitely have been called a smartass and once again we're using this with the adjective smart but it does not have the same meaning you're not saying that somebody is intelligent if somebody is a smartass you're really saying that they are an annoying person which then brings me into all of the different ways that you can use this word if you want to say something derogatory and there are many of them so you could say that somebody is a jackass which means basically the same thing is calling someone an ass you could say someone is a dumbass you could also say someone is a hard-ass and in this case it means that someone is very strict and you could say that perhaps your teacher is a real hard-ass they're very strict you could say that he or she is a hard-ass or you could also say someone is a pain in the ass and that means that again this person is very annoying and you could use it to talk about a person or perhaps even some situations something that you have to do you can say this is really this is really a pain in the ass it's a difficult situation it's an annoying situation then we have another phrase which is to beat up someone's ass and that means that you are really annoying someone greatly for example I could say that my boss has really been up my ass lately in which case I'm saying that my boss is annoying they've really been really getting on me to do something I could say that that my boss has been up my ass and you could also say that someone has their head up their ass and if you say that someone has their head up their ass it means that they are this person is not thinking they're not pay attention and you could say you know you got your head up your ass I don't want a partner I don't need a partner all due respect Tribeca but you've got your head up your ass you're getting a partner man but that's what you get for playing with your head up your ass so if somebody tells you that you have your head up your ass then again it's not something you want to hear they're telling you that you need to pay attention you need to focus you need to get serious but these are not things that you want to tell others now let's talk about some more phrases that you would think that they have a similar meaning but they really don't for example you could say somebody is a kiss-ass and this is talking about a person who is trying to please others like oh he's a real kiss-ass you could also say he's an ass kisser they mean the same thing a kiss-ass and an ass kisser you're just trying to please this person that's very different though then if you tell somebody kiss my ass because if you tell somebody to kiss your ass then you're it's like you're saying hey screw you I'm not gonna do what you're telling me to do just kiss my ass all right so be sure that you don't confuse those then you could also say that somebody is a tight ass and a tight ass has two different meanings it can mean somebody who is cheap and they don't spend a lot of money that they're a tight ass or it could also mean that somebody just really kind of follows the rules that they they don't like to do things that are out of out of the ordinary and the person is a little bit of a tight-ass they're very strict we got to follow the rules now it's very different if you would tell somebody that they have a tight ass because in this case if somebody has a tight ass you're talking about their butt and you're saying that it's it's it's really nice it's attractive now this is not a compliment you're not you you shouldn't go tell somebody that they have a tight ass it's probably used more if you if somebody is talking to their group of friends and they make this comment and it is probably more commonly used when men might objectify women and say something that that they have a tight ass I don't honestly I really don't know if women would also say that about men that they have a tight ass I'm not sure that many many women would say wow that Wes he has a tight ass I think probably they would say that that Wes is a tight ass in which case they'd be saying I'm cheap and to be honest yes from time to time I can be a bit of a tight ass look you've been under my skin since New York starting with ripping off my cab god you're a tight ass then there are some other phrases that you don't want to confuse for example to bust ass or to bust some ass that's that's talking about farting somebody bust asked then they farted and it's probably gonna smell that don't confuse that if somebody is saying that they they are busting their ass and if somebody is busting their ass then that means that they are working hard so those are very different meanings if somebody bust ass and if somebody is busting his or her ass then and that means they're working hard no you could also say the phrase my ass and if somebody says my ass it's just it can mean no and this is a bit more slang it's very informal so for example you could hear it used in the context of somebody asking for money and they say hey can I borrow five dollars and I might say five dollars my ass in which case I'm saying no my ass means no

now my ass can also refer to to you as a person it's talking about yourself so let me give you some examples for that if we're going to use my ass as a pronoun it refers to to yourself or oneself and you can use it to replace a different pronouns like a subject pronoun so I could say something like instead of saying I'm going to teach you grammar I could say my ass is gonna teach you some grammar okay and I replace that subject pronoun I with my ass I can also use it to replace a reflexive pronoun so instead of me saying I'm trying to buy myself some time I'm trying to buy my ass some time or if I want to replace it with an object pronoun I could say my friends bought my ass a beer that instead of they bought me a beer they bought my acid beer he's a psycho I dumped his ass Jesus my ass is kicked we get that shot just keep walking your ass is fired so again I this is showing you how crazy English can be especially the way that it is used informally if you want to say my ass which could mean no or my ass could refer to yourself in the form of many different pronouns and then there are some just just expressions that some of them are fairly well known that you can use when we're talking about the word ass for example you could say that you want to get some ass and in this case you're talking about you want to you want to get romantic with somebody maybe just one night and you're you're just you just want to get some ass you're trying to find a guy or girl to hook up with you could also kick person is just they're being lazy they're doing something they're very lazy maybe they're working half-ass so if you know somebody that is a lazy ass and they don't work very hard you could say that that they are working half-assed that they are they are not working very hard they're a bit lazy or you could say if something tastes like ass and if something tastes like ass then you're referring to some food that is just disgusting it's no good it tastes like ass and finally you could say that someone does not give a rat's ass and this is used this statement I don't give a rat's ass just means that that you don't care so instead of saying I don't care somebody who really wants to emphasize that they could just say look I don't give a rat's ass but you've got a Republican heavy judiciary not gonna give a rat's ass about that that's what I like about you karlie you don't get red that's what anybody thinks I'm

Peter brand I don't give a rat's ass what your name is so I I hope that this lesson was not a pain in the ass and I hope that you continue to bust your ass and watch some more video lessons to improve your English fluency I'm confident that you're gonna bust your ass not you're not gonna bust ass you're not gonna fart I'm trying to say that you are going to bust your ass you're going to work hard and well you know to be honest this has been kind of a long-ass lesson so my ass is going to end it right here and and that is all I hope you enjoyed the lesson and I will see your ass next time

LESSON 63 OF 749

30 Contractions to Help You Speak Faster

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today I'm going to tell you how you can speak faster and more efficiently using contractions that's coming up what's up everyone my name is Wes this is interactive English which is all about helping you guys practice and improve your English skills and today I want to help you improve your speaking skills as well as your listening skills by using contractions I am going to teach you 30 different contractions contractions are when we take two words and we shorten them we push them together and where we take letters out we put an apostrophe instead so for example instead of saying I am we just say hi we've already done a lesson on contractions and I will link it for you so I suggest you check that out the purpose behind this lesson is two parts first it's for your listening comprehension so that you're able to identify and understand these contractions then next part is for you to actually go out and be able to use these contractions we use them quite often because we want to speak faster we want to speak more efficiently so this is a way for us to do that and we just say as much as we can in as little time as possible what I'm going to do is I'm going to tell you the contraction I will then say it so you can hear my pronunciation and then I'll give you an example sentence so that you can see how it's used in context and again just hear how it's being used so the first set of contractions that I have for you are those with the word not and we're going to begin with the verb to be plus the word not and we'll start with the present simple so we have is not isn't this isn't over this isn't over and it's not the lesson just began this isn't over we're going to continue there are many other contractions this isn't over this isn't over are not aren't we aren't ready for this maybe you're like whoa oh I haven't studied contractions before we aren't ready for this but I think you are ready for this don't worry now in the past was not wasn't Wes wasn't telling the truth yes okay there have been times in my life where somebody could say Wes wasn't telling truth but I'm telling you the truth now it's very important to learn contractions then we have were not weren't mmm they weren't satisfied with their meal maybe they didn't like the food they weren't satisfied now let's look at the verb do plus not so let's begin with do not don't I don't care all right I'm trying to use sentences and statements that I think are quite common with these contractions somebody could just say yeah I don't care it doesn't matter to me I don't care you can also say something maybe a little more forcefully I don't give a damn I don't care I don't care I don't give a damn what your father thinks does not doesn't it doesn't matter all right that's another common phrase with this contraction if you know and something is important you're like you know it doesn't matter I don't care it doesn't matter did not didn't and with this one I will give you a declarative question it's a statement that's a question and I could say you didn't hit the like button what I'm so surprised if you didn't hit the like button you should hit it right now I would appreciate it and if you didn't hit the like button well well then I don't care actually that's not true Wes wasn't telling the truth just then I

I do care because if it weren't for you guys we wouldn't be here and again I'm just trying to use all these contractions so that you hear them again and again and again then we have the verb have plus not have not haven't I haven't got a clue so if I don't know something I could just tell them you know I haven't got a clue has not hasn't Wes hasn't finished his work you know that that does happen from time to time but then I could also say had not hadn't if I hadn't finished my work then I would not have made this lesson which is true so I did finish my work so I made this lesson on contractions but keep in mind had not hadn't is a contraction that you might often hear with the third conditional if I had not if I hadn't then we have will plus not

we're talking about the future will not won't I won't stand for this if you are upset about something if you are protesting it you might say I won't stand for this no no no oh stand for this teachers union won't stand for this and I won't stand for it but we still won't stand for this let's look at some modal's with the word not would not wouldn't I wouldn't like it if you left and that's true I wouldn't like it so please don't leave there's still quite a bit of the lesson left could not couldn't I couldn't help myself so so this is a phrase that that you might hear somebody say when they are trying to stop themselves from doing something but they're not able to stop themselves and you'd say yeah I couldn't help myself I just had to try one of the cookies I couldn't help myself could somebody somewhere but that's just a way for me to transition and tell you guys to join the interactive English community subscribe to our email list we can email with each other a link is in the description should have should have you should have joined the interactive English community by now but maybe maybe you haven't if you haven't that's okay again link down below okay enough about the emails let's continue with a modal of possibility might have might have she might have left work already we don't know but you might have left already must have must have it's almost like you're saying must of put the contraction must have

let's continue off of that last sentence and we could say she must have gone to pick up her kids moving right along to contractions with that that is that's that's what I said this is something you you will hear from time to time maybe you can use it if you want to tell somebody hey you know that's what I said you're saying something that I already said that's what I said that's what I said that's what I said that will that'll that'll show them maybe you're you're upset with somebody and you're like oh that'll show um that would that so think about the pronunciation it's almost a bit of a D sound at the end that that'd be nice you guys are gonna watch another lesson after this one that'd be nice really yeah that'd be great that'd be nice sure that'd be fine sure that'd be nice and it'd be good that has that's now be careful because it sounds and it's spelled the same way as that is that's so for example that has that's I could say we live in an apartment that's got two bedrooms that's a true story we have a master bedroom and a baby room now let's look at contractions with there there is there's and there's a famous expression that says where there's a will there's a way if you really want something then then you can find a way to make it happen where there's a will there's a way there would there often this is followed by the verb be there'd be and you could say maybe you're talking to somebody about registering for something and you say you know I want to know if there'd be any spaces available there has there's there's been a lot of rain lately that's true it has been raining quite a bit there had there'd there'd better be a comment okay it sounds it sounds a bit threatening I don't want to threaten you but yes I would like you to write me a comment down below and what I want you to do is I want you to use one of the contractions from this lesson write a comment using a contraction and then go to somebody else's comment and and write a response to them using a contraction because what I want is that for people to go down to the comments and be able to see all of these different example sentences using these contractions so please do that down below there better be a comment alright I hope you enjoyed this lesson and learn something new if you did hit that like button and as always thanks so much for watching and I'll see you next time

LESSON 64 OF 749

33 Useful Collocations to Build Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I want to start out today's lesson with a question. How would you complete this sentence? What? What word would you use to complete this sentence? It's been a really [inaudible] day. Just one problem after another. You may have used a variety of adjectives. You could have said it's been a really rough day, or perhaps you said it's been a bad day or a difficult day, or even a tough day. These are all adjectives that we can use with the word day and they are frequently used together because they are collocations. And that's what I want to talk to you about today in order to help you build, develop and grow your vocabulary.

Hey everyone. My name is Wes. This is interactive English, which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills. And today I want to help you build your vocabulary because it's just so important when it comes to your English fluency. And the secret that I'm going to share with you today is collocations. And I don't know why I'm whispering because it's really just the two of us. So I am going to teach you some different collocations which are words that are frequently used together. So let's go back to that first sentence and the adjective that I want to use is rough. A rough day. It was just difficult.

We've actually had a bit of a rough day. We just returned from a trip and the airline destroyed our stroller. That that's a true story, but I don't want, I don't want to make this about me. I want to make it more about you and building your vocabulary. Now, not all words that are frequently used together have to be adjectives and nouns. You can have verb, Noun, collocations. You can even have noun, Noun, collocations, but, but these that I'm going to use with rough are all adjective. Noun collocations. For example, the next one that I want to talk to you about is a rough draft. If somebody says that they've done a rough draft, it means that they have done some work, but it is incomplete.

They've only started the process and you could say it was a rough draft. Often it's used when talking about something that you're writing and the writing is not finished, the paper, the essay, whatever it is, you might just say, well, I've only done a rough draft. You can also use this adjective with estimate and somebody might ask for a rough estimate, which is an approximation. And I think about numbers. Somebody's asking for some kind of value. Perhaps you're having car troubles and you take it to the mechanic and you want to know how much it's going to cost. You might ask them for a rough estimate. They might not know exactly how much it's going to cost, but they perhaps could give you a rough estimate and approximation so that you know well, whether you want to fix your car or, or just leave it the way it is.

You may also hear this adjective with the Noun, neighborhood, rough neighborhood, and I say that, I don't know why I'm saying that in a very cheerful way because if you're talking about a rough neighborhood, it's kind of a dangerous neighborhood. Perhaps a, you know, there's a lot of crime there. It's not very safe. And you might describe this area and say, yeah, you know, it's, it's a bit of a rough neighborhood. Often I think people use it. Maybe when they're talking about their past, they're telling us stories, Eh, you know, I grew up in a really rough neighborhood, or I used to live in a rough neighborhood and it was a bit dangerous.

But yeah, that's where, that's where they were living. It was a rough neighborhood. Now I want you to try and complete this sentence. All right. I hope you didn't think I was just going to tell you all of these collocations I want you to try and work for it. Just kind of quiz yourself a little bit. Which of those words would you use to complete it? We'll give it a mm of paint and then it's finished. What do you think? I hope you said B, touch a touch of paint. This is the next set of collocations that I want to teach you and that is those with touch. So this is a noun, noun, collocation.

If you're talking about a touch of something, you're talking about a slight amount. For example, a touch of paint, a slight amount of paint, or perhaps you could say that that you have a touch of the flu, you feeling a little bit sick and you might tell somebody, yeah, you know, I think I got to touch with the flu right now. We also frequently use touch with several different adjectives. For example, finishing touch, and this is talking about small details at the end of something. Maybe you want to put the finishing touches on something that you're creating. You're just adding those small details. We can also say that that something is a nice touch and in this case we're talking about something that makes another thing better. For example, maybe you are painting a picture and somebody suggests, oh maybe you should put this down there in the corner and you think, yeah, okay,

It's comforting that that somebody has a soft touch. I don't know if I would describe myself and say that I have a soft touch, but perhaps you do. I don't know. Now look at this sentence and tell me which word best completes it someday. I hope to a world record. I hope that you chose c break, break a record someday. I hope to break a world record. I don't think I am going to do it, but, but maybe you will. I don't know. But let's talk about some collocations with break. And these are all verb noun, collocation. So to break a record, this just means to do something better than anybody else. You break a record.

There is also an expression that's pretty common. You might tell somebody to break a leg and if you tell somebody, hey, break a leg, then you're just wishing them luck. It's actually, this is an informal expression that somebody is getting ready to do something. Perhaps they have a performance or they're going to do a show and you say, hey, you know, good luck. Break a leg. You can also break a promise which is not good. This just means that you don't do what you say. You will do break a promise. You frequently hear that one or you can break the ice. This is another idiom which means that you are trying to start a conversation between strangers or you're trying to make a tense situation a little less tense.

For me, I often think of a classroom because the very first time that I have a class with students, I will try to break the ice and we will do different activities so that everybody gets to know each other a little better. To break the ice, then you can break the law. This is something else that you can break. It's not good because if you break the law then it is illegal. You shouldn't do it. I hope that you don't break the law. Here is your next question and this time I'm not going to give you any options. I want you to tell me which verb do you think best completes the sentence.

I need you to do me. All right. I'm sorry. I just told you the answer. I need you to do me a huge favor. All right. I apologize. We're talking about verb noun. Collocations using do, do someone a favor and if you do someone a favor then you are just doing something for that person in order to help them do a favor. People may also have to do housework, which are the things you have to do around the home. You may have to do laundry or do the dishes. There's a lot of different housework that that people just have to do. You may also hear somebody like me tell you to do your best.

If you haven't known any of the answers to these questions, that's okay. I want you to keep participating. I want you to keep watching and learning with us because I just want you to do your best and if you do your best then then you are going to learn and build your vocabulary and that is the most important thing of all. Just do your best.

Another do collocation is to do harm and in this case you are well, it's just not something good. You don't want to do harm to others. You also don't want to do harm to yourself. There are so many different complications with do and they are so important because we use them all the time. Here's another sentence for you. I spend too much editing these videos and this is quite true. I do spend too much editing these videos. I almost said the answer right then, but I didn't. But I hope you've said time. I spend too much time editing these videos so you can spend time. This is a common verb.

Noun collocation and I want to talk to you about some other collocations with time. So not only can you spend time, you can also waste time, in which case you are not using your time wisely. I hope that you don't waste time and you're certainly not wasting your time learning these different complications and building your vocabulary. You can also kill time, which means that you are just doing something unimportant while you wait for something else to happen. So you can kill time walking around a mall, you can kill some time watching TV and until something else happens, you're just going to do something unimportant and kill time. There's another collocation that's pretty similar to kill time and that is pass the time you do something to pass the time. And in this case you again, you are doing some activity. It's not super important.

I like to read books to pass the time that you are just trying to occupy your time by doing something and you're trying to pass the time. Then there's an expression that I just wanted to throw in there, but it is frequently used and that is to say right time. If someone is right on time, then then they are there right when they should be right on time. I try to be right on time, but no, most of the time it doesn't happen. I always do my best to be right on time, but especially if I'm having a bad day, not going to be right on time and I hope you hope you recognize these collocations that that I continue to use.

Let's look at this sentence right here. We're not going to go much farther. The car is about two mm of gas. What do you think? This is a verb. Noun, collocation and actually it is a phrasal verb that is a hint for you and I hope that you said run out, run out of gas. I want to talk about some collocations with run out. You run out of something, so if something like a car runs out of gas, then it just means that there's none left. It runs out.

Now the way that we use this phrasal verb, the meaning can change a little bit. For example, if we use it in the present continuous and we say that we are running out of something, then it just means that there is a little bit left. There's still some left, but it's, it's about to be gone very quickly. If we use it in the past tense and we say that we ran out of something, then it just means that that there's none left that that's it. So if a car is running out of gas, there's still a little bit left. If it ran out of gas then then there's none. You can also run out of patients, which is another common collocation.

And I think in this case people may tend to give you a little bit of a warning and they may say, you know, be careful, hey, I'm running out of patients, I'm starting to run out of patients. There's just a little bit left, so, so be careful. And if somebody has already ran out of patients, then yeah, they're, they're going to be pretty upset with you. There are many different things that you can run out of. You can run out of time, you can run out of money and the worst of all you can run out of coffee. I hate it when that happens because in the morning I need my coffee.

Here is another sentence for you and, and this is, this is a little bit of a bigger sentence and all of those blanks. It's the same word you shouldn't be wasting. Instead you should invest your [inaudible] or you can donate to your favorite charity. Which word am I talking about? I hope that you can take a quick look at this and know that I am talking about money collocations with money. These are all verb noun collocations so you can waste money, which means that you are spending money in a carefree and careless way and you are just wasting it on things that you probably don't need. You can also invest money. You can buy stocks or maybe even buy a home.

Those are good ways to invest money or if you're feeling very charitable you can donate money. You can give money to your favorite cause, your favorite charity and donate your money. Some more complications with money include save money. I think it's always a good idea to save money because you never know when you're going to need it and along those lines you can also set aside some money and this just means that you, you have some money you you're not going to spend it because you might need it for something important. We can also add to it to create the expression. Set aside some money for a rainy day that you have this money for a time when you absolutely need it. You set aside some money for a rainy day.

We always tried to save money. That's very important to us and we also like to donate money when, when we can and we always, we try not to waste money because if we do that then we're going to run out of money and there's a very quick review, a quick money review for you. Now I want you to do me a favor and help put the finishing touch on this lesson and all you have to do is hit that like button. If you enjoy learning these different collocations and building your vocabulary, do you promise you promise that you're going to do that? I really hope that you're not going to break your promise because that's going to make me sad and I could have a pretty rough day. Okay, so we finished right on time and I'm not even wearing a watch, but I'm going to end the lesson there before you run out of patience and notice all of the collocations that I'm using just to give you a quick review. But they are so important when it comes to building your vocabulary. They're very, very useful. Not a waste of time. Okay? All right. That's it. That's it. I'm gonna. I'm gonna end it there.

LESSON 65 OF 749

35 Essential Vocabulary Words for Flying

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's pack your bags and head to the airport because today I want to talk to you about words all related to flying hey everyone my name is Wes this is interactive English which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills and today this lesson is all about flying if you have ever traveled on an airplane and you've been to an airport then I want to talk to you about many different words that you are going to see that you are going to hear so this is very useful especially for your comprehension so the way that we're going to do this I am going to teach you these words as though you and I are going on a trip that we are going to depart from some location and then arrive at another location and we're going to go through these words in order and those are actually the first two words that I wanted to talk to you about departures and arrivals so when you go to an airport and you're driving in a car you may actually see a sign that says departures this way arrivals this way and what this means is that when you are departing you are leaving from a place and when you are arriving you are getting to a place but in this sense they are used as nouns departures and arrivals so since we are leaving we are going to go to the departures side of the airport and if somebody is dropping you off at the airport which is often the case for many of us you can't just pull up there and park right in front you can park temporarily in an area that is for loading or unloading these are two other words that you may encounter if you are getting dropped off at an airport you may even see a sign that says this area is for loading and unloading which means that you can take the bags out of the car you can say goodbye to somebody and you can do this quickly you cannot park there permanently because it's just for loading and unloading so the first thing that we need to do now that we're at the airport is we need to check-in now this word can be used a noun a phrasal verb or an adjective and I just used it as a phrasal verb because I said we need to check in as a noun you might hear somebody say okay where is the check in or as an adjective you could say well we need to go to the check-in counter so this word is very useful because you can use it with different parts of speech there are typically three ways that you can check in you can do an online check-in which nowadays I think is pretty common you could possibly do a curbside check-in which sometimes you have that option other times you don't or you can go to the check-in counter inside the airport many of you may be familiar with online check-in you're just using your computer at home to check in and get your boarding pass now if you're going to do a curbside check-in which you might find at some airports other airports maybe they don't have this but when you get dropped off and you unload the vehicle there may be a counter right there on the curb and the curb is just that that stone edging along the side of the street that is the curve and if there's a counter there then you might do a curbside check-in you unload the car and then you can check in right there outside on the curb now many people will go inside the airport to the check-in or the check-in counter either one it has the same meaning but this is the area where you will go talk to an airline representative you will show your documents you will tell them where you're going and then they will issue you a boarding pass now I've already mentioned this word several times but that is another word that I think is very important when you talk about flying the boarding pass is the the document it kind of looks like a ticket and this is what allows you to get onto the airplane you will get a boarding pass once you check in you may have the option to check your bags and when you check your bags it means that you are giving your suitcase or luggage to the airline to take to the place that you are they are going to take it to your destination and you are going to check your bags we use it with that verb to check bags many times people are just going to carry their bags with them they are not going to check them and if that's the case then you can go straight to security and security is the place where people will go and there are officials there that are just checking to make sure that that everybody is safe that you are not bringing anything dangerous onto the airplane and that is what this area is called so after you get your boarding pass you need to go through security and we often use it with that phrasal verb go through you go through security and people might say an example sentence like wow we were we were waiting in such a long line when we had to go through security we just wanted to go through security quickly but there was a long queue and it took some time to go through security when you are going through security another verb that you will often hear is remove that the officials that work there are going to tell people to remove things they might say to remove your computer from your bag or they might tell you to remove your belt or in some cases maybe remove your shoes so the next time you are going through security I want you to listen for that verb remove they will tell you to remove maybe a variety of different things after you go through security I just I just keep using that verb is no verb over and over I told you we use it a lot when talking about security but after you go through security there are there are two different types of flights that one person might take and that is a domestic flight or an international flight if you are taking a domestic flight it means that you are traveling within the country and that is a domestic flight an international flight it means that you are traveling to another country international or domestic flight now it's time to start looking for our flight we need to find where we need to go and you may need to find the correct terminal so at some airports there will be different terminals and this is a building where different planes will either arrive or take off the terminal and when you are flying you may need to find the correct terminal the correct building which is where your gate is located at the terminal there are many different gates so we need to look for our specific gate because the gate is the location where an individual flight will either leave or arrive so we need to go to our gate because that is where we are going to leave from and often it may even say the gate on the boarding pass once you check in and get your boarding pass it may even tell you the gate that you need to go to at airports there are different ways to get around you will find elevators you will find escalators you may find buses or trams but you may also see a moving sidewalk because at airports sometimes people have to walk a long distance to get to their terminal or get to their gate so you may find moving sidewalks at airports and that they mean exactly what they say it's like a sidewalk it's moving it helps people walk a little quicker so they can get around an airport faster a moving sidewalk once you get to the gate you may see your plane that's parked right there something else you may see is a gangway this is the elevated platform that is connecting the plane to the gate so once you give airline employee your boarding pass you are going to walk down the gangway in order to enter or board the plane so as you are boarding the plane the first person that you will probably see is the flight attendant and this is the person who works on a plane and just helps the passengers they may bring you food or drinks and or just assist you in any way that they can you may also see the pilots now the pilots they fly the plane but they are flying in a compartment which is called the cockpit so the pilots will fly the plane from the cockpit when you're walking down the aisle to find your seat you will see those large storage areas up top they may be called overhead compartments or even overhead storage and this is where people will put their bags during a flight either in the overhead compartments or overhead storage listen for those words they're very common once you sit down you will find things such as an armrest you will find that between the seats or even in front of you there will be a tray table this is a small table that folds down and you can put food on it you can put drinks on it you could even put a baby on it if you wanted to sometimes people will put their heads down on the tray table and try to sleep again very common word listen for it the next time you are flying a tray table now that you and I are on the plane we're getting ready to leave the plane is going to go down the runway this is the long stretch of smooth ground that a plane will go down before it takes off it will take off down the runway and take off that is the another phrasal verb that I wanted to highlight because we use that all the time when a plane takes off it means when it actually leaves the ground you can also use this somewhat as a synonym for leave so a person might ask you know hey what time does the plane leave you could also ask well what time does the plane take off in this case leave and take off they can be used interchangeably but specifically take off is talking about the the point in which the plane is leaving the ground it takes off after we take off the plane is going to ascend which means it's just going to rise the opposite of that once the plane starts to land it's going to descend it's going to fall it's going to go down so ascend is to go up to rise descend is to go down to fall it can also be used as a noun ascent and descent and when the pilot is talking to the passengers you may hear him or her say those words and they might refer to our ascent or our descent and they may often use it with the word altitude that's another word that you may hear the pilot talk about and altitude just refers to the height at which the plane is above sea level the altitude of the plane now that we're flying we are up in the air typically at this point the the flight attendants will come on and make some announcements they will talk about the need for people to stay seated they will highlight the the fasten seatbelt sign or the no smoking sign they may also talk about the lavatory and if they mention the lavatory then they are just talking about the toilet that is located on the airplane the lavatory you may also hear them talk about the galley the galley is often where these flight attendants are working it is where they prepare the food or get the food ready to or even get the drinks ready to come around and serve the passengers that area is called the galley and they they may tell passengers not to congregate around the galley and to congregate just means to kind of a group of people standing around and just hanging out so on a plane it's very small you need these areas to stay open so they may say not to congregate around the galley because people need to get to the laboratory while flying you may also experience turbulence this just refers to violent or unsteady wind that that is basically going to shake the plane it is called turbulence and you may hear a pilot make an announcement and tell people hey we are going to experience a little turbulence so that people are aware that this is going to happen and and they're not they don't need to be nervous if the planes start shaking but if it does that is called turbulence once the plane starts its descent and we are now starting to and the flight attendant may come on and make another announcement for people to return their seats and tray tables to their upright position an upright is the word that I wanted to mention because you will definitely hear that word on a plane they will say return the seats return the tray tables to their upright position and upright just means that it is in a straight and vertical position an upright position so once the plane starts to descend and then it lands then we are going to taxi to the gate and taxi I'm not talking about the yellow car that people use to go from one place to another this is actually a verb to taxi and what it means is to move slowly on the ground after landing again listen for this verb this is something that pilots will say and they will say that we need to taxi to the gate so they want everybody to stay seated to taxi after we have taxi to the gate and we are sitting there you may hear flight attendants make another announcement and they will say be careful when opening the overhead storage because the bags may have moved around during the flight so again you will hear them mention the overhead storage then once we get our bags we are going to disembark the plane that is leaving the plane we often use that verb to disembark to disembark the plane once people disembark sometimes they're in a hurry I know that sometimes I am especially if I need to catch a connecting flight and if you hear somebody talk about a connecting flight what this means is that that the person is not at their final destination they need to disembark one plane and then get on another plane so that they can continue their trip it is referred to as a connecting flight fortunately for us we are at our final destination so after we disembark the plane because it is an international flight it's not a domestic flight we will need to go through immigration and this is the area where government officials will just check your documents to make sure it's okay to enter the country it's called immigration we may also need to go through customs this is the area where officials may check your bags or maybe they'll check any other things that you are bringing into the country customs then once we have gone through immigration and gone through customs again we can use it with that phrasal verb go through then we will head to baggage claim and this is where we will collect our luggage or our suitcase so at the beginning if you checked a bag we use that verb check to check a bag you will need to collect that bag at baggage claim so instead of saying suitcase or luggage airports we'll use the word baggage and you will see that on signs throughout an airport baggage claim it is the place where you will collect any check bag or suitcase or luggage baggage claim and then once we collect our suitcase at baggage claim we're going to walk outside to the arrivals area and then find a way to leave the airport and then that's it our flight is over so I hope you enjoyed this lesson and found it useful and if you learn some new words please hit that like button down below thanks so much for watching and I'll see you next time

LESSON 66 OF 749

3 Advanced English Phrases Native Speakers Use All the Time!

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

tow the line. This means to do what you're expected to do without upsetting anyone. And this is a great idiom that you can use in a work context because let's say you're supposed to follow a policy or maybe just follow your boss's instructions or maybe even follow what your colleagues are supposed to do. And in that case, you could say you're just trying to tow the line. You don't want to upset anyone. You're towing the line. Yeah. Well, I'm the chief now and I got to everyone's got to line up behind me, you know, tow the line. Then we have off the cuff. Simply put, it just means without preparation. So, basically, you might do something off the cuff. And in this case, it's really just an adverb phrase. You could speak off the cuff or give a presentation off the cuff or make a decision off the cuff. Interestingly, this phrase is believed to have originated from people writing notes on their shirt cuffs for a quick reference, typically done by speakers or actors. Take a last bow enough, make it seem more off the cuff. Let's talk about the elephant in the room. And when somebody mentions this idiom, the elephant in the room, they're really referring to an obvious problem that everyone ignores. And I think we can all relate to this idiom when thinking about problems that we don't want to talk about, we're trying to ignore. The next thing I want to say about this idiom is it's often used with specific verbs. To talk about the elephant in the room or to address the elephant in the room. But I think we should probably talk about the elephant in the room. I think it's time we address the elephant in the

LESSON 67 OF 749

3 American Idioms Might Surprise You

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

something is a game-changer. You would use this when you want to say that something is going to significantly alter a situation. So, once again, this is a great way to add emphasis. "Robo-taxis are a game-changer. This will be the future of mobility." So, in general, we're talking about a new development that has a significant impact on a situation. And in that case, you can say that it's a game-changer. If you follow me, I swear to you, it's a game-changer. Hey, you're looking at the 65-in 4K, huh? It's a game-changer. FOMO, fear of missing out. I really like this acronym. It refers to the anxiety a person feels when missing out on some social event or experience. I could say, "A lot of people are buying Bitcoin because of FOMO." And this is an acronym that I think we can all relate to. I think we've all experienced FOMO at one point or another. Man, some of our friends are at a rooftop in Brooklyn. Ooh, somebody's got FOMO. Thank you for coming to celebrate Meredith. I betcha she's in heaven right now with some serious FOMO. Clapback. This is another informal phrase that's mostly used in the US. So again, it may not be as common as some of these other idioms, but still gaining in popularity. And this refers to a sharp, quick response to criticism. Here's an example. "I'm not afraid to clap back at the haters who criticize my English lessons." This is not true. Uh there are haters out there, but I tend to ignore them and I don't clap back. Everyone in this office wants to fight you. And they're planning a prank. Clapback.

LESSON 68 OF 749

3 Awesome Online Resources for English Learners

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I don't think he's working hello and welcome today we're going to talk about three different online resources that will help you improve your English so today's lesson like I said was about three different online resources that will help you become a better speaker and these resources that I'm talking to you about today are number one free they are available for everyone to use and there are literally your fingertips because they're online so as long as you have an internet connection then you have access to them and they're very useful for English learners because they help you build your vocabulary so today we'll talk about why you need to improve your vocabulary and then how to do it with the resources that I'll tell you about so what is vocabulary it's just the words that make up a language so any words and all of the words that make up a language are part of our vocabulary and in order to speak a language as you know you need to know new words and what do you do how do you either find new words to use or how do you find the definition of the words you or you're encountering in your studies we're going to talk about that today but it's very important that you build new words so I'm going to show you how to do that right now okay so to build your vocabulary I have compiled for you three resources that like I said you may have already used some of them I haven't used until very recently and obviously I've been online and teaching for a long time so it's kind of cool that they're right there but sometimes we don't notice them so I'm going to share them with because they're really really useful okay so the first first one I'm going to actually share my screen with you so you can see what I do and you can use these

on your computer and you can use these on the phone so let's go to the first one okay so this one right here is the merriam-webster dictionary website and if you have been using or have been using dictionaries for a while you know that merriam-webster used to have these paperback dictionaries that we all had in our classrooms and at home and they're very very good so they have a they're very credible they have an important name behind them so you can safely kind of retrieve definition from these websites it's a very trustworthy source basically so what we do here is of course we can type a word in the box so for example I will choose the word joyful okay and then hit enter and then just like any dictionary it tells us a few things I'm going to use my little blue marker to point some things out because you cannot see my cursor so

first you can see is in any word you can see the word here you can click the little speaker to hear the the pronunciation although you do have it spelled out phonetically and then of course you see the definition here now I'm actually going to to transition back because I want to kind of pose a question for you especially in your earlier stages of learning English have you ever encountered a time when you looked out a word and that was maybe a little difficult and then you found the definition that was even more difficult to understand because I have and it's frustrating right you're trying to improve your language you're trying to you know further your knowledge and then there you are even more confused than you were and it can be confusing trying to look up these definitions but there's a really really cool option that they're doing for you on this website that I'm going to show you so let's go back here and for example we're going to look up the word exultant okay and the word exultant okay so back to my little cursor now okay so okay so it says here that exultant you know expressing great triumph and jubilant and then at this point you may be like what I don't understand this it's a little difficult right it's a little advanced so if you're trying to find the definition you can scroll down on this section right here that's a really cool section and it's a definition for English language learners okay so it has its own separate section for English language learners and it offers the definition very happy and excited it's something that you can comprehend right very happy excited okay that's much easier than jubilant for example so this really simplifies the definition so that any level of English language learners can understand and it comes in very very very handy very useful so you just scroll down to it like I did another thing you can do is if I scroll back up do you see this link right here where it says oops see exultant for English language learners okay I'm going to click on it and it takes me to the merriam-webster it's it's like a sister site it's a site of Merriam Webster but it's a different site and it's called the learners dictionary and this is wonderful it's its own resource but it has so many different resources that are very useful for language learners for example so as you see it gave us the definition for the word we were looking for again it gave us the word it gave us the pronunciation it tells us what's part of speech it is it's an adjective and then it tells you the definition and it gives you more kind of related words but I

core of language so you should know them okay so we're going to randomly click on air travel so these are words that you should know useful words for as they say traveling on airplanes and through airports and we whole do that right okay so I'm going to click on aisle here the first one kind of to show you what's going on so as you can see I owe a you must notice that aisle has an S in there but you don't hear it right so this is where it's really important to click on that little speaker because it will pronounce it for you and you'll notice that the S is silent for example okay but of course we write it down and then it tells you not just the definition but look how much more it gives you sentence examples it gives it to you in different parts of the of the sentence then it gives you even idioms that go with this so it's it's a very very thorough resource for you to use very useful okay so we are going to move on to our second resource and this is something that you literally use today probably twice three times depending on when you woke up you use it many times a day you've used it already I've used it we all have and it's pretty amazing what it can do for you I know you're going to give me some looks like are you crazy this is too easy it is not it's incredible and I'll show you why so the next resource is where did it go da Google like I said we use Google many times a day but I will show you how to use it in a way that will help you a lot with your vocabulary okay so for example we have the same word as before how do we find out a word okay so we type in joyful and then we type in definition and then boom it gives it to you so even if you just stop right here you think this is great you know it's very quick it shows it in the same browser window you don't have to go to a different website it's wonderful right yes that's true it gives you right it gives you the definition it gives you the phonetic pronunciation the little speaker you can click on it part of speech it even gives you synonyms and of course the definition but what I want you to look

right now is this little thing right here this arrow down arrow okay and we can see that it says translation word origin and more definition and once I click on it we can see that there is so much more that we can look at and for example I'm going to start with the translation part okay which is right here okay so for example because I'm Romanian I'm going to choose Romanian and you see that immediately it gives you four different words it doesn't always give you four words in this case it gives me four words four different translations to kind of really make sure that you understand what the word is now you should know that this should be your last resource because I do not encourage translation as your main way of understanding a word but if it's the only way and you really don't understand the word and you really need to use it then you have it and it's right here for example I'll show you in Spanish it will give you two so it just gives you more nuances to the word so you kind of really understand it but I'm going to turn it off now because like I said this is your last resource and you shouldn't use it until you cannot you if you really don't understand it okay okay and then we're going to focus on this last section they use over time and pay over word now this is super cool and I'll show you why you have this timeline here right so it shows you that the words maybe started getting used in the 1800s and then it kind of its evolution over time and then this is where we are today right here okay so as you can see the word was really used in the 1800s and the 1850s and then it kind of decreased a little bit towards the 1950s and it's picking a little bit back up today but it's not used as much as it used to be used okay so why does this matter you asked okay I'm going to show you why this matters in a second let's say you go online and you know you actually let me switch to explain in one second okay so this matters because I don't know about you but I'm sure you have a similar experience we learn English from different sources right we don't just go to class and then come back and that's all the English we watch movies we read books we read articles we have different kinds of sources that we learn English from and this is how we find words and sometimes it's good to know not sometimes it's good to know where these words come from so going online I wondered upon this little oops this little quotation okay okay

so it's an Isabella birth quote and she was an English explorer okay and this is the website the quote the Rocky Mountains realized may exceed the dream of my childhood it is magnificent and the air is life-giving okay so it's a beautiful quote and maybe you want to understand it completely but there may be a little part that you didn't understand like for example the word neigh okay so the word neigh you're trying to figure out what it means okay one thing to mention is that isabella bird was an explorer who lived between the years of 1831 oops in 1904 like you can see over here okay so 1831 1904 not very recently okay okay so let's say you want to find out what the word name means okay so I go to Google okay and then type in neigh definition okay wonderful so it shows me a few things what does it mean right I'm not sure okay it means no great I find it and the problem is I should not stop right here and this is where what I just showed you comes in very very handy oh yes sometimes is if you can see it also gives you the words origin which is very useful as well but if I look at the timeline here that I was showing you boom I can see a few things when Isabella bird was alive between you know the 1830s and the 1900s the word was used a lot okay but now I told you were right here it is not it's almost now you at all so the problem is with using a word like that is that if we use words I'm gonna transition so you see my concern my face if we use words that are not used today there are a few problems with that a somebody may not be able to understand you so you talk to them and you use words that are dated and archaic they might not understand you and this can be a problem if you give a presentation or if you write an essay or if you have a business meeting or B they might think that your English is not as advanced because they think that this person doesn't understand what words are being used and what words are not being used so that's why it's very important that you used words that are current and words that are currently being used in the language so this is when the resource I just showed you comes in very very handy you have to check your words and once you do it takes two seconds you've seen it it was very quick you just click the down arrow and then you're done so please make sure to use this resource because you it's Google very quickly very easy and you're done you can use the water just don't use it forget about it right okay my third resource that I'm going to talk about is kind of one that you know it's it's a supplementary resource in the sense that by this time you will have looked up the definition of a word you have gone through the origin can I use it should I use it you've seen the word in context you know it's part of speech and all of that but maybe maybe you still don't know how to use it in a sentence maybe you still have trouble with that so that's where I'm going to show you right now so we're going to go to this website called your sentence that you're dictionary.com okay and this website just gives you sentences that are community contributions so it's just people are writing these sentences so there may be some mistakes but not a lot there because the correct ones keep going on top so it's just kind of examples that everyone has and everyone is using and that will give you even better understanding of how people are using this word in the context it's super useful so for example going back with the word joyful okay hit enter and then we see quite a few different examples of the word joyful in context it's pretty incredible how many we have right so if we don't fully understand how to use joyful then this is a great way to test it out and to look and see how do people use it okay so they use it you know it's an adjective so they use it as a joyful light something new and joyful joyful news joyful significance okay so you can see that there's different ways and not just one way so

this will really really really help you see that okay not all of the words have these many examples but a lot of them do at least all of them have more than one so this resource really really helps kind of cement and further understand why you've already learned about the word it's not a first resource I would say that you go to but it should definitely be used as a supplementary resource so I'm going to transition back and okay so these were the three resources that I would recommend to anyone who's trying to improve their English but we are not done here okay as a teacher I have to emphasize that it's you okay so just kind of explain what's been going on a little bit so so far you know you are trying to understand the new word you don't know what you look it up you may have you may find the definition you may find the origin is that you find out if it's current you see it in context you see all of this but all that you've done is basically taken in this information okay so you're kind of absorbing it but now you have to produce it you have to let it out okay so how do you do that well simple either take you know go old school and take a pencil and a piece of paper and write down your own sentences okay so that's one way or do it on your computer you know we all have like a notes folder or a word document that you can open it but please use that word produce it in a sentence okay you have to in order to understand it fully you have to produce it okay so don't just say okay I understand it and move on because I know you do it I've been that student and I just okay I know it then move on no no you'll forget it okay so use it write a sentence right - right 3y 5 however many it takes to understand okay promise okay okay so once you do that you're also still not done because then you have to try to use the word every chance you have so you know you have a new opportunity maybe just try to make sure to use the word every new opportunity you have and maybe every week or every other week try to bring it back and study it and learn it and use it I mean and then you'll make sure that you and that's how you make sure you understand it and you remember it that's what I meant to say okay these are my tips they're trust me they're very useful I've been using vocabulary learning tips even to learn languages but also to teach them to my students so yeah well thank you very much for joining us and we will see you next time

LESSON 69 OF 749

3 EFFECTIVE WAYS TO IMPROVE YOUR SPEAKING

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

This is one of the most common questions that English learners ask. And I'll tell you the answer! Students always want to know how they can improve their speaking ability, and I always tell them the same thing. If you want to improve your speaking, you need to practice these three skills. Anyone can practice these skills. But it takes time, discipline, and dedication if you truly want to see improvement. Let me explain. When it comes to learning a language, there are four different skills.

Now...these are little different. Listening and reading are receptive skills. You are receiving the information and getting language input. Speaking and writing are productive skills where you're producing the language as part of your output. Each of these skills complements the other and is important in improving your overall language ability. Now, let's look at three ways to improve your speaking skills and I'll save the best for last. The first way to improve your speaking is with listening. When you're listening, you're performing a variety of tasks. You're hearing the flow and rhythm of speech, the pronunciation of words, and people's intonation. Really? Yes. Really! All of this language input from listening will help your output in speaking.

Finally, it's very, very, very... I'm going to add one more very... easy to practice listening in English. You can listen to music in English. You can watch movies or TV in English. Even watching this video and listening to me helps. That's true. In order to speak and produce the language, you need to absorb it first. This brings us to the second way to improve your speaking...Reading! Notice the theme. Listening and reading are the two receptive skills. You can read a book, a magazine, a newspaper. Just read...

First, reading helps improve your vocabulary. When you read, you're learning new words, and you're seeing how these words are used in context. Next, you can read out loud. And this will help improve your verbal delivery. But soft, what light through yonder window breaks... Okay. You may need to read something more current than Shakespeare. Lastly, when you read you're processing the syntax of a language. Essentially, reading helps improve your grammatical structure.

Finally, let's look at the most important way to improve your speaking. The absolute best way to improve your speaking is by... Speaking! Surprise! You need to produce the language. Talk to your friends. Talk to your classmates. Talk to your teachers. That's a good question. Then talk to me! If you don't have anyone to practice speaking with, or if you don't have the time or the money to go take English lessons somewhere, You can use these interactive English videos to practice speaking. You can choose how long you want to study for and when. And best of all...it's FREE! That's a great idea man! I know what you're thinking. Why would I speak to a video? How does that help?

Well for starters, we already do it. These days people video chat all the time. And more importantly, you're actually getting the opportunity to produce the language. Don't worry about mistakes... To review, if you want to improve your speaking, you need to practice the following skills. Do this by watching our interactive English videos. So be sure to check out some of our video lessons in order to learn and practice your English.

Now, I just have one question for you. Leave us a message in the comments below. We love to hear from our students. Bye!

LESSON 70 OF 749

3 Grammar Mistakes Advanced Learners Often Make

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today I want to talk to you about three grammar mistakes that English learners often make what's up everyone my name is Wes this is interactive English which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills today we're gonna work on improving your grammar skills I'm gonna talk to you about some different grammar that English learners commonly confused and simple mistakes are made so I'm gonna teach you the grammar I'm gonna tell you how you can correct these mistakes and then we're gonna practice a little bit because that's the best way to improve your skills practice practice and practice some more so the first grammar mistake that you might be making is this right here I want you to tell me which sentence do you think is correct the doctor recommends that she go to bed early or the doctor recommends that she goes to bed early which one do you think is correct because there is only one answer I hope you chose this sentence right here the doctor recommends she go to bed early now you may look at this and think wait a second what's going on subject-verb she goes but this is an example of the subjunctive mood that expresses a suggestion another way to think about it which I think might be a little easier is that there is a hidden modal verb in there and we could rework this sentence and I could tell you this the doctor thinks that she should go to bed early so you see that modal verb should and we follow that with the base verb go now there are some verbs out there that that basically contain the same meaning should for example recommend when you recommend something you're basically telling someone what you think they should do so you don't need to use should it's almost like it's hidden within the meaning of the verb recommend so you would say the doctor recommends that she go to bed early we use the base verb go now mistakes are commonly made when that noun clause is in the present simple and the subject is he she or it because naturally learners want to conjugate that verb using that subject he share it and they would conjugate it incorrectly when we're talking about the subjunctive mood you're going to use the base verb keep in the subjunctive mood covers a range from wishes to commands to suggestions to conditions and there are some verbs that tend to attract the subjunctive mood and those are the following so these are verbs in which you may end up using the subjunctive mood so let's practice this right now I am going to give you a sentence and I want you to transform that sentence so that it has the same meaning but you are going to use one of these verbs with the subjunctive mood I'll tell you the sentence and then give you a few seconds before I give you the answer are you ready so the first sentence that I have for you is this she thinks that he must leave at once I want you to change this sentence and use the verb demand she thinks that he must leave at once remember how I told you that said that he didn't modal that modal is in the meaning of the verb so if we're gonna transform this and change this sentence around you would say she demands that he leave at once he leave the next sentence I have for you is I believe the game should get rescheduled I believe the game should get rescheduled I want you to transform the sentence and use the verb insist okay so if we're gonna take that verb insist and change this sentence around you would say I insist the game get rescheduled I insist the game get rescheduled subjunctive mood I hope that was easy for you and that now it makes a little more sense the next grammar mistake that learners often make is just subject verb agreement when they are saying negative statements in the present simple and they're using the contraction with do and not so let's let's unpack this what I'm talking about is when when people are speaking that that's key because when people are having a conversation they they just want to say things quickly they want to say things naturally and when this happens I

subject verb agreement can become a little confusing so when you want to say a negative statement if the verb is not to be then you're going to use the helping verb do and you would need to conjugate that helping based on the subject if we're talking about the present simple we can conjugate it I don't he she it doesn't you don't we don't they don't simple enough now the problem that I think a lot of learners have is that when they're talking when they're having a conversation people make a mistake with that doesn't I hear this quite often when the subject is he/she/it they want to say the negative and they say he don't she don't if I hear somebody make this mistake I understand what they're saying but it's just a matter of fluency I I know that they're just we're having a conversation perhaps it's moving a little fast people just want to speak quickly they want to speak naturally and they may conjugate this incorrectly so when we're talking about subject verb I I think overwhelmingly this is where people have issues when they're stating that negative in the present

simple and the best way to correct this is just to get more exposure to the language more reading more listening more practice and the more you do those three things then it's just going to come to you naturally you're not gonna have to stop and think about it you would just be conjugating these correctly he doesn't she doesn't it doesn't so now let's do a quick practice it's always good to practice this I am going to tell you a sentence a positive sentence and I just want you to change it and make it negative so I'll give you a moment to say the sentence and I want you to say the sentence out loud because we're talking about spoken

English are you ready the first sentence is he eats pizza every day change that make it negative and you would say he doesn't eat pizza every day the next one is people want to email with us make that sentence negative and when you do that that sentence becomes people don't want to email with us people don't they don't I didn't say that all of these would use doesn't so I hope that you said don't people don't want to email with us but I really hope that you do want to email with us and if you do check out the link in the description join our email list link is down below finally I have if someone likes it please tell me if someone likes it please tell me how do we make that negative I hope you said if someone doesn't like it please tell me if someone doesn't like it please tell me all right so again this is just good practice subject-verb practice practice practice that is the way to improve so that the next time you're having a conversation you will just say this naturally and correctly the final mistake that learners often make is just confusing Edie and ing adjectives and the reason why I think this can be confusing for many learners is because the only difference between the two adjectives are just those letters at the end bored boring interested interesting excited exciting so besides those letters there is another key difference between these adjectives and that is their meaning and usage for example Edie adjectives describe a person's feeling and and it is a temporary feeling ing adjectives describe a situation a thing or a person's characteristics and it's that last part a person's characteristics that's where I think many learners confuse these adjectives and they would say something like I am boring and they use the ing and they're actually describing their characteristics I am boring when they really want to talk about the way they feel and they should say I am bored now this is important because I am bored and I am boring have very different meanings if you're bored it's just how you feel about some situation you don't like it it's a temporary feeling you're bored if you say I am boring well then that's describing your character you're saying that you are a boring person and if that's the case then not many people are probably going to want to hang out with you and spend time with you because they would they may also think you're boring so keep that in mind when we're talking about Edie adjectives and you're talking about your feeling and ing adjectives

when you're talking about someone's characteristics okay so so let's practice this I'm going to give you a situation and then ask you a couple of different questions I want you to answer those questions using the adjectives that I give you I'm just gonna give you one adjective and you're going to answer the question with either a needy adjective or ing let's do one as an example so you know what I'm talking about the situation that I'll give you is I like to play soccer alright very simple

now here is the adjective that I want you to use and I'll ask you a couple of questions and just give me an answer using either edy or ing so I would ask you how do you feel and you'd say I'm excited to play soccer and then I could ask you what do you think about soccer I think soccer is exciting now you know what I want you to do here is the next situation and and I will give you a moment to answer each question all right

the next situation is she couldn't solve the problem all right now my question would be how's the problem the problem is frustrating how she feeling she feels frustrated I hope you were able to answer those correctly with the e d and ing adjectives here's the next situation all right English grammar drives me crazy my question is how do you feel about English grammar English grammar is confusing how do you feel I feel confused now I know that some of this grammar may be confusing but I hope that after watching this lesson you are less confused and if you are less confused and and not frustrated anymore but actually excited because you learned something new then I recommend that everyone hit that like button and I'm just trying to get in a quick little review of everything we learned today that's all for right now thank you guys so much for watching and I'll see you

next time

LESSON 71 OF 749

3 Words You Need to Know for a Doctor's Checkup

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

so let's learn some well vocabulary that you might encounter at a doctor's office so if you go in there uh you may see one of these right here this is a stethoscope can you say stethoscope yes yes yeah and how do we use a stethoscope do you want to share it yeah it goes put in your ear and you would listen to somebody's heart to the heart yeah exactly the next one is well this right here this is a shot and you would use it with the verb get to get a shot and it would probably go in the arm right here yeah you don't like shots I I don't really like them either and then this is a thermometer and what do we do with the thermometer do you want to show it yeah how about me what is it yeah and we put in the ear yeah and what is it it's red oh no oh no

[Music] oh

LESSON 72 OF 749

40 Super Useful Phrases to Show that You Care

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

we all have close relationships family friends colleagues so i want to teach you some super useful and very common phrases that you need to know to help show that you care and also help you build meaningful relationships so let's start with travel if somebody's getting ready to leave it's very common for another person to say travel safe or safe travels mean the same thing but they're very useful if somebody is getting ready to leave now if you want to be a little more specific and somebody is getting ready to board an airplane and they're going to fly then you could say have a safe flight if a person is going to be traveling by train or bus or car in that case i think it's pretty common for somebody to say have a safe trip now when that person it's they're on their way and you want to make sure that they're safe another thing that that you may tell them is let me know when you get there i just want to know that you're safe let me know when you get there or you could say text me when you get home because when you're traveling people can be a bit busy they may not make a phone call but they can send a text message and you could tell that person text me when you get home so if somebody is away and you want to tell that person that you miss them let's talk about some of those useful phrases because i think overwhelmingly it's very common just to say i miss you all right it's it's very direct you're letting somebody know how you feel you can add a little emphasis and say oh i really miss you or you might tell somebody i wish you were here that's letting that person know that that you want them by your side i wish you were here and you could also say that by telling someone i'm lost without you that's even giving it a little more emphasis that you really need that person i'm lost without you i just need you by my side i wish you were here i really miss you now if somebody's away and you're getting ready to see that person again and you want to tell them that you're excited a very common phrase that somebody could use is i can't wait to see you and you can actually change that last part and and put some different things in there just make sure that you're using the base verb i can't wait to see you i can't wait to give you a big hug you could also show excitement by telling someone i look forward to seeing you once again we can change the end of that sentence but this time you're going to use the gerund i look forward to seeing you i look forward to giving you a big hug and i could tell you when you are away i really miss you i'm just lost without you and i can't wait to hear from you down in the comments and just let me know that you've subscribed to the channel and that that i can become your english teacher my name is wes and and that's what interactive english is all about just trying to help you reach your fluency goals if you are looking to build relationships in english with with a friend or another family member perhaps even something that's a little more romantic remember valentine's day it's right around the corner then i want to share with you an amazing offer from lingoda who is the sponsor of today's lesson and if you don't already know about lingoda it is an online language school where you can learn english business english spanish german or french and right now you can get 30 percent off 30 off a monthly subscription which is very flexible you just pay each month or you can get 30 off a marathon course in which you commit to learning for either 3 6 or 12 months all you need to do is click on the link down in the description to start taking some classes and start building some new relationships one of the best things about this offer is that when you sign up you get a free seven-day trial that includes three group lessons or one private lesson free of charge and over the years i have built a relationship with lingoda as you know i share with you these great opportunities but i've also studied with lingoda you can see me right there taking a class in spanish and the classes really helped me build my speaking confidence as well as improve my pronunciation and i enjoyed studying with lingoda because well these are small group classes which meant i had plenty of opportunities to speak i had qualified teachers using a proven curriculum the classes are available 24 7 so i could easily plan them around my schedule and i got to study from the comfort of my own home it's a very calm and relaxing environment and with lingoda there are always cash back rewards just click on my exclusive link down in the description and when you sign up the 30 discount it's automatically applied so i hope you take advantage of this amazing opportunity to build some new relationships make some new friends as well as take your english to the next level so let's get back to those super useful phrases that you need to know in order to show that you care and we've already talked about phrases when somebody's away they're traveling or they're just not with you so now let's talk about phrases that you should use when somebody's with you especially if you want to show them a little bit of support you could say let me help you with that and i think this is very useful if if somebody is carrying something or maybe somebody needs help with some work and you can say yeah let me help you with that or if you want to tell somebody that you will be there by their side you could say

i'll go with you you're not going to be alone because i'll go with you or if you want to express that they have your support if they absolutely need it you could say i got your back all right it's a little more informal but a great phrase i got your back if you want to build someone's confidence you could say i believe in you people love hearing that i i believe in you that you will continue to improve your english skills you could also help build someone's confidence by saying well believe in yourself if you believe in yourself then yeah show me let me know by hitting that like button you could also say you can do anything if you put your mind to it this is a a known expression that means well if you focus your attention on something you work hard then you can achieve your goals you can do anything if you put your mind to it and then if you want to show some support for something that that's going to happen in the future you could tell them you're going to do great all right i believe in you you're gonna do great if something is happening at that moment well then you could support them and say yeah you're doing great all right believe in yourself you're doing great you can do anything if you put your mind to it again you can use these phrases one after the other depends on how much support you really want to show now let's talk about expressing joy so if you hear some some good news somebody is going to have a baby or maybe they get a new job then you could say i'm so happy for you this is a very common phrase i'm so happy for you or you could say congrats on something and you could put different things in there congrats on the engagement congrats on the new job or you could just tell them that's wonderful news okay and you can replace wonderful with other adjectives that's great news that's amazing news i don't know why i think i often use wonderful that's wonderful news and then if you want to express love and and this is more in a romantic sense you could tell somebody you are my everything okay you're letting them know just how much they mean to you you are my everything or you could say you complete me this is a famous line from the movie jerry maguire saying that well this person it's a they're a big part of your life you complete me perhaps you want to tell your loved one you are my strength all right lets them know how important they are because i think yeah many of us we want to be stronger one thing i'll say about those phrases you are my everything you complete me you are my strength it's not something

you're going to use on a daily basis it is a little more meaningful more serious it's something you might say on just very important occasions like valentine's or an anniversary and you really want to let somebody know that you love them another phrase related to love is saying well she's my better half or he's my better half this is an idiom and when you say this you're not talking directly to the person that you love you're more referring to your partner or your spouse as your better half meaning that well they they are the better part of the relationship okay your better half and sometimes you could just refer to your spouse as my better half my better half asked me to do something or my better half suggested that i do something good idiom to know and then if you're in a relationship and you want it to become more serious you could say i'm ready to take it to the next level all right you would tell this to your boyfriend or girlfriend you're you're ready to make more of a commitment i'm ready to take it to the next level and then if you want to offer a little bit of comfort you could tell someone one day at a time okay you would say this if a person is in a difficult situation and they should maybe just you know proceed slowly focus on one thing that comes up one day at a time or maybe it's very common to tell somebody it's going to be okay in this case you're not you're not solving a problem for another person you're just trying to offer a little bit of reassurance that that the end result will will be okay all right it's going to be okay if someone is experiencing a difficult situation that is ongoing then you could try to offer them a little bit of comfort and say you're going to get through this all right i believe in you you're going to get through this another phrase that you can use which means the same thing is you will overcome this no matter what the challenge is you will overcome this and then let's talk about some nice reminders that you could tell someone that just shows that you care these are very common you could tell someone i'm so proud of you i think many of us like hearing when another person is proud of our achievements our accomplishments and just say i'm so proud of you or you could say you're the best okay it's a great compliment you're the best if you want to say somebody is a rare individual you could tell them you're one in a million there are not many people out there like you you're one in a million or perhaps someone does something that that really helps you out and you appreciate it you could let them know and say you made my day or something a little similar to that maybe you could tell them what would i do without you all right letting this person know that they're very valuable and you might often say this to a friend a family member a colleague gosh what would i do without you and now let's talk about just some general phrases to show that you care if someone is maybe a little tired and you want them to take it easy you could say get some rest all right you know i just i just want you to get some rest or if somebody's getting ready to go to bed tell them sweet dreams this is a phrase that you would more likely say to a loved one like a spouse or a child you know sweet dreams hey watch your step this is more specific if you're walking and you're you're telling someone that you want them to be careful watch your step or if a person is sick which is also a little more specific you could say i hope you feel better i re i really hope you feel better if something shocking or maybe a little spontaneous is going to occur a good thing you could say i have a surprise for you all right who does not like good surprises and then this well this it shows that you care if you are eating uh with someone else and they they have something between their teeth i think this has happened to all of us you could just let that person know you have something in your teeth okay whether it's a friend a colleague a family member or even a stranger it's just yeah it shows that you care you don't want them walking around with food in between their teeth so you want to tell them you have something in your teeth so i just gave you a lot of very common and useful phrases and well it's a lot to take in so i hope that you get some rest and when it comes to building your vocabulary just just take it one day at a time because i i believe in you and i hope that you believe in yourself and very soon we're going to take our relationship to the next level okay i i don't know what that means but i just want to get a little bit of review in all seriousness i hope that as i went through these phrases that you recognize them you've heard them before and i also hope that you're you're using them in conversation and try to do that because they are very common they're very useful if you enjoyed the lesson please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and i will see you next time so long

LESSON 73 OF 749

4 Important Phrasal Verbs with CHECK | Vocabulary Lesson

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

We have an amazing lesson for you today, we are talking about phrasal verbs with check, and I have four different prepositions that follow them. So let's get to it! Hello and welcome to our global classroom. We have an amazing lesson for you today. But first, I'd like to remind you to join our social media classes. Because if you practice with us you can improve your English even more. Today, we are talking about phrasal verbs with CHECK. And phrasal verbs are difficult for English language learners because it can...they can have so many meanings, and the prepositions are the ones that change these meanings. So people get confused, naturally. So if you're having trouble with phrasal verbs, I understand.

Another reason that phrasal verbs are confusing is because we have to memorize them to be able to use them correctly. And many times they don't make sense. For example, I can PUT ON a jacket, but I can't PUT OFF a jacket. I have to TAKE it OFF, so it can be confusing. Today, we're talking about phrasal verbs with CHECK. And I have four different prepositions that follow them. So let's get to it! The first phrasal verb I want to talk to you about today is CHECK OUT. And this verb is one of those that has multiple meanings. So let's go over the first one. The first meaning is the one that I think all of us are familiar with.

Which is CHECK OUT of a hotel, for example. And it means to settle the bill before leaving a hotel. You can check out of a hotel or you can check out of a hospital. Before you leave the hotel, you have to pay or you have to make sure that everything is in order. And when it is, we say they you check out.

Now the second meaning for this phrasal verb is related to a book. So you can check out a book from the library. Now I know many of us at this point use Kindles and other devices to read books. But libraries are still very, very important. And when we take a book from the library, we say that we check it out. Now the third meaning for CHECK OUT is a little different than the first two. And this one means to investigate or look at. So for example, let's say you're walking down the street and you notice someone wearing a really nice dress. So you might want to say, "Check out that cool dress."

It means "look." Look at. Look at that cool dress. I do this all the time. I always check out what people are wearing. So that I can get inspired. That's it for CHECK OUT. Now let's go to the next verb. The next verb is CHECK FOR. And this one is easier than the previous one because as far as I can tell it only has one meaning, and that is "try to find." So if we CHECK FOR something, we try to find something. For example, when you go to the doctor, maybe they check for health problems. They check your heart. They check your lungs. Hopefully everything's okay. But when you go to the doctor they check for health problems.

Our third phrasal verb is CHECK INTO. CHECK INTO to has two different meanings. The first meaning is CHECK INTO a hospital or a hotel. So remember how we talked about checking out of a hotel. Well, you can certainly CHECK INTO a hotel or, hopefully not, but a hospital as well. It just means to enter. Now the second meaning of this verb is a little trickier because it means something completely different, which is to investigate.

Let's see an example. Now in this sentence, I am trying to find out who the cookie thief is. And...so I'm looking around, I really want a cookie, and I really don't know who stole my cookie. I bet it was Wes. Our last phrasal verb for today with check it's CHECK OFF. And...drumroll. This only has one meaning. No, it doesn't. Does it? Yes, it does. To CHECK OFF means to put a little tick next to an item on a list to indicate that you have done it. For example, when you have a shopping list and you go shopping for groceries many times we put little ticks as we get things. We CHECK these things OFF our list to indicate that things are done.

We've gotten them. Everything is okay. Feels good. Check, check, check, check, check, check, check, check, check, check, check, check, CHECK OFF. By the way, if you're wondering what a bucket list is, it's a pretty cool idiom that talks about the things that you are going to do before you die. It's a bucket list. There's a movie about it too, actually. Well that is it with a phrasal verbs for today, but we are not finished yet. We need to practice. Otherwise we can't remember them. In the comments below, I would like you to use one of the four phrasal verbs that we talked about today. And you can use any of the meanings as long as you use them correctly.

LESSON 74 OF 749

4 Things You Won't Learn in an English Textbook

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today i want to talk to you about four things that you will not learn in a textbook that's coming up [Music] hey everyone my name is wes this is interactive english which is the place that you want to be to practice and improve your english skills especially if you want to learn things that you might not find in a textbook because today i want to talk to you about four different things that you're not likely to learn in a textbook because when people want to learn another language i think it's very common that they use a textbook to learn and study grammar or build their vocabulary but you're not going to learn everything about a language especially when you're talking about things that might be a little more informal that are more casual that you possibly might hear in everyday conversation so the first thing i want to talk to you about is just playing around with the language and really creating new words that's right in english i think it's fair to just create new words especially when you're talking about using prefixes and suffixes let me give you a few different examples and i'm going to use some suffixes let's start with the suffix hubble if you use this suffix what it means is that you are able to do something like you are capable or perhaps you're there's some water and you want to know if it's drinkable but you can play around with it and perhaps use it in different ways that people in certain areas might understand for example i used to live in uh the san francisco bay area and a form of public transportation was the bart it's uh it was kind of like it was like their metro system it stands for bay area rapid transit but people would just say the bart like

oh how are you going to get into the city i'm going to take the bart now if i if there was a situation and i wanted to go somewhere and i was not sure what i needed to do in order to get there did i have to take a bus might i have to take a taxi or could i take the bart maybe i would ask somebody and say hey is it bartable am i able to use the bart in order to get there now this is uh it's not a word that you're going to find in the dictionary but i was taking this uh the name of the metro system you can add that suffix and really kind of create this new word and if you were to ask somebody in san francisco if if some location is bartable they're going to know exactly what you're talking about let's look at one more suffix which is ish we use ish to say that something is kind of like like something else or similar for example colors i think it's very common to say that something is like this other color like oh it's purple-ish it's kind of like that but we can use this informally you could actually just use it just as the prefix you don't really need to say it you don't need to connect it to another base word maybe you're asking somebody oh is this person really good at football and you could say well ish they're they're kind of good so again you may hear people use this informally they're not going to attach it to another word if they want to say something is kind of like something else they may just say ish something else that you may not learn in textbooks which i think is very important is learning english outside of american english or british english and i think it's very useful nowadays because english is a world language i think it's very helpful to learn other english varieties but most textbooks are going to be written based on like standard american english or standard british english but i think it's very useful and relevant to learn other english varieties and learn how they use the english language i'll give you an example uh in india i learned that people will use the word prepone and when i first heard this i was like pre-pone what what is that well typically i think people may be familiar with the word to postpone something if you want to postpone something like a meeting you're going to push it off and do it later if you want to pre-pwn something it means that you're going to do it earlier so you might say okay let's uh let's pre-pone the meeting let's have the meeting earlier and when i found this out i was like that is awesome i love that it's very helpful to learn different english varieties and often that's not something you're going to find in many textbooks something else you may not learn in a textbook is mirroring and this i think is very useful when it comes to speaking and listening because what mirroring is it's when you repeat a few of the words that you hear so if you're having a conversation and i'm listening to somebody speak i may repeat a couple of words to them and i do this for uh several reasons first it shows that i'm paying attention to what they're saying and shows that i'm interested in the conversation and second it gives the other person an opportunity to provide some more information that is mirroring so perhaps uh we're having a conversation and you're talking about some party that you went to and you say i went to this party last night it was crazy and i said oh it was crazy think many learners out there they want to practice speaking but they might not have confidence in what they're saying possibly because they've only been studying using a textbook so when it comes to confidence you really need to practice and this goes pretty much for just about anything think about a sport the more you practice a sport the more you do it the more confidence you're going to have in your abilities the same goes for for language if you have to do something like give a presentation if you're going to give a presentation it's very important that you practice and practice and practice some more because the more you practice the more confidence you're going to have that you're going to give an excellent presentation so that's why i think it's very important to actually get be engaged in a conversation and practice your speaking because the more that you do that the more confidence you're going to have in your speaking abilities you're going to have more confidence that you are using the right grammar that you're using the appropriate vocabulary and that you're you're speaking clearly and using the correct pronunciation the more you practice the more confidence you're going to have and the textbook may not really help you with that but something that will help you build your speaking confidence is taking the interactive english speaking course called speak up this is a speaking course that is designed to help you speak clearly speak confidently and speak effectively and each week what we do there there's a different topic and we're going to have a lot of different discussion questions about that topic do different speaking activities will break into small groups which means you'll have more opportunities to speak and we'll we'll work on your pronunciation as well it's a little bit of everything all of it is designed to truly help you improve your speaking fluency you can check out the link down below in the description if you'd like to learn more about the speak up course learn more about the schedule the price check out that link it's down in the description i hope that you found this lesson useful and i'm not saying that you should stop using textbooks textbooks can be very helpful i just want you to understand that when it comes to learning a language that you may not learn everything from a textbook there are different things that you can do and that you should do to truly improve your fluency skills such as taking the speak up course check out that link down below in the description okay that's the last time i'm gonna mention it thank you guys so much for watching and i will see you next time

LESSON 75 OF 749

50 American Idioms in 60 Minutes | Sound Instantly More Fluent!

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I'm going to teach you 50 idioms. That's right, 50 idioms that you can use in just everyday conversation. And if you are someone who enjoys building your vocabulary using idioms when you're having a casual conversation, please subscribe, turn on notifications. That way, I can become your teacher. My name is Wes. The channel is Interactive English. It's all about helping you reach your fluency goals. And if you would like to get these notes right here next to me, click on the link down below in the description. Join my email community and you can just better remember these idioms, learning how and when to use them. So, let's just let's just go ahead and jump into it with our first idiom, which is to twist someone's arm. This means to persuade someone to do something that maybe you just really don't want to do. And in that case, you're trying to twist their arm.

it generally has a little bit more of a negative connotation. For example, I asked you to join my email community. I am not going to twist your arm. If it's not something you're interested in, that's okay with me. I I'm not going to twist your arm in order to get you to do that. So, just keep in mind you're persuading someone maybe in a little bit more of a forceful way. Here's an example sentence down below. There's no need to twist my arm. I will do it. The next idiom is this idiom is right up your alley. [laughter] So, if you use this idiom, you're just saying that something is the the type of thing, the exact thing that somebody really likes and enjoys. It's right up your alley. As you can see, there is a picture of a bowling alley. And you're really just using this to add emphasis. And instead of me saying, "Look, I really think that you are going to enjoy this lesson. You're going to learn a lot of new idioms." Instead, I could just say, "This lesson is right up your alley." I could also say, "The game we're going to play is right up your alley." So once again, I'm just adding emphasis, saying that this is the exact thing that you like, you enjoy when I tell you that it's right up your alley. The next idiom is one that I think is very common. I really I you maybe you know it already. I hope that you use it because it is so common in just casual conversation. And this is something that I say all the time. Instead of saying, "Yeah, I'm a little sick." I would use I'm a little under the weather or I'm a bit under the weather or I would just say I'm under the weather. I'm feeling under the weather. So often you may use this with the verb feel to feel under the weather. But this is commonly used in everyday conversation because I think we can all relate to this. From time to time we get sick and instead of saying that you could use this idiom, yeah, I'm feeling a little under the weather. So, please, the next time you're feeling a little sick, just use this idiom instead.

Highly useful. I I thought this was funny, so I thought I would share it with you. Can't work today. I'm feeling a little under the weather. I think I can relate to this, and I'm sure you can, too. Maybe it's a beautiful day. We don't want to go to work or we don't want to do other responsibilities. And we might tell, you know, I'm I'm feeling a little under the weather. to make ends meet. This means to earn enough money to live on. So if you are making ends meet, then you are earning enough money to buy groceries, pay your rent, maybe pay some other bills, and you can say that you are making ends meet. Now, this is not a great situation. Typically, I would say not not that it has a negative connotation, but it really it really shows that there is some difficulty. So, you may use this with a verb like struggling. You are struggling to make ends meet. To struggle to make ends meet, or maybe you are barely making ends meet. You barely have enough money to pay for the things that you need.

Once again, I this may be an idiom that that you can relate to. Think about when you you first finish university. You're looking for a job. You're you may be struggling a little bit. You don't have a lot of savings. You don't you're not making a lot of money and you are just making ends meet or you're trying to make ends meet or barely making ends meet or struggling to make ends meet. Those those are some common collocations with this idiom. The next one is to take something with a grain of salt. So th this is something that I would recommend that you do. It just means to not completely believe something that you are told because you may think it's unlikely to be true. This is a great example. Don't believe everything you read on social media. You should take it with a massive grain of salt. And I'm emphasizing the word massive because I I think there's a lot of misinformation on social media. So, I'm adding a little emphasis when I say take it with a massive grain of salt to give you uh an example of a difference between American English and British English. So, in the US, which is where I'm from, I would say that I am going to take something with a grain of salt. In the UK, you may hear somebody say take something with a pinch of salt. The meaning is the same. But I wanted to point out the difference between these two very common English varieties. To take something with a grain of salt or to take something with a pinch of salt. The next idiom is to take a rain check. I think this one is maybe a little more common in the United States.

And you would use this to tell someone that you can not accept an invitation to do something, now, but you would maybe like to do it at just a later time. And you would say, "Look, I can't do it right now, but let's take a rain check. I can't go running with you. I'll take a rain check." And of course, if it's raining outside, then yeah, you're not going to want to go running outside. And then, yeah, you definitely tell somebody, look, I'll take a rain check.

Now, to give you a little bit of a nuance with this idiom, I think that sometimes people would say this when they want to delay something and you're really not planning to do it. Maybe I say, "Hey, would you like to go get a coffee?" And you're thinking, "H, I don't really, Wes, I don't like this guy. I don't want to spend much time with him, but I don't want to be rude. I don't want to be mean." And in that case, I'll say, "Look, let's take a rain check." Now, that's not always the case. Maybe you actually are going to do this thing later and would like to and you could use this idiom. But just keep in mind, sometimes people would use this when they don't really want to tell you no, but they also don't want to do the thing that you're inviting them to do. And in that case, they may use this idiom and say, "Let's let's take a rain check." To play it by ear. This is an idiom that I love probably because I use it quite often. And what this means is to decide uh what to do when you know what is happening rather than you know planning in advance. I use this a lot maybe when talking about what am I going to do for the day or if I'm traveling, what are my plans. Generally, I'll have an idea as to what I would like to do, where I would like to go. But I like to be flexible. If something happens, like maybe it's raining or something else is going on and I want to be flexible and then change the plan, I might say, let's just play it by ear. So whether you're traveling and you have an outline of what you're going to do during the day, but you want to be flexible, you could say, "Let's just play it by ear." Or even you're talking with your family.

Like I said, I use this quite often. My wife might say, "What are we going to do uh tomorrow on Saturday? Seems like it's going to be a beautiful day. Then maybe we'll grab some lunch out somewhere." I'll say, "Well, okay. You never know what's going to happen with the weather. Let's just play it by ear. I think that's a good idea. Let's do it. but let's just play it by ear and see what happens. So, it is a great idiom, not just because I like to use it. I just think it's a good one that you can certainly use in conversation whenever you're talking about potential plans that you're getting ready to make and you can just play it by ear. Now, the not the opposite of playing it by ear, but on one end of the spectrum would be just to wing it. And if you are winging it, then you are doing something without preparation. So, uh, you could say, I didn't prepare a speech. I'm just going to wing it. Or maybe you're traveling somewhere and I say, well, what are you going to do the first day that you're there? Maybe you have no plan. You don't plan to come up with a plan and you're just going to walk out the door. Say, I'm just going to wing it. Let's just wing it. Let's not come up with a plan. It's a little more adventurous, but depending on the context, like if you're giving a speech or a presentation, sometimes it's not the best idea to just go ahead and wing it. You could get into trouble depending on the situation. But it is a useful idiom. If you ever want to say that you're going to do something without preparation, you could say that you're just going to wing it.

I thought this was funny, so I wanted to share it with you. I'm going to wing it. And it says me about something I most definitely should not wing. this. I feel like I've done this before and I don't have a plan. I'm just going to wing it. And then it really goes poorly and I think to myself, I should have uh I should have come up with a plan. I should not have been winging it. Off the beaten path. Now, I think this is a great idiom that you can use when talking about travel. So, it just means that it is not known or popular with many people. So, if you're talking about travel and you want to avoid the crowds, which is something that I like to do. I don't want to be around too many people. And maybe I'm coming to your hometown or your country. And I ask you, I say, "Where can I go that's a little off the beaten path? I don't want to be around a bunch of tourists. I want to find these secret spots that most people are unaware of. Where can I go that is off the beaten path?" Now, you may know that by the way that I'm using it, it does have a little bit more of a positive connotation. These are places that it may or may not be secret, but these are places that people tend to enjoy because there's not many people. A lot of people don't know about it. And you could say it is off the beaten path. This beach is certainly off the beaten path. You can see there's nobody there. It's a beautiful beach.

and maybe you tell me about this place that is off the beaten path and I'm very happy about it because I want to spend the day at a beautiful beach without many people, without many tourists and just go somewhere that is off the beaten path. The next idiom to blow off some steam. This is something that we all need to do from time to time. It just means to do or say something that just helps you get rid of this well strong feelings, energy, stress, and you just want to blow off some steam. I'm going to go for a long run if I want to blow off some steam. And generally, I think a lot of people will do some sort of exercise if they want to blow off some steam. You're going to go for a run.

you're going to go to the gym. And that's not always the case. You may do other things that may not be too physical. Perhaps you like to do yoga in order to blow off some steam. But you could also read a book or watch a TV show if you want to just get rid of some stress and blow off some steam. If I'm ever stressed out and I need to blow off some steam, I'll probably just walk around the neighborhood. Here are some news headlines to give you a better idea as to how this idiom is used in context. Thinking of hitting the gym to blow off some steam? An angry workout is a bad idea. Research says or drop the vape.

There are other ways to blow off some steam. I told you that it's not always used to talk about a physical activity, but I think it often is. And finally, every once in a while, a guy has to blow off some steam. I think that's true for everyone. Every once in a while, I think we all need to get rid of that pent up energy and we just need to blow off some steam. Then we have down to the wire. This is referring to a situation that is full of suspense. And what you're referring to is the last minute, the very end. So I could say, "This is it. The game is coming down to the wire." And that would be a great association. Think of a sporting event.

Think of a a match. Doesn't really matter. And it's at the very end. It's close. There's a lot of suspense because you don't know which team is going to win. And you could say it's really it's coming down to the wire. So you're talking about the end but there is that element of suspense. If we're talking about a project and there is a deadline and you don't know whether you are going to meet the deadline and there's a lot of suspense and you might say oh you know I'm I'm stressed out it's coming down to the wire. I don't know what's going to happen. and I hope that I'll finish in time, but right now I got to work hard because yeah, things are really coming down to the wire. And in that case, probably there's a lot of stress. You may also need to blow up some steam in that situation. Now, down to the wire, it is a little different than in the home stretch. Or sometimes you may not need in and you could just use the home stretch. The reason why it's a little different, even though the meaning is the same, because the home stretch refers to the last part of something that's being done. So, both of those idioms refer to like the final period of something, but in the home stretch, you're only talking about that. You're not really referring to the suspense of, oh, what's going to happen? I'm stressed out. I don't know if I'm going to finish. Basically, you're just saying that this is the final period or part of an activity. We are in the home stretch. Think about that picture because this idiom actually comes from horse racing. At the end of the race, the announcer might say they're coming down the home stretch and that is it is the final part of the race. when they are in the home stretch it. But I could use it when talking about work as well. Like in my example sentence, the project is almost done. We are in the home stretch and we're just at the the final the end of the project. [laughter] I just like to throw in these funny memes from time to time just give you a little uh make it a little more entertaining, a little more humorous. We all need a good laugh. It's a better way to learn. So in this case, you know, this this cat is at home and that is that is certainly a home stretch and that is a a rather big stretch. The next idiom is in the doghouse. If you are in the doghouse, it just means that you are in a bad situation because someone is angry at you. And often you're going to use this idiom or you're going to hear other people use it uh when they're you're talking about a relationship. So for example, this did not happen. It's just an example. But if if I were to tell you, I forgot my wife's birthday.

Now I'm in the doghouse. So keep in mind someone is upset with you when you are in the doghouse. So, if my wife is upset, if she's upset at me, then I would be the one saying, "Yeah, I I'm in the doghouse. I need to maybe buy some flowers, buy a present in order to get out of the doghouse." So, this picture, I think, is a also a good association when thinking about it. You see that this guy, he did something wrong. He screwed up and he is now sleeping outside in the doghouse because uh I I imagine his wife is upset with him. So keep that in mind that often you're going to use this with talking about a relationship either husband, wife, boyfriend, girlfriend. You could use this talking about at work. Maybe you make a big mistake and your boss is really upset, angry at you, and then you tell a colleague, "Yeah, you know, right now I'm I'm in the doghouse." You could also use it in in that context as well to be at a loss for words. And this just means you are unable to speak. You are speechless. Really, it is a it is interchangeable with speechless. To be at a loss for words. You are going to use this with the verb to be. I could say, "I can't believe it. I'm at a loss for words." Now, there are a variety of reasons as to why someone might be at a loss for words. they are very surprised or they're very upset or maybe they're very angry. And in any of those situations, if you cannot speak, you could instead of saying, "Well, I'm speechless," you could just tell the other person, "Look, I'm I'm at a loss for words." To be in the same boat. This just means to be in the same unpleasant situation as other people.

So, well, let me just give you the sentence because I think it gives you a better idea as to how to use this idiom. I have I have a similar problem. We're in the same boat. You're really using this to talk about the same situation or at least say that you are in the same situation that as someone else. Generally speaking, it is a problem because it is an unpleasant situation and you want to say, "Look, yeah, we're we're in the same boat." If I tell you, uh, look, my wife is very upset with me and right now I'm in the doghouse. And you might say, ah, yeah, I have the same problem, um, you know, with my partner and I am in the doghouse. They say, "Oh, okay. I guess I guess we're in the same boat." And we are in the same unpleasant situation. if you are in the same boat.

[laughter] I like this uh this little comic right here is saying, "Sure, glad that hole isn't uh at our end of the boat." Uh even though little do they know they have the same problem and they are in the same boat and quite literally in this case they are in the same boat. But I think it's a good example uh to to demonstrate this idiom. pick up the tab. Maybe you've heard this. Perhaps you even use this, and I think that's great if you do. Uh it just means to pay the bill, such as food or or drinks at a bar. Now, also very commonly used would be to pick up the check. You go out to a restaurant or a cafe, go get a coffee at a coffee shop, and I say, "Look, I'm I'll pick up the check. Don't worry about it." But if I just want to use another word, you could refer. You could say the tab because the tab literally refers to the bill. I'll pick up the tab. Don't worry about it. Whether you're at a restaurant, a cafe, or a bar, and you pick up the tab. Just keep in mind that you're really going to use it in that context. I wouldn't use it [clears throat] to talk about other really other things like purchasing an airline ticket or something like that. You're really going to use this when talking about out at some restaurant or a bar or coffee shop. Who's going to pay pay for the bill? Pick up the check. Pick up the tab. We go out and I say I ask you, I say, "Look, whose turn is it to to pick up the tab? Do you mind picking up the tab?" Because I'm I'm barely making ends meet. Okay? I just want to review. Throw that idiom back in there just to to review it because I know I know I'm giving you a lot right now. Hopefully, you are already familiar with some of these idioms. And if you've heard of them before and it's a little bit of review, that's always great. And if you learn something new, I love when that happens. And you can let me know by hitting that like button. If some of these idioms are new, yeah, let me know. Hit that like button. Then we have to bend over backwards. This just means to to try extremely hard to help or please someone. And you may actually use that bend over backwards to help someone. I've bend I've been bending over backwards to help you. So that is a little bit of a collocation with this idiom. It's frequently used if you are bending over backwards to help someone.

Often I I feel like in this context uh you're basically saying I don't need to do this. I don't have to do it. I'm doing it because I want to help you and I'm going out of my way to help you and I'm bending over backwards to assist you in some way. And you're bending over backwards behind the eightball. Just looking at the picture, you can tell this is a this is an idiom that comes from billiards because uh it means to be in a difficult situation or in a worse situation than other people. And think about it, I don't know if you play billiards, but if you are trying to um if you're playing and you are behind the eightball, it's not a good position to be in. We didn't start the project immediately and now we're behind the eightball. So it is it it does have a negative connotation because we're referring to a difficult situation. So it's not a good situation to be in if you are behind the aball. Elbow grease.

All right. I I say it like this because of the meaning. It just means to put a lot of physical effort, especially when cleaning. You can get that stain out, but you may need to use a little elbow grease. I think that, you know, cleaning around the home. We've all done this and there is some type of stain or maybe just a, you know, somebody spilled something on the table and you're trying to clean it and it's not coming out. And what do you do? You give it give a little elbow grease. You try to, you know, really push down on it. That's what I'm pushing down on the table.

And you're using a little more physical effort. and you need to use a little elbow grease. Give it a little elbow grease. So, whenever you're talking about or you hear elbow grease, then you know that you're talking about more physical effort. But just keep in mind the context. situation apart from cleaning that you might say like elbow grease. I guess maybe if you're trying to take the top off of something and it's really hard, you just got to give it a little elbow grease. or maybe you're um fixing something. You're using tools and you really need to push hard or turn hard, use more physical effort. In that case, I I guess too, you could also say that you need to use a little elbow grease at the hardware store. It's like where where do you keep the elbow grease? Uh so, like I said, maybe you could use it in this situation as well when you're fixing something tools and you need to use a little more physical effort. You need a little elbow grease.

[laughter] yet you're just saying that you know this person not paying attention, not very practical or realistic and he or she has his or her head in the clouds. Then we have uh through thick and thin. And this just refers to going through many difficult times over a long period uh of time. And really you're going to use it with the past participle been. And you would say that you and someone else have been through thick and thin. You're using this in the context of a relationship. And generally, it's a relationship with someone that that you've known over a long period of time because of the meaning. I would say, well, my wife and I, we have been through thick and thin. My brother and I have been through thick and thin. I have had some colleagues that I've worked with for a really long time. And yeah, I could say that that we've been through thick and thin. My best friend, we've been through thick and thin. So, I'm giving you examples of people that I've had a long relationship with. And if you just want to express that you've had ups and downs, uh, good times and bad times, this is another way of saying that, that we've been through thick and thin. Here is a great visual, very, very touching. It's just like a like these these two cats when they were kittens and now they're older, but they have been friends through thick and thin. Great example to get or to have your ducks in a row. You could use this really with either verb. It's commonly used with both, but it just means to be well prepared or organized for something that's going to happen. I think this is a great idiom when talking about work and you want to say that someone is very well organized.

They're very well prepared and this person has his or her ducks in a row. I could say my colleague really has his ducks in a row, knows what's going on, does not have his head in the clouds, and just has his ducks in a row. Another example, when talking about work, I said this is a great work idiom. his workspace is chaotic. He really needs to get his ducks in a row. So, in this case, I'm saying somebody needs to do this. They need to get prepared and they need to get their ducks in a row. So, great idiom, especially when talking about work. I thought this picture was funny, so I I wanted to share it with you. All ears.

And generally, you're going to use it with the verb to be. to be all ears. You are waiting eagerly to hear about something. I think often you're going to use this kind of as a standalone statement. I would say I I'm all ears. You want to tell me something and I'm I eager I'm waiting eagerly to hear what you have to say and I tell you, look, I'm all ears. I am paying close attention to what you're saying. I'm all ears. This dog right here is certainly all ears and just really excited to hear what you have to say. To get wind of something. This means to hear a piece of information that someone else was trying to keep secret.

So maybe I have a secret that I don't want you to know about. and maybe I've told a few other people and you approach me and tell me about this like you know what it is and I might say well how did you get wind of this how did you hear about this information that I was trying to keep secret another example she got wind of the surprise party and pretended not to know so in this case they of course it's a surprise party you don't want we don't want her to know but she got wind of the party and in that case yeah I I think it is polite to pretend that, oh, I had no idea what was going on. But this is a great idiom because it's very specific. Instead of having to basically use the meaning to describe the situation, how did you hear about this piece of information that I was trying to keep secret? It's very wordy.

That's a that's a lot a lot to say. Instead, I could just say, well, how did you get wind of this? very simple, very clean, very precise to get wind of something. Here are some more examples to give you a better idea as to how it's used in context. These are different news headlines. Fiji police get wind of unreported drug cases in schools or cancellations flood for in Caldor Hotel as guests get wind of lockdown. And finally, this Hot Wheels set won't last long once collectors get wind of it and they find out this well, this new set is coming out and they get wind of it and that's why it's not going to last long.

Then we have the idiom to stick your neck out. This just means to take a risk and really do something that might turn out wrong, especially if you stick your neck out. A lot of times you might do this for another person and I, you know, I'm going to try to help you in some way and I'm going to stick my neck out and try to help you because we are friends even though it could be risky for me and I could get in trouble. So, think about uh again just using you and me as an example. Maybe we're colleagues and our our boss is upset about something that happened on the project and it was maybe your responsibility and you're thinking, "Oh gosh, the boss is going to be so upset and I am going to be in the doghouse." I say, "Look, don't worry. We were both working on it even though uh if it was your mistake. Uh I'm going to help you. It was our our fault." And you might say, "Oh, I appreciate it.

you know, you sticking your neck out for me and also taking the blame for this. You're trying to help someone and you're putting yourself at risk to stick your neck out for someone. Then we have out of the loop. This refers to a person in a group who is unaware of information and doesn't take part in the decisionmaking process. And you could say that this person is just out of the loop. The loop would be the people that know what's going on. And you have somebody who doesn't know what's going on. Maybe their head head is in the clouds. I don't know. But you could just say this person is out of the loop. He is completely out of the loop. So really, you might use this when talking about someone that perhaps they should know what's going on, but they're not paying attention. they're not working doing the work they should be doing.

Say, "Yeah, he's kind of out of the loop." Keep in mind, you could use this the other way and say that you are in the loop. And in that case, it's the opposite. You know what's happening. You are aware of what's going on if you are in the loop. And maybe I ask you, you know, please keep me in the loop. I don't want to be out of the loop. I want to know what's going on. So, uh, please keep me in the loop. When it rains, it pours. You can see that uh I'm using a full stop at the end there because really you're going to use this idiom as a standalone statement just commenting that when one bad thing happens it's typically followed by other bad things and it just it can make the situation worse or maybe it makes your day worse and you could then say yeah when it rains it pours. You're not really helping the situation when you say this.

You're not expressing any type of sympathy or anything. You're really just commenting on what the other person is telling you that, oh, I woke up late. My alarm didn't go off and I missed the bus, so I had to try to get an Uber to the airport and then when I got there, my flight was cancelled and I had to get on a new flight. And then finally when I arrived, they lost my luggage. And they just talk about all these bad things that are going on and say, "Oh, you know, I'm sorry to hear that." you know, when it rains, it pours. Generally, it is used to talk about negative things that are going on. If somebody is talking about a lot of wonderful things, you you could also use this when and say, "Yeah, when it rains, it pours." Uh, you're really just referring to one thing that happens after the other. Um, whether good or bad, but most of the time, you're you're going to use this when somebody's talking about things that are bad that are happening. And yeah, you'd say when it rains, it pours.

Once again, I want to point out a little slight difference between American English and British English because of course I I am going to say when it rains, it pours. But in the UK, you may hear someone say it never rains, but it pours. The meaning is the same, but the the phrase is a little different. The next idiom, to get something off your chest. This just means to tell someone about something that has been worrying you. Maybe it's uh making you feel a little guilty for some time and you need to tell someone and you just need to get something off your chest. I think we can all relate to this and typically you would tell someone who's close to you.

So I told you that my wife and I have been through thick and thin. So, I I feel comfortable telling her things that I that have been worrying me, and I just want to get it off my chest. I will add one little nuance. You may end up saying this to someone that you need to tell them something that's worrying you, that could upset this person. And it's like you're saying, "I I need to tell you something. You're not going to want to hear it. you may not like it, but I I need to get it off my chest. It's good to get things off your chest, but who knows? Maybe afterwards if that person is angry with you and then you're going to be in the doghouse. So, but but in general, I think it's good to confess and just get things off of our chest.

Then we have to be on thin ice. This idiom really means what it says. You can see in this picture right here, somebody is standing on thin ice. It's starting to crack. it is not a good position to be in. So, you're really you're you're doing something that is dangerous. It involves risk and and you're on thin ice. So, once again, uh give you an example. I don't know why I'm just giving you these examples like I'm forgetting uh I'm forgetting birthdays. I forgot to buy her a birthday present. Um maybe my wife. So, right now I'm on thin ice. I think sometimes you may use this when you're giving a warning to someone that uh they're they're saying something to you, whether a friend or your partner, and you are upset, and you're like, "Stop right there. You're you're on thin ice. You are in a dangerous position. So, you better just and and zip it because you are on thin ice." Then we have to throw caution to the wind. This is a little bit of the the opposite of being on thin ice. This is when you are going to stop being careful and do something that is dangerous or that might result in failure and you're going to throw caution to the wind. I don't think we need to uh take any chances. Now is not the time to throw caution to the wind. So keep that in mind when you are you're you're not being careful and in that case you are throwing caution to the wind. I'm using it in the negative down here because you may I may tell you instead of like I'm telling you to be careful and in that case I look don't throw caution to the wind. All right? Don't do don't take any unnecessary chances or risk don't throw caution to the wind. So in that case I'm using it in the the negative. So, I'm telling you to be careful. So, something to keep in mind, you may end up using this in the affirmative, the negative. I I personally think a lot of times it's used in the negative, saying, "Look, don't throw caution to the wind." And it's another way of telling somebody to be careful. This uh you know, this this cat trying to jump off the boat onto land. Sometimes you just you got to throw caution to the wind and go for it. Uh it's it's very risky, but you know that cat wanted to to get off the boat and just you know you got to throw caution to the wind and see what happens. The

But good idiom if you want to express that uh that level of excitement and interest if you're listening to somebody whether it's a lecture, a presentation, or even somebody telling a story and you are hanging on their every word. [sighs] Mums the word. All right. This is uh I think also used as a standalone statement, but this this is said when you want to tell someone that uh you're trying to keep a secret. So, I tell you a secret. Don't don't tell anybody. This is a secret. This is between you and me. Mum's the word. I don't want anyone else to get wind of this. So, I trust you. I don't want people to get wind of it. So, mum's the word.

You really I I think we've all been in the situation. We tell somebody something that we don't want them to repeat to another person and you feel like you need to actually say that you need to tell this person, look, this is a secret. Don't tell anyone. So, this is more of a casual informal way of saying don't tell anyone. Mum's the word. I think it's a I think it's more of a fun way to say that to put a pin in it or put a pin in this. It really just means to take a break from discussing some topic with plans to resume the discussion later. And you could say, "Look, we'll we'll put a pin in it." So, you're you're really going to follow it with it or this. You don't have to, but most of the time you will because it's like you the the other person already knows what it is you're talking about. you're having this discussion about something and you want to say okay let's talk about it later and that is why we're going to say put a pin in it meaning the thing that you've been talking about or this let's put a pin in this for for right now and we'll come back to it later. So once again I think this is one that you could use in more of a work context with a team.

you're discussing something and maybe you feel like you're getting sidetracked like look, okay, we don't need to be talking about this right now. Let's put a pin in it and we'll come back to it later and then we'll just focus on this other thing. Keep in mind this is definitely different than take a rain check because remember take a rain check, you're saying look, we're not going to do it now, we'll do it some other time. That's really more about an invitation. This is about a discussing a topic. And when you say, "Let's put a pin in it." I do think people actually intend to discuss it later. It's not like take a rain check, in which case, look, I may ignore your invitation. In this case, if you say, "Let's put a pin in it." I think the intention is certainly to resume and come back to the topic at a later time in the future. But once again, I think it's a great one to know and use, especially in a work situation when you say, "Okay, let's we'll come back to it. Let's put a pin in it for now.

Ring a bell. And it just means to sound familiar. Maybe I say, "Well, look, his name it just it doesn't ring a bell. It doesn't sound familiar to me." So, we're talking about being able to recall some information or remember something and instead of using sound familiar because they're really interchangeable, you could use ring a bell. Maybe you know some of these idioms and I hope that some of these idioms ring a bell and you're like, "Oh, yeah. Yeah, this one sounds familiar. I've heard it before or I've learned this before. Or maybe it's new. And you say, "Well, this idiom, I've never heard this before. It just does not ring a bell." [laughter] Okay, but if some of these idioms ring a bell, let me know. Ring that like button uh down below.

Let me know if if some of these idioms ring a bell and you you've heard them before. Maybe you've used them and that's even better. Names that ring a bell. You hear this name. Oh yeah, that rings a bell. Or uh Robert Dunlap, does the name ring a bell? He invented something you probably rode on this morning. Maybe it doesn't ring a bell. Dunlap, it's talking about like tires. It was like a a brand or company. Tire company. Anyway, that's what they mean by that. probably something you wrote on this morning or just I've said it before, it doesn't ring a bell. And that is a phrase that someone would use instead of saying it doesn't sound familiar. It doesn't ring a bell. Off the hook. This means when you are free from blame or from an annoying obligation, you are off the hook. Either one. So you make a mistake.

I am Yeah. I'm, you know, I'm not going to punish you. and I can say, "Look, you're you're off the hook." All right? Or an annoying obligation. I invite you to um come to my party and you don't want to go. You say, "Look, I'll take a rain check." And then I know I'm like, "Okay, all right. They just they don't want, okay, don't worry about it. You don't have to come to my party. I know that there's something else that you've got going on. Don't worry about it. You're off the hook." So, in that case, you're free from from some annoying obligation. But I would hope that if I had a party that you would you'd want to come to my party and hang out and uh and have a good time. Great idiom. I know I've said that a bunch, but this time I mean it. Great idiom to know to be off the hook. Pay through the nose for something. This is uh an idiom that you can use to really emphasize that you are paying too much for something and you pay through the nose. I I will say to add, you know, a little bit of a nuance to this, I think it's really you're you're paying too much for something like more than the fair price. So, think about uh a price that may change. All right. Now, are you thinking about, oh, wait, what prices may change? airline tickets, hotel prices. So, you're gonna travel over the holidays. Well, during the holidays, the airline the the price of an airline ticket goes up. You're going to pay through the nose. Pay more for something more than the fair price.

Maybe, I don't know, maybe she's just going to wing it and didn't plan anything. Perhaps if somebody uh does not have their ducks in a row and they're going to give a presentation, I'm just going to wing it and yeah, they they don't want to, but they're going to have to bite the bullet. But in this case, we're referring mostly to somebody's fear of public speaking, which again is something that I think we can all relate to. Uh getting up there in front of a large audience, you don't want to do it. You find it unpleasant, you gotta do it. [laughter] This is a fun little meme for all of you office fans out there. I love the office, which is why I put this in there. And it says false. Bullets travel at uh 1,100 ft per second. Say goodbye to your teeth. Now, of course, we're not talking about this idiom in a literal sense, but if there's something unpleasant that you don't really want to do and you have to do it, you're going to have to bite the bullet. Then we have to be in a pickle. I thought that again, cute, adorable little picture, but that kitten is in a pickle. It just means to be in a difficult situation. So, instead of saying I'm in a difficult situation, you could say, "I'm in a pickle." Now, it's a a difficult situation that is not catastrophic like really uh end of the world problems. Generally, I think you might use this when you're talking about a difficult situation that is frustrating. Um you don't want to be in but and you just want to express that when saying that, yeah, I'm kind of in a pickle. I don't know what to do. Something happened. My flight got cancelled. I'm not sure to if I want to find another flight or just cancel the trip. I'm kind of in a pickle right now. Can you help me? I'm in a pretty pickle.

Now, in the example, you notice that I added the word pretty. You may hear people use that when using this idiom to be in a pretty pickle. If I'm going to use this, I would just say, uh, I'm in a pickle. That kitten is in a bit of a pickle, but I think if it drops to the ground, I I imagine the cat will be fine. Red tape. This is one that I I feel like probably maybe you've heard of it. You're you're familiar with it because I I think often it's used especially if you read the news uh and you're talking about government or business official rules and processes that seem unnecessary and delay results.

So, as an example, there was a lot of red tape in order to get the construction permits. When talking about government, I'll give you an example, perfect example. I, you know, live a live abroad with my family and we got to go and do this immigration stuff. We got to get a residence card. Um, all all of these different things. And there is quite a bit of red tape. For any of you who live in another country, maybe you're dealing with a green card, residence card, and you feel like you have to deal with a lot of red tape. Very common idiom. And that's why I wanted to share it with you. Very useful if you want to talk about that situation. And oh, it's just frustrating. There's so much red tape. I think we can we can all relate to this in one way or another. Here is a fun little comic using this phrase. The office supply store is having a sale on red tape this week, but it will take us 9 months to approve the purchase because there's a lot of red tape in order to get that approval. So, I think you can you get the joke and see why it's funny. There's a lot of red tape, even though red tape is something that is mostly very frustrating. Here is the next idiom I want to share with you. Hindsight is 2020. This refers to looking back on a situation or an event and having a clearer understanding of how uh things could have been done better. Now, I again I just know how it is in the US. I don't know um in in other countries if you go and get your eyes tested 2020 means that you have perfect vision.

So I I need glasses. I I do not have 2020 vision. But it it basically means hindsight looking back when you think about the past and think about the things that happened. Of course, you're now able to look at it and say, "Ah, I should have done this or I should have done that. That was a mistake." Hindsight is 2020. So you're basically commenting that well and maybe somebody maybe you are expressing some frustration like oh you know I should have done this I should have done that and I just tell you yeah you know hindsight is 2020 the ability to look back at something you you can see things clearly I should have seen this coming but you know what they say hindsight is 2020 and again it is more of a standalone statement when you use this uh idiom hindsight is 2020 Look on the bright side. This is used when you want to well try to cheer someone up and tell them to think positively even though there's some bad situation. Maybe you are maybe you're on thin ice and because of a mistake that you made at work. And I say, "Well, look on the bright side. Now you understand what you've done wrong because hindsight is 2020 and you are never going to make that mistake again and you can move forward and do things the correct way from now on. The one thing I will say which I didn't really give in this example, oh it's not so bad, try to look on the bright side. I when people use this even though it's not in the example when you tell someone look on the bright side the expectation is that you're then going to say why the other person should stay positive or what is the good that is going to come out of this when you tell someone look on the bright side out of your league you're going to use this when talking about a person when someone or something

I generally think you're going to talk about a person uh is too good or expensive expensive for uh someone to have. So in this I said, "Oh, she's definitely out of your league." So this is why I said you're you're often going to use this when talking about a person. When I was younger, I was attracted to this woman. She was incredibly beautiful, but all my friends told me, "Look, she is out of your league. She is too beautiful for you." Sadly, this is actually true. This is something that my friends uh told me a long time ago. I might be interested uh in some girl like, "Oh, I'm going to ask her out.

She's so beautiful." And they're like, "Dude, don't don't even try. She is out of your league. She is too beautiful for you." So, you could say that somebody is out of their league maybe because they're too beautiful or too intelligent or too anything could have to do with social class. And it it could go the other way around. Maybe uh a man, he is out of your league. But generally, I feel like it's used in that context. Maybe because that's my personal experience with it that uh you a man is attracted to some woman they say look she is out of your league. Now to go back to the meaning and saying that something maybe a car or you're trying to buy a home and look like look you're never going to be able to afford this.

It is way out of your league. You could use it in that context, but generally I feel like it's often talking about, you know, dating, wanting to ask someone out and say, "Look, she's out of your league." But again, maybe that's because of my own personal experience with this idiom and people just constantly telling me she's out of your league. Not only am I out of your league, you're not even playing the same sport. So, it's kind of a fun little take on this idiom. Jump on the bandwagon. This means to start doing something because it's fashionable, popular, or maybe profitable. There are many reasons why someone may jump on the bandwagon. Uh once the team started winning, many people jumped on the bandwagon. I think often it's used in that context. A sports team, they suddenly start winning, they become more and more popular, and then all of a sudden everybody's a fan. Oh, they I love this team. It's my favorite team. No, no, you just jumped on the bandwagon. But you could uh use this in let's think about the context of something that's profitable and a lot of some a business they start making money selling something and then other companies they jump on the bandwagon because it's profitable and they also want to follow this trend and try to make money and jump on the bandwagon. Fun idiom to use to cloud one's judgment. I like this book because it is a little more specific. It just means to impair one's ability to think clearly and make sound decisions. And I say it's precise because there are, you know, different moving parts uh to the situation. If I'm saying that, look, something is clouding your judgment. Perhaps you have a history with with someone. Maybe you know someone and you you and this person have been through thick and thin and uh somebody tells you, "Look, they they stole something from me." You're like, "That's impossible. I I know this person so well." And I may tell you, look, because you are so close to this individual, perhaps it's clouding your judgment and that you have this history and therefore you're unable to clearly understand the situation or or make a sound decision if your judgment is clouded. His emotions clouded his judgment during the negotiations. So that's why I said there are other moving parts typically when you're in a situation, you're trying to make a decision or like some negotiation and your judgment is clouded because of something else. Great idiom to use in that context when you want to say, "Look, you're not going to be able to make a sound decision or think clearly because something is clouding your judgment." Monday morning quarterback. This is definitely an American idiom because well the football is a sport that is incredibly popular in the US. I guess it is becoming more and more popular uh in other parts of the world as well. But generally speaking, a Monday morning quarterback is a person who criticizes the actions or decisions of others after the fact. And keep that in mind. you are criticizing these decisions because you could say, "Well, hindsight is 20/20. Now you know what you should have done." But if I'm criticizing it, well, why the hell did you do this? This was such a stupid mistake. Then it's like, I'm I'm playing Monday morning quarterback. To give you more context, typically all the football games are played on Sunday. So, of course, on Monday, you can look back and then criticize the decisions that were made by quarterbacks. Why did they throw that ball? Why? Why did they throw that pass? That was a bad pass. Bad decision. And you're playing Monday morning quarterback. So, this is certainly more of an American idiom, one that you are going to hear and use in the US. To weather the storm. This means to be able to continue doing something despite serious problems. And you're in a situation that is difficult, but you're trying to say, "I think we can continue. I think we can move forward and we're going to try to weather the storm. Here's another example more related to like a business uh context. The company is confident it can weather the storm of economic uncertainty. So whether we're talking about business or just life in general, uh you're maybe trying to make ends meet, but inflation has been a problem all over the world. And I think all of us in some way we're we're trying to weather the storm and get to the other side. It's a little more uh problematic. Things are more expensive and we're trying to weather the storm and just continue and keep going. The next idiom is one that I imagine you've heard this idiom. For some reason, when people teach idioms, this is like one of the first idioms all teachers uh will go over with their students, and that is raining cats and dogs. This just means to rain very influence you have over important people in order to get something uh or to help someone. So maybe I am applying for a job and you know the person who is going to hire uh the person for the job and I might ask you and I say hey you know can you pull some strings and see if you can help me get this job because you know the person who is in charge of hiring or here's another example down below. I was able to pull a few strings and get you on an earlier flight. Maybe this is something that uh a gate attendant might tell someone at the airport and they're able to pull a few strings and help out a passenger. Now, keep in mind uh you may often say pull some strings or pull a few strings. Both of them mean the same thing and they are commonly used. The next idiom is ballpark figure or you may just say ballpark, but basically you're talking about an educated guess or estimation. So maybe I ask you, how much is this car worth? And you say, well, I don't really know. Just give me a ballpark or give me a ballpark figure. Essentially, I'm asking you to make your best guess when you are giving me a ballpark figure. So like just in this question down below, can you give me a ballpark figure? That that's all I want to know. Then we have the idiom tow the line. This means to do what you are expected to do without causing trouble for anyone and you are just trying to tow the line. Maybe this is used in a situation in which you're not trying to cause any controversy. You don't want you don't like confrontation and even if you disagree with something or maybe you disagree with someone, you're not going to cause a lot of trouble and you're just trying to tow the line. employees who refuse to tow the line will be let go.

up. This is more of an informal idiom and it just means to ask someone for something. Generally speaking, I think you're going to use this when maybe asking for money and I might hit you up for a loan or I just need a few bucks and yeah, I'm just going to hit you up for some cash. So, that's not always the case, but I think quite often if you hear someone using this idiom or you want to use it yourself, you're probably going to be talking about money. Now, we have just learned a lot of idioms in this lesson. I don't expect you to remember all of them.

Remember, you can check out the link down below in the description if you'd like to get these lesson notes. And uh yeah, I will see you soon for another lesson in the future. So long.

LESSON 76 OF 749

50 Collocations to QUICKLY Build Your Vocabulary in 2025

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today I'm going to teach you 50 different collocations. That's coming up. [Music] Hey everyone, my name is Wes. This is Interactive English, which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills. And today it's all about helping you build your vocabulary because I am going to teach you 50 different collocations. And if you don't know what a collocation is, it is a word or phrase that is often followed by another word or phrase. And there are many different types of collocations. But in today's lesson, I want to teach you 50 different adjective noun collocations. So all of these phrases are adjectives that are commonly followed by different nouns. So let's begin with our first collocation using the adjective high. And you might hear people talk about high school. This is a time period in a person's education. You have middle school, high school, and then university. Or maybe somebody's talking about high ground. In which case, you need to get to a higher or elevated position. Maybe there's a flood and somebody says, "We we need to get to high ground." Or high tech. This just means advanced technology. And you could say, "Wow, this this stuff it's it's really high-tech. the technology is advanced. Or somebody could have high standards. It and that means that they just want the best for themselves. And you could say, well, I have really high standards when it comes to food or when it comes to places to stay, hotels. You have high standards. Or a high degree of certainty. This means that you really you believe and you know that something is going to happen. Next, we have collocations with the adjective big. And we use this to really emphasize the the noun that it's describing. For example, there could be a big mistake and you're really trying to say that, wow, okay, this is a real problem and somebody made a big mistake. Or maybe there is a big surprise. It's not your normal surprise, it's a big surprise. You could also say something is a big deal. This emphasizes that that this thing is very important and you could say it's a big deal. A person may also need to make a big decision. This is talking about a very important decision and you will often hear somebody say, "Look, you know, I I really have a big decision to make. It's very important. It's a big decision." And finally, you could hear somebody say big money, which means you're you're talking about a lot of money that may be coming your way. Big money. The next adjective that I have for you is little. And you would hear this used with a variety of nouns such as little boy or little girl. This is just describing well describing somebody's age perhaps.

But you got to be careful. It may not be polite sometimes to call somebody a little boy or a little girl. You could also say little thought. In this case, somebody might say that, well, you gave this little thought. You really didn't think about it much. Or perhaps a little bit. This is talking about an amount. There is a little bit or little time. If you don't have a lot of time to do something, you could say, well, we we have very little time. We need to get moving because we have little time. Then we have the adjective heavy. And you could say, well, somebody is a heavy drinker or a heavy smoker. It means that they they do this a lot. Or maybe there is heavy traffic. If there are many cars on the road, you could describe that and say, "Wow, there's there's really heavy traffic today." Or perhaps there there's heavy rain. And it means that it is it's raining a lot. If it's raining, if it's really coming down, you could describe it and say there's heavy rain. If you're out driving in the heavy rain, then and there's heavy traffic, it's likely there will be a traffic jam. You could finally say that someone is a heavy sleeper. And this means that well, they once they go to sleep, you can make all the noise that you want because you are not going to wake this person up. They are a heavy sleeper. Now, because we just talked about heavy, then I I think it's only appropriate that our next adjective is light. And we can use this to say the opposite of many of those that I just talked about. So, instead of somebody being a heavy drinker or a heavy smoker, you could say that that someone is a light drinker or a light smoker. You could say that someone is a light sleeper, in which case any kind of noise would probably wake this person up.

They're not a heavy sleeper. They are a light sleeper. I I think I am more of a light sleeper. I wake up pretty easily at night if there is any kind of noise. So, when I go to bed, I really I just want silence. You could also say light rain. If it's just it's not raining that much outside, perhaps it's just starting to rain. It's not heavy rain, it's just a little light rain. You don't need your umbrella just yet because it's only a little light rain. If talking about wind, you could say that well there is a light breeze that it's not well it it's not very windy. It's just well there's a light breeze which I think it's kind of nice when you walk outside and there's a light breeze. And finally, you could say there is a light shade.

And in in this case, they're not really talking about your hands. You could be talking about cards. If you're playing cards, you have a hand of cards. And you could say you have a strong hand. But it could also be referring to somebody's position that you have a position of power. And you could refer to that and say, well, you know, right now I have a very strong hand. I'm in a very good position. a position of power. I have a strong hand. Another common way this adjective is used is when talking about a strong relationship. And this just means that well, you could use it to talk about maybe a family member or your friends or even a romantic relationship, husband and wife. And you say, "Okay, we just have a strong relationship."

We believe in each other. We trust each other. We have a strong relationship." I I think that we you and I we have a strong relationship because you you watch our video lessons, you write to me in the comments, which I love hearing from you. And because of that, I can say that we have a strong relationship. You and I, at least I hope we do.

The next adjective is deep. And we can use this with nouns such as deep thought. That you are you are really thinking about something. And you would say that somebody, you know, they're they're in deep thought. They're really focused and and they're really trying to think about some serious topic. Or maybe somebody you could describe a person and say that they have a deep voice. Describing the way that they talk. So for example, this is my deep voice. And it's it's really bad. That's a very terrible example, but you you kind of get the idea. If you want to describe the way somebody sounds their voice, you could say they have a deep voice. It's down here in the chest. You could also use it with sleep and say that that somebody is in a deep sleep. Even if somebody is is not a heavy sleeper, but they're so tired they're they're just in a deep sleep. You could also say that somebody takes a deep breath.

Or maybe they are you could describe a person and say that they are in a deep depression. They're very sad. It It is a very intense depression. It is a deep depression. Another way you could use this adjective is deep down. And often I think somebody would say deep down inside talking about uh a feeling. A feeling that's deep down inside. Then we have the adjective fast. And you could say that well somebody gets off to a fast start. They begin but they do so quickly and they get a fast start. You could also describe a person and say that well he or she is a fast talker. You could well let's let's continue describing people and you could say that someone is fast asleep. If they if this person is sleeping you can use this expression and say well you know they're fast asleep. They're sleeping soundly.

They're fast asleep. You may also hear somebody talk about uh a fast pace that you need to move kind of quickly and continuously and you might need to keep a fast pace. Another very common collocation would be fast food. I think uh all of us uh are familiar with different fast food restaurants. And I could also say that someone perhaps you I could say that you are a fast learner that you watch these video lessons and you are building your vocabulary because you are a fast learner. You you learn quickly. And well quick is the next adjective that that I want to talk about because it's it's a little similar to fast but we use it with different nouns.

For example, we could use it with the word glance and and say quick glance to really describe something that that you saw for just a very very short period of time and and you just got a quick glance. You just you looked at it and then that that's it. That's it. That's a quick glance right there. You could also say that uh you're going to get a quick bite. In which case you're you're talking about you're you're going to eat. You're going to get something to eat very quickly. you're just going to grab a quick bite to eat. Or maybe you want to get a quick shower. You you're telling somebody that, "Well, you need to shower. You're not going to spend a long time in there. You're just going to get a quick shower." And during a presentation, somebody might give you a quick recap. They're going to review whatever they just said, and they're going to do it quickly. They're going to give you a quick recap. Or perhaps uh a person might need to make a quick decision when when you really have to think fast. you don't have a lot of time, you need to make a quick decision. Now, let's move well more to the opposite meaning and talk about the adjective slow. And we can use it with nouns such as well growth or progress. I think quite quite often you would hear it used with these nouns when talking about perhaps the the work that somebody's doing or or you might say, well, you know, we're just we're we're making slow progress. We're not going very fast. We we didn't get off to a fast start and right now we're just making slow progress and because of that the company the business is experiencing slow growth. I'm sure many of you have heard it with the word motion and talking about slow motion to describe the way well somebody is moving or or something that you're watching that things were moving in slow motion. I'm just going to move on to the next collocation and talk about a slow day. And if somebody says that, well, it's a slow day, it just means it's not very busy. I often think people would use this collocation when when talking about work that they're not very busy at their job and they say, you know, today it was a slow day. And you could also use it to describe a person and say that someone is a slow learner that that they're not a fast learner. It takes them a little more time to understand and comprehend different things. You could say, well, they're a slow learner. I think sometimes with with many things, I I am a bit of a slow learner. I really like to take my time and quite often I need to review things and and do it numerous times before I understand. So I could say, yeah, you know, I'm a slow learner, but that's okay. I I don't expect you to watch this lesson and remember every single one of these collocations for the rest of your life. It's all about getting exposure reading, listening, and then practicing because that is the best way to build your vocabulary and remember these phrases. And that's what I want to do right now. I want to practice using some of these collocations. I am going to give you a sentence and the adjective is missing. The first sentence that I have for you is I need you to make a m decision. I need you to make a m decision. Which adjective are you going to use? I hope you said I need you to make a quick decision. When you have to think fast, you need to make a quick decision. The next one is even though our neighbor threw a party, I didn't wake up because I am a m sleeper.

Even though our neighbor had a party, I didn't wake up because I am a sleeper. In this case, I hope that you said heavy. A heavy sleeper. You can just sleep through anything, including your neighbor's party. Then we have uh I'm going to Vegas and I hope to win some m money this weekend. I'm going to Vegas and I hope to win some money this weekend. If you're going to Vegas and you're going to gamble, of course you want to win some big money. I'm going to Vegas and I hope to win some big money this weekend. The next sentence is, "Scientists believe that the climate will continue to change with a m degree of certainty." I think you should remember this one. Scientists believe that climate will continue to change with a m degree of certainty. I hope that you said high. We're talking about a high degree of certainty that somebody well they're pretty sure that that this is going to happen. And finally, I would tell you the sentence and I would say I think you are a m learner. And I really do. I think you are a m learner. And of course, you should have said fast. All right. I don't think you're a slow learner. I think you are a fast learner. And I think if you really if you continue to read, if you continue to listen, if you continue to watch these video lessons, that is going to help you build your vocabulary. It's going to help you remember these different collocations, and that is then going to help you improve your overall English fluency. If you enjoyed this lesson, please hit that like button. And as always, thank you so much for watching and I will see you next

LESSON 77 OF 749

50 Idioms Native Speakers Use Daily | 60 Minutes to Sound American

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I have an incredible lesson for you teaching you over 50 different idioms and expressions that you can use in casual conversation and I'll teach you the meaning, talk about how they're used as well as give you a variety of examples. And because we're talking about vocabulary that is often used in spoken English, let's begin with some idioms and expressions that have the word speak or talk. I am going to speak my mind and I'm going to tell you exactly what I think about these idioms and expressions. And this is actually the first idiom that I want to teach you. And that is to speak one's mind. It means to say what you're thinking openly and honestly. And when it comes to well the word mind, you're really referring to a person's thoughts. Similar to the way somebody would ask, well, what's on your mind? In this case, they're asking, "What are you thinking?" But as far as speaking your mind, in that case, you are speaking and saying and sharing your thoughts with another person. And you may hear people use this as like a standalone statement, kind of like giving a command to another person. And you would say, "Hey, speak your mind." And in this situation, probably the other person is thinking something and they want to say what they're thinking, but perhaps they just haven't yet. And you are just telling them, "Hey, I want to know what you're thinking. Speak your mind. Tell me openly and honestly." Or you could use this to encourage a person to to speak honestly and say, "Hey, don't be afraid to speak your mind." All right? You should share what you're thinking honestly and openly.

Don't be afraid to speak your mind. You don't think we can win? May I speak my mind? Your grace. Speaking your mind, Lord Car. I think you lost this war. In this lesson, I am going to teach you a lot of different idioms and expressions that all have the word speak or talk. Not only am I going to give you the meaning, but I will talk to you about how the idiom and expression is used because if you're going to use them, you want to make sure that you are using them in the correct context. The next one that I have for you is speaking from experience. This means that you are talking about something having had prior experience so that you what you have to say is more credible and and that you have a worthwhile viewpoint. And and really I I think the key word is credible because if somebody says well speaking from experience, it's kind of like you're letting somebody know that well you are an authority figure when it comes to this topic or this situation because you have prior experience. Now just because somebody says this and they say speaking from experience that does not necessarily mean that they are a professional. It just means that this person has some experience. So perhaps they have some valuable insight. So you may hear people share their viewpoint and then say, "Well, I'm speaking from experience so that you know this person is credible." Or you you can use this as an introductory phrase before sharing your viewpoint. So I I could say speaking from experience. I think one of the best ways to learn another language is to continuously get exposure to the language. And I'm I'm talking about my experience when I was learning both Spanish and Korean. I would try to get as much exposure to each language listening and reading and then I would try to practice using the language with speaking and writing. And I I'm just speaking from experience. Okay? So I tried to use it both ways. Once to introduce my viewpoint and then again just to reaffirm it at the end and tell you, hey, I'm speaking from experience.

Secrets create barriers between people. Speaking from experience, believe me. The next idiom that I have for you is to talk one's ear off. And what this means is to talk to someone for a long time, often excessively and loudly. So really, it's a situation in which you feel like the conversation should be shorter, but it just goes on and on and on because the person is talking your ear off. Now, it's not really a good thing, but because it could be more negative if you say someone is talking your ear off because people may not like that, but people also use this jokingly as well. Perhaps my my wife might say, "Hey, if you start talking about football, my husband is going to talk your ear off." which tells you that I am a fan of the sport and that I like to talk about it and I might talk about it a little too much and talk your ear off. Now, this is an idiom that you may not often say directly to another person. Perhaps you might use it apologetically and say, "Hey, you know, sorry for talking your ear off." In which case, you're letting the person know that you're probably talking a little too much. But more often you may use this idiom to talk about well another person and say that they were talking your ear off about some topic. Uh I could say I went to the party last night and I saw one of my work colleagues and he just started talking my ear off about a presentation that he has to give next week and it's a party. I I don't want to talk about work. So, I quickly tried to get out of that conversation. And then I talked to the host of the party who who was just complaining about the weather and was going on and on about it and was just talking my ear off.

So, I I wanted to get out of that conversation and ultimately I just left the party. So, those are a couple of examples using this idiom to talk one's ear off. You two have a great time getting to know each other. Don't let this one talk your ear off. She's the type of girl who just loves to talk. That's Mrs. Watch how she will talk your ear off right now. I want to take a moment to tell you about my speaking course. And I I'm just going to speak my mind and I will try not to talk your ear off. So, Speak Up is a course for intermediate to advanced speakers. And it's really all about trying to help you speak confidently, speak clearly, and speak naturally. Check out the link in the description if you would like to join or learn more information. And when you click on that link and go to the course page, you will find a special discount just for you. So each week there is a different speaking topic. You will learn vocabulary related to that topic. We do engaging speaking activities at the beginning of each lesson. We warm up with something related to pronunciation or connected speech. There are also pronunciation video lessons included in the course. In addition, I'll teach you some of the language nuances like when to use certain words and phrases. So, click on the link below if you would like to sign up. And I really hope you consider enrolling because perhaps you are someone who thinks, "Yeah, I would like to practice and improve my speaking skills." And maybe you tell this to yourself, but in the end, actions speak louder than words.

actions speak louder than words. So, this is actually a proverb, which means that actions are more revealing of one's true character because it's easy just to say things and make promises, and it takes more effort to actually do something and follow through. Actions speak louder than words. Now, you can use this proverb in a variety of situations like uh perhaps somebody is just talking about some of the things that they want to do or they're planning to do and maybe you don't really believe this person. You could use this proverb and say, "Hey, actions speak louder than words." In this case, it's like you're telling them, "Hey, show me. All right, don't just talk about it. Let's see you do it." Or you could use this in a situation in which somebody talks about one thing, but then their actions are doing like completely the opposite. And I I can give you a great example when it comes to this. Think about politicians.

They like to say things all the time, say the things they're going to do or say the things they believe in. But when it comes time to vote, which would be the their action, they do the exact opposite. So in this case, you could say, "Hey, actions speak louder than words. Your actions really reveal your your true character and what you truly believe in." Actions speak louder than words. Uh he's he's just a loader. They don't allow them to communicate. But what if he has something to say? Actions speak louder than words. The next expression is one that I really like and it's one that I hear from time to time and that is like talking to a brick wall. And what this means is that you are unsuccessfully trying to persuade or reason or talk with someone who just does not listen or or does not react.

And I think people would say this out of frustration and they would say, "Wow, it's like talking to a brick wall." And I it's a it's an expression that I think we can all relate to. Sometimes my wife says this when trying to talk to me. I I might be on the computer and I'm really concentrating on something. Maybe I have my headphones in and she is talking to me at the same time perhaps asking me something and I'm not I'm not ignoring her. I I kind of out of the corner of my eye or the corner of my ear, I can hear that that she's saying something. And the one the one thing that I do catch is her saying it's like talking to a brick wall because I'm not listening and I'm not reacting. and she would say it's like talking to a brick wall. Says it just like that. All right. Another time when you may use this expression is when you're trying to reason with someone who is just unwilling to listen. Perhaps this person is just really stubborn and it doesn't matter what you say or the reasons that you give, they're just not going to listen. And again, out of frustration, you could say it's like talking to a brick wall. What did he talk about? Did he talk about rugby? But what did he talk about? Francois, it's like talking to a brick wall. What did he say? I think he wants us to win the World Cup. Next is the phrase on speaking terms. And this just refers to a mutual relationship that is limited to uh casual greeting or just casual conversation. It it means that you're friendly enough to talk. Now, the one thing that I want you to know about this idiom is that often you're going to use it in the negative with the word not to say that you are not on speaking terms with someone in which case it's like you're saying that that you had a falling out and you and this other person you are no longer talking. So, we can actually use engram viewer to show you which one is more common. And as you can see, it's more common to say that you are not on speaking terms with someone than to use this idiom in the affirmative and say that you are on speaking terms.

I fell out hard. We're not on speaking terms. Then we have to talk one's way into something or out of something. And it means to persuade people to do something or to not do something by the reasons that you give. So if you talk your way into something, you are persuading someone to give you something or maybe allow you to do something. Uh I could say he talked his way into getting a promotion. Okay, he got a promotion. Or we talked our way into the private party and they allowed us to enter. If you talk your way out of something, then you're persuading someone not to give you something, perhaps a punishment, or persuading them not to make you do something like chores or work. So, I could say she got pulled over by the police and she talked her way out of a driving ticket. She persuaded the police officer not to give her a ticket. Or maybe I tell you, you have to write to me in the comments. It's like I'm I'm making you do something and you are trying to talk your way out of it and persuade me not to make you do this and I'm I'm not buying it. And I say, "Look, you're not going to talk your way out of this." All right, that that is a statement that you may often hear if somebody's trying to persuade the other person and they're they just don't believe it and they're not going to fall for it. They may say, "You're not going to talk your way out of this, okay?" So, comparing these two phrases, you can see that it's more common to talk your way out of something. I'm not letting you just throw your life away. I'm going to talk our way out of this. Start a new life there.

Meet a local girl, fall in love, talk my way into a line job at a textile plant. And it just means at this exact moment right now and really it just adds emphasis to whatever it is you're talking about. You might say it's happening as we speak. And there's really a sense of urgency. So, you can use this phrase at the beginning of a statement and I could say, "Hey, as we speak, there is a crowd forming outside the building and perhaps a protest is going to begin." And yeah, there's a sense of urgency. Or I could use it at the end of a statement and tell you, "The plane is boarding as we speak. We need to go right now because the plane is boarding as we speak." Even as we speak, millions of children are staring at the TV instead of getting some much needed exercise. And then there's to talk some sense into someone.

And this means that you are talking to someone and really trying to persuade them to see reason. scared or angry there. There's a lot of emotion involved and you may be trying to talk some sense into this person and it really implies that this other person is perhaps out of control and they're not listening to anyone. So maybe I say, "Well, look, Dave is out of control. Can you please try to talk some sense into him right now? It's like talking to a brick wall. He won't listen to me or anyone else. So please, please try to talk some sense into him." And then maybe once again you tell me, "Sorry, we're not on speaking terms. I I can't help you because Dave and I were not on speaking terms. You're gonna have to find someone else to try and talk some sense into him." Dad, mom is crazy. Can you talk some sense into her? I hope you learned some new idioms and expressions and you don't feel like I just talked your ear off this entire lesson because I know that that when you watch these videos, you're paying close attention. And because of that, I never feel like I'm talking to a brick wall. And please check out the link down in the description if you'd like to learn more about my speaking course. There are people signing up as we speak. Now, speaking from experience, and I'm talking about my teaching experience, I think it is useful for you to learn some more advanced idioms. And I don't think I need to talk you into learning these.

I think you are ready. I think you're capable. So, let's have a look at some C1 and C2 idioms. And these are Cambridge's highest levels of proficiency. And without further ado, let's begin. You really need to be on the ball if you're going to follow this lesson because I am going to teach you different C1 and C2 idioms to help you build your vocabulary and improve your skills when having a casual conversation. So, let's begin with an idiom that I've already mentioned, which is on the ball. And to be on the ball is a C1 idiom and it means to be quick to understand and react to things. So it's like you're you're just really ready and alert. And often this idiom is going to follow the verb to be. And you could use it in the affirmative and say, "Look, you really need to be on the ball for the important meeting tomorrow." Or you may hear people use it in the negative and say something like, "Well, he didn't sleep much last night, so today he's just not on the ball." I always try to be on the ball when I come up with these lessons. I try to react and always give you the best information, provide some nuance. So throughout the lesson, I'm going to tell you the meaning of each idiom.

And with that in mind, let's talk about the pronunciation right now. When pronouncing this idiom, linking may occur. And this is when you link the final consonant sound of one word with the beginning vowel sound of the next word. And really, we're talking about linking that consonant sound of the verb to be with the vowel sound in on. I'm on the ball. You're on the ball. And it's like you can hear that consonant sound getting moved over to that preposition. And if I were to say it a little faster, she's on the ball. I'm on the ball. You're on the ball with flying colors. And that is the next idiom that I want to teach you with flying colors.

You may follow this idiom with the preposition to to turn a blind eye to something. turned a blind eye to cheating during the quiz. Or maybe I know that Emmy stole the cookie, but I decided to turn a blind eye to the situation and I just ignored it. for pronunciation. More linking may occur with the first two words and the last two words. Turn a blind eye. Turn a blind eye. Just listen for it. For years, the government turned a blind eye to the recruitment of immigrants by the meatpacking industry. Obviously, I'm not going to turn a blind eye, no matter how absurd I find all of this. Then we have the easy way out. I really like this idiom. who does not like the easy way out. So, this really refers to what is easiest in a difficult situation. And often you may use this idiom with the verb take, to take the easy way out. Have you ever taken the easy way out? When it comes to these vocabulary lessons, I try not to take the easy way out and just teach simple basic vocabulary. I try to tackle some advanced words and phrases and give you nuance and context. And to give you some context as to how this idiom is used, I have some news headlines for you. LeBron James taking the easy way out on offense? Are regulators about to take the easy way out and declare CBD a drug? African currencies are crashing and there's no easy way out. For pronunciation, we can connect those final two words way out. And really, what's going on here is intrusion. And this is when you insert a slight consonant sound between two vowel sounds in order to connect them. So way, even though it's spelled w a y, it's actually a vowel sound. way. It's a front vowel sound, which means we would insert a slight y sound in order to link it with the vowel sound in out. Way out, the easy way out. And we'll talk more about intrusion with our next idiom, which is how on earth, what on earth, why on earth? This is a great idiom for conveying some emotion. It's used when you're extremely surprised, confused, or angry about something. How on earth did this happen? Why on earth are you changing jobs? What on earth is that? Okay. And notice the way that I'm saying it, really capturing that emotion. When pronouncing this idiom, there are really two things that may occur, but it really just depends on the question word that you're using. who, what, where, when, why, how. But the two things are linking or intrusion. Let's start with linking because this is something that may or may not occur. I told you that this idiom it it can convey emotion. And when that happens, people may emphasize the individual words and possibly even speak slower, in which case you're not really going to link the words together. What on earth are you doing? How on earth did you get that? But if somebody is speaking casually and naturally, they may say it a little faster. And in that case, we can link some of these words. So, what on earth or where on earth? The other thing I'd like to point out is that what on earth that final T in what? Because I'm from the United States, I am going to pronounce it as a flap T. It's going to sound like a soft D. And this is because it comes between two vowel sounds. What on earth? And we can link that flap T with the vowel sound in on. What on earth? Where on earth? Just listen for it. What on earth is going on here?

Where on earth did you get these? Where on earth did they go? Now, you may be thinking, what about when on earth? Can we also link this phrase together? Yes, you can. But I want you to know that it is not commonly used. You can see that right here using Engram Viewer. This is a great resource to compare different words and phrases and see how frequently they are used. And as you can see, when on earth is not commonly used. If we're talking about the question words why or how, well then intrusion is going to occur. I told you it's when we insert a slight consonant sound between the two vowels. So why on earth? That's a front vowel. So we can insert a slight y between the two vowels. Why on earth?

And how? This is a diff thong, but it's a back vowel. So we can insert a slight w sound. How on earth? Why on earth? How on earth? It's very slight, but just listen for it. Why on earth would we have sex? Why on earth would you turn around and give the contract to the Chinese? How on earth is that possible? And then there's in light of or really in light of something. And this means because of or as a result of and typically it's something that you learn about or become aware of and therefore a change is going to be made. So, I could say, "In light of recent events, we cancelled the match." And this is a good collocation with this idiom. In light of recent events, you may be thinking, "In light of learning new vocabulary, I'm going to hit that like button." And I would really appreciate it. And I know that you're not going to turn a blind eye to hitting that like button. For pronunciation, there are just two things that I want to point out. linking and a flap t. So the final t in light because it comes between two vowel sounds with the American accent, I am going to pronounce it as a flap t. And then I can link that soft d with the vowel sound in of. In light of. In light of. Say it with me. In light of. Good. In light of finishing the C1 idioms that I wanted to teach you, let's move on to those C2 idioms, which may not be as common, but they're great to learn because they're really going to help you express your thoughts, opinions, and feelings like this next idiom, which is at the end of your rope. It means having no strength or patience left. And it's a great way to emphasize that. And of course, you can replace that possessive pronoun with others. my rope, his rope, her rope. But the end of your rope. I hate to do this, but uh kind of at the end of my rope. I need to borrow some money. I was at the end of my rope. The financial pressure was crazy. You're not giving me a lot of direction here. I'm at the end of my rope. To the bitter end. This is a great idiom. It means until something is finished. And it's not always interchangeable with that meaning. If I'm eating something, I could say, "Yeah, I'm going to eat my food until it is finished." I wouldn't say, "I'm going to eat my food until the bitter end." That just sounds really awkward. So, you're really going to use this idiom when talking about an outcome that may not always be the one that you want, but you're going to keep going. We may not meet the deadline, but we're going to work to the bitter end. You're just going to keep fighting. And fight is a verb that's often used with this idiom. It's a common collocation to fight to the bitter end. Let me show you. Southampton boss vows to fight to the bitter end. Youngsville police chief will fight until the bitter end in proposed investigation. Nurses warn of more strike dates in January as they fight to the bitter end. For pronunciation, there are a couple of weak words that I'd like to point out. So the week two is going to sound like t and the weak article 'the'. And then we can link the final consonant sound in bitter with the beginning vowel sound in end. Bitter end. So it's going to sound like to the bitter end.

Say it with me. To the bitter end. To fight to the bitter end. Excellent. The next idiom is to get off on the right or wrong foot. And this just means to make a successful or unsuccessful start in something. Now, it's more common to use it in the negative and say that something got off on the wrong foot. The team did not get along, so the project got off on the wrong foot. It's also commonly used when talking about relationships. Two people meet each other. Doesn't go well. It's unsuccessful. It got off on the wrong foot. Why are you being so nice to me all of a sudden? I'm sorry we got off on the wrong foot. We got off on the wrong foot here. And I believe it's cuz we're just too damn similar. You do?

Absolutely. Let's pronounce this idiom. And once again, linking may occur. You can see just how common this is in spoken English. So, we can link the phrase get off on. Just keep in mind that the final T in get, once again, I'm from the US, so I will pronounce it as a flap T. Get off on. Get off on. Get off on the right foot. Get off on the wrong foot. And then there's over the top. This means too extreme and not suitable or exaggerated. So, something that's too extreme. She was supposed to buy me a small present, but her gift was way over the top. And that is a great word to emphasize this idiom. Way over the top.

For something that may be exaggerated, I could say it was supposed to be a friendly competition, but his performance was a bit over the top. And that's another good word you can use with this idiom, a bit over the top. For pronunciation, there's not really much to say about this idiom. You're just going to say these three words one right after the other. Over the top. It was our fault. Our acting was way over the top. What are you talking about? You were totally believable. This is like secret agent stuff. I think a safe room is a bit over the top. But Ed thought with the two little ones, you can never be too cautious.

What do you think of my news theater? Bit over the top. idiom, at the crack of dawn. This just means very early in the morning. Usually the time when the sun first appears. So, it's a great way to emphasize that you're up really early. I could say, "This morning, I got up at the crack of dawn." Or, "We'll have to get up at the crack of dawn for our flight." I hate it when that happens. Or, "My grandfather has been up since the crack of dawn." I tried to present this idiom with some different verb tenses. When pronouncing it, there are a couple of things going on. There are some overlapping sounds and this is basically when your tongue is in the same position. So at your tongue is going to come up and block the air with that stop t, but then you're just going to release right into that voiced th in the atthe. Atthe. And then we can link the final consonant sound in crack with the vowel sound in of. Crack of. At the crack of dawn. Have you ever gotten up at the crack of dawn? Let me know down in the comments. And then there's change of heart. This is when you change your opinion or the way you feel about something. Basically like a reversal in your attitude. And there are three things that I want to point out when it comes to this idiom. Number one, overwhelmingly you will use this with the verb have to have a change of heart.

Number two, I want to stress that this idiom really involves feelings. So, you're not always going to use it anytime you just change your mind. So, if I told you, look, this morning I was going to make pancakes, but then I had a change of heart and I decided to cook some eggs instead. You're not really going to use this idiom in that context. I don't have deep feelings when it comes to eggs or pancakes. But if I were to say something like she was going to sell her grandmother's necklace, but she had a sudden change of heart. In this case, she has stronger feelings when it comes to this necklace. It's more meaningful.

And that's also a good collocation with this idiom, a sudden change of heart. Number three, notice that because you're talking about a change in your opinion or the way you feel, most of the time people are going to use this in the past tense. So, you would say that someone had a change of heart or they had a sudden change of heart. For pronunciation, once again, more linking. We can link that first phrase had a as well as that second phrase change of had a change of heart. And you could say it easily and naturally just like that. Someone had a change of heart. Now for a little review. Idioms are a useful part of casual conversation. And I hope that learning these idioms will help your next conversation get off on the right foot. And I know they can be difficult to learn. And I don't want you to take the easy way out and avoid them. I want you to work hard to learn them. I want you to fight until the bitter end. And even if you're at the end of your rope and you're thinking to yourself, how on earth am I going to learn all these different idioms, just take it one day at a time and try to learn uh and practice a little bit each and every day. That way, the next time you have a conversation, you're really going to be on the ball when it comes to using these idioms. Now, in light of the time, and I'm not even wearing a watch, but I just need to to start wrapping things up because tomorrow I have to get up at the crack of dawn. In light of learning these C1 and C2 idioms, which are broadly used, I now want to turn your attention to a topic that is more specific. And I apologize if you feel like I'm talking your ear off, but you're doing great. Keep at it.

I really think you're on the ball. And the topic that I want to focus on right now is the military. And these are expressions that I think at one time they were mostly used in that that setting just by people in the military. But nowadays it's changed and anybody might use these phrases and expressions in everyday conversation depending on what they're talking about. So I'm going to do four things. I'll teach you the expression. I'll tell you what it means. I'll talk a little bit about how the expression came about and then tell you how people might use it in conversation today. The first expression that I have for you is boots on the ground. Now, this expression is probably still mostly used in just a military context because it's talking about troops that are on the ground engaged in some operation and you would say that they are going to put boots on the ground. This is an expression that became a bit more popularized after the invasions of Iraq and Afghanistan.

And they talked about more troops being sent there, more boots on the ground. Another time you might hear this expression is from politicians when they're talking about whether or not the military might be engaged in some operation and they might have to send troops to a combat zone and put boots on the ground. It may also be used to talk about the civilian police force. At times that they have to go out into the city for some reason or another and they're going to put boots on the ground.

The next phrase is bite the bullet. Now, this is an expression that you might find more commonly used in everyday English because what it means is to endure some sort of pain or discomfort. you're you're going to suffer through something and basically you know that you're going to do this and you would say you know I'm going to bite the bullet. I am going to endure this pain. I'll bite the bullet. So for example, maybe you lie to somebody could be your husband or wife and something happens and you need to confess. You need to tell them the truth even though you know that you're going to experience some some pain and heartache from this but in the end you're going to do it. You're going to bite the bullet.

This was a phrase that was used by soldiers during the American Civil War, but I think it can actually be traced back to a British Army officer who wrote a book and referred to an expression with a similar meaning, chew the bullet. But today, if you know that you're going to endure some sort of pain or suffering, could be physical, could be mental, you can just say, I'm going to bite the bullet. Next is the phrase got your six. somebody says got your six, then that just means that that hey, I have your back. I am watching your back and protecting you and making sure nobody's going to hurt you. So the reason somebody would say got your six is because in the military people might often refer to a clock as to where something is located. Something is in front of you at 12:00.

Maybe it's to this side 3:00. Here's 9:00. And then behind you would be six. 6:00. That's it. Back of you. So somebody would say, "Hey, I got your back. Okay, showtime. Mac, I got your six. I got your six. This is an expression that you're not going to go out and use unless you are in the military or law enforcement, but it is an expression that you may hear if you're watching a TV show or movie that has to do with the military. And people will refer to the position and say, "Hey, something's at 12:00, something's at 3:00." Or if you're talking about protecting somebody and watching their back, they might say, "Got your six." You may also hear somebody say, "Watch your six," which is similar to saying, "Watch your back." Especially if the enemy is behind you, they could say, "Watch your six." The next expression is bought the farm. And this is an expression where bought would be used in the past tense.

It's an informal way of saying, you know, somebody somebody bought the farm, somebody died, somebody passed away. Now, we don't know exactly how this expression came about. Some people think it has to do with jet pilots during the 50s that when they died, the family would receive some money, some compensation, and then they could buy the land, they would buy the farm. Then we have an expression to catch flak. someone, it just means that you are being criticized, harshly criticized by this person. And we often use it with the preposition from. You catch flak from someone. So if you do something wrong at home, you might catch flak from your husband or wife or if you do something wrong at work, you might catch flak from your boss.

This is an expression that that can be used by anyone. If they are describing that situation that they are going to get criticized by somebody else, then you could say, "Yeah, you know, I I'm going to catch some flak." Or if it already happened, you could tell somebody, "Yeah, I I caught a lot of flak for doing this thing." So where does this expression come from? the German air missile defense system, which they called, and I'm probably going to mispronounce this, the Fleer Abaran. If you're German, let me let me know how bad that pronunciation is, but it's an acronym for Fleer Abanan. And when pilots would would try to fly over, they would catch fire from these systems. They would catch flak. And then over years and years the expression changed to its current meaning today which is to get harshly criticized by someone to catch flak. Then we have some acronyms and those acronyms are fooar, snafu and tarfu. Now fubar is an acronym that stands for effed up beyond all recognition. The first time that I heard this expression I was watching the movie Saving Private Ryan. Even if you think the mission's foo, sir. Especially if you think the mission's fooar. What's huba? It's not a word that people might use in just their their general life. I I'm not a military person, so I don't know if this term is still used today, but this is if anything, it's more for your comprehension because you may hear this when you're watching a TV show or a movie such as the one that I just mentioned. Now, snafu stands for situation normal, all effed up. That that something happened, a normal situation, and then it just really went completely to hell. This is an expression that personally I have heard in in other contexts that if there was some situation that got screwed up and you tell someone, "Yeah, we hit a bit of a snafu. There was a problem and and then we got through this problem." You might hit a snafu. Oh, good work people.

Little snafu. We're taking care of. Oh, there was a snafu in when we stopped. I called that bed and breakfast in Napa. Tiny snafu. I've already given the money to the contractor. Sorry, but the security snafu that was on you. And Tarfu is an acronym. Things are really effed up. So if you're you're describing this situation and things are really effed up, you could just say tarfu. This is an expression that to be honest, I haven't heard it in in a movie or a TV show. I'm not in the military, so I I can't really say how common these expressions are used today, but it's good to know these acronyms for your comprehension in in case you hear them.

Fubar, snafu, tarfu. The next phrase is in the trenches. And this just means that you are you you're in a tough fight. You are in the midst of things. You you are in the trenches. And this expression, of course, it applies to war, but but people may also use it in other context as well, that that they're in a fight, they're down in the trenches, perhaps maybe in in a sports competition, that you're you're in the middle of this fight, you're down in the trenches. Or maybe in business, if you feel like you're in the middle of this fight, you're stuck, you got to keep fighting through, you could say that, you know, you're in the trenches.

So during a war like World War I, they would dig trenches. They would dig these trenches in the ground. And when the enemy would fire, they'd get in the trenches, try to protect themselves. It was a tough situation, but it was a way for them to survive, to keep fighting. They were in the trenches. Next, we have the expression no man's land. dangerous area that or maybe a topic that that can't be discussed. No man's land. And where this expression comes from, it's talking about the area between two opposing armies. And that area when when people would dig those trenches and they were they were stuck there, they were fighting. That area in between those two armies, that was no man's land. Nobody would go in that area. That is a very dangerous place to be. No man's land. Then we have the expression nuclear option. Now th this is an expression that's used today in US politics. And what it means is that you are just going to destroy everything in instead of having a debate. So just a quick little civics lesson in the United States Senate that this is where they would debate legislation. But if one party has control and they don't want to debate, they may opt for a nuclear option, which means they're not going to allow a debate. They're just going to destroy everything and do what they want. This expression refers to nuclear warfare, a nuclear bomb. When in the military, when people might discuss a nuclear option, they're talking about dropping a nuclear bomb, which would destroy everything. But nowadays, if you hear this term, then you're probably watching something or reading something about US politics. Next is the expression on the double.

And if somebody says on the double, it just means to to do something quickly. Pretty much double twice as quickly as you would normally do it. And this is an expression that that people could use in their daily lives. If they're asking somebody to do something quickly, they might tell them, "On the double." Get back up here. On the double. Over on the double. double, man. On the double. Yes, sir. Right, sir. Right away, sir. Now, suit up and get out there on the double. So, in the military, I if you wanted somebody to move twice the pace, twice the speed, they might say to do it double time. And if you're talking about a task and and you want them to get this task done, that's when they would say on the double. When I think of this expression,

I think of people that that used to be in the military and they take some of these terms and phrases with them. For example, my grandfather who was in the military, I would hear him use this from time to time and he'd say that that something needs to be done on the double. Then we have the expression on the front lines.

forefront of a battle, an argument, or maybe even some movement that they are out there, they are leading the charge, and you could say that they are on the front lines. If talking about the military, then I think it's self-explanatory that if there's a battle, if there is a fight, and you are right in the middle of it, if you are out front, then you'd say you are on the front lines. So, this is an expression that that may be used outside of discussing the military. You could say that that you are on the front lines of this issue. The next expression, and I think this is a very well-known one, and that is just roger that. And if somebody says roger that, it just means yes. And when I think of this expression, I think about two people communicating over the radio or maybe they're using walkie-talkies and that somebody's telling somebody to do something and instead of saying yes, you just say roger that.

You may hear this expression just in general, especially if somebody's giving a command and telling you to do something, you okay, roger that. Yes. Yes, I'll do that. Well, in the old NATO phonetic alphabet, the letter R was pronounced as Roger. So if a message was properly received they would confirm that by saying roger. Over time it evolved to the meaning of yes. Nowadays in the NATO phonetic alphabet they use the word Romeo in place of the letter R. But Roger is still used to say that a message has been received. But this is a phrase that I think you may hear in a TV show or movie and it's good for your comprehension. So if somebody says roger that, then it just means yes. Did you understand these expressions? And if you did, let me know in the comments and just write, "Roger that." So, if you write that in the comments, then I know that the lesson was easy to understand and follow. I just got to say, you are doing amazing.

You're learning these idioms and expressions. You're building your vocabulary. And remember, I'm here to help. I got your six. And let's continue with another specific topic. And I want to speak my mind because I think learning vocabulary by topic is a great way to associate these words and phrases with their meaning. So, let's switch gears and talk about the seasons. And we'll begin with winter. Winter is coming. Actually, that's a lie. It's already here. And nice and cold outside. So today figured it'd be a good time to talk about some cold words and winter expressions. Cold words? What do you mean what are cold words? What are cold words? Cold word words that have to do with cold. I think we should go out there.

So, we decided to do this lesson today cuz it's cold outside and well, it's a good time to talk about the cold. Yana really likes the cold, but uh I like snow. Uh I'm not a huge fan. Where'd you go? I'm here. There was so much more this morning. The first word is a bundle up, which is this what I'm doing right now. Bundle up means to take all of the clothes that you have in the closet and put them on. Just kidding. But it means to just really really really uh put on some warm clothes because it's cold. So, you have to bundle up. Put on a hat, a scarf, gloves, jacket, boots. I don't know.

Just bundle up. Put on put on some warm clothes because it's cold outside. You feel cold? No, it's not that cold. Cuz you're all bundled up. I'm bundled up. So, wait. Don't tell them that it's not that cold. That's We're It's supposed to be really cold outside. Oh, yeah. It's freezing. Ow. Why don't you just Did you just throw a snowball at me? Often in winter when it's snowing, people will build a snowman. Gummy nose. Another uh common winter word, especially when there's snow outside, is slush. And slush is just when the snow starts to melt and it kind of Yeah. makes this weird sound. And we have slush in the slush. You having fun?

Wait, are you gonna be What are you doing? Where are you going? Okay, I was just hiding. So, when we're talking about the weather and it's cold outside, there are varying degrees that we can use depending on how cold it is. So, the first one, if it's not really that cold outside, somebody might say that it's chilly. Or you could say that it's also nippy. Nippy outside. Do you ever say it's nippy outside? Nippy. Nippy. Nippy. And I actually I don't think that one's as common, just so you know, in case you might hear it. Uh, so chilly and nippy are kind of like it's it's just a little cold out. And of course, uh, probably the most common thing to say is just it's it's cold.

Like today it's cold outside. You can see the snow. But if you want to say it's really cold and emphasize just how cold it is, you could say it's freezing outside. Like, wow, it is really, really cold. It's freezing. We could also use a simile to talk about how cold it is. And that's when we just compare two things that are not alike. So you could say that it is as cold as something. And frequently people might say it's as cold as ice because ice ice is really cold. You could also say maybe it's as cold as what would you think? It's as cold as in Canada, the North Pole. I don't know. And depending on how informal you want to be, you could also throw some profanity at the end there and just say, "It's cold as fuck." Now, this one everyone uses a lot. It's true. Cold AF.

Another expression that has to do with the cold is to give someone the cold shoulder. And this just means to ignore someone or not pay attention to them. You would give them the cold shoulder. And sometimes when Yuana is on thin ice, I will give her the cold shoulder. That's That's not how that works. I don't pay attention to her. I give her the cold shoulder. True story. Nope. True story. You can't just say through story. It doesn't make it true. It does make it true. Does make it true. All right. Put my hat on. It's It's cold. You can just say AF. You don't have to cold AF. Yeah. You don't have to say cold. I'm not I'm not that cool to say cold AF. I don't think No, you're not cool. That's true. You're not cool.

You're cold. Get it? I'm like full of fun today. Full of fun. Puns. Word play. You said fun. Puns. What? It's a word in the English language. I said you're not cool. You're cold. Get it. He doesn't get it. Look. Oh gosh. Oh gosh. Oh no, she's so slow. She is so slow. So I can run with the camera and she still won't catch me. Oh god, it's fast. Hit the brakes. They fly right on by. She's like my my Top Gun reference right there. This is it, Maverick. I'm going to hit the brakes. She'll fly right by. Yes, it was pretty lame. I tried to ignore it, but you wouldn't let it go. I think it's going to freeze our butts if we sit on this bench. Which bench?

There's no bench. Okay. So, another expression that's related to the cold is cold feet. And of course, this means that your feet are so cold. No, it's not. It's not really what it means. So, cold feet uh you say we say cold feet like we get cold feet. So, um many times it means that you are how do I put this? So we say that you get cold feet when uh before like a major event uh you get nervous, you have a lot of anxiety about this event and many times especially now people uh refer to getting cold feet before they get married. So it's very common. Everyone's always asking, "Oh, did you get cold feet before you married Wes?" And I answered, "Yes, of course." I was terrified. He's so scary. Look at him. I had cold feet.

Did you? Well, my feet Well, literally. My feet were literally cold. It was a very cold day. It was a very cold day. Yeah. When we got married. But you can also get cold feet before like a really a really big presentation or like a speech or but just about always it's used to talk about marriage. Yeah. Now mostly marriage. I Okay. Oh, that's cute. if you guys were wondering what's this gorgeous background behind us, uh we are in Budapest. Uh it's a beautiful city and we love it. And that's why I wanted to say if you're wondering where we are and it's so cute and pretty. The last cold expression that I have for you is a very very common one and that is just to catch a cold. So cold is a word that has multiple meanings. It could be talking about the weather, but it could also mean when you're sick and you say that you have a cold or you can get a cold or even catch a cold. This is an expression that we often use. Getting a cold. I just want to say from the outside it looks like there's a crazy man just kind of giving a lecture to a phone. It's pretty funny. Oh, you're talking about me. Yes, I was talking about you. Now that we've talked about winter, I think it is only appropriate that we talk about summer as well. And I want you to stay with me. Do not give me the cold shoulder. And I'm not going to waste any more of your precious time. So, let's begin and learn some summer idioms and expressions on the double. I'm going to teach you these expressions come rain or shine. Thought I'd take this opportunity to teach you some common expressions that are related to the summer. So, the first one that I have for you is one that I've already mentioned and that is come rain or shine.

And what it means is that that something's going to happen. Doesn't matter what the weather's like. That something is going to happen come rain or shine. Often I think it's used when talking about some some event, maybe a sporting event that it's scheduled for this day and it doesn't matter what the weather is like. The event is going to happen. Could be a sporting event, it could be a concert, could be some other festival that that's going on and it will take place come rain or shine. And then we're going to do 10 miles rain or shine. It's after school. Rain or shine. The re-exam will be tomorrow morning at 4:00 a.m. outside. Rain or shine. The next expression is everything under the sun.

And what this means is that you get everything that you want. Everything on earth. Anything that you want that that you will get. So often I think it's used when you you're talking about maybe describing a person that they they want a lot. Maybe they want too much. And you could say they're asking for everything under the sun. you were thinking you could control everything under the sun. Then there's an expression an Indian summer. And what this means it's it's an unexpected period of hot and dry weather. And the the reason why they call it an Indian summer is cuz it doesn't happen in the summer. It's usually in the fall when you think that summer has ended and it starts to cool down, but then suddenly it gets really hot again for a short period of time.

You could say it is an Indian summer. What do you think of this heat this light in the air? Yeah. Indian summer, huh? I'm I'm sure my husband and I can brave another week or however long this Indian summer is going to be. Then we have a ray of sunshine. And often I think that this expression is used to describe a person and saying that that something or someone just brightens your day. It makes you so happy. It makes you so excited. And that you'd say, "Well, it's, you know, you are just a ray of sunshine." For me, I would say our little daughter Amelia. She is my ray of sunshine. And you guys, do you are also my ray of sunshine because yeah, you you brighten my day with all those amazing comments. You are a ray of sunshine.

You're not exactly a ray of sunshine. You're my ray of sunshine, Cupid me. The next expression is to take a shine to someone. So shine again makes me think of the sun, summer. And what this expression means is to take a liking to someone. So, if you meet a person and and you really get along with them and you really hit it off, you could say, "Wow, you know, I'm I really I really taking a shine to this person and we're really getting along. I really like them." To take a shine to someone. Yeah. Took a shine to me. Because we rather hoped Lady Mary might have taken a shine to him. He is quite a charmer. Your father's certainly taken a shine to him.

Homer, you are the living. Then we have to soak up the sun. And when I think of this expression because it just means to to get a lot of sun, to sit out in the sun and just take it all in. You just want to soak it up. So I often think of somebody perhaps going to the beach and they just want to lay out on the sand and soak up the sun. We're going to be soaking up some sun at the Phillies game. So soak up all the sun you can.

The next expression is summer fling. And often I think people would say that somebody has a summer fling. And what it means is just a a short-term romance during the summer. And often I think it's used with with younger kids, teenagers, high school students might have a summer fling that school has ended and summer has started and they might meet somebody and they have a short-term romantic relationship and then school starts again and the relationship ends and you just say it's a summer fling. I'm a fling. [Music] So, our summer fling was going to be just that, a fling. Oh, Miss McGar, you say anything about girlfriends? Let's just start with the summer fling. The next expression is not a cloud in the sky.

And this is, I think, used to describe the weather that you're talking about uh a summer day and you want to say, well, there's not a cloud in the sky. It means exactly what it says, that the sky is clear. And you could describe it and say, you know, everything is good, everything is well because there's not a cloud in the sky. Beautiful day, Mr. Sp. Not a cloud in the sky. cloud in the sky. A perfect day to unveil Operation Slam. Then we have to brighten up someone's day. And what this means is to make someone's day more special. To make somebody's day better, especially after somebody might be having a bad day and somebody does something for you and it might brighten up your day and make you feel a little bit better. Bunch of some flowers and brighten up your day. I'm just trying to brighten up your day with my dope ass anecdotes.

The next expression is just a statement. It's a way to describe uh a summer day, especially if you're talking about the weather and it's really hot, you could just say it's a scorcher. So, if somebody says it's a scorcher, then it just means a very, very hot day. It's a scorcher. Right now, it's kind of nice out. It's not really a scorcher, but maybe later in the week it it's supposed to get a lot hotter. It's a scorcher today, ain't it? But it'll be a real scorcher today. Well, it's going to be a scorcher. Then we have a phrase that I I don't really like and that is rise and shine. And all this means is that somebody would say this when it's time to get up. So if somebody says rise and shine, it just means okay, it's time to get up. It's time to get going. You you need to start your day.

And the reason why I don't like hearing this is because I usually I usually want to sleep a little later in the morning. I don't want to have to get up. So, if somebody's telling me, "Hey, you know, it's time to rise and shine," then usually I'd be like, "Uh, I just want to stay in bed." Rise and shine. Day one, Greeny. Rise and shine. Rise and shine. Rise and shine. It's a beautiful morning. Yes. Oh, rise and shine, Cameron. Don't forget your booties cuz it's cold out there today. Now, let let's talk about a few expressions with the word heat in there because when I think of summer, I think of the heat.

And the first one is to beat the heat. And if you are trying to beat the heat, it means that you are doing something to stay cool and refreshed and and get out of the hot weather in some way, shape, or form. You are trying to beat the heat. So, during the summer, what do you guys do? What do you do to beat the heat? And while people have found all sorts of ways to beat the heat, one local man is using his head. Is it warm out? I hadn't noticed. I think I have a way for us to beat the heat tonight, Philly style. Then we have to take the heat. And what this means is to accept criticism or just just get scolded for something that was done wrong or for something that was wrong. You you're you're going to take heat for this thing. So, if you do something bad, like you have a summer fling and your partner finds out about it, then you're going to take a lot of heat for that. And we're supposed to be some kind of decoy for you and take all the heat.

This is all my fault. You're not taking the heat for this. If I'm wrong, I'll take heat for it, but I'm just trying to do what's best for the paper. The next expression is in a dead heat. And this is used quite often with with sports because if something is in a dead heat, it just means that it's a draw. It's even. It It's the same. So, you could say that the match ended in a dead heat and it ended in a draw. It was a tie. Nobody won. Anybody has a strong feeling one way or another. Our preference survey shows a dead heat and the latest polls have it as a dead heat. So, there you have it. Those are a bunch of different summer expressions that that you can use in a variety of contexts. So, I would encourage you to go out and practice them.

So, you just learned many idioms and expressions to build your vocabulary. And I I really hope you keep at it. Do not take the easy way out. Keep watching and learning so that you can reach your fluency goals. And you know what they say, actions speak louder than words. If you enjoyed the lesson and learned something new, please let me know by hitting that like button. As always, thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time.

LESSON 78 OF 749

50 Super Useful Phrasal Verbs to Build Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I want to help you supercharge your vocabulary and teach you 50 super advanced phrasal verbs to help you fine-tune your English fluency. And if you'd like to get the lesson notes, click on the link down below in the description. Join my email community. That way you can remember these phrases, try to use them. If you're already a part of the community, check your inbox. I have sent them to you. I don't want to waste any time. Let's go ahead and jump into it with our first phrasal verb, phase out. This means to gradually stop using or producing something. And you're going to do this over a period of time. Here's an example sentence. The government announced that it would gradually phase out the use of coal power plants. And that is an adverb that you may use with this phrasal verb, to gradually phase something out. You could also gradually phase something out of your diet. Or quite common in business, you're going to gradually phase out maybe a department. And you're going to stop using it over time. Here are some news headlines to give you some more context as to how it's used. Swastikas on some Finland Air Force flags to be phased out. Florida will phase out certificates of completion for students with disabilities. And finally, Disney announces plans to phase out standalone Hulu app. The next phrasal verb is wear off. I think this is commonly used in kind of a medical context. It just means to lose effectiveness or intensity over time. After a few hours, the effects of the drug were starting to wear off. And it's just not as strong, it's not as effective. And then you could say, "Well, yeah, it's starting to wear off." This thought this was a amusing. So, I I feel like what better way to build your vocabulary, learn a language with a little humor. Says Botox injections begin to wear off and that dog has this It looks very cute, all those wrinkles.

But yeah, in this case it's it certainly looks like it's starting to wear off.

[snorts] Spell out. This means to explain something in a very clear way with details and you're going to spell something out for someone. The prosecutor had to spell out the charges against the suspect in court. And in that case, they're explaining it clearly. So there are several different context in which you can use this phrasal verb. The first is just everyday communication. Do I have to spell it out for you? If somebody says that, it is a little more confrontational. If somebody doesn't understand and you're frustrated, and like look, do I do I have to spell it out for you? Or let me spell it out for you. Let me explain it clearly. Again, it it can sound a little condescending. Just keep that in mind. In a professional context, the contract spells out the responsibilities of both parties. Or the teacher spelled out the grading criteria at the beginning of the semester. Not necessarily positive or negative, just more descriptive in that case. And then finally, just like our example before, in a legal context, the law spells out the penalties for tax evasion, the agreement spells out the terms of payment, and you're just explaining something in a very clear way. Talk down to. This certainly has a negative connotation. If someone is talking down to you, they are speaking to you condescendingly. As an example, I could say she was a gifted teacher who never talked down to her students. This is a three-word phrasal verb and the most important thing is just to remember that it has a negative connotation if you feel like someone is talking down to you and it can just really sound condescending. Hammer out. This is a great work-related phrasal verb. It just means to work out details through discussion. After months of negotiations, the two companies finally managed to hammer out an agreement. And that is a common collocation with this phrasal verb, to hammer out an agreement. Or maybe you're going to hammer out the details or hammer out a framework. All useful collocations with this phrasal verb.

Here is a fun little comic. Sorry for interrupting. I didn't realize you were still trying to hammer out an agreement. And of course it's funny, they're fighting. And that is one that's one way to hammer things out. Bow out. This means to withdraw or retire from an activity or role. And you're you're just going to bow out. I don't [laughter] know how else I was going to try to explain it other than just saying that. I guess you got to bow out. She is going to bow out of the competition because of her injury. So in that context, it means the same thing as withdraw and it's interchangeable, but it's always good to add a little flavor to your language skills and you can use this phrasal verb and say, well, somebody bowed out or you're not going to bow out of the competition and give up. Frown upon. This means to disapprove of

Check up on. This is a three-word phrasal verb that means to try to discover what someone else is doing in order to be certain that person is doing what they should be doing, and you're going to check up on that person. So, you in a work context, you would check up on someone just making sure they're doing what they should be doing, but you could also use it when just more in a friendly manner, that somebody's sick or ill or injured, and then the next day you call just to check up on them, and you want to make sure that they're doing okay. To give you an example, I could say parents may check up on their kids to make sure they're doing their homework. I know I certainly check up on my children to make sure everything's okay, and that yeah, sometimes that they are doing what they should be doing.

Never forget the people who take time out of their day to check up on you. So, this is more in a just a caring, loving context if you check up on someone and you just want to know how they're doing, especially if they're struggling or they're going through a difficult time and you want to check up on your friend or a family member. Follow through. This is a phrasal verb that, as you can see, you may often follow it with the preposition on or with. You're going to follow through on something or follow through with something. To continue an action or task to its conclusion. Here's an example. He made a commitment to the team, but he didn't follow through with his responsibilities.

Either one works. If you want to use with or on. He didn't follow through with his responsibilities. He didn't follow through on his responsibilities. If you want to see or which is more commonly used, you can use Ngram Viewer. This is a great resource in order to learn which words and phrases are going to help you sound more natural in conversation. In this case, it really it really doesn't matter. Either one works. You can see that they're used at approximately the same frequency to follow through on or follow through with. The next phrasal verb, do away with. Another three-word phrasal verb, it just means to get rid of something, stop using it, and you're just going to do away with it. We should have done away with this department years ago because the company has been losing a lot of money. So, in this case, they're expressing regret. We should have just done away with it. Maybe instead they were phasing it out over a period of time, but yeah, they should have just done away with it. Here are some more news headlines to give you some context. US News & World Reports

College Rankings Should Do Away With Peer Assessment or Trump Trying to Do Away With Every Check and Balance Ahead of Second Term. Pharmacist urges public to do away with older antibiotic medications. Who knows? I don't know. Maybe they wear off quickly. Going to keep trying to use these phrasal verbs just to get a little review. And the last one, house lawmaker wants to do away with Pentagon's CMMC program. I've no idea what that is. I just wanted to just give you an example using this phrasal verb do away with. Then there's branch out. This means to extend or expand one's activities or interest in a new direction. And I think it's considered just more positive if you are going to branch out or some business decides to branch out and they're going to go in another direction. Here's an example. He started as a mechanic but has branched out into engine repair for boats. So whenever you branch out the idea is that this is going to be a good thing for your future. You're going to learn something new. Maybe there's a financial opportunity if you try to branch out and do something new. Rattle off. This means to say, perform, or produce something quickly and effortlessly. And you might rattle off the name of something or you're going to rattle off uh the numbers if you're just saying it from memory. She can rattle off the names of all 50 states in alphabetical order. To be honest, this is something that I I think a long time ago I used to be able to rattle off the names in alphabetical order. There was a song that they taught us. It It went like Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Arizona, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana.

Not going to sing. I'm not going to keep rattling off these names. I I think you know them but just to give you an example of, you you what it would be like to rattle something off. Live up to. I think this is a great three-word phrasal verb. It's even a great picture of these of these cats. To do as well as or be as good as people expect you to. And you're going to try to live up to someone's expectations. That is a very common collocation with this phrasal verb. I don't think I'll be able to live up to my mother's expectations. That kitten looks very worried that they're just trying to live up to those expectations.

Latch on to. This means to follow someone and try to talk to them, get their attention, especially when they would prefer to be left alone. It's very specific that you are and just trying to be close to this person. They want to be left alone and you're latching on to them. So, it does have more of a negative connotation. He latched on to his friend and followed her around the party. Again, not a good thing. It's more negative if somebody is latching on to you and just following you around when you want to be left alone. Now, this phrasal verb has multiple meanings and I know that's why phrasal verbs in general can be confusing because many of them have more than one meaning. But, just to share a couple of others with you.

So, latch on to could also mean to become very interested in something. It says, "Don't just latch on to the latest management trends." The next meaning is the one that we've already talked about, trying to get someone's attention, following them around. with your hand. So, keep in mind there is more than one meaning with this phrasal verb and I think over time it's just great to get exposure and try to use them and you will pick them up slowly. Don't worry about it. The next one, to feel up to. It means to have the strength and energy to do something and you feel up to it. And a lot of times you may use this in more of the negative sense to say that you don't have the strength or you don't have the energy. If you ask me, "Hey, let's go to this place. Let's go do this thing." and I tell you, "Look, I just I just don't feel up to it. I don't feel up to it right now." I'm not interested in going to the party this weekend. I just don't feel up to it. Maybe you are worried that I am going to latch on to you and that is why you tell me, "Look, Wes, I just don't feel up to it." and yeah, you're you think I might just latch on to you at the party. Could happen. Mull over. This means to think carefully about something for a long time and you are mulling it over and you're considering it and then you're going to make a decision. I'd like to mull it over before making my final decision.

This is another way of just saying I'd like to think about it, but I will say a slight nuance. When you mull something over, you are really thinking carefully. So, that is the key word I want to emphasize, carefully. You're taking your time, you're considering all the different facets of something and you're just mulling it over.

[laughter] I don't know. Again, I don't know why I thought this was funny. Hopefully you do, too, but some of this can be a little cheesy.

I must ask you a question, but I will give you time to mull it over. Just this play on words. You can see this gentleman right there. He has a mustache and he also has a mullet. Anyway, let's move on. The next phrasal verb, buckle down. This is one that I would hear when I was a child. My parents would say this to me. Means to get serious about your work, focusing diligently on the task at hand. And you need to buckle down. Exams are coming up and I really need to buckle down. I really need to focus about on these exams and get serious and yeah, I need to buckle down. I said that I would hear this a lot when I was a child. This is something my parents would tell me to encourage me to do well in school and take it seriously and work hard and they say, you need to buckle down and do your homework. You need to buckle down and study for the exams. So, any parent out there who is looking to use a phrasal verb with their child, this one's for you. You just tell them, you look, you got to buckle down. This is now definitely you you don't want them to do this, to drop out of. This is a three-word phrasal verb that means to not do something that you were going to do or stop doing it before you have completely finished. Commonly, I this may be used when talking about education. I just said that you might want to tell your child to buckle down, work hard and you do not want them to drop out of school or drop out of a course or drop out of a class. So, often you may hear it used in that context. After struggling with his grades, he decided to drop out of school. Common collocation with this three-word phrasal verb, to drop out of something.

Here are some other collocations, even though I mentioned uh a few already, to drop out of university, to drop out of college. You could also drop out of a competition or to drop out of the race. As far as competitions and races are concerned, do you remember the phrasal verb we talked about already when you're going to withdraw? You could bow out of the competition or bow out of the race. If somebody bows out, it makes me think that there's a reason for that. There was an injury or an illness and they just cannot compete. If somebody drops out, it just makes me think they don't want to do it. They're they're not interested in it and they don't like it and they're going to drop out of the competition or drop out of the race.

Slight nuance, something to keep in mind as far as the difference between drop out of and bow out. This is I thought this was humorous. This is why people drop out of school. It says, "Sorry, that's not correct. The correct answer is 14. Your answer is 14." And yeah, that's confusing. I think people would probably need to mull this over and figure out, "Okay, is it is it worth it?" Cash in on. This means to take advantage of or exploit a situation and you're just going to cash in on it. She was able to cash in on her 15 minutes of fame. In case you're unfamiliar with the this expression, I'm going to give you a little more vocabulary. 15 minutes of fame, this is an idiom. It refers to a brief period of celebrity or notoriety.

You kind of become famous for a short period and then it goes away. But if you have your 15 minutes of fame, maybe it's not a bad idea to try to cash in on it. Maybe make a little money or try to take advantage of another opportunity. You're going to cash in on your 15 minutes of fame. Then there's get around to. I like I like this three-word phrasal verb, maybe because I use it quite often and I'll I'll explain why in just a moment. It means to do something that you have intended to do for a long time. And you're planning to do it, but maybe you just haven't gotten around to it. I haven't found time to fix the door. I'll get around to it eventually. So, I said I'll use this. I have a lot of plans, a lot of things that I would like to do and that I tell my wife and others that I apologize so let's continue. Plow through. Plow through means to finish reading, eating, or dealing with something with difficulty. And you just want to you want to get through it. You're just going to plow through it. I have a stack of financial reports that I have to plow through over the weekend. Very descriptive, really captures the way that you feel about something because if you say that you have to plow through some reading material or in this case plow through some financial reports, it gives me the impression that it's not something you're you're looking forward to. It's a lot of work. You're overwhelmed. You're going to try to just do it and get it done with. You're just going to plow through it.

And you're not going to say, "Well, I haven't gotten around to it." You're going to deal with it and you're going to try to plow through it. Here are some news headlines. through data. I thought I could plow through the pandemic without burning out. I was wrong. I think a lot of people thought they could just plow right through it. And then finally, Maharashtra, sorry if I mispronounced that, votes 2024, farmers across state plow through pain of an uncertain future. And they're trying to just get to the other side and finish whatever difficult activity it is and just plow right through it.

[snorts] Run through. This means to discuss, repeat, or read something quickly. In this case, I often think about uh performances and you're going to run through some lines. This was the example I have. Will you rehearse with me? I'd like to run through my lines and just discuss them, repeat it, practice, and just run through your lines. Put up with. I think this is a common three-word phrasal verb. To accept or continue to accept an unpleasant situation or experience or someone who behaves unpleasantly. And you are putting up with someone and you're still accepting and dealing with it or you could use this with a negative and say, "Look, I am not going to put up with this." And you're saying you're not going to accept it. She is not going to put up with his nonsense anymore.

I apologize for adding that that extra extra full stop at the end. I meant to take it out. I just didn't get around to it. But I I appreciate you putting up with the with my mistakes. So, again, you're just continuing to accept something and you're putting up with it or keep in mind you may use it with that negative that you are not going to accept it. I am not going to put up with it. It's not you, it's me and my lack of desire to put up with your anymore. Feel like this is something my my wife probably could say to me. Like I just I'm not going to put up with your anymore.

Hash out. Great phrasal verb. I little more specific and it is advanced. It just means to talk about something with someone else in order to reach an agreement about it and you're going to hash things out. I think we need to hash out some of the details before we make an offer. And this case it's it is a little similar to hammer out. In the example, I think you could use, you know, we need to hammer out the details before we make an offer. One slight nuance, I feel like when you are trying to hash things out, I feel like it you may use it in the context of a relationship and you're trying to work things out, you're trying to figure things out, make things better and you could say, "Look, we need we need to hash things out. We need to talk about our problems, talk about our disagreements, figure things out and we're going to hash things out." So, you will use this phrasal verb in that context. If we're talking about hammer out, that is more work related to hammer out the details, hammer out an agreement. But in a relationship, friend, family, there's a problem, disagreement, you could just hash things out. And then if you are able to solve your problems and figure things out with another person, then you could say, "Hey, glad we hash things out. Glad we hashed it out and we've solved our problems." I I will say, it this caught my attention because McDonald's, I feel like the breakfast is not half bad and I I will admit, I enjoy I enjoy their hash browns. The next one is zero in on. If you're zeroing in on something, it means to direct all your attention towards a particular thing. And you're really focused on this thing. Government regulators are starting to zero in on artificial intelligence. And we need to give it more attention because it's going to have a meaningful impact and we need to zero in on this thing.

But this is a three-word phrasal verb that I think is useful in a work-related context. It adds emphasis. Instead of saying, well, we need to direct our attention over here, we just need to zero in on this thing. Now, I'll give you another three-word phrasal verb that is similar. on. As you can see, zero in on has a few different meanings. I put a check mark down by the one that we've been talking about, to focus one's attention on something. And in that case, it is rather interchangeable with to hone in on something and you are focusing on or concentrating on something. Great phrasal verbs to to know, to understand because a lot of them you are likely to come across and this is really going to help your listening and reading comprehension, even if you feel like you may not actively use them when you are speaking and talking to someone else.

So, great for your comprehension. The next phrasal verb is listen in on. To listen in on means to listen to a private conversation, especially secretly. I want to know what they're saying. I'm going to get closer so I can listen in on their conversation. And you're listening to someone secretly. To give you a verb that has the same meaning and you could use them interchangeably is to eavesdrop. To eavesdrop on someone or to eavesdrop on a conversation. There's another verb that sounds a little similar, but it is different and that verb is to overhear. To overhear a conversation is different than eavesdrop and listen in on because it's not intentional. When you overhear something, you did not mean to secretly listen. For example, maybe somebody is talking loudly on a bus and you overhear their conversation. Now, if you're interested in their conversation, then you may start listening in on the conversation. Hopefully, that makes sense me explaining it that way. You don't plan to do it. You overhear a conversation and then you do plan to listen secretly and you listen in on the conversation or you eavesdrop on someone's conversation. I know I'm giving you a lot of vocabulary. Just try to absorb what you can. Hopefully, some of this is review already and that's perfect. And if some of it's new, just keep it in mind, try to store it, review it later. And then, if you can, actively use it when you're having a conversation. Lash out. This is Well, I was going to say it's good to use. Hopefully, you don't have to use it. It has more of a negative connotation. If someone lashes out, it just means to suddenly attack someone or something physically or criticize him or her in an angry way and somebody is lashing out. I was only teasing him when he suddenly lashed out at me.

It is negative, but I think we can all relate to this because we've had an argument or disagreement with someone and then either like either we did this or the other person they just lashed out and they start criticizing or attacking you and you could say the other person lashed out. I think children could also be a common association and they get really upset and they just lash out. And you should still tell them, look, I want you to buckle down, work hard because I do not want you to drop out of school. You can lash out all you want, but you're not going to drop out of school. Right, using all these education phrasal verbs.

Here is a fun meme. I'm going to lash out irrationally at the next person to take something from my desk, use my phone, or ask me what I'm eating. And it's like you're at your breaking point and then you're just going to lash out at the next person. Then there's look out for. This means to try to make sure that someone is treated well and you are looking out for someone else. It's just you and me. We need to look out for each other.

Now, it may sound a little similar, but it is different than check up on. When you are checking up on someone, often I I feel like there's like a distance there. Maybe you're calling to check up on someone or I mean, you could go over to someone's house and say, look, I just want to check up on you, make sure you're doing all right. Uh you could look out for someone's best interest. That is a collocation with this phrasal verb. So, one one thing I want you to be aware of as far as using this in a positive or negative uh way, to look out for someone else, this has a positive connotation. I'm going to look out for my younger brother. You want to make sure that your younger brother or anybody is just treated fairly.

If you are looking out for yourself or you say that he is looking out for himself, she's just looking out for herself, that is it's a little selfish. So, that has a negative connotation. If I say, "Well, he's only looking out for himself." Keep that in mind. Looking out for someone else, good. Looking out for yourself can seem pretty selfish and have more of a negative connotation. Eke out. I like this phrasal verb. I just like saying it. I just like saying the word eke eke out. It means to obtain or win something only with difficulty or great effort. You might come across this in a sports context. This is the example I have for you. Surprisingly, the team was able to eke out a victory. So, it tells me that the the match was close, but ultimately, the team was able to eke out a victory. Very specific. Uh not one that you're going to come across as often. Still, I just mentioned this is good for your comprehension in case you do come across it. You're reading about some sports competition and a team or someone eked out a victory. Here are some news headlines just to give you more context with this phrasal verb. Stocks eke out gains amid growing political noise. Or how Maduro could eke out another win. These are old articles, by the way. And finally, smartphone market in India eke out mere 1% growth in Q2.

The next phrasal verb is get away with. It just means to succeed in avoiding punishment for something and you get away with it. You do something wrong, you make a mistake, you don't get punished, you can say, "Wow, I can't believe I got away with it." Or maybe you hear somebody use this in the context, "Look, you are not going to get away with this." I I feel like that is a statement you'll hear in a movie, TV show. Look, you're not going to get away with this. Like that is like that example. Somebody steals something and they're yelling, "Look, you're not going to get away with this. You will get caught. You will get punished.

Brush up on. This means to improve your knowledge of something already learned but partly forgotten. I I think often you may use this when talking about languages. Maybe you are going to take a pause from English for a little while and then you come back to it 3 months later, 6 months later and you say to yourself, "Look, I I just need to brush up on my English. I am going to watch a lot of interactive English videos in order to brush up on my English skills and learn new vocabulary, learn new phrasal verbs." Here's an example, "I really need to brush up on my Spanish." And just start using it again because there are things that you've have forgotten.

Then there's tone down. This means to make something less forceful or offensive. You want to want to tone it down. There's so much anger in politics. People need to tone down the rhetoric. The way that people talk about each other can be very well, very hateful, very angry and therefore you can say, "Look, we need to tone it down a little bit. We need to tone it down and just make it less forceful or offensive." Here are some collocations with this phrasal verb to tone down the rhetoric, to tone down the expectations. You could tone down one's language, tone down the excitement or tone down the response. Great phrases to know with this phrasal verb. Then there's move out. It means to stop living in or occupying a particular place. In the US, when you turn 18, it is not uncommon for some kids to move out of the home and they no longer live there and they move out. So you could move out of a house, move out of an apartment, um move out of I guess wherever wherever it is that you're living and you may move out. Give up on. This is a three-word phrasal verb that means to expect someone or something to fail. And you you're no longer going to try. If you give up on something or give up on someone. The movie Stand and Deliver. I was talking about this movie about a week ago. The movie Stand and Deliver is about a math teacher who refused to give up on his students. And he did not want to give up on his students. He believed in them. He told them that they need to buckle down because there were there were some students, maybe one or two, that dropped out of school and he cared about his students and he was not going to give up on them. He was a great teacher who was always looking out for his students.

As I use these, hopefully it's a little it's easier to understand. These are phrasal verbs that we've already talked about and he was looking out for them. I don't know why. I just I talked about the gave it an example, but here's I'm really sharing a plug for the movie Stand and Deliver. You can go check it out. It's an old movie.

[gasps] The next phrasal verb, air out. This means to expose something to fresh air,

often to improve its scent. The example, after returning from vacation, she opened windows in order to air out the room. That makes sense. Maybe you move out of your old apartment, then you move in to a new apartment and hasn't been occupied, maybe it just has this stale smell and you open a window because you want to air out the room. Now, you may be looking at this phrasal verb thinking, wait a second, I feel like I've heard it used in another context and that is what I want to point out. So, this was the the meaning that we just looked at and some example sentences. I'm trying to air out the car to get rid of the smell, or we really need to air out the house.

It also means to discuss or address an issue openly. And here are a couple example sentences. It's important to air out any grievances, and you're going to discuss them openly. Or I think we should air out some of our concerns. If you have a problem with another person, you say, "Look, let's just air out our concerns, and that is going to help us hash things out." And we'll be able to solve those problems. We'll be able to to hash things out if we air out our concerns and our issues.

The next phrasal verb, come down with. To catch or show signs of an illness. Very specific when talking about the you know, the way you feel, your health, and you come down with something. It's cold outside, you should put on a jacket or you're going to come down with a cold. That is a common collocation, to come down with a cold. Some other common collocations with this phrasal verb, to come down with the flu, to come down with a fever, or just to come down with something. And when I say something, I literally mean you're going to say, "Well, I hope I don't come down with something." You don't know what it is, but you will hear people use that phrase with this phrasal verb.

Then there's pick up after. I'm This phrasal verb is near and dear to my heart. To clean the mess created by someone. You can't really see the picture there. This is our This is uh the home, our little girl, and I'm constantly having to pick up after my little girl. I think that's just what parents do. They always have to pick up after their children. Someone else you might have to pick up after would be your dog. If you're a dog owner, here are signs that you may come across saying like, "Look, pick up after your dog. Poop pollutes. Please, pick up after your dog." I'm not going to go through all of them. The next one is pass out.

This means to become unconscious for a short time due to something. He was so tired that he passed out in the middle of his exam. I don't know what happened. Maybe he didn't buckle down and take things seriously and just got really tired and just passed out during the middle of the exam. Hopefully, hopefully he does not drop out of school. To give you a little more context, this is just a little search that I did. Things that you can pass out from and some examples. So, what are some things that might cause you to pass out? Low blood sugar, emotional stress, prolonged standing, hyperventilation, anxiety, eating a meal, medicine, your collar's too tight, alcohol, fear, pain, low blood pressure, arrhythmia, cough, pregnancy.

There are many things, of course, that can cause you to pass out and you just become unconscious for just that short period of time and you pass out. Walk out on. This means to suddenly end your relationship or involvement with someone or something. So, if you walk out on your partner, then yeah, the relationship's over, but you could also maybe walk out on your job. If you walk out on your job, it may be difficult to find another. So, when you walk out on someone or something, then you just it's over, right? It's no more and you are walking out. Here are some news headlines to give you more context. Black Friday strike, Amazon workers in UK and US to walk out on busiest shopping day of the year. Or Turkish lawmakers, others walk out on Israel at Geneva meeting. And finally, Trump supporters walk out on MAGA rally before it ends. So, when you walk out on someone or something, it's really Look, it's over. We're leaving. We're done.

The next phrasal verb is jazz up. I like this one. Has a positive connotation. To make something more attractive or interesting. You should add more lights in order to jazz up the place. Make it a little more lively, more appealing, and you're going to jazz up the place. Great phrasal verb. Here are some other example sentences because it's not one that you're going to come across as often as some of these others. He jazzed up the food with some special seasoning. Or Coca-Cola jazzed up its bottles with new designs. And finally, it's entirely up to you if you want to jazz up or tone down your look. that other phrasal verb, tone down.

[sighs] Then we have fall behind. To fail to maintain a certain level and do something fast enough or on time. I think this is a common phrasal verb, one that I think you should know and can go out and use because I think we can all relate to this. The class is difficult. I think I'm starting to fall behind. And if you are falling behind, maybe you should talk to your teacher. And if your teacher does not give up on you, they're going to help you work hard, buckle down, so that you can catch up and you are no longer falling behind. But, useful phrasal verb, one that I think is quite commonly used.

The next one, look up to. This means to admire or respect someone. I've always looked up to my father. He's kind, he's fair, he treats people well. And you then look up to your father. And I'm sure your father is someone who is looking out for you. And they want to make sure that you're treated well. They are looking out for your best interest, and that is why you might look up to your father. But of course, you can look up to anyone if you admire and have respect for this person. Then there's goof off. I like this phrasal verb. It's it sounds fun even though it maybe it's a little more negative to avoid doing work.

You're wasting time, you're goofing off. Of course, I like it when I goof off, but if my daughter is goofing off, then maybe I might get a little more annoyed and say, "Hey, you know, stop goofing off. Uh stop goofing off and do your work." That sound sounds like something I might say. But I think we can I know we've all goofed off before and it yeah, it just it happens. One thing I want you to be aware of because you could say goof off or goof around, they really have the same meaning. You could use them interchangeably. But going back to Ngram Viewer to see which one is more commonly used, I think you're more likely to come across goof off. But if you want to use goof around, be my guest. Uh they mean the same thing. Catch on. To understand what is meant or understand how to do something and you are trying to catch on or you're starting to catch on. Those are some common collocations. Uh she will do well in her new position. She catches on quickly. That's another collocation with this phrasal verb, to catch on quickly. When you lied on your resume, but you catch on quickly. Apparently, Shrek can catch on quickly and and pretend to be a ninja turtle. Stand up. Now, you could follow this with four or two. Stand up for someone or stand up to someone. To defend or support a particular idea or person who is being criticized or attacked. When it comes to bullies, you have to stand up for yourself.

So, in this case, it's positive if you're standing up for yourself. And you don't you don't need to lash out. If you're lashing out, then you're attacking. It's more negative. This is more positive. And you're going to defend yourself, or you might stand up for another person, which is also which is also a good thing. Burn up. This means to have a very high temperature. And you might tell someone, "Look, oh, you put your hand on their forehead. Oh, you're burning up. You definitely have a fever. And you are burning up." And you take some medication, and hopefully it doesn't wear off quickly. And you can you can get over it and feel better again. Talk back. This means to answer someone in a rude way. Just looking at the meaning, you know this has a negative connotation if someone is talking back to you. The student got in trouble when he talked back to the teacher. Often, I think you'll use this phrasal verb when there's like different positions, like of authority. So, teacher student. The student will talk back to the teacher.

it's it's frowned upon. All right? I can at least try to give you a little review as we go through this. So, yes, that that is a a mistake right there. Here's the example. I was disappointed because when I got to the grocery store, they had run out of milk. And I think this is a great association with this phrasal verb. You go somewhere to a store and they have run out of something and it's no longer there. Text me if you run out of toilet paper. I know you're on your phone. This is a great uh sign. It I feel like it probably is true for many people because they're on their phone. You can text me if you run out of toilet paper. Then there's get rid of. This means to relieve or free oneself of something or someone unpleasant or undesirable.

You're going to get rid of something. My wife wants me to get rid of my socks because they have holes in them. This is This is true. I have holes in my some of my socks, not all of them. And she always tell you like you need to get rid of those. It It's horrible. Just get rid of them. One thing I want you to keep in mind with this one, don't confuse it with like stop. So, get rid of something like you're discarding it, you're throwing it away. Sometimes when I hear people try to use this, they try to use it like I need to stop smoking. I need to get rid of smoking. You're not going to use it that way. You're going to use this more like you're throwing something out.

You got to get rid of it like the garbage. Now, I know that I gave you a lot of information in this lesson and I'd encourage you to go back and review these phrasal verbs because building your vocabulary, it's a process. It takes time. And phrasal verbs are super useful because we use them quite often in just casual conversation. If you enjoyed the lesson and learned something new, you can let me know by hitting that like button. As always, thank you so much for watching and I will see you next time.

LESSON 79 OF 749

50 Useful Collocations with TAKE | Build Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

i'm so happy that you are taking part in this lesson because i am going to teach you many different collocations with the verb take so take a seat and get ready to build your vocabulary [Music] hey everyone my name is wes this is interactive english which is the channel that you want to be watching to practice and improve your english skills and if you don't believe me just take a look at all of our video lessons there is so much for you to learn and in today's lesson i am going to teach you 50 different collocations with the verb take and these are phrases that you can use in everyday english and if you don't know what collocations are they are words that are frequently used together and as i talk and say these collocations you will see them appear and you you don't need to take notes because i am going to include a list of all of the collocations from today's lesson down in the description but i'll be perfectly honest learning collocations takes time the real key is getting more listening and more reading because as you see and hear these words being used together when it comes time for you to speak or when it comes time for you to write you will be able to use them correctly naturally fluently and effortlessly trust me when you do this you are taking a step in the right direction but right now i want to take a moment and tell you about the sponsor of today's lesson which is lingoda and as i tell you about today's sponsor i'm going to continue using these collocations with take so if you don't know about lingoda it is an online language school where you can learn english business english spanish german or french and taking online classes with lingoda

is an excellent way to achieve english fluency lingoda has a proven teaching method and curriculum and i know this because i've studied with lingoda i took some spanish lessons and it was a great experience and i loved it for four main reasons first you study in small group classes with a native speaking teacher which means you will have plenty of opportunities to speak also you don't have to travel anywhere you don't have to take a bus you don't have to take a taxi to and from school you can study from the comfort of your own home in addition classes are available 24 7 which means you can plan these lessons around your schedule and finally the lessons are very affordable as low as 8 euro per group class so if you want to dramatically improve your english then take some lessons with lingoda and you can find out more information by clicking on the link in the description and as a bonus you can use the voucher code interactive 8 to get a 20 euro discount on your first month of classes i also wanted to let you know which is great news is that entries for the lingoda language sprint have reopened and you can now join until september 18th and the language sprint it's an excellent way to take your english to the next level because when you participate in the language sprint you study for three months and if you take all of the required classes you will become eligible to get 100 cash back i talk about the language sprint more in another video lesson which i will also include in the description down below so so check out those links down in the description don't forget to use the voucher code interactive 8 to get a 20 euro discount and truly put yourself in a position to achieve english fluency now let's just take a deep breath and continue our conversation about collocations with take because i i know what you're thinking how am i possibly going to learn all of these different phrases and you to be honest you're doing that right now as you are watching this video lesson and you're listening to me use these phrases in context you see these collocations appear on the screen that's going to help you moving forward but i want you to take comfort that you will be able to learn all of these different collocations and put them right up here in your active memory and use them correctly when the time comes because when you're learning a language i think it's easy to feel like you've been taken hostage and that you think well my english is just never going to improve so if you have that feeling like you've been taken prisoner then you need to break free from that feeling because learning a language it's not only about taking exams or taking tests or taking quizzes it's about taking pride in the fact that you were doing something you were learning something that's helping make you a better person and you will be able to communicate with people from all over the world and understand different people with unique perspectives now i i think i can help you with all of this because when it comes to learning english i hope that you take my advice i have i have three different pieces of advice that i would like to share with you the first thing is that i think you need to take a long hard look in the mirror which is a great expression that means you need to examine something carefully and really reflect on it i want you to take a long hard look in the mirror and think about why you're doing this what's motivating

let anxiety hold you back and that's my second piece of advice because learning a language may cause anxiety for example you may be afraid to speak and say something because you think it might be wrong and therefore you don't take a risk perhaps you're afraid that someone's going to take notice of all of your mistakes and that they're just going to take your grammar apart and say this is wrong and that is wrong but i think it is important that you take some chances don't worry about making mistakes just take heart which is an expression that means be hopeful and optimistic take heart that you are doing the very best that you can making mistakes is part of the learning process and we just move on from them and if you can relax and continue speaking and practicing i promise that people will take you seriously my final piece of advice is that you find ways to connect with the language make it uh make it a part of your day make it an experience and this is exactly what happens when you take a trip to another country and you communicate with the locals in english because english is the common language it's it's an experience and a memorable one probably because you're you're taking pictures but language can be a part of that experience so remember that the next time you you take some time off from work and you take a vacation to another country when you when you read when you listen those are also great ways to connect with the language right now you are connecting with the language by watching this video and and learning these different collocations the more you connect with the language the more i'm convinced that english will take your breath away which is an expression that means you are astonished or amazed by something or someone the english language has certainly taken my breath away it's a great expression it's also a song by the music group berlin for those of you who are familiar with the movie top gun i would play you a little bit of the song but i can't because of copyright and i i don't want anyone to take me to court now i apologize i'm getting off topic but music and movies those are also great ways to connect with the language and so is having a conversation or writing a letter the list goes on and on you just need to decide that that you're gonna do this and take that decision but that's more british english but it's still a collocation with the verb take so i really hope you take my advice and follow these suggestions actually i've i've already used that one haven't i i i'm sorry i shouldn't do that i try to take responsibility for my mistakes i guess you could say that i was trying to take a shortcut all right i'm i'm getting close to 50 so i'm going to start wrapping this up i'm also feeling a little tired so perhaps i'll take a nap and if you are also feeling a little tired after learning all of these collocations then you can take a page out of my book and do the same and that is an excellent idiom that means to do something the same way as someone else you can take a page out of my book take a nap and of course i love hearing from you guys so please write to me in the comments i will read your comment after i wake up from my nap so in a way it's like i'm taking a message i am very proud of all of you for for following me throughout this entire lesson and learning all of these different collocations so

please take a bow thank you guys so much for watching and wait a second that's only 49 huh uh okay thanks for watching i will see you next time take care so long

LESSON 80 OF 749

5 Advanced Expressions in Spoken English

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today i want to teach you some advanced expressions to help you improve your overall fluency that's coming up [Music] hey everyone my name is wes this is interactive english and the channel is all about trying to help you practice and improve your english skills and today i want to teach you some advanced expressions that i think are very useful and they're pretty common in in places like the united states now i want to go ahead and say that these expressions are often used in spoken english so these are expressions that you would hear if you're listening to a conversation or listening to a podcast or even watching a tv show or movie so i'm going to give you as much information as i can and talk about these expressions in great detail so that you really understand what they mean how they are used why they are used

which again it's really going to help your comprehension so let's begin with our first expression which is without further ado and i think this is appropriate i could say without further ado here is our first expression and what this means it just means immediately or without delay and most of the time people are going to use this expression when they're talking in front of a larger audience perhaps they are getting ready to introduce a person and they could use without further ado so without further ado my very good friend and the finest broadcaster i know bill mcnail so in that situation they're they're talking about this person they're saying all these great things and just before they introduce them they will say without further ado and then introduce the person you could also use this expression before before an event before you introduce some event or before something begins so without further ado ladies and gentlemen and snail start your engines notice that in both of the examples that i just gave you without further ado comes at the beginning of the statement it becomes before you introduce the person or the event that's getting ready to start one thing i do want you to know is that even though most of the time it's used in front of an audience you could use it casually with with smaller groups of people or even just one person but most of the time you are going to hear people use this expression when they're talking in front of an audience and the next one that i have for you is with all due respect and people would say this when they're they're trying to politely disagree with someone but really i'm not just talking about anyone i'm talking about a person of authority so you might say this if you want to politely disagree with your boss or you may hear people say this during a political debate or even a lawyer might say this to a judge with all due respect we ask you to enforce the subpoena with all due respect your honor chloe decker is not on trial so this is pretty common if you're watching a tv show or movie that takes place in a courtroom

you may likely hear this expression but no matter if you are talking about uh talking to your boss or a debate or even a conversation in a courtroom you're going to use this expression in in more of a formal situation and the reason why people use it is kind of to soften the level of disrespect because when you when you disagree with someone you don't want it to be very forceful especially if this person is in a position of authority so if this is your boss you could say all due respect boss i think that's a terrible idea all right you don't want you don't want it to be too forceful so you could say all due respect now one thing i want to point out here is that notice i did not include with that is another thing about this expression is that you can use it in different ways you don't have to include with you could just say i'll do respect or even in british english people might just say with respect so there are different variations of this expression but they all have the same meaning you're trying to be polite when you disagree with someone

but most often i think people would use with all due respect then we have the expression quote unquote so this is it's one of my favorites from this lesson and i'm going to take a little time to walk you through this so what it refers to is what somebody directly says and quote unquote really it refers to the quotation marks so let me give you a quote and i'm going to put some writing up here so that you can follow along but remember people are really going to use this in spoken english so the the quote that i'm going to say and this i truly believe this i would say you guys are awesome all right that is my quote so in a more formal situation somebody like a news reporter could say wes said quote you guys are awesome unquote all right but casually i don't think people are really going to use it that way but in that case i'm really saying the entire quote and i'm i'm putting the direct words between quote and unquote i think if if somebody wanted in a conversation to talk about what somebody said and you want to say everything i think it'd be more common for somebody to say something like this wes said and i quote you guys are awesome i think that would be more common in spoken english but i think casually informally people would use quote-unquote as a single phrase they're going to use it together and in that case it's it's more like an idiom you're also not really going to say the entire quote what you're going to do is really just highlight a few words or even one word that's important and and i think that's commonly how it's used so i could say something like well at work she said she's been under quote unquote intense pressure so the words that i want to highlight intense pressure that is something she said and that that's important so if i'm telling somebody else this i i could say at work she said

she's been under quote unquote intense pressure really emphasizing that hi it's the quote-unquote auburn-haired girl in 307. he maimed him in a quote-unquote fit of rage you really are kind of a quote-unquote fantastic fox this expression may also be used sarcastically as well when you say something and you really mean the opposite and in that case it's the same way people would use air quotes so perhaps you know somebody they think they're an expert at something but you really don't think so and you're talking to another person and you say yes he is a quote-unquote expert so you you don't really think they're an expert you're saying it sarcastically and you're using quote unquote to highlight the word or phrase that you're being sarcastic about and you're also probably going to be able to tell based on somebody's tone and this the way that they're speaking another drink now or will that quote unquote embarrass you why do we have to work around the clock to get our quote-unquote partners to do what they already promised they would do get a load of that quote-unquote santa can't believe those kids are falling for it then we have the expression all downhill from here or or you could say all downhill from there this is more of an idiom but the reason why i'm giving you this is because it can have two different meanings and not only that the meanings are really the exact opposite so in this case it's really important that you understand the context because if somebody says it's all downhill from here they could be talking about uh a situation that from now on it's just going to get easier and easier think about um a bike if you ride your bike uphill that can be pretty difficult once you get to the top and it's all downhill it's pretty easy you can sit back and relax and just cruise right down the hill the other meaning which is the exact opposite is that if somebody says it's all downhill from here they could be referring to that something is just going to get worse and worse and worse that there's really there's really nothing positive that's going to happen then and you'd say yeah it's it's all downhill from here

so let let's quickly do a little bit of grammar and talk about the the difference between saying all downhill from here and all down hill from there so think about those words here and there here is really talking about the present so if you're referring to some situation in the present you would say it's all downhill from here and that could be for either meaning and if you're going to use there because there is talking about something that's further away you would use that if you're talking about a situation that that happened in the past or even a situation that will happen in the future then you're going to use all downhill from there that's a little bit of grammar to help you understand well should you use here or should you use there so let's look at a couple of examples involving school to help you try to better understand the context and see if you can pick that out so you see this girl right here she's very happy and she may say oh today i turned in my final project

it's all downhill from here so in this situation you finish your final project it's over there there's a lot of relief from this point on it's all downhill from here it's just gonna get easier or maybe in another class she's very upset and she says in the beginning i was doing great but then i stopped trying it was all downhill from there in that case again she stopped trying so things became worse and worse and worse and it was all downhill from there i'm talking about a situation that happened in the past she stopped trying so it was all downhill from there so check out this other example and see what you think is it talking about something that is going to become easier or something that is just going to get worse and worse this is the best time of your life it is yes it is pull it together because it doesn't get any better than this it's all downhill from here so when we put this in context we have this older guy talking to a younger kid that should enjoy life now it's great you're young because later on it's just going to get more and more difficult it's going to get worse and worse it's all downhill from here so that is the meaning that he was referring to so just remember that with this expression it has two different meanings the meanings are opposite and you just really need to put things in context then we have agree to disagree and this is a great expression it's one that i like to use uh especially if you're having an argument with somebody and you want to stop arguing you want to bring it to a close you can just say let's let's agree to disagree people would use this when they they have different opinions and they're not going to change their opinion and instead of continuing to argue to debate to have this conversation you could just say look let's let's agree to disagree and it really kind of means what it says it's basically saying that two people disagree but the one thing that they can agree on is that they disagree so you say let's agree to disagree and people will i think they'll often use that statement right there and just say yeah let's just agree to disagree we don't need to keep talking about this anymore neither one of us is going to change our opinion here are a couple of other examples i think we should be paid a living wage you think that we're commies that need to go back to russia agree to disagree it doesn't mean saint diego no no that's what it means really well agree to disagree so there really doesn't have to be a lot of anger or frustration i think it's okay if people have different opinions but sometimes i think it can get a little heated if you're having this this debate and discussion and you're trying to change somebody else's opinion this is a way to i think calm things down and just say look we we don't need to continue talking about this let's let's respect each other's opinion let's just agree to disagree and i truly hope that we can all agree that this was a useful lesson and if you feel that way you can let me know by hitting that like button and again just really just try to listen for these expressions because you will hear them from time to time and i definitely think it will help you improve your english comprehension so i i hope you enjoyed the lesson i hope you learn some new expressions and i hope to see you in another english lesson thanks for watching and i'll see you next time

LESSON 81 OF 749

5 Adverbs Native Speakers Use Daily Fix Your Pronunciation!

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Can you correctly pronounce these five common and useful adverbs? Let's find out. We'll begin with particularly. There are five syllables. The stress is on that second syllable. Particularly. I think the last two syllables is what makes this a bit tricky. So, just repeat after me. Particularly. Say it again. Particularly. This really just means that something is at a higher degree than normal. like you don't particularly want to do something. But I know that you want to learn how to pronounce this next word, which is literally. There are four syllables. The stress is on that first syllable. Literally. One thing I want to say about this word, because I'm from the US, you're going to hear me pronounce that T as a flap T. It's going to sound like a soft D because it comes between two vowel sounds. Literally, it is really just means like exact or exactly. This is exactly how Americans pronounce this word. This is literally how we pronounce it. The next word is regularly. Four syllables. The stress is on that first syllable. Regularly. And I think this can be confusing with the Rs and the L's. And just keep in mind that your tongue is in a different position. With the R, your tongue is pulled back. The tip of your tongue is not touching anything. Whereas with the L, the tongue is going to come up and touch the top of your mouth behind your front teeth. And you can really feel it when you say those L's regularly. Regularly. Something just happens often. It happens regularly. Then we have eventually. This word has five syllables. The stress is on that second syllable. Eventually. I'm really stressing it right now. One thing I want you to keep in mind with this word, you may hear that schwa sound a lied and it's like it just gets removed and instead of five syllables, it may sound like it only has four. Eventually, something that you may come across, but really the word has five syllables, eventually. And this adverb basically means in the end. So I could say eventually you are going to hit that like button. So you could just go ahead and do it right now if you want. And then there's accidentally. This word has five syllables, the stress is on that third syllable. Accidentally. One more thing about the American accent. When the t follows an sound, it may elide. You don't really hear it. When I say accidentally, and if something happens accidentally, it just means that well, it was not your intention for this to happen. Now you know how to literally pronounce all of these words. And I imagine you are particularly good at it as well and you can use them regularly.

LESSON 82 OF 749

5 BIZARRE WORDS w/ SPELLING & PRONUNCIATION THAT DO NOT MATCH

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

can you correctly pronounce these five words right here because the spelling and pronunciation do not match so the first word choir that CH has a C Sound I know it's crazy choir like a singing choir then there's aspirin now in many dictionaries you'll find it with three syllables but most of the time especially in the US you'll hear people say it with two aspirin kernel you do not hear that first L instead you hear an R sound kernel my grandfather was a kernel in the Air Force next is Q it's like you're just saying the letter Q you need to form a Q and then squirrel that SQ has a squ sound you do hear a slight W squirrel very cute little animal squirrel so now you know in case anyone asks you

LESSON 83 OF 749

5 Common GRAMMAR MISTAKES English Learners Often Make

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

we all make grammar mistakes i make grammar mistakes and today i want to talk to you about five grammar mistakes that you could be making that's coming up [Music] hey everyone my name is wes from interactiveenglishvideos.com which is the number one channel to practice and improve your english and today i want to help you improve your grammar because i want to talk to you about five common grammar mistakes that learners often make and even native english speakers are guilty of making these mistakes as well and i promise by watching this lesson you will make fewer and fewer mistakes and that that's actually what i want to talk to you about first is a word pair that's commonly confused and that is fewer and less we use these words to talk about a quantity an amount a degree and in general we use less with uncountable nouns so i could say i have less energy than i did yesterday maybe maybe i should eat a banana [Music] okay wow that took less time than i thought it would so i just gave you two examples as to when you would use less with uncountable nouns less energy less time one thing i do want you to keep in mind is that people use less when talking about singular nouns there's a popular expression that goes there's one less thing to worry about so even though thing is a countable noun it's singular so we're going to use less there's one less thing to worry about we use fewer when we talk about plural nouns so i could say now that i just ate one banana i have fewer bananas left now when people confuse these words they're pretty much using less when they should use fewer and there are some clear mistakes that that you can find well such as this one like an advertisement or if you walk into a grocery store this is something that you might definitely see 10 items or less should be fewer then there are mistakes that i think well they're more understandable but they're still not correct for example when people use irregular plural nouns so i could say in the morning there are less children on the playground children is an irregular plural noun and i should use fewer in the morning there are fewer children on the playground or perhaps if we're talking about work uh so you might hear somebody say less and less people are willing to work on the weekend again people it's an irregular plural noun and you should say fewer and fewer people are willing to work on the weekend to be perfectly honest i am guilty of making some of these mistakes like with those irregular plural nouns but i still try to avoid making them and i would also encourage you to try to avoid them as well and use the grammar correctly now i want to take a moment and tell you about the sponsor of today's lesson which is lingoda and studying with lingoda it's a great way to improve your english and you will make fewer and fewer speaking mistakes and that's one less thing to worry about and right now lingoda has an amazing opportunity for those of you who would like to improve a lot improve quickly and do so at an affordable price i got three words for you lingoda language sprint that's right lingoda is doing another language sprint and if you complete it successfully you can get 100 cashback or 50 cashback if you attend all your classes i've even studied with lingoda i took some classes in spanish and it was a great way for me to build my vocabulary improve my pronunciation and really gain some much needed speaking confidence and the great thing about lingoda is that classes are available 24 7 and these are small group classes which means you will have a lot of opportunities to speak so let me give you a little more information about the language sprint because you have two options you can take the super sprint in which you will take 30 classes a month for three months and successful completion means you can get 100 cash back or you can take the sprint in which you'll take 15 classes a month for three months and if you complete that successfully you can get 50 cashback and the way it works is that you will pay each month you will take the required number of classes and then you will be eligible for either that 100 or 50 cashback the language sprint will begin on september 23rd so you have until september 8th to sign up and reserve your spot once you sign up you will pay a 49 euro deposit but you can use the voucher code school 16 to get a 10 euro discount on your deposit so click on the link in the description to find out more information about the language sprint and don't forget to use that voucher code school 16 and just start taking some online classes to improve your english gain some speaking confidence and make fewer and fewer mistakes let's get back to the lesson and the next grammar mistake that learners often make is with another word pair which is used to and used to now the first reason why it can be a little confusing is that the pronunciation is very similar used to and used to for the most part if you are speaking and you happen to make a mistake people really aren't going to take that much notice the problem would be with writing if you are writing and you need to use either used to or used to people are gonna see that okay this is the wrong one this is a mistake so let's let's look at uh let's look at what these verbs mean it's a modal verb and let's start with used to because this is definitely the more common one because of the meaning so if you say that you used to do something it's talking about something that was done or something that was experienced in the past and it's not done or experienced right now in the present for example i could say i used to play guitar that's true i don't play it anymore i don't play it now or perhaps i could say i used to look like this and as you can see i don't look like that anymore it's unfortunate or finally i could say we used to get regular sleep in the past but not now in the present because we have a baby girl and regular sleep has just gone out the window and that's a great idiom if something goes out the window it means that it just no longer exists so you may be wondering when are we going to use the form used to and we're going to use this when talking about negative statements and the reason for that is because when you are stating the negative with do not or does not you're going to use the base verb afterwards which in this case is used to so i could say something like

well i didn't use to have hair like this i didn't used to have hair like this i used to have hair like that when i when i shaved my head which was well it was a long time ago or to be perfectly honest i didn't used to look like this but you probably already knew that i didn't used to look like this i well i i feel like i kind of look the same one other thing i want you to be aware of is that used to has another meaning which is to be accustomed to something so in this case it's pretty much an idiom and i could say wow this summer it's really hot and i'm not used to it this is a common expression that you will hear if somebody just wants to say they're not accustomed to something i'm not used to it so when we're using this idiom and you're talking about something you're accustomed to you're going to use used to and now let's talk about noun clauses because this is another common mistake that learners will make so i i can give you this sentence which is correct i don't know where she is what i might hear learners say is which is incorrect is i don't know where is she i understand why learners make this mistake but first we should know what a clause is a clause is a group of words that has a subject and a verb a noun clause is a group of words that will take the place of a noun so this group of words together just acts like a noun and one way to identify a noun clause is to look for these words right here these words often start a noun clause they're not the only ones but these are some common words that you will find at the beginning of a noun clause so let's go back to that sentence and i started it with i don't know and we're going to follow that with a noun i don't know the answer or i could say i don't know this person actually i do i do know this person that's me a long time ago at a halloween party but i can follow i don't know with a noun and i could also follow it with a noun clause i don't know where she is where she is just acts like a noun and when we write our noun clause we have a subject and a verb and the subject is going to come first subject verb she is the reason why i that learners confuse this is because they see where and when people they they see where they think question and if we were going to ask a question you'd say where is she where is she and in that case the subject and the verb are reversed so it's understandable that learners make this mistake but realize that when we're talking about a noun clause it's going to have a subject and a verb the subject is going to come first and there are common phrases that are often followed by a noun clause like the one that i just gave you i don't know plus a noun clause or even i know plus a noun clause i know why you are here you're here to improve your english or another phrase would be i wonder plus a noun clause i wonder if you will write me a comment i do i really wonder because i love hearing from you or i could say ask someone plus a noun clause like ask him what time it is now there are again two main reasons why i think this can be really troublesome the first

reason is because well mistakes are often made when the verb is to be and the second reason is when noun clauses are used in questions we can use noun clauses when we ask questions so let's go back to that last sentence ask him what time it is now a common question that i just think is burned into people's mind is what time is it what time is it what time is it what time is it it's something it's a question that i ask a lot but if i want to ask the same question perhaps even be polite i'm going to use a noun clause and i got to switch it around could you tell me what time it is could you tell me what time it is it's a little more polite but it's the same exact question except i'm going to use a noun clause and the subject will come before the verb

it's the same if i ask do you know plus a noun clause do you know what time it is and this is a more specific example as to when learners may struggle with noun clauses so do you know what time it is it's time for me to end this lesson and i hope that you learned something new and if you did please hit that like button and i hope that you will make fewer and fewer mistakes because you now know the difference between some of this confusing grammar and understand how to correct these mistakes thank you guys so much for watching and i will see you next time

LESSON 84 OF 749

5 Effective Tips to Become a Confident Speaker

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

so often i hear from learners that they want to become a more confident speaker so in today's lesson i want to share with you five different suggestions that i think will really help you build your confidence when you are speaking and having a conversation my name's wes this is interactive english and in case this is your first time here the channel is all about trying to help you practice and improve your english skills and today is all about focusing on your speaking confidence and this is very important because without confidence then there might just be a lot more awkward pauses when you're having a conversation or worst of all you just may not speak and that is not what i want so i want to share with you some of these suggestions that i think will help make you a more confident speaker and the first suggestion that i have for you is that you really need to find a comfortable environment because this is going to help you lower your anxiety and instead of just trying to think of the words that you want to say you're just going to be able to say them easily and naturally right as they come into your thoughts so you really need to take into consideration the the place in which you are speaking and having a conversation because often you may not know the other person so that's why it's important that your surroundings you feel comfortable whether you are having this conversation in a classroom or whether you're trying to speak to someone at a coffee shop or at a friend's house if you feel comfortable then that's going to help you become a little more confident with when you're trying to express your different thoughts and opinions and you're not going to worry about making mistakes and that leads me into my next suggestion which is to embrace your mistakes and i know that this is something that's much easier said than done try not to worry too much about making mistakes when you're having a conversation or when you're speaking i i want you to embrace them just understand that this is it's part of learning another language and if you're able to kind of put that out of your mind and not worry or focus on your mistakes then then that means you're just going to be able to focus more on what you're trying to say what you're trying to express and then you you'll be able to feel a little more confident in that because you're not going to be thinking about mistakes that you might be making and in order for you to embrace your mistakes and not worry about them you need to stop trying to find the perfect sentence don't try to find the perfect word or the perfect grammar when you're having a conversation and you're just trying to speak because again then you're you're gonna worry about your mistakes and then you're just going to feel more uncomfortable and and then you're just going to lose confidence and i think it's okay that if you're having a conversation i think it's perfectly normal if you want to take a moment and try to think of the word that you want to use you might think well it's right on the tip of my tongue and that's a great expression if something is on the tip of your tongue it means that you are well you almost have the right word or phrase that you're trying to think of and if you can't think of it you might say oh it's just it's on the tip of my tongue and i know that happens to many of you out there that you're in a conversation and you stop for a moment because you're trying to think of that perfect word it's okay give it a couple of seconds but if you can't think of it then then just try to move on it's perfectly fine to then stop and tell somebody well let me let me try to explain it a different way because when you're able to do that if you can't think of the perfect word or or grammar and you just move on and try to explain it another way you can just keep the conversation going and not focus on whether or not you said something correctly or you use the correct word i want you to continue trying to have a natural free-flowing conversation instead of a conversation in which you're stopping every uh minute or two to think of a word and you have those awkward pauses the next suggestion that i have for you is to maintain eye contact so this is something that it all of this is really connected maintain eye contact with the person that you're speaking to because when you when you're looking directly at them you're really able to focus on what they're saying and when you focus on what they're saying it makes it easier for you to comprehend the information which would then make it easier for you to respond when you're having that free-flowing conversation and this is what happens when when people stop to search for that that perfect word people will end up looking away and they look away from somebody and they may lose focus not just on the the word or sentence that they're trying to say but they may start to lose focus on the entire conversation in general and then you start worrying about your mistakes and then you might feel a little more uncomfortable and start losing your confidence so again this is a building process if you're able to do each one of these it's going to help you build your confidence more and more and more so it's very important try to maintain eye contact it's also important that you try to speak clearly i know that many of you out there when you hear things like fast speech or i've done some lessons talking about fast speech or reducing your speech because i think there are many native speakers even in your language they reduce words and phrases because we want to say things well as much as we can in the shortest amount of time but don't feel like you need to do that it's so much more important for you to try to speak clearly which means that you're trying to speak at your speed so if you don't feel comfortable trying to reduce words and phrases or if you don't feel comfortable trying to link different words that's perfectly okay i think it's more important that you focus on speaking clearly and speaking at a speed that you're comfortable with because when you're able to do that it's just going to help you feel a little more confident having that conversation and you're listening to me right now you can tell i i am not somebody who speaks very fast this is the speed that i feel comfortable speaking at and i try to speak clearly and because of that i like to think it might make it a little easier for you to understand what i'm saying so i hope those five tips help you but i've saved the best for last because if you would really like to gain more speaking confidence then one suggestion that i have is that you enroll in my speaking course called speak up this is a 10 week course to really help you speak clearly speak confidently and speak naturally we talk about a variety of topics there are different speaking activities and there are also video lessons to help you practice and improve your pronunciation and if you are interested in improving your speaking and would like more practice and you want to join you can use the voucher code speak 10 to get a 10 discount off the course so check out the link down in the description if you would like to sign up or learn more about the course thank you guys so much for watching and i hope to speak to you soon

LESSON 85 OF 749

5 Phrasal Verbs with GET | Useful Grammar Lesson

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

all right let's see if this is working all right so hello hello hello I hope that uh everybody out there is having a wonderful weekend and if you when you join us just tell us where you're from and uh you're name and if you are watching this at a later date in time uh don't worry about that but today what I want to talk to you about is phrasal verbs all right and phrasal verbs um you know they they're very important they're very useful it they're they're great to learn even though they can be extremely extremely frustrating because phrasal verbs can be very conf confusing you're dealing with prepositions which are words that can people can easily forget and also because phrasal verbs you have one of them and they have several different meanings oh hello hello um Brazil here excellent awesome welcome um I want to we're going to talk about phrasal verbs with get we've already done one video One lesson about some get phrasal verbs um with which we will link in the description below and I want to talk to you about five more of those phrasal verbs and I don't want to go over too many at one time because again they each have different meanings and we we it's best to do a little at a time so if you can just learn maybe two or three phrasal verbs in one day or even one week it is really useful so I'm going to go over five different phrasal verbs with you today and then we're going to do a little practice and I am going to test your knowledge um and what you remember from this lesson so if you are in the chat I am going to ask you some questions and I want you to type your answer uh so we can all see it and if you're watching this video later again my recommendation use the comment section as a whiteboard and just write your answer and keep trying to produce the language even though you're listening to a video it doesn't always have to be passive learning you can make it into an active language learning lesson and actually write out uh your answers so today let's go ahead and begin with the first phrasal verb um again if you're just joining us hit us up in the chat tell us your name where you're from we say I know uh is it Natalia's in here from Brazil so so again say hello um which country are you are you um joining us from it' be great to hear from you so the first phrasal verb let's go ahead and begin we're going to talk about is get around okay so again this phrasal verb has three different meanings um the first one when you're talking and using get around it just basically means to travel to different places and this can be talking about traveling from one country to another country and you travel all throughout the world and you could say wow that person really gets around it can also mean shorter distances talking about just being around the home and I think this is a little more common usage of get around um in this context if you're talking about somebody who's older maybe a grandparent or somebody who just broke their leg and you're asking you know do they have trouble getting around the house like getting out of bed and walking around different rooms and I gave you an example sentence there hey what's up George uh also from Brazil awesome um the example sentence I gave you for get around is you know for her age my grandmother gets around easily so again getting around is more the literal sense just talking about moving from one place to another also get around can mean to avoid something where you literally want to get around something else because you want to avoid it and this is frequently used in the context of traffic we should find a way to get around this traffic I hope you like my lovely picture down there supposedly that is from the longest traffic jam in the world it was 62 miles in Beijing and apparently it lasted for 12 days so to get around something is to really just to go around it and the final meaning of get around is to if you're talking about just having sexual relations with many people and this is you know usually used in the context of it's not a typically a compliment you're usually talking about somebody else and you're not talking about yourself self so typically it's used in just a sentence like oh he gets around or oh she gets around um and in using it people would use it more so as like gossip in talking about other people getting around so those are the three different uh meanings of get around and again I know this can be difficult because you have one phrasal verb three different meanings but again we're going to practice this it's good to know um how to use it and especially keep practice practice practice practice because practice makes perfect uh again if you just joined us we are talking about different phrasal verbs with get you can hit us up in the chat say hello where where are you joining us from um and uh yeah it'd be great to hear from you guys so that is get around let's look at the next phrasal verb that I want to show you is this one get through okay so get through also yay it has three different meanings again that we need to learn so to get through you can also use it with the other preposition it can be a three-word prepositional phrase um get through two but I'll talk to you about that one in just a second so to get through um the first meaning is just when you're talking on the phone okay okay you're you're trying to contact somebody and sometimes I think we've all been there depending maybe our cell reception is not good and you have a difficult time getting through to somebody else and a lot of often you might hear somebody say like I gave an example and said you know I'll call you later I can't get through I'll call later I can't get through right now you're not able to connect you're not able to reach that person because perhaps you don't have uh cell cell perception you can't get through the other way that it's used get through too and this is talking about like you get through to someone else is to effectively communicate uh with somebody else you're trying to reach somebody you're trying to make them understand you're trying to show them your point of view you need to get through to somebody and a lot of times this might be used in the context when talking about maybe children or students that are difficult to work with and as a teacher this has happened to me before when I've taught when I taught kids way back when and some of the students some of the kids it was tough to get through to them um because of one reason or another and like they said in the example sentence he doesn't listen to anyone nobody can get through to him so it's easy to it's it's a little more difficult to communicate with somebody and a lot of times it's used in the negative talking about you can't get through to somebody else the last one um with get through is to survive or to endure something all right you need to get through it so perhaps you're experiencing an unpleasant ordeal or an unpleasant situation and you are trying to get through it you are trying to survive it you are trying to endure it I know this time of year a lot lot of people are finishing up school and they have final exams in either um if they're in high school or university and they are trying to survive it and they're trying to get through it which is the picture of the young lady studying and says I don't know how I'll get through my final exams

how are you going to get through this how are you going to survive so again one phrasal verb three different meanings for it let's continue and then we're going to practice practice rce practice um again if you guys have any questions just hit us up in the chat ask us anything English related and we will try and get back to you all right so also you know again let us know your name where you're watching from and if you really want to be helpful for us you know again just share the video sharing is caring help us spread the word and to spread the word is an idiom that means to talk to other people and other people and other people so more people know what's going on all right so I um the next one that I want to talk to you about so we've done get around we've done get through the third phrasal verb that I want to show you is this one right here to get across all right and to get across thankfully this one just has two meanings that we are going to discuss the first one is a little bit similar to getting through through to someone all right trying to make them understand to to get across is to make someone understand something the difference between the two if you want to get through to somebody you were wanting to communicate with them person to person if you're trying to get across you're actually trying to get something across all right not just you communicating you are actually trying to communicate an idea or an opinion or or a thought and you are trying to get that cross to the other person um so I gave you an example sentence up there again she couldn't get her point across because he wouldn't listen and a lot of times um you know you you are talking about this you're getting your point across which is you're trying to say something you're trying to express your feelings your thought and you get your point across and this is kind of a very common cocation used in English with this phrasal verb to get some point across all right um all right George excellent example sentence all right I have to go through some work on Sunday morning um you have to get through some work on Sunday morning yes unfortunately I I I'm sorry that you have to be working on Sunday but um you know it's all good great uh example sentence again I'd encourage you guys for more practice as we're going through these just like that keep writing in the chat throw out some sentences I'll talk about them um um and and let you know uh how they work if you're using it in the right context but again it's good to keep keep practicing the other meaning of get across is more the literal meaning is that you are trying to go across something and get from one side to another now I would say there is a difference between get across and go across and that difference is when when somebody says get across I think that there is something kind kind of blocking or stopping somebody or you know something making it difficult to try and go to the other side so I'll give you an example so if we are standing at a street and there are no cars around absolutely nothing then I would just say hey we need to go across uh to the other side we're just going to cross the street if there are a lot of cars there and it's going to be very difficult and we have to wait and maybe it's a little dangerous then I would more likely use get across again because there is something there is a challenge in the way that may be preventing us from going from one side to phrasal verb that I want to show you is this one okay which is get off okay so get off it's a big one it has four different meanings and again I think these are phrasal verbs that many of you you might already be familiar with you've already learned them but maybe there might be a meaning that you are not too familiar with so again it's always good to learn um new ways to practice and improve your English so get off I have four meanings the first one is talking about leaving a place and typically you you're almost always talking about work so if somebody's at work and you're talking to somebody else and you might ask them hey what time do you get off they're talking about what time are you going to be leaving work work and this is a very common question like the one that I gave you what time do you get off work so right now I have a question for you that I want you to write in the chat I am going to ask you what time do you get off work what time do you normally get off work um during the week or on the weekends if you're on it so I want you to try and write that sentence in the chat answer that question what time do you get off work and try again just practice write a full sentence write a complete compl sentence don't just give me a time what time do you get off work let us know um the next sent or the next meaning of get off is one that you guys are probably already familiar with and that you know about which just is to exit or disembark something you're talking about getting off of a bus getting off of a train getting off of a bike getting off of a horse so these are some of the more common ones that you use get off with notice that there's a lot of Transportation ones but you do not get off of a car all right um that is not one that we use but when you're actually kind of leaving something and disembarking uh is kind of the word that I would like to use with those other forms of transportation um you get off of a bus you get off of a train uh even in the example sentence um you would say like uh we got off the train immediately you left the train you got off the next meaning of get off is to again you're basically telling somebody to stop touching you in some way shape or form so for example uh maybe somebody steps on your toes or they step on your foot and you'll just tell them hey you know get off of me hey um get off of my foot all right you're basically saying stop touching all right or maybe somebody tackles you all right if you are wrestling um playing around with your friends and just say hey you know get off of me uh that is another common phrasal verb meaning for get off the last one um if you're trying to get off is to avoid being punished severely so what I mean by this is you know if somebody went to uh jail and then they got out um you would say you know they got off easy or something like that so actually it's kind of like you're you're getting punished but um it wasn't a very severe punish so you'd say again mostly as a cocation you get off easy all right so sometimes at school I use this as an example in the as for our sentence um students maybe cheated on the test and maybe they didn't have much of a punishment and you could say wow they got off easy for cheating on the test all right you get off is kind of to avoid a severe punishment and you have a lesser punishment and you are able to get off easy the next one all right guys you aren't very chatty today all right like again let us know what time do you get off of work um and again use it in the sentence try to practice practice makes perfect

um hello Matas how's it going uh if you guys were if you guys are joining us again let us know your name where are you writing us from um it's always good to know so we've talked about now that is the fourth one get around get through get across get off I want to talk to you one more phrasal verb and then I want to do some practice and I'm going to give you 10 questions 10 fill-in the blank questions and I want you to write the answer using one of these phrasal verbs so the next one that I want to show you is this one all right which is get by okay so to get by has two different meanings Zeus I get off work at 400 p.m.

awesome perfect use um Natalia it doesn't work sorry hey okay that's fine um good use of the the word get off 4M nice that's that's good you got the whole afternoon after you get off work mostly um so again this phrasal verb to get by um has two meanings and these are maybe a little more difficult especially the first one um to get by is to have enough money or knowledge to do what is necessary now these are two separate uh meanings so for example in the sentence that I gave you like I lo uh he lost his job but he's still getting by this one is talking about money mostly and the ability to survive so if you're able to get by typically it's talking about you're able to survive with the little resources the little means that you have um often you're talking about in this context maybe you lose your job or maybe you're experiencing some financial difficulties and you say yeah you're you're still able to get by it can also be used when talking about knowledge which is a little different so I'll tell you this would be like kind of in the context of school or education maybe you're taking a a class and it is so difficult and you don't really understand the material and you would say like look I really don't know how I'm going to get by um which is I don't know how I'm going to survive with the knowledge that I have or for example maybe you finished and you got a good grade in the class and you say wow I can't believe I got by with an a um that you were able to survive with the knowledge you have you were able to get by with this grade so to get by is again you're talking about typically either money or knowledge um and you're able to survive and endure Vel hi hi hello how are you um where are you writing us from let us know um and tell us too what time do you get off work that was the question that I had for everybody um the other meaning of get by is again more of a literal one you're trying to pass somebody or something that is blocking you or in your way so if you are here and you need to go over there and maybe you need to get by something and this is again little typical little different than get around to get around you are actually going out of the way to go um to where you want to be to get by is kind of you know kind of going through and and um so for example like have those two nice security guards there hello hello from Argentina awesome cool got people from all over the place joining us Estella welcome um in that picture those two security guards so this is something you would hear a lot of times in movies um or TV and they say oh how are we going to get by the guards or how are we going to get by uh this person or that thing how are we going to get from here to the other side and get by okay so uh awesome joining us from India cool a lot of different places today um one of the questions that I had we talked about the phrasal verb get off let me know what time do you get off of work um I well I will get off my work in almost 4M all right nice um George excellent sentence a lot of times you really don't need to to use it like um as an estimate you just say hey uh I I'm I get off around 4M or something if you want to like if you're not sure of what time you know you get you get off around 400 p.m.

sometimes you get off before sometimes you get off later um I'll get off around 4 pm um I get off school uh it's a good sentence I get off school at 4M um typically again I'd say get off when you're talking about leaving it's almost always used in the context you're you're talking about work mostly um so you wouldn't really um you would say kind of maybe get out of class at a certain time like I get out of class at 4 pm or you just say yeah I finished school at at 4 p.m. show those that just joined us we talked about again I'll just run back through these real quick to review um get around is again talking about three different meanings going from um one place to another maybe traveling from country to Country and you really get around a lot it can be to avoid something often times I would say avoiding traffic we need to get around the traffic um and again it's also can be used talking about in the having a lot of sexual relations just saying again it's a standalone sentence mostly gossip saying oh you know he gets around or she gets around um and you're talking about some other person to get through it was the second one we talked about and you're talking about getting through to someone like on the phone you're trying to connect with them it can also mean to communicate effectively with somebody I'm trying to get through to you to help you understand the meaning of these phrasal verbs and hopefully this is making it easier um it can also mean to get through something to survive in ordeal or an issue or a situation that that maybe you find difficult um we talked about get across and after I go through these I'm going to give you guys the questions um to get across that first one is to help make sure to help make somebody understand something and typically you're talking about something like a an idea a feeling an opinion you're trying to get that across to another person or to a group of people you're trying to get your point across and then the other one like I said is to get across like literally to go from one side to another but it is typically talking that something is maybe a little more challenging that you have to get across and that was the difference between get across and go across um and I use that street as an example if there's no cars I would go across the street if there are cars I would say oh wow we need to get across the street try and find some way to do it um the next one we talked about again quickly was get off um I asked you guys what time do you get off work uh again it's typically it's just talking about work another meaning for get off was again like the bus the train uh a bike you are actually getting off of it um and leaving another one is again telling somebody hey you know get off of me somebody's on top of you or maybe like I said they step on your foot and you just say hey you know get off um asking them stop touching me get off probably the more difficult one would be in this context of you know getting out of a punishment and then you're talking more specifically about crime maybe somebody's going to jail and they got off pretty easy um they weren't severely punished and then the last one we just talked about it was get by talking about getting by with money getting by with knowledge um and surviving and being able to get through this um and it also means again getting by if somebody's blocking your way um excellent George I'm following you on Twitter you have nice lessons there thank you very much again if you guys want more practice please follow us on social media we're on Facebook and Twitter we post a lot of different questions um it's not just stuff that's YouTube related to help you guys practice this um and kind of test your your different knowledge of of English so right now I am going to test uh your knowledge of what we just learned okay so wait a second uh I want to delete this before I turn it on I don't want to show you the question just yet here we go okay so here we have the five phrasal verbs there okay now there's my hand five uh that we talked about get around which phrasal verb are we going to use for that uh all right just write your answer into the chat okay okay what do you think the bridge is destroyed how are we going to to the other side um again if you know we're talking about a bridge probably the bridge is crossing over some type of river or something um which means that there is a challenge remember uh if the bridge uh is is maybe crossing over something there is a challenge standing in your way which means let me write I'll throw the answer in there for you so the Pidge is destroyed how are we going to get across to the other side whoops that is there we go okay that is actually still can't see that on there

let's all right remember the reason that we're talking about like we use get um across um there we go we're trying to get from one side to the other and typically like I said there's usually something that maybe is preventing you from doing this remember I use the example of crossing the street when there are a lot of cars um you wouldn't really say I know some of you said get through to the other side like usually if you're getting going getting through something you're actually going through like a tunnel or something like that um so again in this context where you're specifically talking about a bridge that's kind of the key word there you would be talking about getting across from one side to the other all right um again all right who's wrong don't worry it's all right if you get it wrong this is all good it's just practice practice practice next question that I have have for you guys um okay this one should be easy you guys should get this one the next question for you this right here all right she's working late and won't until 11 p.m. that's my my popping sound effect for uh those blank spaces she's working late and won't until 11 p.m. which one which one is it which phrasal verb are we talking about get around get through get across get off or get by if you're just joining us I'm kind of we're doing a little practice right now quizzing you on your knowledge of these get phrasal verbs and again even if you're watching this later and this is no longer being live streamed i' suggest you know go ahead um you know keep answering write these answers in the comments it's good to keep practicing um so the key word here is again we are talking about work okay so if we're talking about work then the phrasal verb that we would want to use make sure I have enough room is this one all right she's working late and won't get off until 1100 p.m. we're talking about work we're talking about leaving work we want to use get off excellent good job guys um let's go with the next one all right you're ready here we go the next one question I have for you is Boom this one right here all right we were finally able to and speak to our family all right think about the context that that this sentence is being used in what is the situation what do you think just by reading this sentence we are finally able to and speak to our family okay you know that you're speaking to somebody you are communicating all right which phrasal verb is it write it in the comments all right let's see let's see who's the fastest all right we we were finally able to and speak to our family which phrasal verb do you think we use get around get through get across get off or get by okay all right so think about it um got some answers excellent you're talking about you know we're talking about speak to our family you're talking about talking to somebody and typically in this context you know given that oh like we're finally able to uh and speak to our family it makes me think that they are not in the same areas they are not right in front of each other which means that probably they're talking on the phone all right so if they're talking on the phone we would say oh um we would want to use this one all right get through we were finally able to get through and speak to our family all right you're talking about communicating with somebody get through the next one all right let's do some more um boom all right this one it's easy but it's a little more challenging I want you to use the phrasal verb but use it with the correct form okay try to see if you can use it in the correct form how would you really complete this sentence right now I'm the bus right now I'm the bus are you going to use get around get through get across get off or get by and which form that is a that that that is a hint as to what I want you to try and write in there okay um all right how would you complete this other sentence right now I'm the bus the key word another key word in here is right now you are talking about now now now now now which verb form do we use with right now okay right now I'm the bus what phrasal verb which of these F uh which which of these five phrasal verbs are you going to use all right you guys are getting it awesome uh I like that you're getting the form that I'm talking about again we're talking about something that is happening now um so which verb form are we going to use okay the answer okay remember we're talking about um the the bus you're talking about uh a situation most likely what do people do they either get on a bus or they get off of a bus okay so they're talking about uh you know the other phrasal verbs you wouldn't really you know it doesn't make much sense to use with this context of talking about a bus again um when you're getting off of something getting off a train getting off a bus getting off a bike we would say right now again because you're talking about now which is the present continuous right now I'm getting off the bus okay so again maybe you're talking to somebody on the phone and they say hey what are you doing and you're like well I'm getting off right now I'm getting off the bus okay you just got somewhere you are getting off um or maybe you were traveling somewhere okay does that make sense if you get off of something you are exiting it you are leaving okay the next question that I have for you okay let's do another one this one right here okay which phrasal verb which of these five get phrasal verbs would you use get around get through get across get off get by so the sentence I just barely with a passing grade okay I just barely with a passing grade I kind of when we were going through this I gave you some of those examples um if you're just joining us again we're just kind of doing a little phrasal verb quiz with get so I would ask you guys write your answers in the comments um right or wrong it really doesn't matter this is not a test this is just for you to practice and make this a little more interactive in an actual lesson um so fill in the blank with this sentence I just barely with a passing grade okay I'll give you a little hint because I haven't seen any answers um I'll give you a little hint you're you're talking about you know surviving you're talking about enduring something um with the resources that you have and this is talking about your knowledge okay your knowledge you got you you were able to survive or endure with your knowledge and with a passing grade I was I almost said the answer right there I just barely with a passing grade so this is a context you're talking about school um you're talking about it uh the other thing I would say again um and I should have reminded you from the beginning pay close attention to the verb form okay so again in this context is this something is this a sentence that you would say is in the future is it in the present or is it in the past all right are they talking about the the future the present or the past in this sense because I see some of you you got the you got the right phrasal verb um so again this sentence we told you you're talking about the your knowledge you're able to survive you're able to endure it is something that is said and you're talking about the past because it's a passing grade you already received it it's finished it's done all right so I barely got by with a passing grade okay I just barely got by with a passing grade you took a class it was difficult maybe you thought you were going to fail but you didn't you survived you endured you got by with the knowledge that you had and again this was used in the past all right excellent but you guys got that one good job good job um next question that I have for you uh let's keep doing some of these okay next question boom right time so we're talking about he's having a tough time the divorce we're talking about a difficult situation all right something that some somebody is inexperience a difficult experience a difficult situation so which phrasal verb um would you use all right and again bonus points pay close attention to the verb form that that you would need to use as well all right are you going to use get around get through get across get off get by okay which one would you use okay so he's having a tough time the divorce get around get through get across get off get by um remember the the verb form or the form that we would need to use okay so again you're talking about a difficult uh situation and experience that that you need to survive all right you guys awesome I'm going to you if you're having a difficult time with an experience a situation you're talking about getting through it you're talking about surviving it enduring it um so that uh you know it's at a point where it finally ends so you'd have a tough time the form that you'd want to use again it's not typically a verb

but he's having a tough time getting through the divorce all right and this one was a little tricky because again the main verb is um you know talking about like he he is having all right this is actually uh you know a j so this is going to be a Jaren of it you know you're having a tough time um you know I'm having a tough time when when something follows that phrase you're going to use the jiren all right I'm having a tough time doing homework I'm having a tough time um following this lesson I don't know I'm having a tough time getting through the divorce so this one was a little more tricky because we're using the Jaren right here um still even though it is a phrasal verb getting through I don't want to get too much into the grammar if some of you are sitting there thinking like what the heck is a Jaren um in this sentence this is the correct context he's having a tough time getting through uh the divorce excellent um again yeah that one that that is a little more difficult um trying to throw some easier ones out there and then uh some more challenging ones so let's try let's do an easier one okay uh let's do this one right here so see if you can fill in this sentence all right again if you're just joining us we're doing a little uh phrasal verb quiz here with get okay so I want you to look at the sentence write the correct phrasal verb in the blank get around get through get across get off or get by you are stepping on my toes all right this is a command you're using it in the imperative and you're telling somebody to what um which phrasal verb which get phrasal verb are you going to use in this context so which one would you guys use all right I thought it was a a video not live no no Marco we are live actually this is live um so okay excellent so this one was a little easier I think um again you're talking about somebody's stepping on your toes and you want them to stop touching you so you would tell them to get off all right you're stepping on my toes get off okay again get off telling somebody stop touching you um is one of the meanings of that phrasal verb let's do another one um this one I think is a little more more challenging cuz maybe the context um I think we use it it's not something you would hear as regularly okay so give that one a try she broke her leg so it's difficult for her to okay so think about again the context somebody breaks their leg um it's difficult for them to move so which phrasal verb which those get phrasal verbs would complete that sentence she broke her leg so it's difficult for her to we're going to use get around get through get across Amad Amad hi hi everyone hey welcome how's it going we're doing a quick little practice with get phrasal verbs if you're just joining us um I'm giving you some questions and just asking you to fill in the blank with either get around get through get across get off get by write your response in the chat so she broke her leg so it's difficult for her to which one which one do you think which one would make the most sense to complete that sentence all right and so again we're talking about in this context some somebody broke their leg so it is like I said it's difficult for them to move all right it's difficult for them you know I don't I I don't know if you've ever broken your leg before I haven't but I imagine it is tough for people to you know obviously go from one room to the next even in or go shorter distances so in this context if you're talking about moving she broke her leg so it's difficult for her to get around remember this was the first phrasal verb and the first meaning that we talked about during this live lesson I told you to get around basically means to move from one place to another and you can use it in the context of traveling long distances whether maybe you say oh you know I've been to France I've been to Egypt I've been to China I've been to the United States you say wow that person really gets around they move a lot from one place to the other it can also mean about moving short distances I said typically um you know getting around is used frequently when you're talking about maybe somebody who's older maybe a grandparent um that you're talking about oh you know my grandmother has a tough time getting around um moving from one place to another one all right so does that make sense let's do

another one okay got two more for you uh here we go so the next one boom all right so this one um it is a separable phrasal verb all right I didn't talk too much about which one's separable un Inseparable again it's another challenge with phrasal verbs um some of them you can some of you can't in this one um it is separated if you let me my point then I'll tell you why you're wrong all right again this is uh a common cocation in English these are this when you're talking about your point it is commonly used with this get phrasal verb are we talking about get around get through get across get off or get by okay which one would you guys say which phrasal verb write it in the chat if you are watching this later again just write the sentence in the comments make it more active language learning even if it is a recorded video and we are not live anymore write it in the chat keep practicing um those of you are with us now of course we are live um so what I want you to do again how would you which phrasal verb are you going to use with that question if you'd let me my point then I'll tell you why you're wrong all right you're talking about about trying to share information trying to share express your your feeling your opinion your idea what would you say what phrasal verb would complete that sentence which get phrasal verb get around get through get across get off or get by again like I said this one maybe is a little more difficult because a lot of times I think uh again you hear it in this context when you're talking about somebody's point they're trying to express themselves um and you're using which one okay all right so again if we're talking about an idea or an opinion and especially if you're talking about your point we would say if you'd let me get my point across

then I'll tell you while why you're wrong okay if you'd let me get my point across then I'll tell you why you're wrong so again if you're talking about your point you want to get your point across get it across to somebody you want to them to understand your idea your opinion you want to get something across to someone else and a lot of times like I said it's used with the word point it's also could be used with the word message you want to get your message across um when you're wanting to share your idea a lot of times politicians would talk about this when they're talking about a new policy or something that they want to implement in the government and they want to get their message across um to the public to the people so again when you're using with get across a lot of times you find it with either point or maybe a word like message to get your point across or to get something across to someone else okay let's do one more all right let's do another let's give this one a try so hopefully that one makes sense want to get your point across how about this one it's hard to to him because he's so stubborn all right it's hard to to him because he's so stubborn which phrasal verb which get phrasal verb most appropriately completes this sentence okay and this is a this is a little more maybe challenging again um it's hard to to him because he's so stubborn which one which phrasal verb are you going to use are you going to use get around get through get across get off or get by okay remember you're in in this in this instance you're talking about communicating with somebody you're you're trying to communicate with somebody and the other key word that here is stubborn if you know what stubborn means then I think this would talking about um you're trying to communicate something with this person him maybe we're talking about me because he's so stubborn and to give you the answer it's hard [Music] to it's hard to get through to him because so stubborn all right you get through to someone else one of the key words I'd say in there was that to because I told you this is technically a three-word phrasal verb get through to someone all right to be able to communicate with them so that you you guys make a connection that you understand each other and this is different than get across because getting across you're talking kind of about something else you're talking about your idea your thought this is just trying to establish a connection with somebody so that you can start a conversation so that you can try to find some common ground and you say it's hard to get through to him because he's so stubborn okay so again I hope you guys I I hope you guys enjoyed that lesson what i' would say is if you came in a little late again you can go back rewatch it um we went through the meaning of each of those phrasal verbs um where we talked about all of those we talked about get around get through get across get off get by and their different meanings and then we did that practice so again I'd recommend you know rewatching it again um going through the practice again see if that makes sense because again all of this is going to help you and phrasal verbs they can be a real pain I know that um and and they are difficult to try and teach because again you have one phrasal verb with all of these different meanings but it's just good to practice um and expose yourself to these meanings so again you'll start to internalize this information and you will really start to understand it so again you know we appreciate you guys joining us and finally I'd say check us out right there on social media if you want more practice if you're using any of these social media accounts Facebook Instagram Snapchat Twitter obviously you're watching us on YouTube right now but these are all good ways to just get a little exposure each day we put up different questions for you to answer if you want to answer them or not it's up to you but it's always good to have that option and this is available for you so please take advantage of it the last thing that I want to tell you um is please please please again sharing is caring if you want to help us spread the word to other people please share this video or some of our other videos we are trying to um reach as many people as possible and we are going to keep doing these live stream lessons and hopefully we'll do them a little more regularly so you'll know exactly when to expect them but right now we did one on Saturday we're going to try and do one next Saturday and we post that on both Facebook and Twitter so you will know what time we will be doing that uh so again thank you guys uh for joining us Natalia George uh Marco Louisa um who else was with us thank you guys Ahmad it was great having you guys here um hope you enjoyed this lesson hope you enjoyed uh learning some new phrasal verbs hope you learned some of these new phrasal verbs and now try to go out and continue practicing them all right thank you guys and we will see you

next time goodbye

LESSON 86 OF 749

5 SUPER LONG WORDS...VERY DIFFICULT TO PRONOUNCE

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

can you correctly pronounce these five long words right here let's find out veterinarian notice with my American accent I pronounce that t as a flap T veterinarian encyclopedia all six syllables you hear them encyclopedia hierarchy that second syllable has that unstressed schah sound hierarchy syruptitious stress is on that second to last syllable syruptitious and particularly I don't know why this is even difficult for me because this is a particularly difficult word to pronounce and now we have just answered the question

LESSON 87 OF 749

5 TRICKY WORDS TO PRONOUNCE IN ENGLISH

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

five tricky words to pronounce so repeat after me jewelry most people will just say it with two syllables jewelry sixth you hear that voiceless th slightly sixth epitome that t is actually two different syllables epitome thoroughly thoroughly Brewery for anybody who enjoys a beer brewery and now you know

LESSON 88 OF 749

5 Tricky Grammar Rules You Need to Remember

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

[Music] hey everyone my name is wes this is interactive english the channel is just all about trying to help you practice and improve your english skills and today i have a grammar lesson for you i want to talk to you about five tricky grammar rules that i think you should remember because this is just going to help you improve your overall english fluency so

let's begin with these two tricky words right here who vs whom so the first thing that you should know is that who refers to the subject and whom refers to the object of the verb or preposition so a simple little trick that i want to teach you right now to help you determine okay which one should you use who or whom is that if you are going to take make a sentence using the unknown word if you can use he or she then you are going to use who if you make a sentence and you can complete it with him or her then you will use whom so let's look at these sentences right here these questions and we're going to change these questions around and i can take the first one and i can make the sentence he would like some ice cream i'm going to use he which is the subject

so you would use who who would like some ice cream in the next question let's change it again we'll make a sentence and we could say i should ask her for help her is the object so now i'm going to use whom whom should i ask for help so i think this can get pretty confusing when you have sentences like these and you are going to have a noun clause and a noun clause will have a subject a verb and maybe an object and you're trying to determine whether or not you're going to use who or whom so let's get rid of the first part of this sentence and let's just focus on that noun clause and i can change it around and make a sentence and say he wrote the email so again i'm talking about the subject so i'm going to use who i don't know who wrote the email in the next sentence again let's forget about the first part focus on that noun clause and again we can make the following sentence the email is about him him is an object so now you know that you're going to use whom i don't know whom the email is about another reason why this can be tricky is because in spoken english especially in places like the united states which is where i am from people will often use who instead of whom every time you get into the ring that's who you're going against you're going up against him the objects so it really should be that's whom you're going up against oh i'm sorry but who else can i talk to about this i can talk to her about this so it really should be but who else can i talk to about this so you can see that it's it's pretty common that in places like the us people will use who instead of whom in spoken english that's just something that i want you to be aware of i'm not saying that you should do this i would always encourage you to try to follow the rules as best as you can but this is another reason why this is this is pretty tricky grammar now before we continue i'd like to take a moment and tell you about the sponsor of today's lesson which is lingoda and if you would like to improve your overall english fluency taking online classes with lingoda will really help there are so many benefits to learning with lingoda i've even studied with lingoda i took some spanish classes and it was a really great experience and i say that this will really help for several reasons first these are small group classes which means you will have more opportunities to speak and you're also going to get more attention from the teacher also classes are available 24 7 because i know many of you have a busy schedule but this way there are always classes available for you to take in addition you get to study at home and i think that's very important because i always tell learners that it's so much more helpful if you are able to learn in a comfortable environment and i think home is probably one of the most comfortable places for you to learn english and you can do all of this at a very affordable price as low as 8 euro per group class and lingoda is always finding ways to continue making their school better and better now they even have quizzes and homework all of this is done to help you improve your fluency skills right now lingoda has a great offer because you can sign up and get a free seven-day trial that includes three group classes and you can also use my voucher code

west7 to get a 20 euro discount off your first month's payment click on the link in the description down below to sign up for your free 7-day trial and don't forget to use my voucher code west 7 so that when you continue your classes you will get a 20 euro discount and then you will just be on your way to achieving your fluency goals so let's get back to our lesson on tricky grammar rules and the next thing i want to talk to you about is spelling because sometimes people will write me and they'll ask me about the spelling of certain words and they're like well which one is correct because i've seen it spelled two different ways and often the difference that they're talking about is the difference in spelling between american english and british english and there are some notable differences one example would be the er versus re in words like theater or center there are also differences with the single l versus the double l in words like traveled and counselor and of course there are differences between the o and o u in words like color and favorite so let's let's go back to what you should do the one thing that i would say is that i either form is acceptable you can you can spell the words either way the only thing i would say is that you are consistent and that you're not switching back and forth between the american spelling and the british spelling if you're going to say some sentence like this and say blue is my favorite color and you are going to spell favorite like you would in the united states but then you're going to spell color like you would in the uk that may look a little strange so what i would recommend is that you just try to be consistent and follow one of the spelling forms whether it is american english or british english just just be aware there are some differences when it comes to spelling then we come to gender neutral pronouns or some people may refer to them as third person personal pronouns i just like to say gender-neutral pronouns but well what i'm talking about is this i once had someone write to me and they said that their friend is getting ready to have a baby but they're not sure whether it's a boy or a girl and they were wanting to know well well how should i refer to the baby and my advice was that if if they don't know then you could just say the baby but this brings us to a problem in english because there's not a gender neutral pronoun that is widely accepted think about this situation perhaps you have a friend and you tell me like oh my

my friend is traveling to the u.s and i ask well why is your friend traveling to the u.s is he or she taking a vacation people may use he or she when you don't know the gender of a person you're talking about your friend but you don't say if it's a man or a woman and i don't know so if i want to refer to your friend i would have to say he or she that is it's it's a problem in english because sometimes when you're talking about an unknown gender you you might do it quite often and it gets a little tedious and a little i guess weird to keep saying he or she he or she he or she so instead of using he or she i would say that you can use they all right i'm gonna go ahead and tell you that you can use it because i do think nowadays it's more accepted to use they as a gender-neutral pronoun and i know that you're probably thinking wait a second in class i've always learned that they refers to more than one person it is a plural pronoun yes that is true however in this situation when you're talking about a gender that you don't know i think it's very common i do it all the time i would use they instead of he or she i'm not always going to say he or she so let's go back to that example if you told me that your friend is traveling to the u.s it's very natural for me to say oh why is your friend traveling to the u.s uh are they taking a vacation so i'm going to use they the pronoun but i'm going to use it as a singular pronoun that is gender neutral because i do not know if your friend is a man or woman this is definitely becoming more accepted nowadays you will even find this in some very well-known online dictionaries cambridge says that you can use this to avoid saying he or she told you i don't really like to continuously say he or she and meriam webster actually gives you a lot of specific information about the singular they one thing i would say is that if you are writing and writing is a bit more formal i i think it is appropriate to use he or she when you're writing in a formal context and when you're speaking i think quite often you will hear the singular they and i think you can use it as well if you're talking about an unknown gender it's a singular gender-neutral pronoun now let's talk about crazy plural nouns and i say crazy because they are irregular and i think most of you are probably familiar with the rules if you want to change a noun from singular and make it plural then perhaps you're going to add an s like shares or e-s in boxes or i-e-s such as stories those are the general rules when you want to change a noun from singular to plural now the good news is there there's even a rule that you could follow with some irregular plural nouns for example if a noun ends with an f or fe then when you change it to plural you're going to add v e s so wolf becomes wolves or leaf becomes leaves for other irregular plural nouns you you really just need to memorize like you're learning new vocabulary but there are many of them that we use frequently and you probably already know for example child becomes children that's a pretty common word or foot becomes feet these are some common irregular plural nouns there are others that well are not very common

you're probably not going to use them in everyday conversation and you would just really try to learn them over time for example ox the plural is oxen or the plural of index is indices or octopus is octopi because you never know maybe you're out swimming in the ocean and you are surrounded by some octopi it could happen and now let's talk about pronouncing silent letters because in english there are many words that have silent letters like this one knee and you might be wondering well wait why why is that k silent well pronunciation is something that has changed over time so this word actually i think we got it from german and if you look up the german word for knee you have it right here and then if we have google pronounce it for us it's going to sound like this knee knee many german speakers out there can tell me if that's if that's close the pronunciation but you hear that k sound and in old english learn how to pronounce these words with silent letters i'm going to give you three suggestions the first one is use subtitles if you're watching a tv show or a movie turn on those subtitles you're able to see the word see the spelling and listen to the correct pronunciation something similar to that and it's my next suggestion is audiobooks when you're reading a story you're reading a book listen to the audiobook and follow along because again you see the words you see the spelling and you're listening to the correct pronunciation and my final suggestion and personally i think this is the best one of all and that is to watch some of my video lessons i have created a playlist just for you that has a lot of different pronunciation video lessons in which i'm talking about commonly mispronounced words many of them have silent letters so you can check that out if you want to practice and improve your pronunciation if you enjoyed this lesson please hit that like button and as always thanks so much for watching and i'll see you next time

LESSON 89 OF 749

5 Useful Phrasal Verbs with CHECK to Improve Your English

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello hello hello hope you're having a great day wherever you are in the world and I want to welcome you to today's lesson have a super super awesome lesson for you today which I promise you will learn something new why because today we are talking about phrasal verbs okay so I am going to talk to you about five phrasal verbs five with the word check

now this is following up on a previous lesson we recently posted about phrasal verbs with check if you have not seen that lesson I will leave a link to it in the description so you can check that one out all right see I'm using these phrasal verbs already but I'm not going to talk to you about those same phrasal verbs I'm going to talk to you about five more five different phrasal verbs with check there are when it comes to phrasal verbs there are many of them so what we're trying to do is just take it a little bit out of time and teach you some of them at a time we don't want to overwhelm you so this is following up on that previous lesson first I want to welcome all of you if you are joining us in the comments please write your name let us know where you're joining us from

Emiliano from Argentina hey what's up hi Aman oh that's uh hello hope you guys are doing well it's so great to see some familiar faces and if you are new to interactive English then I welcome you write your name in the comments in the chats and even if you are watching this later on write a comment to us say hello say what's up we like to hear from everybody so Katie from Germany welcome thank you thank you guys for being with us so again I'm going to talk to you about five phrasal verbs with check and this is a follow-up on the previous lesson we did and you should check that one out it was a really cool lesson so first as we begin this I think it is appropriate to know this all right you know what is it that you should know about phrasal verbs

now I'm sure most of you have studied phrasal verbs and you know that yes it is they're very difficult to learn and these are you know phrasal verbs are mistakes that learners of all levels will make if you're a beginner learner or you're an advanced learner they they can give everybody trouble mostly because of that little little little preposition that comes after the verb there are so many and it's easy to confuse those in on at by with over through there are many of those prepositions so that's one of the reasons why they are a bit difficult

another reason is that many phrasal verbs can have multiple meanings they don't just have one meaning you could have one phrasal verb that means three or four different things completely different things depending on the context so they're very important because we use them all the time they're a little more informal so we use them regularly in conversation all the time you'll hear them when you're watching movies or TV so they're very common which is why they're important to study and try to learn and another reason that final one that I have down there for you is that phrasal verbs can either be separable or inseparable and that means that sometimes the direct object that follows the phrasal verb can go in between the verb and the preposition and sometimes it cannot so I'm gonna talk to you about five phrasal verbs with check and I think I hope this should be a little easier because most of the phrasal verbs I'm going to teach you today only have one meaning alright only one meaning and I think most of them are inseparable as well so they're pretty straightforward and don't go away because at the end we are going to do a practice I have some questions for you that I will want you to write your answers in the comments hi Russia Marco good to see you guys who else Jennifer from Panama welcome awesome great to have you guys here again if you're just joining us say hello to us in the comments chat with us I know oh hello new phone hung I sorry if i mispronounce names but again it's great to have you guys please like and share these lessons if you enjoy learning with us it helps us spread the word and build our community and our global classroom so let's begin the first phrasal verb that I want to go over with you is check back ok check back has one meaning and that meaning is to return somewhere or someplace to determine if everything is ok if everything is in order to make sure that everything is in order you check back so for example I have those example sentences for you to help give you some context and if you want I don't know where you guys are if you're at home if you're in the car if you are on the bus maybe you're at work read these sentences with me it's always good to practice saying these sentences out loud and using these phrasal verbs and it's also good pronunciation practice as well so that first example sent the grocery store does not have the tea that I like I'll check back tomorrow okay you will return to see if everything is in order if the store has your tea the grocery store does not have the tea that I like I'll check back tomorrow all right you return to see if everything's okay the next sentence the teacher has not finished marking our exams she said we can check back later the teacher has not finished marking our exams she said we can check back later all right that you can check back you can return to see if everything is finished if it is okay and you can find out your exam score so that is check back to return to make sure everything is fine

the next phrasal verb that we have is this one check on and again this is a bit similar to check back but it is a little different because you're checking back your you're returning somewhere when you're checking on someone or something you're just making sure it is okay that everything is okay so in the comments practice practice using this alright tell me something what is something that you have had to check on what or what do you check on regularly I gave an example sentence it's quite common may be used with cooking because you start cooking something maybe you're baking something you always need to kind of watch it periodically so you are always checking on the food and that example sentence can you check on the cake and see if it's done baking you put something in the oven you set the timer but you still check on it to make sure that it's ready

you make sure everything is okay so you check on something to make sure it's okay again if you can write a sentence in the comments and let's practice using these a little bit bonus phrasal verb right there whoops all right there it is it B can become a three word phrasal verb to check up on and I put someone because most of the time it is talking about maybe a person but it can also talk about a situation you can check up on a situation and again you're making sure that someone is okay and that they're doing what they're supposed to be doing or a situation you're checking up on it to make sure everything is okay and again this phrasal verb is inseparable okay so that object cannot go in between the verb in the preposition it must go after so that is your bonus phrasal verb to check up on someone okay check up on I don't know if you it you have people checking up on you sometimes you might have your boss maybe we'll check up on the employees to make sure they're working and they're not on YouTube learning English or playing around who knows you check up on someone so we have some example sentence excellent I check on I check on my door to make sure it's locked properly usually in this case if you're talking about like a door you'd say mostly I just check the door you check to confirm that it's locked like to check on something you are something is in the process it think about something is in the process of happening and you need to check on it all right because that's why I said it's commonly used with food because you are cooking and it's in the process of undergoing something it's in the process of cooking of baking and you want to check on it to make sure things are okay or running smoothly so like I said maybe a boss would check on their employees they're in the process of doing work and they want to make sure that they are working but no excellent excellent appreciate you guys writing these sentences it is always good to practice the next phrasal verb so that is check on and check up on your bonus phrasal verb the next one is to check over okay and this just means to closely examine so again in the comments what is something you've had to check over and I will give you a hint when when I think of check over I think of something in writing okay something that I'm reading or something that is written and you are checking over it you are closely examining this thing so this is something so think about something in writing something you've read something what is something you have had to check

over or what is something you check over the example sentence this is something I would tell my students all the time especially in writing class all right they would hand in a paper an essay an assignment and I would always ask them I said did you check over your work did you check it over now notice I said it in between the verb and the preposition because this one is separable you can check something over alright you can check it over and I would and the example sentence I gave you as students should check over their assignments before turning them in to the teacher they should check over their assignments check over their work okay things that you are writing so some another example sentence that I gave you she reread and meticulously checked over the contract before signing it okay meticulously means again I put an adverb there it means thoroughly carefully with attention to detail all right you check over the contract if use if you're about to sign a contract maybe a lease or you know for an apartment or whatever you should definitely definite we definitely check it over okay some census is a check over the text message before sending it yeah you you can check it over I always these slides because we make the slides right here I always check them over before the lesson because I'm looking for mistakes and often times I will find a mistake I will find a typo so it is important to check it over and even still you might find a mistake because again it's just you know you always have to check

over your work Rosa hello from Italy awesome you are new here welcome welcome welcome you always checks up on her children to make sure her they're doing their homework that is a perfect example sentence using check up on you check up on someone so again if you guys are just joining us write us write to us in the chat let us know where you are joining us from and again even if you're watching this video later on in the future at some other time practice writing these example sentences okay I asked you before what is something that you check over it's always good to practice writing and using these phrasal verbs because that's the best way to learn is to practice so the next phrasal verb that we have is check with okay you check with most of the time you're checking with someone and this phrasal verb is inseparable we cannot separate the verb check with the preposition with and the meaning is you are asking for confirmation sometimes it's kind of like you're asking for permission even you are checking with someone so for example Wes should check with you wanna before going ahead and making plans for Saturday night and it's true yeah I always check with her hey what do you want to do what's going on tonight maybe she might not agree with that I don't no but it is important you check with someone and on a side note we do have plans tonight we are gonna go out meet some friends it should be fun so I will check with her she will check with me and again we we make plans together the next sentence this I need to check with my parents to make sure it's okay that I borrow the family car alright in this case it is your asking for confirmation but it's also a little bit like permission your checking with them your checking with someone kind of to make sure it's okay to let them know what's going on I check another example sounded great excellent I check with my parents before going out with my friends perfect all right you were checking with someone letting them know what is happening all right an example sentence with check over perfect I had checked over my test before before I left before I left the examination or I left the exam I checked over my test yes perfect you check it over definitely with an exam if you are taking an exam in English or any other subjects any teacher will always tell you check it over before you turn it in check it over make sure everything's all right make sure your name is written on it - I don't know how many over the years how many exams I've gotten back and students forget to write their names so another example sentence you check with your girlfriend before choosing that place for a wedding so yeah you should check with your girlfriend before choosing maybe choosing a place for your wedding choosing a place for your wedding but yes you should check with your girlfriend before that that is very important excellent example sentence I check with my parents before before I buy something again remember because that is an adverb clause you'll need a subject and a verb I check with my parents before I buy something perfect exactly great example sentences guys keep it up so you check with somebody to ask for confirmation all right this is good practice because very shortly I have that quiz for you guys or a little bit of it I have some questions for you that I'm gonna want you to answer the next phrasal verb the last one okay is check through okay so this is again the meaning is to inspect or examine thoroughly now you might be thinking that oh this is a little similar to check over yes the meaning is a little similar but remember with check over I told you it's more so used with things that are have to do something that is written alright something maybe you were reading or something you are writing you check it over check through okay it doesn't have to be just writing okay so that example sentence I gave you I can't find my keys I checked through every drawer in the house alright you were looking through the drawers you were examining it you were you were examining them you were inspecting them because you were looking for your keys you checked through something okay in this context in with this meaning right here this one has two meanings it's the only one of our phrasal verbs that has two meanings that first meaning it is inseparable okay so we cannot separate the verb and the preposition alright I check through every drawer in the house you check through something okay could be a closet a drawer you are checking through the garage you are trying to find something is usually the reason why you are checking through something the other context the other meaning for it is I believe I'm sure most of us have traveled and we've gotten on a plane and when you travel and you have a lot of luggage you will check it through to your final destination okay you check you check your luggage and when you're talking about sending your luggage from one place to another you are checking it through you were sending luggage to a final destination this phrasal verb it is separable okay you would check the luggage through so for example I said we checked all of our luggage through to San Francisco that is true when we traveled to San Francisco earlier this year we checked our luggage through to our final destination okay so those are the five phrasal verbs you guys ready to practice okay so I am going to give you da all right a sentence like that one right there I want you to write your answers in the comments in the chat again if you are watching this later on write the answers in the comments practice as we go through this it is good practice okay so you are going to complete the sentence with back on over with or through okay which one are you going to use back on over with or the sentence you guys did really you rock that last one okay so again with this sentence think of it like maybe you're watching some kind of crime show all right and you hear somebody say this alright we need to know if he paid back the money can you check that alright which which preposition best completes the sentence write your answers in the chat and if you're watching this later write your answers in the comments ok just write us write out the whole sentence if you can this is a great way to practice using these phrasal verbs okay we need to know if he paid back the money we need to know this and then you're asking somebody can you check that all right can you check that all right which one is is going to best complete the sentence okay you need to know something all right back on over with through all right we didn't know if he need to main it can you check all right getting some different answers the answer that would best completed we didn't know if he paid the money all right can you check on that can you check on that situation okay can you go determine if this happened if things are in order if it is okay okay can you check on that you're asking somebody so something happened okay you don't know what the answer is and you might ask hey can you check on this can you check on it make sure everything is okay make everything is in order can you check on this can you check on this or can you check on that the next one already is right here okay so again write your answers in the chat or the comments before you click okay you should check the Terms of agreement before you click okay you should check the Terms of agreement write your answer in the comments which preposition Best completes the sentence okay this is something you know we're all using the Internet we're online all the time and we're reading these things when we sign up for it and at the end you have to click okay that you accept the Terms of agreement but before you click okay you should check all right getting some good answers in there all right remember if we're talking about something that is written if you are reading it you should check over all right you should check over the Terms of agreement all right you should read through them I know none of us really do I think a lot of the times we just click OK but technically yes we should check over the Terms of agreement we should read through them all right you guys are doing awesome I have a few more for you and here is the next one okay so wait a second make sure some of these wanna make sure there's no typos in these sentences but I can always change them if there are so let's let's look at this one right here okay again think of the context I put these in quotes thinking of like that somebody's saying this that you were listening to somebody say these sentences all right what do you mean you can't find the shirt did you check your closets alright maybe somebody has two three four closets in their room in their home they are looking for a shirt what do you mean you can't find the shirt did you check your closets okay what do you think the answer is write it in the comments in the chat all right to getting some good answers remember in this case all right you are looking for something all right so you need to inspect you need to examine all right this person's asking them if they inspected if they examined if they checked through their closets all right so what do you mean you can't find the shirt did you check through your closets all right remember the other example sentence that I gave you with check through when I was showing you these I said oh I can't find my keys I checked through all the drawers again the meaning is a little similar to over but again over is more so with something something that is written so but this did you check through your closets the next one okay let's give this one a try how about this there we go okay so again think of the context all right maybe we can do it let me check my boss and then we'll get back to you okay maybe we can do it let me check my boss and then we'll get back to you okay what do you think is the correct preposition back on over with or through all right getting getting some good answers in there what do you guys think all right maybe we can do it let me check my boss and then we'll get back to you all right again think of it two people they're having this conversation what would you say all right so this person is kind of unsure if they can do something maybe we can do it they don't know they need to check with all right they need confirmation all right they need permission kind of from somebody else check with my boss and then we'll get back to you all right excellent you guys rock that one boom right there maybe we can do it let me check with my boss and then we'll get back to you okay the next one that I have for you all right I'd say it's a little more tricky we'll see we'll see see what you guys think all right we need to check the children and make sure they're sleeping okay maybe you have young children or somebody has young children and they might say this sentence okay they're talking to their husband or wife and they say we need to check the children and make sure they're sleeping all right so what do you think write your answer in the chat or in the comments all right don't be afraid to write in the comments and practice using these okay what would you use there's one phrasal verb in particular that I was that I'm looking for that I didn't highlight too much but so again we're getting Wow getting different some different answers but for the most part I think it's good so we need to check the children and make sure they're sleeping so in this context the parents presume want to know that the children are sleeping they want to make sure that they're doing something that they should be doing at this time okay so you could either say one or two things all right you can check on the children but the best I think the more appropriate response in this case would be again that bonus phrasal verb to check up whoops check up on alright remember you check up on someone to make sure they know what they're doing you could say check on the children that that's fine that is also perfectly fine

we need to check up on the children and make sure they're sleeping remember check on check up on very similar meanings like I said I think when you say check up on it's mostly talking about a person or someone even though it could be talking about a situation all right so that is our practice you guys did awesome thank you for all of you for joining me today I appreciate you guys participating writing in the chats practicing what we've been learning if you like this lesson please give it a thumbs up and share it with your friends your classmates anybody else you know that is trying to learn English and as always if you have any other questions once this video gets posted write them in the comments that that's what they're there for that's what we want to use this comment section for is you know communicating with our community our global classroom but also for practicing actually what we're learning and as always you can find us right there join our social media classes where we like to practice they're down there we're on Facebook Twitter Instagram snapchat and of course right here on YouTube so thank you guys so much for joining us thank you thank you thank you hanya if I sorry I mispronounced words names Amano thank you so much I hope that you guys enjoy the rest of your weekend have a wonderful Saturday a wonderful Sunday Stephanie thank you guys for joining me here today and we will be back next Saturday for another super awesome live lesson alright thanks for watching and we'll see you next time

LESSON 90 OF 749

5 Useful Tips on How to Learn & Improve Your English

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Do you want to know how you can improve your English skills? Today we're going to give you 5 tips on how you can do just that. Before we begin, I'd like to remind you to subscribe to our channel for more video lessons on how you can practice and improve your English skills. In this lesson, Wes is going to talk to you about 5 different tips that will really help you when it comes to learning English. So let's begin!

Number 1 - Review, review, and review And I know that teachers have probably told you this before. They want you to review your homework. They want you to review an article or a book you just read. But the reason that review is important is because it helps with your comprehension and memory. So that's why we suggest that you rewatch these videos...maybe after a few days or up to a week. And this spaced repetition will help you remember the material. And we don't just recommend that you do this with our videos, but any videos that you are using to practice and improve your English. As well as reviewing books that you might be using for self-study, or even music that you're listening to.

Review everything. It'll help! Number 2 - Use a variety of resources to learn the language Don't just rely only on videos or only on books or just talking with people. Use different resources to help complement different learning styles. So for example, use videos to appeal to your visual learning. Music will help with your auditory skills. And books are very important with self-study. And finally, use the Internet to your advantage. There are so many different resources that you can access online. You can just Google the words "online English quizzes" and you will find numerous webpages that will help you practice and improve your English skills.

Number 3 - Set short term and realistic goals Because this will help you realize your learning accomplishments. Don't just tell yourself, "I'm going to learn English in one year." That's not realistic for most people. So instead, try to set goals for yourself each week or each month. For example, you might say to yourself "Each day, for one month, I'm going to learn a new vocabulary word." And you're going to write that word down, it's meaning, and study that word and try to use it. And this is just one example. You can set short-term goals when it comes to pronunciation, reading, or even learning new grammar.

Number 4 - Practice a little bit each day I've said this a bunch of times before... that learning a language is a marathon and not a sprint. Personally, I don't think it does much good if somebody crams and studies English for 10 hours a day. I don't think that's going to help you learn the language quicker. Instead, try to find 15 minutes during the day that you can allocate to learning English. I think it's much more effective to learn in shorter intervals. And take that 15 minutes and watch a video or read a book or maybe just listen to music right before you go to bed. Because if you're able to practice a little each day, it's going to help you retain the information and you won't overwhelm yourself.

Number 5 - Immerse yourself in the language Really try to surround yourself with English. Now, I'm sure that some of you might be thinking that in order to immerse yourself in the language you need to go live in an English-speaking country. And that is just not true. With the technology that we have today you can really surround yourself with the language. So we recommend immersing yourself with TV, movie, music...you can use the apps on your phone to practice your speaking skills, your listening skills, or even build vocabulary. There are a variety of different outlets that you can use for learning English. So we suggest you really try to surround yourself with them.

We hope you found those tips useful. In the comments below, please feel free to share any other tips that you may have that have helped you with your English. Finally, remember to join our social media classes. We're active on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, and Snapchat. Thanks for watching and we'll see you next time.

LESSON 91 OF 749

5 Useful Verbs You May Be Mispronouncing...

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Can you correctly pronounce these five verbs right here? Let's begin with alleviate. Has four syllables, the stress is on that second syllable. Alleviate. Just keep in mind that first syllable has a schwa sound. It's an unstressed vowel sound. Just sounds like uh, alleviate. When you alleviate something, you make well, something just the pain go away. It's more tolerable. It's not as severe when you alleviate something. Then there's deteriorate. This word has five syllables and the stress is on the second syllable. Deteriorate. Now, keep in mind you would do hear all five of those syllables and that fourth syllable has that schwa sound. Deteriorate. Deteriorate. Say it with me. Deteriorate. When something deteriorates, it just well, becomes worse or or more painful or problematic over time when something deteriorates.

Then there's prioritize. Great verb, very common one. So, you should definitely know how to pronounce it. Four syllables, the stress is on that second syllable. Prioritize. And really the spelling and the pronunciation, they don't really look like they match up. So, let's say it again. Prioritize. When you prioritize something, you you really put things in order of importance. Prioritize. Emphasize. Three syllables, the stress is on that first syllable. Emphasize. Keep in mind the ph has a f sound. And when you emphasize something, you say something louder, longer, you attract attention to it. Then there's speculate. Three syllables, stress is on that first syllable. Speculate. That c has a k sound. And when you speculate, you're just really kind of making an educated guess about something whenever you speculate.

LESSON 92 OF 749

5 Useful Ways to Improve Your English Fluency

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

okay stirred okay hello everyone welcome to our live lesson on fluency I hope you guys are doing great I hope your Saturday is wonderful today we're talking about fluency tips and I'm very excited to see who's joining us for a live lesson I hope you're doing wonderful I hope the weekend is great if you're just joining us please in the comments write your name and where are you joining us from it will be nice to kind of see who is who is with us today hi cacao welcome welcome welcome where are you from kicka today we have a very exciting lesson at least I think it's very exciting because it's the topic that many people might not know is one of the most important for their language for it to evolve their language to get better at speaking English but it truly truly is and it's where we all want to be when we speak a language we always imagine that we are fluent in that language we want to be able to have a conversation in that language with somebody without stopping a million times to think oh my god what am I trying to ask what is this word what am I saying it's very difficult hello Marco welcome welcome to our lesson if you're joining us yes please let us know your name where you're writing to us from it's it's great to see you on here okay so I'm going to begin here is my little my little page so today we're talking about five fluency tips five that is a lot and if you do all of them you are going to be one step closer to speaking perfect English I'm just joking I don't think anyone speaks perfect English and that's okay because we are not perfect

let's see it's hot yes it is I think we are here in Budapest it is about 33 degrees Celsius here I don't know where you are Marko but I am sure it's oh in Italy okay welcome welcome and hello Natalia Natalia where are you joining us from please feel free to keep writing and I have a little lag so I might not see your comments immediately but Wes he's my co-pilot and he's in the chat room and he's going to try to answer as fast as possible he likes typing a lot okay um okay so let me talk about the five fluency tips that I have promised okay

first of all what the heck is fluency because I think it's such a fancy word and we keep throwing it around like everyone knows what it is but I don't think everyone doesn't know what it is fluency means to speak a language effortlessly like when you speak your native language to someone and you get into a very political conversation or something and you want to really get your point across you're doing it naturally that is not just political but I just mean any conversation that is fluency so I was looking online and I found some synonyms for fluency and some of those are fluidity flow smoothness effortless ease naturalness so all of these really represent what we want to achieve when speaking a language we definitely don't want to stumble and we don't want to stutter and we don't want to think a million times about what words to say hello from Mexico

Natalia great to see that you're from Brazil from Rio I hear great things about it if you're just joining us today welcome welcome welcome and I hope you're enjoying our lesson on fluency so as I was saying fluency is trying to speak a language effortlessly which is easy to say and extremely difficult to achieve okay so let's talk about why it's important because it may look cool but it's actually very important the first reason of course is to sound more like a native English speaker of course we all want to sound native we all want to speak very well but that's it's actually not the only reason throughout my teaching career I've dealt with a lot of English with professionals with with people who are trying to learn English for business purposes or for teaching like professors or academics going into English for academic purposes and it really helps to become more fluent in order to sound more professional meaning that if you if you're maybe your your written English is flawless maybe you can write very well maybe you are very good at reading but if you cannot express yourself and you take so long to say a sentence you will sound a little bit less professional than somebody who's more fluent and that's very important because of course many times our jobs depend on that and you're the way you look especially if you put a lot of hard work into a presentation and you can't say what you're trying to say is a little it's tough but the more fluent you become the more you're able to express yourself more professionally so it's it's it's maybe not something that we want to hear but it is important and true and of course one of the most important reasons it's last year but it's not the least is because we want to be understood when we speak to somebody the more fluent we are the easier it is for them to understand us and answer to our questions especially when we're talking to native English speakers and a lot of people are trying to travel and talk about talk to a of English speakers okay welcome to everyone else who's joining us oh my gosh were from Syria from Tajikistan wonderful wonderful welcome please keep telling us where you're from welcome to our lesson and let us know what fluency questions you may have West is doing his best to answer and I will also do my best to answer all of your questions okay so now that we've established that fluency is important and it is important I'm going to show you my secret secret secret secret tips they're not really secret but I will share with you I'll share them with you anyway the first tip is please I beg you I really really pretty pretty please ask you to stop translating and the reason I'm asking you to stop translating is because we were talking about about if if our goal here is to think more in English if if English is the if English is the goal that we're trying to achieve as if thinking in English is what we're trying to achieve and being fluid and it's speaking effortlessly is what we're trying to achieve that means to think in English but what happens when you translate is you take yourself out of the mind state over the state of the mind of in English and that you immediately put yourself back into your language so your brain is doing this switch from you trying to speak in in English to trying to go back to your to your language and go back to English and it doesn't work very well okay so what you're doing is you're doing the opposite when you're translating you're doing the opposite of fluency you're hurting your language progress many times so if you're seeing a word that you don't know and I know you I know because I've been there I want to know the word what is the word in the different language please and of translating it what I would recommend is the first thing would be to guess the meaning from the context many times will we won't know one word that's in a sentence and many times we'll be able to guess that meaning from the words surrounding the sentence so try to do that first if that's impossible then use an English to English dictionary that is you know merriam-webster has a good one just use a dictionary in English that explains things in English and we've talked about this in a previous lesson but what you can do is you can even google it and type in whatever words and then definition and Google will give you a good explanation so just please please please PLEASE promise me you will stop translating okay let's see yes I know it's very tough um but it's it's it's it's something that that we need to do definitely okay again thank you for watching if you just came please make sure to write your name and where you're from and where you are watching us today because it's great to see who is joining us are you guys ready for tip number two okay this is another one that actually I think you'll really like because it it will put you put your mind to ease my my second tip is don't obsess over grammar okay many of us I know think about think about some of the problems that we have with grammar and I actually wanted to ask you what grammar do you have difficulty with so in the comments below in the comments below please please if you have any questions about grammar that you're really struggling with write them down so that we can look at them a little bit okay so just just write down any questions that you have okay so my tip is don't obsess over grammar and this means that of course grammar is very important to language learning and we all know that and we oh that's why we all learn it but sometimes we get caught up in little small things like is it who or whom or do we say you know the boy who we saw the boy whom we saw or something like that or even I remember somebody asking me a while back is it teacher is it a lot of apples or is it many apples and to those questions my answer is is is is pretty simple it doesn't always matter and it doesn't always matter because language changes and English is a live spoken language and the grammar rules have changed and they're going to change and like I was saying about who and whom actually whom is becoming less and less used but I'm sure in your grammar books you will see that you have to use whom as an indirect object it's not really used anymore so much so don't worry too too much about being correct or getting the correct part I don't study it on its own because it might change and it's also making you pretty unhappy I'm I'm sure I've been there okay okay somebody was asking how to stop translating when I am expressing my opinion it that's that comes with time you know but I think if you get yourself in the context of speaking in English just try to find the words in English instead of trying to go to the words in your language and trying to translate like that just try to go to the vocabulary you have in English and there are a few practices that we can talk about later on how to do how to keep making yourself to think in English but it's just something that you have to kind of do as a daily practice okay but back to grammar so the best way I think to practice grammar is of course in context which means when you read something on when you hear something and you recognize a grammar pattern emulate that pattern like say it or use it and don't take it out of context and don't learn it separately

because you might forget it and it might just be a pain a pain to remember and it just might not not work very well and also it's okay to make mistakes by the way everyone makes mistakes native native English speakers make mistakes so if you make a grammar mistake it's not the end of the world just keep practicing keep reviewing and it will be okay okay let's see if you're joining us again I'm going to say this again please let us know where you're from we love to hear from you if you have any questions about fluency please write them down and I will try to answer them or West in the comments so podcast or or maybe a TV show or really anything anything helps I'm actually trying to practice my my French a little bit and what I've been following has been a cooking show because I love food and I love cooking so that's even helped me so if and if you follow anything like that I'd really liked it to see it it really helps or music a lot of people really really enjoy music so let us know what kind of things you like to listen to and of course if you're just joining us make sure to mention where you're where you're from and what's your name okay so what can you what can you listen and repeat and why should you do this it's actually a very complex exercise that your brain is doing and when you repeat something we don't just copy the words but we copy the the grammar the sentence structure intonation and stress and in English especially in English intonation and stress matters so much on how people perceive us and on how fluent we sound I've had many many students who have spoken to me an almost perfect English vocabulary but because their stress was a little off or because their intonation was a little strange they sounded a lot less fluent than they really were so I repeat it's very very very important to copy and listen to how native speakers actually speak and to repeat that pattern it's not enough to listen to it you have to say it believe me you have to say it because if you just if you just listen to it and you take it in there's no way you you say it you print out you you pronounce it it's it's your your body your brain is not doing the best it can to retain the language okay

so let's see if you guys have been writing some of the music no music you guys don't music nobody likes music here you guys are missing out you could be listening to Adele I'm trying to think what else is good for listening to music you could be watching TV shows like friends is a good one especially for intonation because they exaggerate a little bit of how they speak but that actually helps English language learners and of course I think Modern Family is another one that's really good with that let me think what else I think that's it i really like adele for for english lyrics because she speaks her lyrics are a little bit more complex so it helps us understand a little better and it's a little bit more challenging which is kind of good so please please i know you listen but don't forget to repeat okay

okay before we move before we move on from to the other to [Music] the other tip I wanted to address because forgot said when I listen to music I can't understand one thing you can do in many songs you can type in into YouTube you can type in for example because I'm talking about Adele the name of the song and then lyrics and you can many many songs will have the lyrics so you can listen to the song and also see the lyrics so you can read them at the same time as you're listening which is very beneficial because it helps your brain understand so there's your tip okay we are moving on to the fourth tip if you guys are just joining us welcome welcome welcome please write in the comments where you're from and what is your name and wes is also in the comments and he's been answering

he's like a fiend in there just answering all the comments okay wonderful okay this is one of my favorite ways to learn because again it makes things easier okay remember we're all about making things easier so far we've talked about let me just do a little review about stop translating I know that it's going to seem a little difficult in the beginning but if you're trying to become more fluent you are helping yourself okay you're doing yourself a service when you translate you are hindering your progress you are stopping you're stepping out of that mindset and you are going into your own language and then you have to go back to English and then back to your own language and then back to English and that is exhausting I have been there trust me so don't do it it will be hard in the beginning but the more you do it the easier it becomes the second tip is I was talking about don't obsess over grammar it's okay to make mistakes because grammar changes don't fixate on one mistake just just go with it and learn it from the context the third tip I was just talking about is listen and repeat and there are a few things we can listen and anything from podcasts to to [Music] YouTube to music to TV shows anything you like as long as you repeat it exactly the way they say it it's it will be very beneficial for the way you sound in English for your pronunciation and for your intonation and stress those things are more important than we think and the fourth one is learn phrases not words and I said I like this one because it makes a language easier and what do I mean by that phrases are easier than what it's like because you don't have to learn each word one and one and 101 if we learn phrases together they're easier to remember in English certain phrases sound more natural than others so for example if we're talking about things like you know words that go with with with make you know you make mistakes but but for example we do you do homework or you do shopping or with catch you catch a bus or you catch a cold so if you remember these if you're able to remember these um in phrases then you're not just learning one word but you're learning a few different words and you use them again and again and again and this is it's it's it's actually it really helps when you learn a language because it it shows that you know how to put words together which is very important okay and are you guys ready for the fifth tip okay so you guys are talking about things you watch very nice so we have Game of email for example will be in the language you use in an email it will be different than the language used in a letter and it will be different than the which you will use in a resume and it's you can do you can practice this by even looking up on Google resume example or email formal email example or informal email friendly email example if you do this you will see that the language is different and I'd really like to emphasize this because I've been teaching for quite a few years and I've had many students especially younger students who don't know when to be formal and when to be informal and many times they are too informal and when you're talking to a teacher it's it's not recommended that you're informal I actually remember that I had a student who was asking me he was writing an essay and he was asking me how do I spell chillax I was like excuse me and he said yeah I want to use the word chillax you know like chill and relax I want to use it in my essay and I was telling him that's not it's not it's not acceptable it's not appropriate to use a word like that that is completely informal in in the essay but basically if you know which which kind of language to use in the proper context that will help you sound a lot more fluent and it will also help your your if your learning English for business purposes that's very very important okay okay so these were my five tips I'm going to go over them again and then see if you guys have more questions about them so my first tip is stop translating and if you're still translating I know it's difficult try to do a little bit every time if you find a word that you don't know resist the urge to translate it in your language and just try to use it in English just try the second tip was don't it obsess over grammar if there are mistakes that you're making it's okay if you hear somebody make a mistake don't try to think like why do they say like this why didn't they say the other way you know many native English speakers make mistakes they make mistakes all the time and I know it's confusing if you're trying to learn and you're thinking like why aren't they saying it like this because as a spoken language English is very fluid so it changes and people will make mistakes and that's okay and remember the best way to learn grammar is from context so from books from articles from things you hear those are the best ways to practice and my third tip was listen and repeat whether you listen to like I said to a podcast your your favorite TV show political show your favorite comedy your favorite movie your favorite music anything like that make sure to repeat it because when we repeat we emulate the sentence structure the intonation the stress the pronunciation all of that okay okay and the fourth one was learn phrases now words it's easier to remember words in certain phrases and not just words so make sure that that you remember and kind of try to use them as much as possible in phrases and the fifth was proper etiquette and make sure that you use the proper tone and the proper language in the in the proper context meaning don't write a friendly email to your boss make sure that you write a formal email when you're supposed to make sure that you use formal language when you are talking to a teacher on when you're writing a resume it's very important okay so these were my tips I hope they're they were helpful again fluency is not one of those things that fluency is not one of those things that just happens you know it takes time it's not you're not going to be perfect that's okay it's not going to you're always going to make mistakes that's okay I think progress is is is more important than than being perfect in a language or just in life in general so even if maybe you're still translating even if maybe you're still like trying to think about your grammar here and there it's fine as long as you consciously know and you're trying to improve so these were our tips thank you so much for joining us from everywhere in the world you guys are awesome we love having you as your students we love your feedback and please if you found these helpful if you have any other questions about fluency please write to us and we'll do our best to answer please share the video if you found it useful or if you just know somebody who needs a little bit of a reminder on what to do to become fluent again thank you so much from a lovely Budapest have a wonderful wonderful Saturday and the rest of your weekend okay thank you for watching we will see you next time

LESSON 93 OF 749

5 WORDS w/ CRAZY SPELLING & DIFFICULT PRONUNCIATION

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

five words with crazy spelling which makes them difficult to pronounce like nauseous has two syllables nauseous sometimes yeah I feel nauseous ingenious typically when words end with that iio it's an es sound but not in this case ingenious asthma just forget about that th you don't hear it asthma I have seasonal asthma this is true indict the spelling and pronunciation do not match someone may be indicted for a possible crime and then paraphernalia I included this because it's a nice long word paraphernalia and now you know how to correctly pronounce these

LESSON 94 OF 749

5 Ways on How to Achieve English Fluency

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

I think most English learners out there would like to achieve a certain level of fluency. And that's why today I'm going to talk to you about several keys to success that will help you achieve your fluency goals. That's coming up. Welcome to today's lesson, which is all about achieving English fluency. And before we begin, I want to remind you to join our social media classes because it is a great way to improve your fluency. So I'm going to do things a little different I want to talk to you about five different ways that you can achieve your fluency goals using a motivational quote or expression that is very common in English.

and by understanding these quotes and expressions, it will help you better understand how to improve your fluency. So let's just jump right into it. The first one that I want to tell you about is this one right here. If at first you don't succeed, try and try again. And again and again and again. Language learning - you can think of it kind of like a roller coaster. When you start learning, it's like we're on this uphill slope. We're learning new words, new expressions. We feel that we're making a lot of progress. But then, we start to hit a few dips along the way. And we think that maybe we're forgetting something Or we're not making as much progress as we want to.

And when we hit those dips, those lows, when I think learners feel like: Look, this is too difficult. It's too much. I don't want to do this anymore. Those are the times that you really need to try and make yourself work harder to work through it, So you can get back to that uphill slope where you feel like you're making progress, and you're improving. One thing that's difficult is that the more fluent we become, I think for many people, they feel like they're making less progress because it's not as noticeable And you just need to remember that you really are making progress. You're learning new things, and most importantly you're improving on the skills that you already have.

You're improving on what you already know. So if you feel like you are not succeeding, you just need to keep this in mind: Try again, and again, and again. Keep at it, keep practicing, and keep learning. The next tip I have for you is this: You just really have to want it, and that's most of it right there. It's saying: Yes, I really want to improve my fluency, and in order to do so, I'm going to do this, and I'm going to do that. You really have to make it a part of your lifestyle. And that decision right there that you are you are really going to make this happen, you are determined Making that decision is is one of the most difficult things, and that's eighty percent of it right there.

Because when you make that decision and you're able to commit to it, Then you're going to put yourself on a path to fluency Because you're going to be doing the things that you need to do: you're going to be studying a little bit each day, You're going to be reviewing the material you already know. You're going to be practicing at home or in the classroom. You're basically going to do whatever it takes to improve your fluency.

The next way to improve your fluency (and this is one of my favorite expressions that I say to students all the time) and that is You need to do things differently. Don't just say: Well, I'm going to learn English and I'm gonna buy a textbook and then it's done. I don't need to do anything else. I can just use this and my language skills are gonna flourish. That's not really how it happens. You need to find a variety of resources that you can use to practice and improve your skills and improve your fluency. And this could include getting a textbook and studying at home, This could include watching videos, and movies, taking e-courses You could also use technology to your advantage: use social media.

if you live in a big city or town, there might be a foreign community there. You could find a Facebook group that maybe people meet up from time to time and they're having discussions in English. You could even start your own group in your town or city and try to get people together and find others who want to practice their English skills. And you need to think about what works best for you, and what you think is beneficial because we all have different language needs. If you're looking to to improve your pronunciation, then videos are a great way to do that and listen to the correct pronunciation. If you're looking to build your vocabulary, reading's a great way to do that.

It's different for each and every one of us, and you need to think about which ways complement your needs. There are many ways out there to practice and improve your skills And you just need to think outside the box Another way to achieve your fluency goals is to be stronger than your excuses. It's easy to come up with excuses and think: Well, I'm just too busy for this or it's too difficult. It'll take too much time. You need to be stronger than your excuses. You need to overcome these excuses and find ways to get through them. So if you think: Well I just don't have enough time, you need to try and find just a little bit of time during the day or during the week to practice.

You could just do 5 minutes a day, and that is going to add up. The most important thing is that you are consistent. You might think: Well, this is just too difficult, and yeah... language learning: it is a challenge for most of us, especially me. It takes a long time. And it's just something that you really need to want. So much of it depends on you and your motivation and your desire and how strong you can be to overcome each of these excuses. Maybe you tell yourself: Well, I don't have anybody to speak to. Well, you can find people to practice your speaking skills. You can invest in yourself and take some online classes, or find a private English tutor.

You can even try to start your own language learning club, because in your town, in your city, if you are looking to practice your speaking skills, I guarantee you somebody else is as well. And you just need to find these other people so you can meet with them. You can practice your speaking skills and help support each other. For every excuse out there, there is a way through it, so you just need to be stronger than your excuses. And I promise you: You will see the results. The last way to achieve your fluency goals is to keep in mind that the sky is the limit. When it comes to learning a language there is always something that you can learn.

There's always something that you can improve. For example, every year new words are added to the English language. So there is new vocabulary that you can use all the time. I learn new things about English every single day as I'm preparing lessons, and I'm doing research. There's things that I'm learning about grammar and vocabulary and the way the language is used, and all of that helps me become a better instructor because I really want to learn. I want to find out new things. It's not like you can think: Well, I'm just gonna finish learning English, and then I'm done. I don't need to do any more. There's always something that you can keep practicing and improving.

And that's not only going to help you achieve your fluency goals, But it's going to help you maintain your fluency goals when you do get to a level that you're comfortable with, and that you're happy with. The sky is the limit. So in the comments, I want to hear from you: Which of these ways applies to you and your fluency goals? Do you need to think outside the box? Are you the type of person that needs to be stronger than your excuses? Which one do you think would benefit you the most right now in trying to achieve your goals? We love hearing from you guys and writing this down and expressing this is a great way for you to start even thinking about where you're at and what you need to do to improve your fluency skills. If you enjoyed this lesson, and you feel more confident and motivated to go out there and improve your fluency, please give this video a thumbs up. I hope you can use this advice to benefit yourself and improve your English skills. Thanks so much for watching, and I'll see you next time.

LESSON 95 OF 749

6 Ways to Improve Your Fluency & Become a Better Speaker

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

do you want to improve your speaking skills well I am going to tell you six useful and practical ways to truly unlock your speaking potential that's coming up [Music] what's up everyone my name is Wes this is interactive English which is all about helping you guys practice and improve your English skills and today we are talking about speaking because we get comments all the time about this I need to improve my speaking how do I practice my speaking I need speaking for the IELTS what should I do to improve my speaking speaking speaking speaking speaking it is so important to many of you out there and I understand why because it is the primary way in which we communicate but before we begin I want to talk to you about a great opportunity to really boost your English fluency as well as unlock more of your speaking potential and that is by doing the lingo to marathon and lingo des was kind enough to sponsor today's lesson alright so you can see I am wearing my lingo 2 shirt because I want to talk to you about the lingo 2 marathon this is a great opportunity to really take your English to the next level but if you don't know about lingo des they offer online language lessons with qualified teachers who are all native speakers and I was also a student there I took some classes in Spanish and it was a great experience but the marathon this this right here this is a big event and this is a great way to dramatically improve your speaking skills so you're going to take your English fluency from right here and it's gonna go up up up up up up up up up up all the way all the way up there it's gonna go way up there because you are going to speak English every day for 90 days and that is really just going to take your English to the next level and you can sign up for the marathon by clicking on the link in the description and secure your spot because the marathon is going to begin on May 27th 2019 but you need to reserve your place before May 13th now here's the best part if you successfully complete the marathon and you take one class a day for 90 days then you will be eligible for a full refund that's right you'd be able to take 90 English lessons and save over 800 euro again I encourage you click on the link check out the site because lingo too has some different options you can either do the full marathon or the half marathon notice there is normally an entry fee of 5 euro but for you guys here at interactive English if you use the voucher code speak for when you register for the marathon you will not pay an entry fee your entry fee will be free so if you are truly motivated to improve your English and you are a dedicated learner then the marathon is meant for you and you don't have to take my word for it just go to the site and read about what others have had to say about the marathon and their experience and don't forget about the best part if you successfully complete it then you will be eligible for a refund for more information please click on the link in the description and remember to use the voucher code speak for so that you don't have to pay an entry fee again this is a great way to unlock your speaking potential and let's talk about some more ways to do that right now and I'm gonna do this a little differently because I'm going to give you quotes to make it a little more meaningful and then tell you exactly what you need to do to truly unlock your potential and the first amazing wonderful quote I have for you is this the greatest weapon against stress is our ability to choose one thought over another so this quote is all about anxiety when we're full of anxiety then then we're afraid of making mistakes and we become afraid of speaking and this this can be very stressful when you're focused on one what it is that you're afraid of when you're focused on making a mistake and you are completely stressed out that is when so many learners just put up a wall between themselves and whoever it is that they're speaking to and that's when people become quiet so what you want to do is bring down that anxiety and that's all it is it is just a thought and what this quote is encouraging you to do is just to find something else to think about don't focus on what makes you afraid to speak

don't worry about that try to focus on the positives not the negative and that's going to help you speak more freely that's going to lower your anxiety you are not going to feel stressed and you will be able to unlock your speaking potential the next quote that I have for you is this one confidence is not they will like me confidence is I'll be fine if they don't so this book kind of ties in with that last one you just need to be confident in your speaking ability and it doesn't matter if you make a mistake just keep speaking you don't want to feel anxious you don't want to be stressed you want to show confidence you want to have confidence in your speaking ability and that's what this quote is trying to tell us who cares what the other person or what the other people think about your speaking ability who cares if they know that you are not a native English speaker who cares if you make a little mistake it does not matter you need to be confident in your speaking ability because that is just going to allow you to just communicate freely and say what you want to say as long as people understand what you're saying that is the key that is the most important thing so you need to try and build yourself with confidence and a great way to do that is really put yourself in a situation that you might not be comfortable with so if you're a little shy when it comes to speaking maybe you don't like singing then practice that start singing in the shower actually say words out loud and practice your speaking skills maybe you don't like being on a video camera maybe you don't like the way you sound so set up the camera and record yourself having a conversation or record yourself just speaking about any topic and then you can go back and watch it and see if you feel confident about what you're talking about and if you don't just do it again and again and again because that is the best way to build confidence and that also brings us to our next quote which is don't practice until you get it right practice until you can't get it wrong I tell learners this all the time practice practice and practice some more and don't just practice things that are new to you go back and review just practice anything it is all good for your speaking fluency and this really complements those first two suggestions because the more you practice the less stress the less anxiety you will feel the more you practice the more confidence you will have in your speaking ability and even if you don't have someone that you can speak to directly there are other ways that you can practice your skills I mentioned singing in the shower setting the camera and recording yourself but I'd encourage you to try and find someone that you can speak English with look for somebody around your hometown who would also like to improve their English skills or maybe you can find someone online who would do a language exchange you can also look online to find a tutor or an instructor or even do events like the lingo to marathon because all of that is going to help you unlock your speaking potential the next quote that I have for you is this realize it's okay to make speaking mistakes and own up to it everyone makes mistakes even if you're a native English speaker I make speaking mistakes all the time especially when recording these videos if you'd like to improve your speaking skill or you can find in English and structure hmm but before we short term speaking goals because there's easy I just make so many of them it's ridiculous and that's why it's just important to own up to it just acknowledge that yes I am going to make mistakes it's going to happen there's nothing you can do to change that and it's okay to admit it and even acknowledge it and just say well sorry I forgot what I was going to say or maybe you're like well sorry I got sidetracked I was talking about something that wasn't relevant or you could say yeah and I digress you were getting away from the topic and now you're gonna get back on that topic or maybe they don't understand what you're saying and they look a little confused or or they got the wrong impression just say that's not what I meant to say let me say it again so that you understand perfectly just own up to it move on and that is going to help you unlock your speaking potential then I have this wonderful quote for you right here your dreams are only your dreams until you write them down then they're your goals this quote is all about goals setting goals and trying to reach them don't just think about things that that you would like to do because when you're just thinking about it again those are those are just dreams that's not reality but as soon as you write them down and say okay this is what I'm going to do this is what I'm going to achieve then they become an actual goal that you can try to realize that you can try to accomplished and I'd recommend setting short-term goals because you want to keep it simple you want to have that sense of accomplishment and that's just going to help you build your confidence and unlock your speaking potential then we have another quote for all of you book lovers out there which is a person who won't read has no advantage over a person who can't read this is all about highlighting the importance of reading which is a skill that is so important because if you don't read then it's almost like you can't read you have no advantages and there are many advantages to reading two very important ones are grammar and vocabulary because when you're reading you are seeing how the correct grammar is being used and you're taking that information in and you will be able to then use it the next time you're speaking also when you're reading you are learning new words and phrases you are building your vocabulary and you're able to see how these words are used in context and that means when you're having a conversation with someone and you want to use this new vocabulary you'll be able to use it correctly so I hope that you'll be able to use these suggestions and really put them into practice so that you can unlock your speaking potential and while I have you here let's practice speaking right now so I have a question for you and I want you to tell me the answer and I want you to speak to me just just say your answer out loud all right I want you to tell me why do you want to improve your speaking how is this going to help you all right I just gave you an opportunity to try and speak and I want to know if you took advantage of that if you did if you answered that question then write the word speaking in the comments so that I know you were talking to me and you really want to unlock your speaking potential if you enjoyed this lesson please hit that like button and as always thanks so much for watching and I'll see you next time

LESSON 96 OF 749

75 ADVANCED COLLOCATIONS | Supercharge Your Vocab (B2, C1, & C2 Phrases)

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today, I want to help you supercharge your vocabulary by teaching you many different collocations, which are words that are frequently used together. And the phrases that I'm going to teach you today are really at a B2 to C2 level. So, if you are able to use them in conversation, it's just going to help you sound a lot more natural. And if you are someone who wants your vocabulary to take off like a rocket, please subscribe, turn on notifications. That way, I can become your teacher. My name is Wes. The channel is Interactive English. It's all about helping you reach your fluency goals. Let's begin at a B2 level. These are phrases that I think are pretty common. Upper intermediate essentials. And we'll start with the word crucial. This is an adjective that means extremely important or necessary. And some phrases with this word include a crucial factor or crucial element or crucial evidence or even a crucial role. And in this case, you may even use it with the verb play. Say saying saying that someone plays a crucial role in something. She played a crucial role in the negotiations. The other thing that I'll point out is that these phrases may be followed with the preposition in like in the example that I just gave you. But to give you another example, I could say the weather was a crucial factor in our decision. And then finally, if I want to give you one more phrase, this time with an adverb, and I want to add emphasis, I could say that something is absolutely crucial. say it like that just to add that emphasis because I think that it is absolutely crucial that you learn these phrases. Try to use them because it is going to help you develop your overall fluency. It plays a crucial role in the lives of many animals, including these small fiddler [music] crabs. And I realize I left one crucial element in the bedroom.

Yes, I I didn't want to frighten the girls, but it is absolutely crucial you keep your true identities under wraps.

The next set of collocations are with the word terms. This is a noun that refers to conditions in an agreement or the way something is expressed. So you may hear somebody talk about favorable terms. And in that case, it's a good thing if you have favorable terms or with a verb to dictate terms. and you're trying to control the situation whenever you dictate terms. A very common phrase would be terms and conditions. I think that everybody, you and me, we should always read the terms and conditions. You could say that someone is on friendly terms with someone. And the phrase on friendly terms would really refer to a relationship. My ex-husband and I had been divorced for 5 years, but we were on friendly terms and we kept in touch. You could even replace the word friendly with good. You're on good terms. Or if you want to say the opposite, hey, we are not on good terms. And then we could use it in the phrase in terms of something when referring to a particular subject.

Maybe I ask you about your job and you say in terms of salary. The job is great, but the hours are really long. The Tyrells are our only true rivals in terms of resources and we need them on our side.

Wrongly. This is an adverb that means in a way that is not correct or not fair.

And we're going to follow this with some different adjectives and because of the meaning they these phrases really have a negative connotation. Like if you say someone was wrongly accused, he was wrongly accused of the crime. Or maybe someone is wrongly convicted or wrongly imprisoned or wrongly informed or even wrongly mistaken.

Sorry, you were wrongfully imprisoned, Simpson. I don't know. I guess I hoped you were another cop wrongly convicted of crimes you didn't commit. We are wrongly accused just because the feds say it.

Now, let's look at some collocations with the word academic. This is an adjective that really refers to things relating to schools, colleges, or universities. And I think quite often you will hear people talk about someone's academic achievement or academic performance. We could use it with the phrase academic purposes. The library's resources are intended for academic purposes. Time-wise, you will definitely hear people talk about the academic year. And you could also use it with academic rigor. And in this case, the phrase really refers to high standards. The course is known for its academic rigor.

jeopardize the academic performance of a weaker student. We invite you to return as an instructor for the 1954 1955 academic year.

This perfectly encapsulates what's wrong with higher education, privileging athletic and alumni contributions over academic rigor. And then there's the word temper. This is a noun that refers to the tendency to become angry easily. And there are some common verbs that you could use with this noun. Most commonly just to say that someone has a temper, to have a temper. You could also use it with lose, to lose your temper. Please do not lose your temper. And in that case, I might also tell you to control your temper. You could use it with that verb as well, to control your temper. If I want to use it with some adjectives, I could say that someone has a short temper and they just get angry very quickly. Or if I want to emphasize just how severe someone's temper is, I could say they have a vile temper. I think it's good to avoid people that have a vile temper.

You won't lose your temper, will [music] you? Promise me that they they won't make you angry. He has a long memory and a short temper.

Would you keep that violent temper of yours under control? Now, let's move into some C1 collocations. More a little more advanced fluency. And we'll start with the word ethnic. This is an adjective relating to a population group with a common national or cultural tradition. And quite commonly, people may refer to an ethnic group or maybe they celebrate ethnic diversity or even refer to a group of people as an ethnic minority. You could ask about someone's ethnic background like where do they come from? If we're talking about conflict, in that case, people may talk about ethnic tensions and there is some conflict going on. We're really at a crossroads. The impending environmental apocalypse [music] juxtaposed with simmering ethnic tensions. There's a difference, Daryl. You can't hate people because of their ethnic background. You do know uies are a real ethnic group that actually exists. Then we have the word pose. This is a verb that means to present or cause something, especially a problem or difficulty. So, in general, these phrases are likely going to have more of a negative connotation. If someone were to pose a threat or pose a danger or even pose a problem, you could say something poses a risk. Smoking poses a risk to your health. And then well this is not really negative but somebody could pose a question. Often this is a little more formal if uh I were to pose a question and say what are the ethical implications of AI but I don't want to be very formal. That's not who I am. But I'm still going to pose a question to you right now. Will you please go ahead and hit that like button if you're learning some new and useful phrases. For the first time in our history, humans pose a threat to our kind.

Your honor, as you can see, my clients [music] are elderly and infirm. Any incarceration could pose a serious health risk. I'd like to pose a question that I'm sure is on everybody's mind here today.

Immediate. This is a great word. It's an adjective with a couple of different meanings. So, it could refer to someone or something that is close to or is a cause or effect of someone or something.

And with this meaning you could use it with the phrases immediate effect. You know what is the immediate effect of something or your immediate surroundings? [music] The immediate effect of the war for Elizabeth is the same in one sense [music] as so many other young people living in London. It also means in the present like as soon as possible. And in that case you may hear somebody talk about an immediate response or immediate danger. I do not pose a threat, so you are not in immediate danger. Or you could use it with the phrase immediate future. What is going to happen in your immediate future? Well, as long as you can keep your mouth shut for the rest of your life, you're in no immediate danger.

I won't tell. Tomorrow, my Spanish exams with Senor the unforgiving. My main concern is for my immediate future. Then we have alternate. This is an adjective with a couple of different meanings. The first is to happen one after the other repeatedly. And some very common collocations include alternate days or alternate weeks. That's really the time period we're going to use. We're not going to often use this adjective with minutes, hours, or years. Colin was [music] a good blow and you were happy with Celia. Alternate days. It also refers to a plan or method that can be used if you don't want to use another one. And in that case, you may hear somebody talk about an alternate plan. Or maybe you're going somewhere and you're going to take an alternate route or you're trying to figure something out and somebody has an alternate explanation, right?

Then there's the word insight. This is a noun that refers to a deep understanding of a person or thing.

You could also follow these phrases with the preposition into. I could say, "I hope these lessons provide valuable insight into some of the slight nuances in English." When using it with verbs, you could gain insight or offer insight or say that something provides insight. I used it in the previous example of these lessons, providing insight into those slight nuances. This is our one chance to peak behind the curtain and gain insight into young womanhood. What valuable insight did you glean as a result? Well, I thought they could provide some insights that might improve your love life. Now, let's have a look at some C2 collocations, a real masterclass. And we'll begin with the word abrupt. This is an adjective that has a couple of different meanings, but most of the phrases really refer to something that is sudden and unexpected, often in an unpleasant way.

referring to someone's abrupt departure. And very commonly, you will use this word when talking about an abrupt end. If this lesson came to an abrupt end, I'm sure you might be surprised and hopefully you'd be a little disappointed too because I still have more collocations that I want to teach you.

And uh it was so well it was such an abrupt end.

Godzilla just made an abrupt change direction. He's moving very fast.

This word also means using few words in a way that may seem rude. And a collocation that you may come across or you could even use when describing a person is abrupt manner. So it does have a negative connotation. I could say her abrupt manner offended many people.

I assumed you know working on Wall Street, curly dark hair, prominent nose, abrupt banner, and I'm sorry, am I still talking? Then there's paramount. This is an adjective that means more important than anything else. And you could say that something is of paramount importance or of paramount concern. Perhaps you want to talk about your paramount goal or your paramount interest. And if I want to use it with a verb, a common collocation is to remain paramount. In my opinion, the quality of these lessons must and will always remain paramount. I can't leave by the furniture.

Your safety [music] is a paramount concern to us. the life and safety of King Joffrey be of paramount importance. The next set of collocations are with the word invasion. This is a noun that has a couple of different meanings. The first refers to the act of entering a place in an unwanted or annoying way or or just by force. So really, these phrases have a negative connotation. If I'm talking about an invasion of some group, I could say, "The small beach town experiences an invasion of tourists every summer." If I say this, then that would imply that I just don't like the tourists being there. I could add emphasis using the phrase massive invasion. if I were to say there is a massive invasion of tourists. And the other two phrases are more war conflict related if I'm talking about a full-scale invasion or an imminent invasion. All of Gotham City is buzzing about an imminent invasion of flying saucers.

Well, no. Tonsillitis adoiditis is in Chinese medical an invasion of heat and wind.

This word also refers to an action that affects someone's life in a negative way. And a very common collocation is an invasion of privacy. So if someone were to try to look at your phone or check your emails or they're asking a lot of personal questions, you may feel like that is an invasion of privacy.

Holy pepperoni.

Okay, this is an invasion of privacy.

Remember you and then create ads for other stuff you might want to buy. So it learns information about me. Seems like an invasion of privacy.

No word on casualties yet, but we can assume the death toll is catastrophic.

It also refers to a heavy cost. And I could use it with an adjective like emotional. There's an emotional toll on someone. And if I want to use it with a couple of verbs, I could say that something exacts a toll on someone. This is a little more formal. I think most of the time people are going to use the verb take and say that something takes a toll on someone. If I want to put some of these together and give you a real example, sometimes I have to work over the weekends. I'd rather spend time with my family, but when that happens, it Yeah, I feel like it can take an emotional toll on me. But, you know, I got to do it. Quality, quality remains paramount. The toll was visible. The emotional toll that it was having on both of us, especially um especially my wife.

Forgive him cuz there's nothing you can do about it. It's taking a toll on you.

Then there's undo. This is an adjective that refers to a level that is more than necessary, acceptable, or reasonable.

And there are some common nouns that you can use with this word when talking about undue pressure or undue stress. That's not a good thing. Or maybe somebody is getting undue attention. You could also talk about undue influence. This phrase you might hear more in a legal context as well as undue hardship. The context might be more about finances but also legal. I could say this outrageous fine will cause undue hardship to the family.

Ma'am, you said that serving on this jury would cause undue hardship. Can you elaborate? Now, look, I'm not trying to put any undue pressure on you and Mario.

The statute requires proof that there was some undue influence. Someone threatening the residents of San Piper Crossings. I know I just gave you a lot of different phrases and don't feel like you need to memorize them. And I don't think you should try to memorize them. Try to learn and familiarize yourself with them passively and then slowly start using them actively. It's it's a all a process building your vocabulary. Hopefully, you're using some of them already. If you enjoyed this lesson and learned something new, you can let me know by hitting that like button. So long.

LESSON 97 OF 749

75 Difficult Words to Pronounce (Fine-tune Your Pronunciation)

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today i am going to teach you 75 difficult words to pronounce in english and i'm gonna do it all in under 45 minutes so this it is a long lesson buckle up and what i've done is i've taken well some of the very best of my pronunciation lessons and i've just put them together into this one and there's a lot of words to go over but before we jump into that i want to let you know that you can now enroll in my speaking course it's all about helping you practice and improve your speaking skills so click on that link down below and when you do there will be a special discount just for you the course is all about helping you speak confidently speak clearly and speak naturally each week there is a different speaking topic you will learn vocabulary related to that topic we do engaging speaking activities there are also pronunciation video lessons included in the course we warm up each lesson with something related to pronunciation or connected speech i will also teach you some of the language nuances like when to use certain words and phrases so click on the link down below if you'd like to sign up or learn more about the course and yeah i just hope to speak to you soon so now let's just jump right in to our pronunciation lesson and learn how to pronounce these different words today we'll talk about 25 difficult words for english learners to pronounce today we're going to talk to you about 25 words that you guys told us were difficult to pronounce as we go over these words we are going to give you the phonetic spelling which means that we are going to show you the words exactly how they sound some of you may be familiar with the international phonetic alphabet others of you may not be but i think everyone can understand and follow phonetic spelling we will also show you how many syllables each word has and remember a syllable is just one unit of sound in addition we will show you which syllable is stressed so hopefully this information will help give you a better idea as to how to pronounce each of these individual words if you want even more practice you can repeat the words after we say them practice makes perfect it's true also keep in mind that in this video we are doing the american pronunciation of these words which is important to mention because some of the words may differ in their american pronunciation versus the british pronunciation so yeah keep that in mind we'll be doing the american pronunciation because we're american so the first word fittingly is the word pronunciation now there are two things about this word that could be a little tricky first that c actually sounds like you're saying the letter c pronounci and the word ends with the t-i-o-n which sounds like shun anytime that you see these four letters together at the end of a word it's pronounced as shun also a pronunciation rule is that when a word ends with the tion the stress is going to fall on the syllable before so in this case pronunciation pronunciation pronunciation wow that pronunciation is flawless the next one is characterization and this one is difficult to pronounce firstly because it's so long so let's let's break it apart the first two letters the ch many times in english they make a chis sound so you would expect in this case that they would make the ch sound like in channel but not here the way that it's pronounced is with a k sound like the k sound the other thing is that um those last four letters the t i o n

are just like in any other instance in english read as shun characterization and remember to stress that syllable before the shun characterization say with me say fast characterization characterization characterization characterization characterization characterization uh i'm i'm i think i'm comfortable with that characterization as well number three is museum now this word can be tricky for two reasons the first is that first syllable that mu has like an m sound combined with like saying the word you mu zeum that s is also going to sound like a z museum let's go to the museum let's go museum it's easy museum to any it's not like that okay and i'm not going to any museum well i'm not going back into storage the next word is disadvantage and this one might be a little bit difficult because if we look at the last four letters the t a g e i think that they're easy to mispronounce it's it's kind of that tidge sound that is very quick so it's not t h it's stitch so we say disadvantage disadvantage you're at a real disadvantage next unfortunate so this word can be troublesome because that tu actually sounds like a chew unfortunate unfortunate unfortunate that's it unfortunate it was an unfortunate error we're fixing it the next word is occupation this one might be a little difficult because of the c sound um maybe if you look at it you think oh it's a c pronounced like a c but it's actually pronounced like a q sound so it's occupation and remember to stress the syllable before addition occupation i'm sorry occupation would be the correct way to say it's better please state your name and occupation the next word is cucumber so this word can definitely be confusing because of the letter c that first c sounds like a q sound q q

all right and the next c just has a k sound like a k k q cumber there are some other words that begin with the letter c u where that c also sounds like a q sound like cube or cute and then there are some other words that begin with c u that don't follow that at all and sound like a k sound like cup or cupboard or anything else with coke curve so cucumber can really be a little tricky what do you got a cucumber i'm chilling chill's a cucumber man the next word is suitable and this one may be a little tricky because of the vowels the you and i together they're making an oo sound so it's suit suitable the other thing to keep in mind is that second syllable has the schwa sounds you have suta suitable so it's not suitable but it's suitable suitable suitable and you you kind of go through it fast suitable suitable it's a very suitable explanation quite suitable suitable for what the next word is tongue now the pronunciation of this word is all sorts of crazy first off it only has one syllable and that o sounds like a u tongue and it would rhyme with words like sung or rung or tongue lung tongue lung yeah that's another one tongue there you have it porno tongue church tongue the next word is assume and this one has a couple little tricks to it the first one is that the first syllable is a schwa so it makes an uh sound so we can say uh assume not asum or anything like that and the second one is that the u in there does not make a u sound but an oo sound we say assume assume i will assume the position next is diary so this word can be a little confusing because it is three syllables it's not two and the first syllable has that long i sound that dye followed by the schwa daiya and then the y at the end has a long e sound diary diary do you keep a diary do you i don't dear diary love makes you do crazy things the next word is category and here

what's tricky is the t sound because it's not an actual t sound it's like a flap t or the american t but it's kind of a d sound so it's a category muted even you can barely hear it category category what's the first category here this guy is the hound group the next word is schedule so this word has two syllables and it can be confusing because of that ch it doesn't have a ch sound it has a k sound like a k sound and the d-u-l-e sounds like jewel schedule especially when you say it fast schedule schedule schedule precisely on schedule the next word is physics this one is also a little tricky even though it's short there are a couple things to mention the ph sound in english sounds like like like an f sound so it's physics the other one is that the y sound is not a yes sound but it's like a shortened i sound and the third thing is that the s is pronounced like a z so put it all together and you have physics physics in physics we uh we talk about physics uh properties of physics the next word is curtail so this word has two syllables and the second syllable has that long a sound tail like you're talking about an animal's tail curtail curtail not curdle curtail can we curtail this performance piece the next word is chemistry and chemistry is derived from kimia which comes from alchemia which is an arabic term derived from greek it's it has a long story but what that means is that the pronunciation is a little bit different um so it's not a ch sound but instead of k sound so it's chemistry are you studying yeah chemistry i hate chemistry me too

next is poignant so this word that gn has that nasal sound that point which is different from some other words that also have a gn like pregnant alright so this gn is that nasal sound poignant poignant poignant and then there's the most poignant irony of all next we have hippopotamus i like this word uh there used to be a song called i want a hippopotamus for christmas [Music] for christmas i want a hippopotamus for christmas i they're kind of cute hippopotamus is confusing because it's so freaking long hippopotamus it's like a million syllables really what you have to do is just break it down and say hippopotamus and quickly is hippopotamus hippopotamus yeah practice one syllable at a time yeah you kind of have to [Music] say hippopotamus the next word sticking with our animal theme is rhinoceros and this word can be confusing because the h is silent and the c sounds like an s rhinoceros rhinoceros i want a rhinoceros for christmas as the rhinoceros speaks english the next word is science i don't know why i did that science how do we pronounce it we pronounce it like science okay the next word is science and what's important in this word pronunciation is that the c is not pronounced so we don't say i don't even know how you would mispronounce that science that's difficult right um but to just make it easy we just omit the sea so we say science the sea is silent like in scissors you also don't say this either science science what sort of science [Music]

the next word is silhouette this word is borrowed from french so i'm not really going to try to explain why it's pronounced the way it is it's just silhouette and it sounds i think the same in french like pirouette silhouette what are you doing this weekend because your silhouette is kicking number 22 is a rouse and a rouse has a couple things you need to remember the first one is that the o and u combination creates a diphthong the ow sound and um the next thing is that the s makes a z sound so you have a rouse arouse a round if he can arouse that kind of passion the next word is unique and the pronunciation of this word second syllable even though it's spelled with a c h it's not a ch sound it is more of a k k sound heimlich and maneuver has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable this is also a challenging word to pronounce maneuver the heimlich maneuver you would give someone the heimlich maneuver and then there is the word asthma which is talking about a person who would have difficulty breathing you would say they have asthma the word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable that second syllable has that schwa again that uh sound asthma and again this word the spelling may not match up with the pronunciation because that a-s-t-h it's really pronounced as just like as like an a-z sound as asthma then we have the word mischievous and this is talking about behaving in a bad way but not usually intended to cause any real harm you just say maybe somebody is mischievous the word has three syllables the stress is on that first syllable and both that second and third syllable have that schwa sound but again the spelling can kind of throw you off when you want to say and pronounce this word so keep that in mind especially that second syllable that that ch sound mischievous mischievous stay with me mischievous and then we have the word coxswain now this is a word that probably you may not have heard of before because it's a word that is used in the the sport of rowing or crewing and this is the person that sits in the back of the boat and they would give instructions to the other people who are rowing and that person is the coxswain

it has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable again that second syllable can be a bit confusing has that schwa even though the spelling just does not look like that at all coxson i wrote crew at harvard oh harvard or were you a coxman coxswain then we have the word close which is a very common word i'm sure you know what it means it's talking about things that we wear to to cover our body but it is a word that that is a little confusing the pronunciation because of that spelling it's just one syllable clothes clothes everybody is wearing clothes i assume that you're wearing clothes i really don't know but as you can see i i am wearing clothes i wear them quite often i guess i guess yes not always but uh okay anyway but moving on the next word is prescription this is talking about a note from a doctor and it just shows the medicine that a person needs to take and you would get a prescription from the doctor the word has three syllables and the stress is on that second syllable prescription prescription i think the word is a little confusing because of that pre it's not a pre sound it's more of a pr prescription need a prescription what the hell is this it's a prescription we use drugs prescription drugs you know the kind of dentist has access to then we have the word perspire which just means to sweat and somebody would perspire the word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable perspire then we have the word boutique which is talking about a shop that would sell a small shop that would sell clothes shoes jewelry and you could say it is a boutique it has two syllables the stress again is on that second syllable and of course with this one i think you can see that the spelling is not really in line with the pronunciation boutique that second syllable that that t i q u it's pronounced like teak boutique you're planning on opening your own boutique owner of elizabeth albert a boutique that sells some of the top women's fashions on the burbank's dress they're actually from a very expensive boutique next is a word that is very common we use it often and that is police i think many of you probably know what it means it's talking about a person responsible for for protecting people and making sure that people obey the laws the police now the word has two syllables the stress is on that second syllable that first syllable you hear that schwa that but that second syllable that spelling that l-i-c-e is pronounced lease police police maybe i hope i hope that you never have to call the police then we have the word debris which is talking about small pieces that are basically torn off of something that that's larger debris the word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable debris now that first syllable also it has that schwa sound that uh and that second syllable has a long e sound even though the spelling is a little different we're going to end it with that long e sound debris debris say it with me debris and you might use or actually hear this word if there is something like a natural disaster an earthquake and things get torn off and afterwards there there might be debris on the ground debris then we have marijuana this is talking about well it's it's a plant and when it's dried people might smoke it and it's it's still illegal in many countries and it's it's called marijuana the word has four syllables and the stress is on that third syllable it that wa marijuana so say this word with me i'll say it slowly marijuana that second and fourth syllable you hear that schwa that uh marijuana so keep in mind that the spelling is nothing like the pronunciation that third syllable that wah that is the stress marijuana marijuana it's marijuana marijuana a marijuana cigarette next is the word february this is well it's the second month of the year it's a word we use quite often and now i feel like i'm just gonna catch myself saying often again and again and again anyway the word has four syllables the stress is on that first syllable but i think this word is challenging because of the those two r's in there feb ru air e february february say with me february uh again it's a word it's a great word to practice because you will probably use it if you are having a conversation especially if it is the month of february right february next is the word and the problem is the same that l-e-t is pronounced lay valet valet parking is five dollars because the valet good thing we use valet parking next is the word regime which refers to a system of government the word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable regime and that that second syllable notice it has that long e sound regime regime and then we have the word vineyard which is talking about land where people will or they would grow vines specifically they would grow grapes and used for making wine and you would say that this place it's a vineyard a wine vineyard the word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable and that first syllable can be a little challenging because you you you have that short eye sound vineyard vineyard a vineyard next is the word coupon and this is talking about a piece of paper or maybe even an online code that somebody can use to get something for free or at a cheaper price and they would use a coupon the word has two syllables and the stress is on that first syllable and that first syllable can be challenging because that cou is just pronounced as ku coupon a coupon then we have the word hyperbole and this refers to the way that somebody is speaking or writing they do this to make things sound bigger and better and you could say that they are just using hyperbole the word has four syllables and the stress is on that second syllable hyperbole now i think with this word just just keep in mind it has four syllables and when you say the word you are going to hear all four of those syllables hyperbole that b-o-l-e is pronounced boli for example if i said this is the absolute most amazing and best english channel in the world all right you might think that that is hyperbole i hope not i really hope that you do love these english lessons but just as an example of what it means hyperbole when someone says we've got people everywhere you expect it to be hyperbole it goes on fire enough for the hyperbole it is not hyperbole to say we're in a great financial situation and finally we have a very common word which is receipt this is well it's a piece of paper that shows that you've paid for something the word has two syllables and the stress is on that second syllable receipt now the spelling again just does not match up with the pronunciation there is a silent p in there you are not going to hear that p that second syllable just sounds like seat receipt if you go and buy something you will probably get a receipt wow that was a lot of words that we just went about some silent letters that you will not pronounce when you say these advanced words and today i it's a pronunciation lesson but also a little bit of vocabulary because i want to talk to you about 25 words and i think these are more advanced words and i want to teach you how to pronounce them and all of them have a silent letter so in this lesson we are going to look at words that have silent letters at the beginning in the middle as well as at the end and i am going to show you both the phonetic spelling as well as the ipa so that you can see the pronunciation and i will also put the meaning of the word up there in case you want to build your vocabulary and the word is new for you i'm going to say the word twice so you can hear my pronunciation and feel free to repeat after me and actually practice your pronunciation so let's begin with the letter w because well my name's wes let's just let's just start with the letter w and often w may be a silent letter at the beginning of a word especially when it's followed by the letter r that w r combination for example we have the word wrangle wrangle to wrangle sometimes if i put on a little weight i may wrangle with my belt then we have wrench wrench if you have tools in your home there's a good possibility that you have a wrench and then there's the word wretched this is an adjective wretched keep in mind this word has two syllables because that e d at the end is the second syllable that id wretched now let's look at the silent k which is another letter that will often be silent at the beginning of a word especially when it's followed by the letter n so let's look at these three words the first one is knuckle knuckle right here your knuckles then we have the word not not same as like you're saying the negative in this case though we're talking about a noun and you may hear it being used with the verb tie to tie a knot then we have the word need need this is a verb to need especially if you want to talk about clay or dough to need dough now let's look at a couple of words that begin with a silent p and both of these words have three syllables so the first one is pneumonia pneumonia that stress is on that second syllable pneumonia then we have pseudonym pseudonym the stress is on the first syllable this time pseudonym and sometimes yeah if people write books instead of using their real name they will use a pseudonym

okay now let's let's move to the middle of the word and let's begin with the letter c because often you may find words that have a silent c in the middle of the word especially when it comes after the letter s so all of these words you're going to see that s c combination so let's begin with crescent crescent it's a shape i often i think of the moon when i hear the word crescent

next is fluorescent fluorescent stress is on that second syllable fluorescent if you work in an office chances are those may be fluorescent lights next is the word obscene obscene stress is on that second syllable obscene then we have resuscitate resuscitate stress is on that second syllable and this is a four syllable word resuscitate and if you well for example if you give someone mouth to mouth you are trying to resuscitate this person let's move on to the letter t a silent t that you will find in the middle of some words now i'm going to go over four words all of them have two syllables and the stress is on the first syllable so let's begin with mortgage mortgage if you think if you were thinking about buying a home this is a word that you will probably need to know mortgage next is nestle nestle to nestle cuddle close together sometimes people animals they like to nestle then we have hasten hasten this is a verb to hasten and finally we have moisten [Music] it's another verb if you have a cloth or a napkin and you want to get it wet then you may moisten the cloth or moisten the paper towel now let's talk about some words that have a silent letter at the end and i'm talking about the letter b and often this this letter will be silent when it comes after the letter m that mb combination so let's start with this first word which is catacomb catacomb three syllables stresses on the first syllable catacomb when i traveled to to paris france i visited the catacombs

next is the word crumb crumb when i eat cookies sometimes i might get some crumbs on my shirt all right then we have limb limb i hope that you never break any of your limbs stay safe and finally the word womb womb keep in mind that that o it really has that ooh sound womb we're going to talk about a silent t that you will find at the end of some words so the first word that i want to pronounce for you is debut debut i made my debut on this channel in i think 2017. wow it's been it's been a while then we have the word gourmet gourmet this is an adjective that you will find before some nouns like gourmet coffee

next is the word rapport rapport and you will hear people use this word and they may say someone has a good rapport with someone else a good rapport and finally there's the word ricochet ricochet three syllables stress is on that third syllable ricochet and i know we're talking about silent letters at the end but i i now want to go to the end of the alphabet and we're going to look at the letter z a silent z which comes in the middle of this word right here rendezvous it has three syllables the stress is on that first syllable rendezvous and if people ever want to get together they may rendezvous at a certain place so i hope that this was helpful with your pronunciation if you want to say and pronounce any of these advanced words and i also hope that you learn some new words as well if you enjoyed the lesson please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and i will see you next time

LESSON 98 OF 749

7 Creative Ways to Get More SPEAKING Practice

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello welcome to today's lesson so this lesson i think um it's going to be hopefully it might address some of your concerns i know many of you out there maybe not concerns but you talk about speaking and wanting to get more practice speaking i think that is the one language skill that i think many learners would like to engage in have more practice and it can be a little bit a little bit of a challenge so that's why in today's lesson i i just want to give you some suggestions some ideas that will get you thinking about different ways that you can practice speaking and really this is more catered toward people who um you you may not live in an english-speaking country perhaps um you you're very busy with your schedule and you want to figure out different ways that you can practice uh speaking because you would like to improve your skills i think it's very important that if you're talking about developing your language fluency you work on all of the four primary skills listening speaking reading and writing and i think that speaking part can be a little elusive sometimes and it can be difficult difficult to grab onto so i just want to give some quick little hellos and shout outs to everybody who's here uh lolly as always great to see you um hello judit kyle simple guy uh jane marcelo uh glad you glad you all can join me um chars um miram uh miguel angela trying to give as many as i can so again as we go through this these are just some thoughts suggestions and ideas um that maybe could you know kind of get the creative juices flowing when you're starting to think about well how can i get a little more speaking practice so let me begin with my my first suggestion and these are not in order of importance or anything like that um but the first one would be to try to find a speaking group and what i mean by like a speaking group typically i think these examples that i'm giving you this would be more like face to face um speaking with someone and there are different um those are some different apps or sites that you can go to and try to do this for example meetup is a very uh popular one and common one eventbrite city socializer open sports now because of the pandemic i don't know if how much this has maybe affected some of these groups and perhaps people are meeting online instead of in person but again there are numerous apps or sites like the ones i've listed here where you can connect with people and people you might be talking about a certain topic let me give you um a more a clearer example because meetup was something that was becoming more popular in the us had a lot of learners um who i would teach in the us and they would practice with me at at school in the classroom that setting but they would say look out you know i want to having difficulty making friends i would like to practice more speaking outside of the classroom and really have conversations with people not like things that you know you would talk to somebody at a coffee like you're ordering a coffee or going to the grocery store or something like that but really to have a conversation

and i would always suggest like meet up because where around where we lived in california there were always different groups getting together you could find a meet-up that was talking about um maybe like a book like a book club or a meet-up that was referring to like hiking or exercise and people would get together and sometimes they might do the activity and do something or they just get together and share ideas and have discussions because they share the same interest so when i say find a speaking group it's not like a speaking group like oh you want to learn english i want to learn english this would be more like finding a speaking group somebody a group that's talking about something you're interested in so maybe um it could be about art and you find a group using one of these sites that having a weekly discussion about art and you can then join that discussion and be a part of that conversation that's what i mean so it's not really finding a speaking group that's related to learning english but something else that you are interested in that you are passionate about and you can talk about that in english so that's really the the main idea there so the first thing i would suggest yes find uh find a speaking group and there uh i think you can check out some of those sites you might be able to do it join do this um mariam somebody says i joined some groups on telegram but people just said greetings okay yeah i haven't checked out telegram i don't know much about it um but yeah i think there are different ways out there get creative and find some sites where you can engage with some of these groups the next one would be like i said this is more when i say this more in person face to face the other thing i would say is engage in an online community again consider your interest so if you love to read there might you could maybe find an online book club where people are reading and then they get together using zoom or skype and you have a conversation about the book so just like there are ways to meet people in groups and talk to them face to face about some topic you can also do this online i think it's possible again you just have to get a little creative and finding the right community that you can talk to people um and perhaps they're getting together and and speaking english so i said like again consider your interests don't focus i know you're interested in improving your language skills and practicing speaking think beyond that what is something else you want to do what's something else you want to learn and and start your search there and see what you can come up with see what you can find um all right so let's see just kind of checking out some of the what you guys are mentioning uh in the chat it's an awesome idea uh thank you simple guy um all right so the next suggestion that i have for you which again leads me into uh something else that i wanted to talk about is you could take an online class but this is something that is going that would be paid for perhaps online it depends on where you live sometimes in certain countries it can be a little more expensive than others but you could take an online class it's a way to connect with people english teachers from around the world whatever country and i i would say that yes this is kind of leading me into telling you that this is the last call if you would like to join my speaking course um called speak up you can talk to me we talk about different topics each week which are really kind of trying to help you build your confidence speaking about these different topics as well as doing speaking activities so it's about helping you speak confidently speak clearly and speak naturally because there are a lot of pronunciation video lessons in there so this is your last call you can use the code speak10 to get a 10 discount there's my little uh wait here it is there's my little promo right there if you want to take classes with me and practice improving your speaking fluency you can take an online class directly directly with me because some of you have asked are like how can i how can i speak with you um and joseph yes is there money included yes yes there is um so check that out there's a link down in the description if you're interested um i'm also going to throw the link in right here if you would like to check out my speaking course um you can click on this link right there if you would like to join so let me replace that i'll just pin it up top in case uh you guys are wondering but this is the last call the classes are getting ready to start next week but that is something um again that's another way to practice uh your speaking skills get regular practice and really build um confidence so let's look um oh yes that's right dc i have joined that's right you're you are enrolled and i look forward i look forward to speaking to you very very soon um so yeah i really i love this i love the course um i have so much fun with it it's so amazing i think getting ready getting being able to meet um all of you that have kind of been following the video lessons and and really get to know you i know uh takaya was in here i saw your name before also uh has been a part of the course um simple guy no it is it is a payment

it is a payment for for doing these classes so the um the the cost is 149. check out the link there's a lot more information if it's something you guys um would be interested in but i i do want to kind of i'll come back to this a little later on make one more plug i wanted to continue in talking about some ideas suggestions to get more speaking practice so the next one um is this one right here which is a little outside the box and that is to become a tour guide in your city or town and what i mean by that um some of you live in perhaps a big city and if you're in a big city there are probably international tourists there visiting some of the different places some of the different sites and what you could do is kind of become a tour guide you could even put up something at like a local coffee shop or a hostel or a hotel something where people might be staying where you might find international tourists they can contact you you could say hey i'll show i'll show you around if it's not too much of an inconvenience for you if you happen to live close by some place that there are many tourists and this is something that i've seen when i lived in i lived in south korea i've also traveled to china those are two places where um in in other countries in east asia as well i would be traveling somewhere and somebody uh would come up to me and say hey you know i can show you around a little bit tell you a little bit about this place i'm just looking to practice uh my english have a little bit of a conversation and yeah i would uh i would talk to them for a little bit typically we would talk about other things that are unrelated to uh the the landmark of the site because i would be curious about well you know what can you tell me about the city or your country or what do you do and and have a conversation that way so that is one thing that you could do um if you're in a city or town where international travelers come because typically the the common language may be english even if somebody's not from a place like the united states then uh this could be this could be an idea be very curious if any of you have done this as well let me know in the chats if this is something that that you've actually uh that you've tried the next suggestion is um well you could find a speaking partner and really when you're finding a speaking partner this it can be a little challenging there are again different sites out there that you can try to connect with other people who want to learn english so in this case when you're looking for a speaking partner i would say that this this way you're probably looking for somebody who is also like okay i just want to practice speaking english so you can do this online or even in your town i think if you are somebody who wants to improve your english there is probably somebody close by around where you live who also wants to practice speaking english and if you can connect with that person you guys can do that um and and work together so the one thing that i would say that is challenging about this is that when you find a speaking partner there needs to be a little bit of a direction for the conversation there needs to be some kind of topic something that you're going to discuss and engage in so it one person would really need to be responsible for trying to find that and facilitate that um but this is another way that you can try to practice your speaking uh let's see the next one the next suggestion that i have for you which is a little uh unorthodox but something else you could do and it doesn't have to be this direct you could start a youtube channel and i would say again go back to thinking about your interest it does not have to be a youtube channel about learning english you could be talking about something else something that you're passionate about the reason why i'm saying start a youtube channel is because then you are sitting down you're filming yourself you're trying to teach people something about something you're interested in you're trying to talk about something that you're interested in and you're still getting speaking practice even though you're talking to a camera i'm i'm talking to you right now even though technically i'm looking at a camera that's sitting on top of my computer but you get the idea you have that

um that talk and while you're doing this if you're talking about something you're interested in you're once again you're using the vocabulary that you know that's related to that topic you may be even thinking about words that oh like how i want to be able to explain it this way but i don't know how to do that and then once the the video is done once you turn off the camera you can go find out well like how would i explain this or what words do i need to use to convey this message so even if you sit down and film yourself talking about something you don't have to post it if you don't want other people to see that it's just getting you know being disciplined enough to sit down try to talk about something and actually record yourself in in front of a camera and i i think it's similar to like if you're giving a presentation at work or somewhere else when you do that you're basically giving a talk and you practice it again and again and again in order for it to be you know for it to be successful so think about starting a youtube channel you don't have to do it as your job or try to become famous

but it is one way that you could practice speaking english regularly once a week sharing something that you feel like you might be a bit of an expert in and you're doing that in english um then we have this one all right check out our speaking activities video lesson so we had interactive english this was mostly my wife and i we haven't done any lately and i want to do more before we did some interactive videos in which we were basically asking you to speak and and talk to us and i put them together in um a playlist that i can share with you and i want to see where is it and i will put that in the chat so these are all videos that are well you're watching a video but in the video i'm i'm going we're going to ask you to participate to actually speak out loud it's another way to get a little bit of practice let me throw that in the chat um speaking activity videos boom right there um check out that playlist i'll i'll put it down in the description as well but that is another way that you can get a little bit of speaking practice and in the future um we hope to we we plan to do some more because i think it's always good even if you're watching a video you can still get prompts from like in this case from me asking you to do something to talk about something even if it's just for a short period of time so just to review my my seven creative ways to kind of find ways to practice speaking get more practice here they are all seven of them together and yes uh i want to make one last comment about speak up if you would like to practice speaking with me this is the last call to join my speaking course again i will link it in the chat there's a link down below see some people who are in it enrolled like dr c uh um saw takayo in here some others um and again that is a great way for you to connect directly uh with me let me throw it in here one more time join speak up this is the last call because classes start next week all right and also if you have any questions um feel free questions just email me send me an email at info interactive englishvideos.com all right so some people if you have questions just shoot me an email i'll try to get back to you as soon as possible um and then i think after this i'm going to try to get i've been on a little bit of a crazy schedule when it comes to these live lessons i've done some traveling with family recently my parents were here visiting so it took a little bit of time off from the live lessons but i kind of want to get back into the groove of things and get back on the the regular uh the regular saturday schedule so i appreciate all of you guys joining me um uh look forward to speaking with you soon dr c um thank you for being here lolly vicky gustav good to see you gustav oh sorry to hear that the city is locked down um oh that's not good hoping i was hoping this whole pandemic was going to kind of ease and kind of ease its way out but we'll have to see what happens um thank you manuel striker nora murmah norris i don't want to improve my speaking well you can consider consider some of the suggestions that i have in this video hope it helps again you kind of need to think outside the box or you can talk to me join speak up um myrna uh let's see

shadan lolly takayo good to see you marcelo um the previous video awesome excellent louisa angela uh simple guy hope you guys enjoy the the rest of your weekend and for some of you i look forward to speaking to you

LESSON 99 OF 749

7 Grammar Mistakes You Should Definitely Correct

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's talk about seven glaring grammar mistakes that i hear english learners make in spoken english and i i say that these mistakes are glaring because they're they're simple mistakes they're pretty common and they're they're easily noticeable when i hear these mistakes it's easy to notice and the first thing i would say is that i would always encourage you to just keep speaking practice speaking don't worry about making mistakes but i think it is important to try and identify your mistakes understand them so that you can correct them in the future and that's really what this lesson is all about i want to quickly introduce myself my name is wes the channel is interactive english it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals so if that is what you would like to do please subscribe turn on notifications so that you will learn about future lessons the first mistake that i may hear an english learner make is they they may say something like i'm boring and in this case we're really talking about the difference between ed adjectives and ing adjectives and i think that most of the time learners make the mistake of using an ing adjective when they should use the ed and they would say something like i'm boring or i'm confusing or i'm exciting when they're trying to talk about the way they feel and for this one in order to correct it just follow the rule there is a grammar rule that you can follow and that is you should use ed adjectives when describing a feeling or an emotion and you should use ing adjectives when describing a thing a situation or a person's characteristic so it's very different to say well he's boring versus he's bored if he's bored then you're just saying well he's not interested in what's happening if you say he's boring well then you're talking about his personality so so just keep that in mind and try to follow the rule the next mistake that i may hear learners make is they they would say something like i am agree and in this case they're adding the verb to be when when it's not needed it's unnecessary and i think this could be the result of directly translating from from your native language to english so in spanish i think it's common that somebody would say estoy de acuerdo but if we're going to directly translate that into english it's really like you're saying i'm in agreement but i think most of the time people would just say i agree or i agree with you you can say i'm in agreement it's it's a little more formal but just just know that if you are translating from your language into english the grammar may not always be the same but when you are able to identify some of the mistakes that you may be making in conversation i think the best way to stop making these mistakes is to get more practice and a wonderful way to get more practice and learn from an english teacher is to use italki which is the sponsor of today's lesson so italki is where you can find teachers from all over the world and take lessons in over 150 languages and one great thing about italki is that the lessons are one-on-one which means that you get to focus on your learning goals you can learn at your own pace you can take classes anytime from anywhere and you'll get feedback from qualified professional teachers there is no subscription there is no commitment you just pay per lesson when you click on the link and sign up just choose an english teacher select a time and date that's convenient for you and then you are practicing and improving your english skills it's that simple so if you would like to develop your english skills check out italki you can click on that link and take advantage of this special offer let's get back to our lesson and talk more about some of those glaring grammar mistakes and well the next one is i may hear somebody say something like today was more hot than yesterday and in this case learners are just incorrectly using comparatives and superlatives and to be perfectly honest i also hear native speakers make these mistakes quite often i've made these mistakes sometimes i'm having a conversation and i will catch myself making a mistake and i realized that and would think wow i i just screwed that up so with with this one again there is a rule that you can follow so it's good to know the rule so in general with shorter one-syllable words you're going to use er to make the comparative hotter than spicier than and use e-s-t to make the superlative the happiest the strangest with bigger words use more to make the comparative uh more beautiful than more famous than and use most to make the superlative the the most successful the most exciting so what are some of the mistakes i i think most of the time they happen with with those shorter one-syllable words and somebody could just say like more hot today was more hot than yesterday they're using more with that short word instead of just saying hotter or maybe they they use more and the er and say something like more spicier my food was more spicier than yours instead of just saying spicier now even though i think i hear most mistakes being made with the comparative form it also happens with superlatives as well somebody may say most happy this is the most happy i've seen her in a long time instead of just saying happiest or again somebody may use most with the est like most strangest this is the most strangest day ever instead of just saying strangest so just follow the rules that's what i would encourage you to do and it's going to help you correct any of these mistakes the next mistake that i hear somebody could say something like i'm interested about learning english and they're just using the wrong preposition and i know prepositions there's many of them in on at overthrow and i it's a very common mistake but the one thing i would say about this is that even if you make a mistake and you use the wrong preposition it's not going to hurt somebody else's ability to understand what you're trying to say so even though um somebody may make a mistake and say i'm interested about learning english i still understand what they're trying to say they should be using the preposition in interested is an adjective that's often followed by the preposition in you're interested in something now what's the best way to to correct this and to improve and and not use the wrong preposition well i think that you first need to just get more exposure to the language get more speaking practice and i think it is especially important that you read because when you read your you you see the language you see the prepositions being used correctly and it's like you're learning them passively so that when it actually comes time to use these prepositions in conversation you're more likely to use them correctly so just spend a little more time reading the next mistake that i hear learners make is just saying things like he don't or she don't which is a simple subject-verb agreement mistake it's very common and i i understand that when when you're having a conversation you're you may be trying to speak quickly and express your thoughts and ideas and and not really focus too much on the grammar and that is what i would encourage you to do and i that's why i think it's it's easy to make a simple mistake like this and say he don't or she don't instead of he doesn't or she doesn't and i think when it comes to correcting this again i think you get more exposure to the language you get more practice listening and reading i think when it comes time to actually use the language and use the subject and the verb correctly you'll be able to do this naturally then i may hear learners say something like i enjoy to go and this is a mistake because you're following the verb enjoy with the infinitive it is a mistake when it comes to gerunds and infinitives and i know this can be a little confusing because some verbs are followed by uh the gerund i could ask you a question and say do you feel like watching another video lesson and you would follow feel like with the gerund feel like watching and there are other verbs that are you're going to follow with an infinitive i want to ask you a favor i want to ask and that favor would be to go ahead and hit the like button i'd really appreciate it and then there are other verbs that you can follow with either a gerund or an infinitive i told you i know it can be confusing so i could say you like learning english like learning and i like to teach you english like to teach so you can follow the verb like with either the gerund or infinitive and i think there are quite a few common verbs in which you could use either one the challenge is when you have some of those common verbs in which you either need to use only a gerund or an infinitive so i i understand why somebody may make the mistake and they say well i enjoy to go instead of i enjoy going and i think it makes it a little trickier because well like and enjoy those are verbs with a similar meaning so with like you can use either one but within joy you're going to follow it with the gerund if you search online there are lists that will tell you like well which verbs are followed by gerunds infinitives or even both i've even done a lesson on gerunds and infinitives i'll i'll put it up here somewhere so that that's what i would encourage you to do go online get some more practice it's going to help another mistake that i hear learners make would be something like this uh i went to dinner with my mother i ate the chicken and he ate a salad so

i'm talking about misgendering pronouns if learners are talking about a man i may hear them say she or her and if talking about a woman i may hear them say he or him and i think this can happen because of people's native language different languages treat pronouns differently this happens most often when when people are just trying to speak quickly and naturally and you're not focusing on the individual words but you're focusing on the ideas that you're trying to share and again that is what i would encourage you to do focus on sharing your ideas and not worry too much about the individual words so the best way to correct this and and just work this out of your system is to get more speaking practice i hope that with this lesson i've given you something to think about because as i said at the very beginning it's okay to make these mistakes but if you're able to identify them and understand them that's going to help you avoid making these mistakes in the future if you enjoyed this lesson please hit that like button as always thank you so much for watching and i will see you next time so long

LESSON 100 OF 749

7 Super-Useful Expressions with the Word BRIDGE

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today i want to teach you some very useful expressions that all have the word bridge that's coming up hey everyone my name is wes this is interactive english the channel that is all about trying to help you practice and improve your english skills and achieve your fluency goals and today i have well it's more of a vocabulary lesson for you because i want to talk to you about some very common and useful expressions that all have the word bridge and there of course there's a bridge right behind me and i hope that because you know what a bridge is you know what a bridge does it's going to help you more easily understand the meaning of these different expressions so the first one that i have for you is build bridges and what it means if somebody says well we need to build bridges they're talking about creating a friendly relationship with another person or a group of people or you could even use it in the context of countries every all these all the different countries around the world they need to work on building bridges and creating a friendly relationship because a bridge well it makes it easier for to go from one side to the other and in this case i think it makes it we're talking about making a situation easier for for perhaps people to work together they need to build bridges they need to create a friendly relationship it's just going to make life much easier we're here in aspen to build bridges to the future bridges made of ideas in times of crisis wise build bridges the foolish build barriers we must find a way then we have another expression which is is kind of the opposite of build bridges and that is burn bridges or you could say burn one's bridges and what this is talking about is you are ruining a relationship and especially ruining it so that you may not be able to repair this relationship in the future and and you burn bridges i think it's often used if somebody is perhaps leaving a job they're they're leaving some situation that they're very unhappy with and then they tell everyone this and they may burn bridges so that well you may not be able to repair that relationship in the future to burn bridges well he can wait till hell freezes over a wise man does not burn his bridges until he first knows he can park the walls old ashanti say we can remind him that if he persists he won't only be burning bridges in washington he risks burning down american democracy in the process then we have the expression to cross that bridge when we get there or people may use this expression uh a little differently you could say we'll cross that bridge later or we'll cross that bridge when the time comes all of them have the same meaning and that is that you are going to deal with a problem or an issue when it happens and you're not going to really worry about it in the present you're going to worry about it in the future when it happens or when it becomes a problem and you're going to cross that bridge when you get there so what do you say when we get to arrows or wherever it is you're going we shake hands and forget all this ever happened we'll cross that bridge when we get to it mike is not your brother no he is related to him okay can we cross that bridge when we get there if we get there we're there now then we have the expression a bridge too far and if you say that something is a bridge too far you're talking about a goal that is too ambitious it's yeah it's a little it's a little too difficult so for example you could say that learning english in one week just one week that's a that's a bridge too far it's a bit too ambitious look you know uh chilling out money to the accent or a little boy i kind of get it but this this is a bridge too far now he's opening up a restaurant the same night my line launches oh that is a bridge too far you found out that your best friend was going to be your son-in-law and it was a bridge too far you snapped then we have to bridge over something and what this means is you're talking about something that serves as the same function as a bridge it's kind of connecting two points for example i could say that the rocks bridge over the river in this case it's like the rocks are acting like a bridge to bridge over something then we have the expression water under the bridge this is one of my favorite expressions it means that a previous issue or problem has been resolved so if there was a problem and you solved the problem and you can move on you could tell somebody don't worry about it it's water under the bridge anyway thanks for having me back and sorry about the misunderstanding water under the bridge yeah i should have i should have come to you right away water under the bridge honey frank the tank is not coming back okay that part of me is over it's water into the bridge next is the expression to bridge the gap and this means to use something as a temporary fix so you're not completely solving the problem but it's it's just temporary and you are trying to bridge the gap her english is limited i've had to learn cantonese to bridge the gap i'm just trying to bridge the gap between what just happened and the fact that i'm going to be doing the rest of the presentation his holiness thought that the discovery could actually scientifically prove the existence of a divine power and begin to bridge the gap between science and religion so there you have it those are some common and useful expressions using the word bridge i hope that you learned some new expressions and if you did please hit that like button down below i don't think that's a bridge too far as always thank you guys so much for watching and i will see you next time

LESSON 101 OF 749

7 Super Useful Idioms to Improve Your Fluency

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

so right now we're gonna walk right out that door and i'm gonna find some super useful and common idioms to help you improve your fluency let's go [Music] everyone my name is wes this is interactive english which is the place that you want to be to practice and improve your english and today i am out and about i'm outside and i'm gonna try to find some different idioms to help you improve your overall fluency so let's just go let's go let's get out of here second i should probably take you with me and the camera here we go so here we have some bushes and the next uh idiom that i want to teach you is to beat around the bush and what it means if somebody is beating around in the bush it just means that let me have a seat real quick it means that somebody is not speaking directly or they're speaking indirectly so instead of saying what's on their mind instead of just saying it straightforward they beat around the bush and they kind of maybe give you clues and sometimes the reason you do this and you don't say things directly is because you're trying not to upset someone and i think this is very common in certain environments like work or home if you're talking to a colleague and you don't want to upset them and you have some news that you need to tell them you might beat around the bush or at home something happens and it's bad news and you don't want to tell your mother father husband wife you might uh beat around the bush instead of just coming right out and saying it directly so i think this is something that well i think a lot of us do it uh some of us i think are very direct and we don't beat around the bush but i think a common way this idiom is used is somebody is speaking indirectly and the other person would say stop beating around the bush just tell me tell me what you have to say stop beating around the bush please i will never beat around the bush like that come in have a seat like i'm not gonna beat around the bush here well you don't have to beat around the bush i know exactly what you're getting at another great idiom is to bark up the wrong tree and what this means is that you're trying to tell someone that they're making a mistake that whatever they're saying or doing is wrong and it's almost like you know what the the right answer is or what this person should be doing and they're making a mistake and you could tell them look you're barking up the wrong tree this is a mistake you shouldn't be barking up this tree you should be barking up that tree over there i've got my bdi on you you're parking up the wrong tree and there's heaven but who's that confucius boy have i been barking up the wrong tree so you can see right behind me here is the river and a river well a river will flow so the next idiom that i have for you is to go with the flow and what this means if you say well i'm gonna go with the flow it means that you are going to accept a situation and kind of relax

you're not going to try to to change things you're just you're just going to go with the flow so i think this is a a great idiom that can be used if somebody might be asking well what are you going to do you're going to enter a situation and what what's your reaction going to be and say well i'm just going to go with the flow i'm not going to try to control things i'm going to relax i'm going to see what everybody else is doing and i'm just going to accept what is going on i'm going to go with the flow when i'm traveling especially with a group of people and everybody maybe they want to do different things i like to just go with the flow but you know what we're not going gonna rush this time we're just gonna go with the float so you're on board now yeah i just go with the flow a good fighter needs to know how to improvise to go with the flow oh i don't care you know me i just go with the flow all right so let me show you this right here is a bud all right and that's going to help you understand the next idiom which is to nip something in the bud so if you think of like um well like a flower like we're looking at right now before a flower blossoms it it's in these the bud and then the bud will blossom so to nip something in the bud is to stop something at an early stage and you're stopping it before it becomes established and most of the time you're going to use it and say okay you know the situation you know what you need to stop and you might say we need to nip this in the bud we need to stop it we need to stop something at this early stage before it develops before it grows before it becomes a thing something that's established and then you cannot stop it anymore and you want to nip it in the bud i never should have let her do this maxim thinking in the first place going to nip this thing in the bud is going to make a public apology tomorrow on hardball yeah i i got to nip this in the bud this has catastrophe written all over it and you can expect the same thing from everyone in this office if you don't nip this whole employee of the month situation in the bud so the next one that i have for you it's actually an expression and that is to knock on wood and if somebody says this it means that they are just hoping for good luck to happen and you could say it to somebody else and just say you know knock on wood and actually i don't know this is real wood but you you will hear this quite often if you want to we'll wish someone luck or hope that they have good luck for a performance or a test or basically anything and you just say you know knock on wood or maybe you want to you're you want to give hope to yourself for something you're getting ready to do so i i wish for the best i hope i do well knock on wood actually this would be my first foray into the trial process i haven't had to go to court yet knock on wood let him see he's not the only one who built solid houses you know i think he'll be pretty impressed knock on wood so all along right here these are well these are rocks actually they're kind of like uh they're more like pebbles but it really has to do with the

the next uh idiom that i want to teach you and that is if you say that someone is living under a rock and if somebody says this if you hear it it means that if somebody has been living under a rock it means that this person is ignorant to something that is well known that there is some event something is happening that you think everybody should know about and if somebody says well i don't know about this thing then you could ask like whoa what's wrong with you have you been living under a rock so if you hear this expression it means that yeah they're referring to somebody who is ignorant to some news some information that is very well known that you think everybody should know about to be living under a rock they all work together god have you been living under a rock no david guetta have i been living under a rock yeah

that song is my jam i am the beastmaster from the movie beastmaster what rock have you been living under this what have you been living under a rock this is the new meme cat bretta taylor swift reporting so we're outside having a little bit of a picnic right now and you can see that this right here is grass uh there's there's quite a bit of it and i have it's it's actually not an idiom it's a phrase that i want to teach you and that is grassroots because i think this is a very useful uh phrase to know and especially it's something you may hear if you're listening to the news and what it means is it's talking about the the basic level of some activity or organization or even some cause and i think that's how people use it quite often if you're talking about some grassroots campaign and it's happening at the most basic level people getting informed people becoming motivated to create some change and you could say that their their campaign it's it's grassroots it's happening at that basic level so i wanted to teach you that phrase because well we're outside and there's plenty of grass the tea party presents itself is a grassroots movement uh which means it should be fiercely resistant to central control i understand that grassroots activism actually runs in your family so i opted for a more grass roots approach to get the word out so i'm not going to beat around the bush those are all the idioms i have for you this lesson and i hope you learned some new ones if you did please hit that like button we are now going to play in these fountains right here thank you guys so much for watching and i will see you next at time

LESSON 102 OF 749

7 Things Americans Don't Really Say & What You Should Say Instead

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Today I want to talk to you about seven things that native English speakers don't really say and what you should say instead. That's coming up (Intro) What's up everyone, my name is Wes. This is interactive English, which is all about helping you guys practice and improve your English skills today. I'm gonna tell you seven things that native English speakers don't really say but these are things that you may have also learned or have heard when you're studying English in the classroom. I want to tell you what these things are and what you should say instead. What's more common? What do people actually say in everyday conversation? The first one is it's just a greeting and that is how do you do?

How do you do? How do you do? This is something that it's a very old greeting. It's very formal. Nobody really uses it anymore. And if you do say this to another person, it's just gonna sound a little awkward. It's gonna sound a bit peculiar and they're gonna wonder like wow, I have not heard that greeting in an awful long time. So please stay away from how do you do and use one of these greetings instead. How's it going? How are you? If you want to be a little more informal just say you know, what's up. How's it going? Howdy. What's up? So you may be wondering how you can get away from these phrases that people don't really use and learn the vocabulary and expressions that native English speakers actually do say all the time that are very common in everyday English well. The way you can do that the best way to do that is just to get more and more

It's almost like it's become a part of English learning culture. And the response is I'm fine. Thank you and you? Just just don't say this, all right, this is not a proper response when somebody asks you you know How are you? First off it just sounds robotic. Second in English it's not common to thank somebody after they ask them. You know, how's it going go? I say Oh, how's it going and say oh, I'm good. Thanks for asking. It's just it's not something that happens. So this is not a common occurrence. We don't say it and neither should you so if somebody asks you how's it going? And you respond with I'm fine that that is perfectly okay, but it's also very common to just tell someone you know I'm good, or I'm great. Those are also very popular responses. Are you I'm fine. I'm fine. How are you? Good? And how are you? I'm great. I am great.

The next one is just a word and that is Shall. And this is just old English because Chou is just used with the subject pronouns I and we. Just just means will we're talking about the future. And the reason why I'm bringing this up is because you will still find this in certain English books today. Even though you are not really going to hear this in spoken English you could also use it as a suggestion with I or we like shall we leave a comment and. And instead of saying you shall I'd say you should because shall replaces should in that case so again. If you're talking about the future just use will or be going to don't worry about shall and if you're talking about Suggestion you should next is just another single word. And that is whom. Now whom has just been it's just been overtaken by who even though to be grammatically

Correct. Whom is still used. You will find it especially in written English but again we're talking about things that people say so the difference between Who and whom. Who is used in the subject position and whom is used in the object position? It's important. Is that is that we're having a baby is that it doesn't matter who came on through. That's right. The word whom is used most often with questions because when we're talking about the direct object and it's an unknown person. Chances are you're asking a question? For example, you could ask Whom should we ask for help? But again in spoken English? It's more common. People are just gonna say who should we ask for help or maybe?

Whom would you like to speak to and then if you really want to be grammatically correct? You shouldn't end a sentence with a preposition. You'd have to put it before whom and say to whom would you like to speak but this just sounds very old very very formal. People don't use it anymore. You're not gonna hear somebody say this they will just say Who would you like to speak to? The next thing that people don't often say but you might think they do take a look at these. These phrases right here and I will explain this. I am going to I do not like, okay. You're probably looking at this thing and whoa, wait people use this all the time but again. These are things that people don't often say that's the key word right now. Speaking and if we're talking about spoke in English instead of saying I am going to the park

Somebody is going to say I'm going to the park they're going to use the contraction I'm instead of I am instead of saying I do not like green vegetables I'd say I don't like green vegetables. Yes. That's true. I don't really like green vegetables. I know I should like them They're very healthy for you. But yes, I don't like green vegetables But my point is is this most of you you may be familiar with contractions and you've learned them before and that's great Just keep that in mind when you're speaking and you're having a conversation It is so much more common to use actions instead of the full form. It's also very useful for your listening comprehension Because you are going to hear Contractions as well and you should be able to identify these words quickly and not have to think much about them So contractions very very common This is what people say another phrase that people don't really say or at least it's a question and they don't ask this question as often as you might think and That is just how's the weather? So the reason why I chose this is because when you're learning English vocabulary, especially as a beginner Vocabulary about the weather is some of the first things that people learn you want to be able to talk about the weather but at the same time People don't often just have random conversations about the weather if there is extreme weather for example If it's snowing or it's really hot Then yeah, or it's raining a lot then people might talk more about the weather But this question when it comes to learning English is more about practicing English than it is about Practical English because I don't know when the last time I just ask somebody. How's the weather?

It's not something that you're gonna go out and you're gonna talk to people and meet people And you're just gonna start talking about the weather automatically. I said them. How's the weather in Hawaii? They said great It's in the 80s low humidity Doesn't speak English fluently. Thank you So keep that in mind the next time you meet somebody and you're having a conversation and you're thinking okay I don't know what to say next. So I'm gonna jump in there I'm gonna talk about the weather what you should do instead is talk about those things that are interesting to you What are you interested and what books are you interested in reading?

What activities are you interested in doing? If you talk about those things then perhaps you can find something in common With that other person and that's a more natural way to have a conversation than just talking about these artificial topics such as the weather then we have an idiom and that idiom is Raining cats and dogs now, don't get me wrong. I think it's great to learn idioms Especially for your comprehension because people use idioms all the time the reason why I'm putting this up there raining cats and dogs is because when you're learning English idioms, I think this is often one of the first idioms that people learn people learn idioms Like piece of cake something's easy or they might say Oh raining cats and dogs Because we love talking about the weather even though you would learn this idiom We don't really say it that much. I just say, you know, it's raining hard

I don't really say well it's raining cats and dogs. You may hear it from time to time You may hear it. If you're watching a TV show or movie said it was going to rain cats and dogs Wow, it is raining cats and dogs out there, but it's not one that people use often in spoken English So instead of saying it's raining cats and dogs Just sound a little more fluent like a native speaker and saying wow It's raining really hard now you know seven things that we do not say and what you should say instead and if you found this lesson useful I want you to write to me in the comments and let me know and Just ask me the question just say how's the weather? All right I want you to say how's the weather if you enjoyed this lesson and found it useful and I will respond to you and I

Will tell you what the weather is like and we will have that artificial Conversation that you may not have with other people in spoken English. Thank you guys so much for watching Don't forget to hit that like button down below. And as always I will see you next time

LESSON 103 OF 749

8 Common Writing Mistakes (AND HOW TO FIX THEM)

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Hello and welcome to today's writing lesson. We're going to switch things up a little bit and I want to talk to you about some common writing mistakes and see if you can identify them. But most importantly, I also want to talk about how you can fix these mistakes and really just try to avoid them all together. So the this is interactive English. So the one thing I definitely want you to do is participate in this lesson. So whether you're with me now live or you're watching this later, I want you to write your answers in the comments in the chat as we go through this and see if you can identify some of the the different mistakes that we're talking about. So let me just tell you what I want to do first off. So this uh well these are the directions.

So I am going to give you a sample writing and I want you to read the sentences. Read what I have for you and see if you can identify all three mistakes. So in each writing sample there are three mistakes. But not only that, I also want you to identify the common writing mistake. Like what is the overall problem? What is the overall issue? And that's really going to help you try to go through your own writing and tell you what to look for, some of the things to keep in mind to help you improve your writing and help you correct some of those mistakes. So, let's just jump in. I think as we go through this, you'll get what I'm talking about. So, the first one is this right here, this little writing sample.

So, I'll read this as is. I'll give you a moment to think about what are some of the mistakes. write them in the chat and then we'll talk about the overall problem. So here is the first writing sample. Neither John nor Mary are at school today. John is a good friend who always asks for help. I am happy to give my friend a hand from time to time. However, Mary usually tells me that he don't need my help and should do his own work. So, in this in these sentences right here, there are three mistakes. And I want you to think about, well, what are the mistakes? And all of all of these mistakes are similar. And they would fall under the same category, if you will. And that's what I want you to think about. And that's this is the thing that I want one of the things that I want you to look for if you're going over and looking through your own writing whether it's an email or you're writing a letter uh whatever it may be and something to check for. So yes says okay I think the one thing that stands out which you can probably see is that he don't but there are some other mistakes as well. Yes, Vinda, Julia. Excellent. So, let me show you all three and we'll talk about the general well topic, the category. So, what I'm really referring to, the three mistakes and what they have in common is that they all deal with subjectverb agreement. So, the first sentence, there's a first mistake, neither John nor Mary is at school today. When you're talking about that phrase neither or nor, if we we have a singular subject, in which case John is singular, Mary is singular, we're going to use a singular verb.

Neither John nor Mary is at school today. And if it were a plural subject, like neither children nor adults, then you could use that plural verb. The next sentence, John is a good friend of mine who always asks for help. We need that s at the end. So who is referring to John in this case again it's singular John asks who asked and then down there at the bottom however Mary usually tells me that he don't. This is a common mistake that I I see in writing but also in spoken English when people want to use that negative and they're talking about he or she and I'll hear people go to and and use don't instead of doesn't. So, just something to keep in mind. But the first common mistake that I often see when it comes to writing is just subjectverb agreement. Do the does the subject agree with the verb? And that's something you should look through as you go through your writing to make sure that they do agree. The next one, okay, excellent. I think you guys, a lot of you got that one. Perfect. The next little writing sample that I have for you is this. Please let me know when you're ready to talk. I think there is much that we need to discuss. It's been a difficult time for both of us. To be honest, I don't know if I can forgive you for your many mistakes. Okay? So, if you're just listening to to that and you're just listening to me say this, you might think, "Well, I don't I don't think there were any mistakes." But we're talking about writing and there are three mistakes in this little short passage right here. And they all have they all have one thing in common. So what what do you think? Can you find if you can find the first one or the second one or the third one? It doesn't matter.

Then I think it'll help you figure out the others as well. So I see excellent some good answers to good to see you Stacy. Uh, Anoa. Yes. All right. So, the three mistakes all have to do with contractions versus possessives. So, we're talking about these are uh homonyms. These are words that they sound the same, but they have a different meaning. You're the contracted form or you're the possessive form or it's the contracted form or it's the possessive. So, in that first sentence, please let me know when you are ready to talk. You're ready to talk. We need that apostrophe. And this is again, this is I think as you look through this, if you're able to identify it, that that's perfect. But you wouldn't believe again if you're checking through your own writing, you might find some of these slight mistakes. I think there is um much that we need to discuss. It's it has been a difficult time for both of us. Again, we need that apostrophe. So, its with an apostrophe can there are two contracted forms. It could mean it is or it could mean it has. You could use its for either one. But in this case, you see that past participle been. So, that tells you right there there that we're talking about the present perfect tense. It's been a difficult time for both of us. And then that last sentence, uh, to be honest, I don't know if I can forgive you for your many mistakes. In this case, we're talking about your, the possessive form. Yo, you r. And one thing I do want to mention is that if you would like to get the lesson notes, if you're part of the email community already, I will send them to you. You can check your inbox. you'll probably see them there. But if not and you want to get these lesson notes, I'll just throw that link in there. There's also a link down in the description. So, let's look at our first pro tip. Okay, so if you are proofreading and you're trying to avoid some of the mistakes that I just talked about, subjectverb agreement, contraction, contractions versus possessives, one thing that you can do is read backwards. Now, when I say read backwards, you let's say you write your email. I don't want you to start at the beginning, which is where naturally people start when they're proofreading. I want you to go to the very last sentence, read that sentence, look for any grammar mistakes, spelling mistakes, and then when you're done, move to the next the second to last sentence. And the reason for this is because when you're writing, you're you're following a logical progression.

You're moving from one idea to the next. You want to make sure that things are in order. You want to make sure that your writing makes sense. But in this case, we're talking about trying to find grammar mistakes. If you read from the beginning, then you start thinking about your ideas and what you're saying instead of just focusing on the grammar. So when you read backwards, what's what this helps you do is isolate the sentence so that you can only focus on grammar, spelling, punctuation, and you're not really thinking about the substance of what you're writing. You're not thinking about your ideas or your support or your points or your arguments. You're just focusing on the sentence and looking for some of those grammar mistakes. And that's a good way to find those subject verb agreement uh mistakes as well as like I just pointed out those contractions and the possessives. So, the next little writing sample. All right. Right here. What do you think? I never really check weather forecast. Luckily, a friend told me it was going to rain tomorrow. I made sure to bring a umbrella when our group of friends traveled to the Yoseite National Park. There are three mistakes. They're all the same, but once again, the they have this in common. And I I think this is good if you guys are able to point these out. And one thing that I think is also a challenge when you're looking at someone else's writing, it can be a little easier when you're going back through your own writing. It it's actually a little more challenging.

So the three mistakes in this sample right here, they all have to do with articles, as some of you just pointed out. Anowit Sema. So here are the the mistakes. It's just we're talking about article misuse. And when I say articles, I'm talking about a and the or just no article and not using an article. So I never really check uh the weather forecast. In this case, you're talking about something that you know you usually do. I never really check the weather forecast. You could use the article a in this case, but mostly when talking about the weather, you're referring to the specific weather where you are. So, I think it's preferable to use the I never really check the weather forecast. Luckily, a friend told me it was going to rain tomorrow. I made sure to bring an umbrella. An umbrella. All right, we're going to use that article an instead of a an umbrella. when our group of friends travel um travel to not the Yosemane National Park. Uh it should be no article uh Yusede National Park and I did realize somebody had pointed out again Stacy good call travel uh it should not be in the past. So that was another that was another bonus writing mistake that I made. So it should be I I made sure to bring an umbrella. Um, uh, oh, actually, no, cuz we're talking about the the past tense. Sorry. No, it should be. I made sure to bring an umbrella when our group of friends traveled to Yusede National Park. So, luckily, I again, actually, now that I think about it, this this is well, I don't want to give it away, but I' I've made some other mistakes with the verbs in this, which I will point out in just a second. But really, I wanted to focus on the articles in this case. And that last one, when talking about no article, we're talking about a national park, we don't use an article before that. Now, there are rules that you can follow when it comes to using a and and the, especially 'the', and I wouldn't say that you necessarily need to memorize these rules. And I'll get to the tip in just a moment to help you figure this out. But the next one, so this is talking about article misuse. Here's the next sample. And I apologize for those verb mistakes that I made in the last one. I maybe that was a little confusing, but we'll we'll get to that in just a moment. So the next one, see if you can find the three mistakes. He spent much of his time studying finance because he was interested with economics. Perhaps it came naturally because he was great in math. So what mistake what are the mistakes in this writing sample and you know what is the category what category of mistakes am I referring to and again if you find one I think it will be easier to find the other three as well. All right. So, let me know. Write your answers in the chat, in the comments. I see some of you already pointed out one of those uh mistakes in that first sentence. Excellent. So, Samasul New, sorry if I mispronounced names. I just want to give a couple shoutouts. Uh Anna, uh Lai, excellent. Good to see you. So what I'm referring to the mistakes the overall category is just the wrong preposition. So that first sentence, he spent much of his time studying finance because he was interested in economics. If you're using that adjective interested, you're going to say you're interested in something. Perhaps it came naturally because he was great at math. Great at something.

You're good at something. And then finally he understood that people's spending habits depended not depended to it depended on their income. So something depends on something else. One thing that I'll say with these prepositions which can be tricky is that sometimes more than one preposition may be used. At times it may alter the meaning a little bit and other times they they may just be used interchangeably. The reason why I'm pointing this now out now is because I want you to look at that phrase great at math. And again, I think in just general conversation, colloquial speech, you may hear someone use the preposition in when talking about a subject. Oh, he's great in math. But if you want a point of reference and I wanted to share this site with you and I've talked about it before, Engram Viewer, this is a good way to try to understand the language and understand which words or phrases are more commonly used. And really, I just want you to look at the visual graph.

You could I could put in those phrases good at math, good in math. And looking at the graph right there, you can see that it's a lot more frequent that that good at math is more frequently used. And really engram viewer is a source that pulls different writing from the internet whether it's news articles, academic articles, blogs, websites, and it just is a good reference for trying to understand well which which one is more commonly used. So in this case you can see good at math is the way to go. So the pro tip that I have for you is to read daily. And this is just a habit that you should really get into. So reading and writing are just so closely linked together. But the value of reading every day, if you can make that a habit, is that you're just going to passively learn this information and you're going to absorb the grammar, the syntax, the style, the punctuation. And in case you're unfamiliar with syntax, that's really just referring to the order that words are used. So like if you have an adverb, is it going to go at the beginning or are people likely going to use it at the end? or where does that preposition phrase go? That is syntax. And you're not specifically focusing on uh again the grammar when you're reading. You're just absorbing this information. So you're reading about well what articles are used with which nouns. Are you using a and or the? Which prepositions are going to typically follow certain nouns, adjectives, verbs? and you just absorb this information passively. So definitely if you're not doing it now, I I would highly recommend just getting in the habit of reading a little bit each and every day. The other benefit right down here is that it it will expose you to a variety of writing styles and that is valuable because it's going to help you find your own voice when you're writing because we're not always writing the same thing. You might be writing a formal letter. you might be writing a casual email. So, it's good to get that exposure. The next one that I have for you, all right, so let's look at some more mistakes. Okay, so every day I get up and go for a run. I usually took the same route. Yesterday, however, I decide to go jogging in the hills nearby. I had never been there before. I really enjoy seeing the beautiful forest. Perhaps I will do it again tomorrow. So, this actually goes back to what I was talking about before when I feel like in that one sample number three, I had made a mistake. And again, the other thing is making mistakes. It's it's natural. It's going to happen. And I I think it is especially difficult when you are proofreading your own writing. When other people are doing it, I think it can be a little easier and you're able to spot some of those things mistakes because they're not your words. So the

Yes. Excellent. Uh Ana, Kira, perfect. Stacy, Sonia, very nice. And Vicki Gustavana, welcome. Good to see you. We're talking about changing tenses. And even in that sample before, I made a mistake in terms of talking about the future and then kind of switching to the past. And this is a mistake that people not only make in writing, even whether you're an English learner or a native speaker. It's a mistake that people make in spoken English as well when they're telling a story. So, every day we're talking about a routine, a habit. We're going to use the present simple. I go for a I get up and go for a run. We're continuing with the present simple in that next sentence talking about what you usually do.

at the moment. And those are indicators as to which verb tense you should be using. Then here is sample number six. After going to the dentist, I learned that I have three cavities. The dentist said, "You need to take better care of your teeth." He requested that I floss regularly and I should come in for a cleaning once every six months. Okay. So, even as I was reading that, hopefully just listening to it, you might think that it sounded a little off and there was a reason for that. What do you think? Uh well, what are the mistakes? And it is the same mistake that you will find. And again, it helps you identify this category.

So, just looking at this, you might think, well, there's no maybe no mistakes with the the verb tenses or um I'll I'll give you a hint. It's a punctuation mistake. So, what is the problem with the punctuation in this writing sample? Again, it's the same mistake. If you if you said punctuation, cojo Sonia, perfect. Excellent. the mistake. Perfect. Albert, Dena, we're talking about comma misuse. So, comma misuse could be you're using a comma when you shouldn't. Perhaps you're using a full stop. But in all of these example, these mistakes right here, I should have used a comma, but I didn't. After I go to the dentist, I learn that I have three cavities.

after I go to the dentist. That is my or after going to the dentist. That is my adverb phrase. When it comes before the independent clause, you need a comma to separate those. The next one, the dentist said, and this is in quotes, you need to take better care of your teeth. This is feel like this is what my dentist would say says to me when I go there. Uh, so again, the dentist said, said is that reporting verb before you said you give that direct quote, those quotations, you need a comma there. The dentist said, comma, you need to take better care of your teeth. He requested that I floss regularly, and I should come in for a cleaning once every six months. That is a compound sentence. you have two two independent clauses joined by that conjunction and often they're joined by and or but so in this case and but you need a comma before that conjunction after regularly.

So I think you guys did a pretty good job with that one and identifying it. And the pro tip that I have for you in order to try to avoid making some of these punctuation mistakes, whether it's a comma and full stop, is to read out loud. So when you read out loud, even if you're you're reading something like a story or an article, when you read out loud, you're practicing the rhythm and flow of the language. Because if you're reading an article and you see a comma, well then you should take a slight pause. If there's a full stop, it should be a longer pause. And the same goes if you're reading your own writing out loud. You're expressing and voicing it.

And it may, depending on how it sounds to you, it could indicate that you need some sort of punctuation such as a comma. And you may need that pause. The other thing it could help you do is if you just read through it and you don't take a breath, well then that may indicate that you have a run-on sentence. And a run-on sentence is when you need to break things up and you probably need a full stop. Maybe you need to use a comma or two. So reading out loud can help you try to capture that rhythm and flow and is a good indicator as to whether or not you may need to add some punctuation to your writing or even take it away. So reading out loud another good proofreading uh like best practices when you're going through your writing to make sure that everything is okay. Then sample seven writing mistakes. So what what do you think? And this I don't think well we'll see how easy or difficult it is for you. Her colleague was late to the meeting. She was attempting to purchase some time in hopes that he would arrive. Clearly, she was not prepared to make the presentation on her own. This would certainly have a negative effect on their upcoming work evaluations. Think about the context, the situation. Um, this woman is waiting, she's at this meeting waiting for her colleague. But there are three mistakes in there. And again, I want you to think about the overall category, not just the mistakes. So, identify the mistakes and then think about, well, what category would this fall under? Let me know. Let me know in the chat, in the comments. And maybe some of this, some of these may be a little more difficult than others, but I think if you find one, you can start searching for those others.

So, I see some good answers. Sonia emit. Perfect. You gave some those are those are two uh of the examples when looking at this writing sample. So the three mistakes are right here. All right. We're talking about the wrong word. You're just using the wrong word. A lot of times this happens with collocations. Words that are frequently used together. And people you have collocations like a verb that's often used with this noun. and and people may just use the wrong verb. So the first mistake uh in that second sentence, she was attempting instead of purchasing sometime, we're talking about the phrase to buy sometime and buy and purchase. They're generally synonyms, but in this case you it's a fixed phrase to buy time, which means to delay or you're trying to avoid doing something. and you're trying to buy some time. So that's why I said think about the situation. She's in this meeting. She's trying to buy time because her colleague's not there. Clearly, she was

But in this context, this specific context, she's at the meeting, like I think it's obvious that in this case, they have to give the presentation. They are presenting. So I would say that give is preferable in this context. But you uh as well prepared to give the presentation or do the presentation. And again, it's it makes sense why some of these simple mistakes are made when it comes to these collocations. It can be a little confusing. And then at the end there, this would certainly have a negative effect. Effect with an e is a noun. So that is what we need there. And there a negative effect with an e. A negative well effect with an a. This is a verb to affect something starts with an a. So effect and effect there commonly confused words different parts of speech.

The next one let me know uh let me know what you think this uh I I always say oh maybe it's going to be a little more challenging but then you guys nail it. See if you can find all three mistakes. I think one of them will definitely be easy to spot. So, I'll I'll read it for you. Dear sir or madam, I'm writing to let you know that I submitted the pro proposal in the nick of time. The project should be a piece of cake. So, I believe it will be completed within a week. My team is going to work hard to make sure the project is finished in a timely manner.

Okay. What three mistakes do you see with this writing sample right here? As I said, one I think is pretty obvious and hopefully maybe that'll help you identify the other two. If I want to give you a little bit of a hint, think about that very first line, dear sir or madam. What is that telling you? if somebody begins a letter or an email, dear sir or madam, and then that should help you find those other mistakes. So, Anat Julia, excellent. The one mistake I think is very clear. The others may be a little more difficult to to pick out. So, here are the mistakes that in the category that I was going for.

Dear sir or madam should tell you that this is a formal message. It is either a formal letter or it is a formal email. And because of that you really should avoid using informal language. So I see. All right. Perfect. People got some Stacy Li. Nice. You nailed it. Dear sir or madam, this is a formal message, a formal email. I'm writing to let you know that I submitted the proposal in the nick of time is an idiom. And if you're writing in in a formal uh email or letter, I would recommend avoiding idioms altogether. They're more casual. So instead of you you submitted the proposal in the nick of time, I submitted the proposal before the deadline. There are other phrases that you could use to finish that sentence, but I would get rid of in the nick of time. The project should be a piece of cake. Once again, piece of cake is an idiom. I would avoid it if you're writing something that's a little more formal. Uh, an academic paper or like I said, something for work. So, instead of a piece of cake, maybe you could use simple and straightforward or just one of those. The project should be straightforward. So I believe it will be completed within a week. And then that last sentence, my team is gonna instead of use writing the reduction, you need to spell out the full form. Going to my team is going to work hard to make sure the project is finished in a timely manner. Now, even if I'm reading this and I see going to the full form, in my mind, I I saying gonna I'm changing that to the reduction. My team is going to work hard to make sure the project is finished on time, but I would certainly avoid writing reductions.

Sometimes I I know I say that and sometimes you may see it if somebody's writing a text message or perhaps like song lyrics and you see people spell out these reductions. It's very informal. But the problem that I notice is that when people start writing these reductions, it then carries over into more formal writing which can look really unprofessional. If it's something for work or school, you definitely want to avoid using those reductions. So, just keep that in mind, this informal language. And the pro tip is just to know your audience. All right? Keep that in mind before you start writing. Who is it that is going to be reading your writing? And knowing your audience, it has several different benefits. It's going to help you decide the information that should and should not be included.

It's also going to help you arrange that information and your order, the order of your ideas. And then that last part right down there, which is more connected to what we were just talking about, the wrong word or informal language. It's going to help you determine the tone and structure of your writing. Should this be a little more formal and using those formal words or is it just casual? It's friendly. You're writing uh a text message to your friend. And in that case, you could just write it as though you're having uh a spoken conversation. It can be very informal. So, just know your audience and know the situation that that you're in and that you're writing. So, here is a little bit of review. some of the common writing mistakes that I tend to find when I'm reading other people's um papers or essays or letters. And I just want you to keep these things in mind. And as you're proofreading, these are the things that I want you to look out for and the mistakes that you're going to find because I know that people will go through and they'll just read it and see if they can find anything. I would recommend going through your writing, proofreading it, and only looking for subjectverb agreement. Go read backwards. Go through, see if you can make sure all those subjects agree with those verbs. And go through each one. Proofread it a please, please, please, please always try to proofread your writing. I again, you're going to proofread, you're still going to make mistakes. I go through these slides probably about three or four times and even before as you saw as I was looking through that one writing sample, there was still a mistake. There was a mistake with those changing verb tenses. So, it's really difficult, especially if you're reading your own writing to track down all of the mistakes. But one problem that I notice is that people will write something and they they tend not to proofread at all. And I would definitely recommend it whether you're writing an email or even just uh an informal letter. It's just a good habit to get into and keep in mind those pro tips. So, thank you. Uh it's good seeing you, Tayo, uh Lai, Julia, Simron, Kevser, Diego. Uh glad that you were able to join me today. Again, if you'd like to get the lesson notes, check out that link down below in the description. I hope that you all have a wonderful day and I will see you next time. So,

LESSON 104 OF 749

8 Types of NOUNS | Improve Your Grammar

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello everyone welcome to today's lesson my name is Wes this is interactive English and if this happens to be your first time watching one of our video lessons the channel it's all about trying to help you practice and improve your English skills whether it is vocabulary pronunciation grammar and today is more it's a grammar lesson because what we're going to talk about in today's lesson is nouns I'm gonna talk to you about noun types because when you think of nouns we can group them into different categories and that's going to help you well not just understand these words a little bit better but it's also going to help you understand a little bit of the grammar as well so really the importance of today's lesson is really to help you with your writing it's going to help you with your spelling because that is definitely that's part of writing it's going to help you with your grammar because some of these nouns we use them with specific words or phrases and it's also going to help you with your vocabulary so we're gonna cover a wide variety in today's lesson that I think is relevant and it I really hope that it helps you so I just want to give a quick little hello today hello Aidan Olivia or a celinda Kareem Angela gertrudis dreary sleepwalker sorry if i mispronounce names as we go through this again i encourage you to participate i'm going to ask you some questions try to throw some answers down in the chat and share with us i don't think i don't think this will be too difficult in terms of the grammar because when you start learning english nouns well that's that's some of the first things that you learn so let's just start out basically what is a noun you should know that the the meaning of a noun is just it's talking about a person a place or a thing a person place or thing when we say that we're going to talk about nouns that is what it describes these are also content words and when I say content words I'm talking about words that have meaning and what they really do is they help you they help you create a picture up here in your mind so for example if I just tell you a sentence I'm gonna give you the sentence I want you to put a picture up here in your mind and I could say something like the turtle is on the grass okay the turtle is on the grass

now in that sentence I use two different nouns people place or thing I had talked about turtle and I talked about grass and those nouns those are the words that really help give meaning and that's what you're able to picture now there are many different parts of speech that can be content words so nouns can be content words adjectives can also be content words because you you have this picture in your mind the turtle is on the grass now let me add a Content word to that and adjectives and if I said the the purple turtle is on the grass did your picture change so probably now you're picturing something that looks just like this you're the before probably you were thinking of a green turtle but I added that extra information I added that adjective and that changed the picture the purple turtle is on the grass so that that's what I mean when I say nouns are content words because they're really going to help your your comprehension and you'll be able to put your picture in your mind you'll be able to listen to and follow a conversation much easier than you would because basically nouns are they are used as the subjects and objects of sentences and if we take those away if we don't have any subjects or objects in our sentence then we are basically left with nothing so it is very important to understand nouns how we use them and that's what we're going to talk about is the different groups that we can put these nouns into to help us understand them a little easier and the first group of nouns that I want to discuss with you are common and proper nouns so if you take any noun a person place or thing and we're gonna separate them into either common or proper nouns if we're talking about common nouns we're talking about general people places or things if we're talking about proper nouns we're talking about specific people places or things so I'm gonna throw out some words I just want you to tell me is it a proper noun or is it a common noun so if I say the word book

okay what do you think is that a common noun or a proper noun or maybe I say the word Street common or proper noun what do you think or I could throw out the word teacher common noun or proper noun so I hope that when I talked about all of those you should have said those are all common nouns they're very general all right the book Street teacher those are general nouns you can picture it in your mind but it's not very specific so yes excellent a great job Mary minty dosa Linda Carlo Gladys excellent those are now what if I change it let's make it more specific so these are proper nouns if I were to say instead of book if I were to say Harry Potter or maybe I say Main Street or even my name Wes so those would all be examples of common now common and proper nouns so here is just this little chart that I have for you now the main reason why you

important to be able to distinguish both of all of these and it when you understand all of this again it's gonna help with your writing it's gonna help your grammar your vocabulary your comprehension basically everything so when we're talking about a singular noun versus plural singular is just talking about one person place or thing if we're talking about plural then we're talking about more than one person place or thing so singular versus plural the reason why I say this is important not just with well your your writing but as well as with your speaking because the one thing that you guys do you need to remember and be aware of because this is when many I think learners make simple mistakes if you're talking about a singular noun you need to use a singular verb if you're talking about a plural noun then you need to use a plural verb so for example if I say

let's take the the well let me let me give you some example to show you a chart but just keep that in mind because sometimes when we're talking about nouns singular and plural and then you talk about the verb the subject and the verb need to agree and I told you nouns are often used as the subjects of the sentence so make sure that the subject is going to agree the verb that is the most important thing but again just to give you some basics we're talking about this here is a singular chart with some singular singular nouns and plural nouns this is a good example of spelling as to why you need to learn the singular and plural because there are different rules so for example you have chair and the plural would be chairs common most often you're just going to add the s to the noun in order to make it plural chair chairs now box boxes if it ends with an X then you're going to add es alright Fox Fox's knife if the word ends with an Fe or even an F then you're going to make it plural you're gonna add ves so again this is important for your spelling to understand the difference between these singular nouns and these plural nouns city if it ends with that Y then the rule is IES and quiz this is one of those rare ones in which you would need to double the final consonant and then add es so singular versus plural the best way that I think if you want to kind of not not just really have to memorize these but if as long as you're reading if you are reading a little bit each and every day like you're seeing this now that's just going to help you remember it later on when you need to write an email or a story and you're going to remember the correct spelling

so the one thing that I did want to test you on a little bit and see what your skill is is when we're talking about irregular plural nouns so some nouns do not follow the normal rule of just adding an S or an es or an IE some nouns don't follow that rule so these are all irregular plural nouns so the first one is child if we're talking about one child alright what is the plural form of child write it in the chat write it in the comments again this is just a little bit of practice a little bit I of review for many of you which i think is always great so the the plural of child yes excellent Mikael Carlo Afrin children all right

the next one is tooth alright if you go to the dentist and you know you're not just talking about one tooth what if you're talking about many or several or a few what what is the the plural of tooth what do you think so again I hope that you said it's always there's a little delay so I don't think I see this in real time because I'm sure many of you know what the answer is but the correct answer is teeth yes the hair minty and remember spelling te ETH one tooth many teeth all right that's why they say you need to brush your teeth for these I think somebody had mentioned you do kind of need to just memorize these irregular plural nouns there's not I don't think there's a ton of them but there are some and again the more you read and you actually see them being used that's gonna help you remember so the plural of sheep alright so this is getting a little trickier if we're talking about one just one sheep or maybe we're talking about many yes named AB dotty sheep sheep and sheep that is whether it's singular or plural it's both the same one sheep there are many sheep same with other irregular plural nouns like deer if you're talking about one deer or many deer it's the same scissors okay I'm trying to point out some different some different irregular plural nouns because sometimes they change like children teeth some of them stay the same as the singular noun like sheep sheep and sheep deer deer scissors alright this is actually a plural noun it does not really have singular form so the thing that you need to remember scissors it's always going to be used with a plural noun so excellent Olivia Harriet Sajjad Martha trying to throw some different different names every now and then scissors the plural again is scissors and what there are several words like whether you're thinking of these are typically words that already end with an S and you're talking about a pair it's basically two pairs that have come together to make one one object for example scissors pants glasses all right those are already those are nouns that are already in their plural form but you're going to say glasses are the glasses are because the subject needs to agree with the verb now the last one's a little trickier all right so I think commonly all right the plural form of fish if you're talking about there's one fish in the fish tank but you could also say there are there's many fish in the fish tank but there are there there are instances when you could say fishes now hopefully maybe this is something new for you today if you're talking about fish in the plural you're really talking about just any fish the number of fish that are in there if somebody says fishes

black because I'm using are because I'm using that plural verb then you would recognize and you'd understand okay the subject is also plural I'm talking about more than one sheep so in a case like that where you have the singular and plural noun are both the same you really need to listen for the verb the Sheep is is talking about one the sheep are that is talking about two or more so keep that in mind excellent question so let's look at the the next part so we've talked about some of these different verbs we've talked about common and proper nouns we've talked about singular and plural now let's move into a little more challenging part and that is count vs. non count nouns so again if we're talking about nouns people places things we can separate them into these two categories right here is it a count noun or is it a non count noun so if we're talking about a count noun then we're just talking about things that we can count one two three four five six seven eight nine ten and in that case the plural you'll be able you can add an S to it a non-count noun is just it refers to things items that you cannot count you cannot count these things you cannot add an S in that case there is no plural form you're not going to be able to add an S so let me look at this so right here here what okay this is water alright this is a good example of a non now we can't count the different pieces Oh in that case you're always going to use water with a singular verb the water is the water is so that is one difference between these count and non-count nouns let's again let me give you some examples I just want to I'm gonna tell you some nouns and I just want you to tell me is it count or non count so we talked about water alright that is a non-count noun if you can think of any countable or non count nouns throw them down in the chat all right somebody Rosalinda said you can count apples you can add an S that's a great example apples it's countable the hair milk perfect milk is a non count noun that you cannot use it in a plural form let's see kareem mentioned two bottles of water so if you take this and you say bottles that is what's called a quantifier and you are able to then count it because bottles is countable so bottles of water cartons of milk so let me let me show you the what I wanted to show you most importantly with these is really the different words and phrases that you're going to use this with so for example oh I want to say le Lai says people or people so for example remember people is the plural form alright this is it's another irregular verb if we're just talking about one singular person one person many people so people again we're talking that is an irregular form let's look at where is it boom right here so really what I wanted to point out with some of these and perhaps in the future because this it's a lot of information to take in and I'm kind of really giving you a surface level approach to all of these different types of nouns maybe in the future we will just do a lesson on count and non-count nouns but what I wanted to show you was some of the words that you're going to use with count and non-count so for example too many we're going to use many with countable things too many apples too many too many chairs too many students if we're talking about non count items then you would use much so those are words that I think again it's great to know this is a great way to build your vocabulary improve your grammar knowing when to use many and when to use much too much water too much milk too much sugar somebody had mentioned sugar as yes that's another great example of a non-count noun perfect so the next one if we're talking about I tried to use ones that are opposite of each other if you say a large number of we're talking about count items a large number of a large number of tables all right there's a large number of can't think of anything right now a large number of something or a small number of if we're talking about a number of we're talking about countable things if we're talking about in a mount that is going to be used with non counts a small amount of water a small amount of sugar a large amount of sugar the next one this is this is an important one and I say this because I think often people make mistakes even me I make a lot of mistakes with this we use or not not this one the next one so a few is talking about count items a little would be talking about non count items so there are there are just a few [Music] there are just a few cars on the street all right or a little something all right there's just a little a little rain because again we're talking about water in that case a little rain what if this one is the confusing one fewer and less so fewer we use with count nouns less with non count nouns and what I wanted to do is show you a great example of you know people make mistake with people often make mistakes with this so look at that picture right there and this is a this is something that I I make mistakes with all the time I think often people have a natural tendency to use less instead of fewer so in the example right here again this is a real picture in a grocery store in probably the United States or Australia somewhere and it's talking about an express lane at the grocery store ten items or less this is a common common thing that you would see on a sign but items remember you add that s it is a plural noun it is countable ten items it should say ten items or fewer that is that is grammatically correct ten items or fewer but this is a great example of I think a common mistake that many people make even native speakers and I I said I'm guilty of this all the time if we we talked about people it is an irregular plural noun you can count people however sometimes I would catch myself and I would say less people when I should say great examples again count or non count alright let's look at the next part so we've talked about now we've talked about this is our fourth category alright and the fourth category is going to be talking about either concrete or abstract nouns so again if we're talking about people places or things we can separate them into these two categories right here concrete nouns abstract now if anything I'll you can learn the meaning of these words if you're talking about concrete it basically the meaning is something that is real that's easy to understand specifically we're talking about the five senses all right sight smell taste sound or hearing as well as weight what's the other one sight sound smell taste touch alright you're touching it so something that is real and again you can use this as an adjective somebody might say give me a concrete example it's basically saying give me an example something that's real that I can understand that you can perceive by using the five senses if something is abstract it's not something that you know using your five senses so for an example like some type of an idea would be something that's abstract you can't smell some idea you can't taste it you can't touch it so that is an example of an abstract noun now the reason why let's look over here one of the reasons why this is important to kind of be able to identify them is because I have my chart right here when we're talking about these concrete and abstract nouns you can use either indefinite or definite article articles with these so you could start a sentence I told you nouns can be the subject of a sentence and I could talk about a spice or the spice if you're talking about abstract nouns they can be used as the subject of the sentence with no article so this is a good example of why you would want to classify and understand is it a concrete noun isn't an abstract noun so if you're talking about using this as the subject of the sentence you do not need to put an article there so I'd say like something like a statement love is blind that that is an example love is an abstract noun so I have these examples things that you can taste if you want throw some more examples down there I'll try to read them out give me some examples of concrete or abstract nouns so spice that's something you can taste concrete now snow you can see snow so that would be again another example concrete noun thunder you can hear thunder cologne smell Cologne people put that on or lump if you don't know what a lump is it's kind of talking about like a little bump alright and you could say it's a lump so you could say well there's a lump on your skin or maybe you're talking about a pillow a pillow has some lumps it's not very comfortable it's something you can touch now abstract we're talking about feelings

such as love you could talk about the state of something chaos I always think of a little finger from Game of Thrones anybody who's a game of Thrones fan out there and he would say that famous line chaos is a ladder that when things are completely chaotic it's easy to climb chaos is a ladder creativity if you're talking about qualities that is abstract we can't we don't know it from the five sentences knowledge that is talking about an idea or even an event such as marriage that is a great example of an abstract now let's see do we have any others I'd say is money abstract no money is a concrete again you can you can touch money I guess it would depend on the context in which you could use it because some of these nouns they could be a form that is concrete and abstract so again money

if we're talking about like dollar bills that is something yes you can touch be a concrete brave wisdom those are great examples abstract nouns what else do we have somebody said I thought I saw another good example of happiness sadness excellent fear let's say yes that's another abstract now so again if you want to be able to classify these different nouns that is another way you can do it in talking about concrete nouns or abstract now so just as a quick little review little review review we talked about different types of nouns remember I told you the first one we talked about would be common nouns and proper nouns this is important for your spelling if you're writing something common nouns are general proper nouns are specific and you're always going to capitalize the first letter in the name of a proper noun the next ones that we talked about are nouns that were singular or plural and we said remember singular we're talking about one plural we're talking about two or more and there are certain rules that you should follow if you're making nouns plural which will help with your spelling and remember there are irregular plural nouns child children person people sheep sheep those are the same then we talked about count versus non count nouns and being able to separate people places and thing or they are they nouns that we can count one two three four five six and that and in that case you would add an S or is it a non count noun in which case you are going to use them with a singular verb I also gave you that a good example remember keep in mind people confuse this all the time ten items or less again be careful

when using fewer and less and then we also just talked about concrete versus abstract now think of concrete those five senses if you can identify them using those five sentences senses it is a concrete now if you can't like some idea some quality you would it is an abstract noun so I know that this was I hope that some of this was a little bit of review for you guys that this grammar you've studied it you've learned it before and I know it was a lot and perhaps in the future we'll go back over and we'll just take one of these ideas like count or non count and really practice using it and do more of a deep dive into this lesson so thank you guys so much for watching I appreciate you guys as always for joining me in today's lesson if you guys like what we do again you can sponsor and support interactive English you can join us either on YouTube or patreon and there are links down below in the description as well as some cool rewards if you want to check those out so thank you guys so much for joining me today let me give some last minute shoutouts of you who are still here Thank You Olivia Quan Mary a 10 thank you guys so much for joining this lesson I hope that you really learn something new and that this will help you if you are next time you are writing something or maybe it'll help you understand if you are listening to a TV show or a movie thank you Sayyid lolly GLaDOS sleepwalker Lillie Mary Sajjad gratuitous Abdulrahman ramen yeah you sell Mary could aim thank you thank you thank you I hope that you guys enjoy the rest of your weekend stay safe stay healthy and I will you next time so long

LESSON 105 OF 749

8 Useful Proverbs to Offer Advice | ADVANCED EXPRESSIONS

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

today i'm going to teach you some proverbs that you can use to give people some great advice that's coming up [Music] hey everyone my name is wes from interactiveenglishvideos.com and this channel it's all about helping you practice and improve your english skills and today i i kind of want to help you improve your overall english fluency because i want to teach you some very common proverbs that people use to give advice and if you don't know what a proverb is it is a short saying that people use to typically offer some wisdom or general truth or advice which is what we're going to focus on in this lesson it's all about giving advice so right now i think that we should take advantage of this opportunity that would be my advice to you you should take advantage of this opportunity watch this lesson to build your vocabulary and you need to strike while the iron's hot and that is the first proverb that i want to talk to you about to strike while the iron's hot so if somebody were to tell you this and they they were to give you this advice it means well exactly what i just said it means that you should take advantage of an opportunity right now because that opportunity may go away so if there is a situation in which you want to achieve some goal or you want to do something and you think that okay i may not have this opportunity in the future somebody could tell you hey strike while the iron's hot take advantage of it now and that would be their advice and that's my advice to you to keep watching learn these different proverbs strike while the iron's hot she really likes you man stephanie will tell you you know in life you gotta strike while the iron's hot iron is hot sage advice jack the next proverb that i have is don't put all of your eggs in one basket and this i think this is great advice because what it means is that you should not put all of your trust all of your faith into one person or one thing because if it fails then well then you could be in a lot of trouble so to give you an example think of well money maybe you you make some money and you want to invest it and somebody could give you this advice and they say whatever you do don't put all of your eggs in one basket you want to invest your money in different things because if you put all of your money in just this one thing and it fails then you you're going to lose all of your money so in that situation you you could give somebody some advice and say hey don't put all of your eggs in one basket

great advice that is not a plan that's a reaction you ever hear not putting all your eggs in one basket then we have the proverb look before you leap and this is great advice because what you're telling somebody to do is that they should stop and think about something carefully before making a decision and you would tell them look before you leap and i think this especially applies to a situation in which it could be a little dangerous that there is some type of danger around and a person should not make a quick decision it's better to think about it before making a decision and that is when you could give this advice and use this proverb and tell somebody hey look before you leap because if you make a quick decision then that could put you in a bad situation or a dangerous situation look before you leap did i tell you always look before you

leap well i made it didn't i then we have the proverb don't bite the hand that feeds you and what this means is that you should not disrespect or act poorly toward the person who is helping you or supporting you you need to be careful before you do something or say something that's going to upset this person because they may stop helping you they may stop supporting you and in that case you could give somebody advice and say look just be careful before you upset this person don't bite the hand that feeds you just keep that in mind it's too risky for me or you you want a dark risky why are you living in that house look don't bite the hand that feeds you you can't stay then we have a proverb which is perhaps one of the most famous proverbs in english and that is don't judge a book by its cover and what this means is that you cannot tell what something or someone is like simply by looking at the outward appearance that you you just don't know what is on the inside or what is underneath because you can't see it and that's really what is most important and to help you understand this just think about what the proverb means exactly because if we're talking about a book well the story is the most important part of a book that is inside the book here is another picture to help demonstrate this proverb i think often you would use this proverb when when talking about people that you should not look at someone and see their outside appearance and form an opinion based on that you need to get to know the person you need to see what is their what's their character like what's their personality like that is what you should judge a person

the proverb practice what you preach this is another very common proverb another great piece of advice that you can tell someone else because i think this applies to everyone if you tell somebody to practice what they preach you are basically advising them that they should do the things that they say and i think for example okay broccoli i i don't really like broccoli broccoli and i we have a little bit of a difficult relationship however i know that this it's a very healthy food and i know that i should eat it and i have a baby girl and as she gets older i'm sure that i will encourage her to eat broccoli now even though i don't like it and i don't really eat broccoli she might tell me one day hey dad you should practice what you preach you're telling me to eat broccoli well you should eat it too so i again this is a great proverb and i think if all of you try to think of some situation in which you have told other people to do something that you don't necessarily do and in that case they could they could tell you practice what you preach we are not hypocrites we practice what we preach then we have the proverb don't put the cart before the horse and if you give someone this advice you're telling them that that they need to do things in order and it's a way of saying that that they need to be organized because well the horse should go before the cart horses pull the cart and that's the way to move forward if the cart is before the horse then you're just not going to move at all so i think this is used if well you're talking about work because sometimes with work you need to do things in a certain order

so someone could say hey don't put the cart before the horse you need to do things in this order because it's going to help you be more organized or you could use it when just talking about people's lives in general i think they're during the day there are things that all of us need to do and sometimes we need to do them in a certain order so if you're talking to someone and you're listening to what they're going to do during the day and you think wait this is not this is not going to help you you need to do things in order you need to be organized you could give them advice and tell them don't put the cart before the horse so i fully realize i'm putting the cart before the horse but i was spitballing some design ideas and i think i may have come up with a few potential campaign logo so if you want to continue improving your english skills then i suggest you strike while the iron is hot check out one of these other video lessons around me because well it's a great way to learn different parts of the english language you don't want to put all of your eggs in one basket it's it's great to get a lot of different exposure in a variety of ways if you enjoyed this lesson please hit that like button as always thanks so much for watching and i'll see you next

LESSON 106 OF 749

8 Ways to Say "JOIN" | Build Your Vocabulary

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

so today I want to teach you different ways that you can say join to join something and the reason why I'm doing this lesson today is because you can now join the interactive English community you can click on the join button on the YouTube home page or just click on the link in the description if you join the community you can access different rewards you could also join us on patreon if you like but if you cannot join right now that is okay I still love it that you guys are here watching our video lessons and learning with us in order to improve your English fluency so

let's talk about some different verbs that you can use if you want to say that you want to join something because not all of them are the same they're not always interchangeable so for example the first one that I have for you is follow to follow someone because you're often talking well about a person or a group and in this case I think it's quite often used when referring to social media for example like Twitter or Instagram you might follow someone's page because you want to know what their what they're doing what they're thinking you could also say that maybe you guys you are following our video lessons because you want to improve your pronunciation or build your vocabulary and you follow these lessons another word is to enroll so you can enroll in a class because I often think that this is used when talking about a class so instead of joining a class you can say that you are going to enroll and and take a class another verb is to enlist but this time I when you think of the the verb to enlist I think of the military that you are going to join the military and you will enlist in the military then we have the verb take part in and this is a well it's a phrasal verb and what means is that you are while you are joining some sort of activity or event that is what I think of when when people would use the verb take part and you take part in something you are taking part in this activity or event you are joining it you are taking part in it then we have team up with and if you team up with someone or maybe some group then you are joining a group or a person or an organization in order to work together in some way so when you join someone and you team up with them then you're really working together it's very it's a little similar with the the next phrase which is to associate with because when you associate with another person or a group or or even a company I think many companies are associated with each other they are joined together but it is it is a loose connection that they are working together in some way but it is a rather loose connection for example think of airline programs you might join an airline program in order to get points but because they are associated with other airlines if you fly on those airlines you can still earn points in whatever program you are in because they are associated with each other then we have to come aboard and this means that well you are joining some organizations

some business I often think that it's used when talking about maybe you're hired for a job or for a position and you come aboard and you are now working with this company or business and you have joined this new team you have come aboard then we have to network and this is definitely more of a business expression because it refers to people trying to meet other other people or other businesses or organizations so that maybe you can join them in the future or you can try to associate with them in some way and you can work together to network with someone or to network with other businesses in order to join them in the future so if you have a little disposable income you can come aboard and access some of those rewards such as private posts monthly lessons lesson notes as well as get an emoji for when we do our live streams I hope that you learn some new words and can use them the next time you want to talk about joining a class a business or some kind of event if you enjoy this lesson please hit that like button thanks so much for watching and I will see you next time

LESSON 107 OF 749

8 Words Native Speakers Don't Say & What You Should Say Instead

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Let's talk about some words that you should probably forget and I'll tell you what you should say instead. What's up everyone? My name is Wes. This is interactive English, which is all about helping you practice and improve your English skills. So quite often we get asked, hey, should I use this word or phrase? What's more common? Is this word frequently used? This is a question that we get regularly. So in today's lesson I want to talk about some words that are not commonly used in English and some of you you probably haven't even heard of before, and I want to tell you the words that you should use instead, but also I want to show you some resources that you can use that will help you answer that question. If you're wondering which phrase or word is more commonly used, these resources will help. Also as a disclaimer, I'm from the United States, so I'll be giving you the American perspective when it comes to the usage of these words. Let's start with something that that's easy and straightforward and that is thou the enzyme. So if you haven't heard of these words then, then that's, there's a good reason for that. It's because these are archaic and very old forms of the word you. The word thou is used as the subject. The would be the object and zine would be the possessive form. So for example, I could say, thou needs to forget about these words. I told the to stop using these and then I guess I could ask you what is thy name? Let me know in the comments. Write your name. Say Hello.

I just want to hear from you. So as you can tell it, it just sounds really awkward. You're not going to hear these words out on the street and everyday spoken English. You may hear them if you are listening to a play and it's a very old play and they're using this as part of the dialogue, or you could read about these words in a story.

The next that you can eliminate from your vocabulary is hither. And what hither means is to go towards someplace. And when I think of it being used, I always think of the phrase and somebody saying, come hither, come hither. They're telling somebody to come to them. Nowadays, you're not going to tell somebody to come hither. I guess you could ask them and say, Hey, could you please come over here or, or tell them I, I'd like to ask you something. Or, again, if you're talking about somebody you might be attracted to and you want to start a conversation with them instead of telling them to come to you, I think it's actually better for you to go to that person and introduce yourself. So the first resource that I want to show you is that just doing a Google search for the word. And if we type in the word hither plus meaning, well then it's going to bring up the definition of the word. But if we move down to here where it says translations, word origin and more definitions, and click on that Arrow and then move down to the bottom. And you can see the use over time for this word and hither has declined dramatically in the last 200 years. We can do the same with that if we want to see its usage. And if we scroll down, you can see that it has also declined a lot. Are you ready for more words? Then we have salutations. So this is a word that I, you may not have heard somebody say in spoken English. It's not very common.

But you may read it in a story and what it means is, well, it's just a greeting. It's a fancy way of greeting somebody and just saying, hello salutations. When I think of this word, I think of the story Charlotte's web because the two main characters, Charlotte, the spider, and Wilbur the pig, this is what she says to Wilbur when they first meet. Charlotte says, salutations. And even Wilbur, who's a pig said, Charlotte, what the hell are you talking about? What does that word mean? And she had to explain to Wilbur that it is a fancy greeting, a way of saying hello. So when you meet somebody, instead of saying salutations, just say hi, hello, nice to meet you.

There are so many different ways to greet somebody and you don't need to use salutations. Then there's frolic and what this word means is just to play in a lively and cheerful way. A very carefree way. Often think it's more appropriate when describing children there. They're frolicking on the beach or out in the field or on the playground. They're just playing in a lively manner. Now, this is another word that I think you're more likely to read in a book than you would hear being spoken on the street. However it is a word that hasn't completely disappeared. You will hear people say this from time to time. You may hear it in a movie or a TV show, but I think its usage has declined significantly in the last hundred years.

Another cool little feature about this site is that if we go down here, it will actually show you how the word is used in context. We can also check out the trend and you can see that salutation is becoming less and less common. Here are a couple more words for you. Then we have whippersnappers. Now this may be a word that you've never heard of before and yeah, it's just not commonly used, but a Whipper snapper is a person and it's talking about a young person who is maybe a bit arrogant, over confident, presumptuous, and an older person might refer to them as a wiper snapper and they'd often use it with the word young and say that, oh, this person is just a young whippersnapper.

They don't know what they're talking about. These young whippersnappers. Finally and I, I'm going to catch a lot of heat for this word, but I'm going to put it on the list anyway. And that is so, so now this is a word that's actually become more popular over the years. But the reason that I'm putting it on there is because English learners tend to overuse the word. So. So I imagine that most of you know what it means. It just means that that something is okay, that you really don't have a positive or negative feeling one way or the other things are just so. So now the reason I say that English learners tend to overuse it is because I often hear them use it to describe themselves, to describe their feeling like, oh, you know, how are you doing? And they'd say, well, you know, I'm so, so in this case, I think it's more common for somebody to say, you know, I'm okay, I'm good, I'm not bad.

If you don't really want to convey a really positive or negative feeling, you wouldn't really say that that inside you're feeling so. So it's a, it sounds a little awkward. You may use this word if you're describing the way you feel about something else. So for example, maybe I were to ask you a, well, you know, what did you think of the movie? And you didn't really love it. You didn't really hate it. You could say, yeah, you know the movie. Well, you know, it's just so, so, so keep that in mind. If you're going to use this word, try to use it when you're describing something else, like a meal or an event and you don't have a good feeling about it or a bad feeling, you're just going to say, man, you know, it was so, so, but still, I'm going to keep it up there and try to discourage you a little bit from using sozo because it's not a, it's not a descriptive word. I always encourage learners to try to be more when they want to convey their feelings. And so, so yeah, just, it just doesn't give a lot of lot of information. And personally I feel when somebody says it to me, I get the feeling like, okay, this person just, they just don't want to talk to me about this thing. They don't want to describe the way they feel about it. So okay, we won't talk about it. And that's probably not what you want to do. You want to practice your speaking skills and find ways to engage in conversation, not shut it down. So try to use a more descriptive word than Sosa.

Finally, and I've saved the best for less is Google's end. Graham viewer. Now in Graham viewer attracts the frequency of words and phrases in books over the last 200 years. And the best thing about this resource is that you can type in more than one word or phrase and see how they compare with each other. So let's take a look at whippersnappers. Now as you can see, it really took off in the first half of the 19 hundreds but then it went down significantly before leveling off and as for so, so it has been on a steady climb these past 200 years. And I know you're looking at Soso thinking, okay, I can't wait to go out and use this, but still I would encourage you to use more descriptive words and we can also compare Soso and whippersnappers. And when you put both of them in there, you can kind of get an idea how much more commonly used one word is over the other. So I hope you learned something today about those words and I hope you can use those resources to help you better understand which words and phrases are commonly used in English. If you enjoyed this lesson, then I want you to hit the like button and write the word frolic in the comments. It's lively, it's fun, it's carefree. If you thought the lesson was okay, I want you to hit the like button and right, so, so, all right. It's just, you know, that's the way you felt about it wasn't good, wasn't bad. If you didn't really care for the lesson, I want you to hit the like button and write the word whippersnappers in the comments because then yes, I'm just a young whippersnapper.

A bit presumptuous telling you which words you can no longer use in English either way. Right. To me in the comments.

LESSON 108 OF 749

A, AN, THE, or NO ARTICLE | English Grammar Quiz

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Hello and welcome to today's lesson. I have a fun grammar lesson for you. And I think this is a very very I'm going to add one more very important lesson because we're going to be talking about articles. And this is uh something that I feel like many learners struggle with. And this is also when small mistakes are made. So really, we're going to be talking about the articles a and the or just using no article at all. And the way that I'm going to present this to you as is like a quiz and I want you to participate. You can write your answers in the chat. Write your answers in the comments. Uh, I love hearing from you and I'll give you a moment to think of your answer and then after I'll I'll show you the answer and talk to you a little bit about the rule because often like with these articles there are rules that that you can follow. And I also wanted to let you know that yes, I am getting ready to start another speaking course. I'll talk about that a little later, but there is a link down in the description if you'd like to check that out. Speak with me. So, let's let's just start with our first question. Okay? And um you you complete the sentence and it's the first half is going to be a little easier because I'm showing you the sentence. The second part of this quiz is just going to be listening and that's going to make it a little more challenging. So, how would you what article would you use to complete this sentence? Penguins don't live at m North Pole. What do you think? So, again, after I'll I'll think about the answer and then I'll tell you and we'll talk a little bit about well, what the rule is in this situation. Penguins don't live the Oops, I almost I just told you the North Pole. Okay, trying to to blank that out myself. So, I see a lot of great answers. The answer is the. And you're going to use the when talking about those specific locations, the North Pole, the South Pole. Okay. So, that's just something to keep in mind. Um, the next one. Here we go. Okay. Let's I don't know why I was thinking about penguins when I put this lesson together. What would you say? Most penguins live Antarctica. Okay. Most penguins live m Antarctica. All right. So, when it comes to these articles, if you're unsure, this is one of those instances in which I tell learners, okay, what what feels natural?

What just feels right? Because you get a lot of exposure to the language. listening, reading. I'm I'm sure you've come across this before. Maybe you've heard the word Antarctica. And then in that case, if you if you remember, just do what feels right. Then you would know that there there is no article when you're talking about the names of continents. So again, these are like the rules that you can follow like uh whether you're talking about North uh or South America, Europe, Asia, you're not going to use an article before the names of continents. Okay, the next one. So again, with these articles, I would say you can you can learn the rules. It's good to know them, but I don't think the best approach would be to memorize the rules, but just be aware of them and just keep getting exposure. Just understand that, okay, use no article with the names of continents. Try to keep that in mind. And this is one of those ways, practicing with this quiz and practicing right now with articles.

That's another way to get great exposure. So, think about this context. If uh I'm I'm asking you uh this question. Can you bring me m shirt? If you can bring m purple shirt. So think about this as though I were talking directly to you and I say this. So there's two blanks for you to fill in. Can you bring me shirt? If you can bring m purple shirt. So a lot of you I think you got this right. This is kind of like the the basic fundamental rules when it comes to articles. Um, can you bring me a shirt? If you can, bring the purple shirt. And you see there's a purple shirt right there. So again, this is some of the first rules that you would learn when it comes to articles. Use a or an with non-specific count nouns. In this case, we're talking about shirt. So shirts, that is a countable noun. Um, but it's non-specific. So really, it's like if there are five, 10 shirts, it's hey, you know, bring me a shirt or I need a shirt. Now I follow that up with something more specific. If you can bring the purple shirt. So I use we use the with specific countdowns. So once again we're talking about um shirt that is our noun but in the first uh in the first question it's not specific and then I become specific in the next statement the purple shirt that's what I'm bringing there's just one all right so I'm going to come back to this this right here in just a moment the next one okay so this right here uh again I love it I like seeing all these answers. It's great.

Think about um well, I don't want to give it away. Just last week I found m dog. M dog was wearing m collar, but unfortunately I couldn't read the name on mllar. Sorry, I'm saying m a lot. Those are those blank spaces. So, think of this as like a story. Say, you know, you're talking about your day. That's kind of a story or if you're writing something and this is part of a story. Last week I found m dog. Okay, the first uh missing one. Mm dog was wearing m collar but unfortunately I couldn't read the name on mllar. Okay. So I told you to think of it like it's a story because I I want to talk about the the rule of first mention or it's called first mention. And what I'm referring to is well this.

So last week I found a dog. Okay. So this the first indefinite mention requires a or n for a singular count noun. We're talking about a dog. All right? And no article for plural or non-count nouns. Um like if I said last week I found some dogs. Okay. There's no article there. But in this case, it's the first mention. Last week, I found a dog. In the next sentence, okay, I'm using the instead. The dog was wearing a collar. And the reason why I'm using the in the next sentence is because, well, it's the second time it's been mentioned. Another way to think about it would be like, well, now it's specific.

I've already mentioned the dog once. Now you know what I'm talking about. I'm talking about the specific dog. So now I'm going to say the dog. And the second mention it it's going to to take the um with both count and non-count nouns. So let's let's continue. Last week I found a dog. The dog was wearing a collar. Again, it's uh the first time I'm mentioning this noun, a collar. But unfortunately, I couldn't read the name on the collar. So, even though it's the same sentence, um it's a compound sentence. The first time I mentioned collar, I'm going to use a a collar, that article. And the next time, the second time, now it's specific. So, I said the collar. Let me read the whole thing to you. And again, just try to try process all the information. Um just listening to it. like last week I found a dog. The dog was wearing a collar, but unfortunately I couldn't read the name on the collar. Okay, so again, this is what I'm talking about when I say like rule of first mention. Just the first time you're going to mention something, you're going to use a or n if it's a singular count noun. No article for plural nouns. And then the second time, we're going to use the. Okay. Uh then we have this right here. This is another well rule that we're going to get into.

Um, tallest mountain in the world is Mount Everest. What do you think? Which what two articles go in there to complete that sentence. All right, write your answer in the chat. Write your answer in the comment. I I just want to hear from you. It's always good to actually participate. These are active learning exercises. So m tallest mountain in the world is mount Everest. So and that is actually I at least the the search that I did I think that is a picture of Mount Everest. I'm not trying to to trick you here. So I'm seeing some different answers. So let me provide some clarity. And the the correct answer is the tallest mountain in the world is Mount Everest. So, when we're talking about superlatives, you see tallest, it ends with that est. Okay? We're we're going to use the the tallest, the fastest. And even when you use uh most, the most uh the most interesting, the most expensive, you're always going to use the with superlatives. Now, the second part of this rule is when we're talking about the name of a mountain, no article. Okay? So, you could be talking about Mount Everest. You could be talking about um Mount Denali, um Mount Arangagwa, trying to think of some of the highest mountains in in the different continents. So, now we've already you've learned two rules uh so far with no article. No article with the names of continents and no article with the name of a mountain. The tallest mountain in the world is Mount Everest. The next one right here. So remember we just talked about superlatives. Okay. Now you'll notice with this sentence, it's a comparative sentence. Um or it's a comparative like I would like more expensive ring.

I would like more expensive ring. Okay. What what would you say uh for this one? All right. I would like more expensive ring. So what what I would say is in this case, think about the picture, okay? that you see, you know, there are two rings right there. All right. What would you what would you say? Um because I see some answers and it it really could go either way. One of two ways. I was trying to tell you to think about the picture. In this case, if somebody is looking at the two rings, all right, they're right there. In that case, it's specific. Um and you would say 'the'.

But in general, the thing that I wanted to point out with comparatives, unlike superlatives, you're always going to use the. Comparatives, you're just going to follow um you know, the general article usage, you could use both a or n and the when it comes to uh this. So, for example, uh like I said, for if you said, I would like a more expensive ring, that's perfectly fine. The context though, what what I would think of is this. If you're looking at like one ring and then you're just making a comment like I would like a more expensive ring. It's not specific. You're talking about any other ring that's just more expensive. But in this situation when I was trying the reason I put the is because of the picture where you have these two rings and you're looking at them and it's specific in that case.

Okay, I would like the more expensive ring like this one. The one that um I don't know is on top. That's the more expensive one. I would like the more expensive ring, but in general, you could use either one. A and the We just follow those same rules about whether it's non-specific or specific. Then we have this one. This is a this is a good one. This is an interesting one. I think maybe you might know the answer. Perhaps you're not sure why. The tour is going to cost $100 person. Okay. The tour is going to cost $100 person. Which uh what would you complete that with? A and the or no article at all.

Okay. So again, you I'm sure you'll start to pick some of these things out like the names of continents, um you know, the names of mountains, and what what was the rule? What do we follow? In this case, the second part of this, we're talking about the name of a river. So I think uh let me get this one. That's good. So the correct answer is well, we went on a rafting trip. Again, trip is that uh countable noun. We went on a rafting trip down the Colorado River. So, the first part again, you're going to use um a or n before singular countable nouns that are not specific. We went on a trip down the Colorado River. You're going to use the before the names of rivers. The Nile, the Amazon River, the Colorado River, the Mississippi River. And again, getting that exposure, reading, listening, you you just you get that information and just it just internalizes. And when you're having a conversation, hopefully like look, you're just going to use the when talking about rivers. It's good to know the rule, but again, I don't think the best way is just to memorize all of these different rules. Now, this one, this is a this is a fun one. uh you can see the all of the the names of those different countries. So I'll read this. Last year I visited UK Brazil Republic of China, M Bahamas and M Indonesia. According to this, this is not true, but it it would have been sounds like a very busy travel year. But, uh, what what article would you use before those names? All right, there's five different ones. And again, we'll talk about what the the rule of thumb that you should follow in just a moment. Last year, I visited m UK, m Brazil, m Republic of China, Bahamas, and m Indonesia. All right. So really the decision to make uh is just using either the or no article. All right? You're not going to use a or n uh with the names of countries. So generally speaking, all right, most countries around the world, you're going to use no article. However, again with well a lot of grammar, English grammar, there are always exceptions. So let me I'll read the sentence. Last year I visited the UK, Brazil, the Republic of China, the Bahamas and Indi Indonesia. So typically there is no article before the names of countries uh or and territories. However, the is used before countries who whose names are in the plural form. So like Bahamas, it ends with an s, the Philippines. uh as well as countries uh whose names include words like states, kingdom, republic. Um and again you have the United Kingdom, the UK, the Republic of China. If I ju if I took out Republic of China and just said China, in that case then there's no article. Uh the United States is another example. So for the most part, you're not going to use an article, but again there are some exceptions.

Then I have this one more and then we'll get into our listening practice. Last month I got mco and right after that I came down with mm flu. Okay. What uh what do you think a and the or no article at all? Last month I got mco and right after that I came down with m flu. So this I think is again useful. We're talking about illnesses, diseases. It's something that is part of just conversation sometimes. So I hope that you put the following.

Last month I got COVID and right after that I came down with the flu. So just to clarify between, you know, what's the difference? no article with COVID, but then you're going to use 'the' when talking about flu. So once again, generally no article is used when when you're talking about the names of illnesses or disease diseases. So like COVID, no article. But uh you will some some illnesses require the and you're going to use the and I think over time you just kind of um end up you know you hear them enough you end up just memorizing it. It becomes a part of your spoken and written vocabulary. I gave you some examples down there. I don't know if you can see them very well. So I'll read them. the measles, the flu, the mumps, the b the bubanic plague. Uh, out of all of those, I feel like people are generally going to use the flu most often. It's very widespread. So, uh, just keep in mind if you're talking about the flu, you're going to use the article 'the'. So, now I I would like to make it a little more challenging, a little more difficult. And before uh bec the reason why I want to make it a listening exercise now is because I think you you could see those sentences. You saw uh it written down and I think that makes it a little easier to think about okay well which article is going to go in there is it a and the or no article. The mistake that I think people often make when it when it comes to articles well is when you're producing it, writing or even speaking and you're just having a conversation and you're not really thinking about, hey, should I use an article before this word or or that one. So, the way that I want to do the second part of this is I'm just going to say the sentence without the

the article. So, in this case, all of these sentences, it's missing a or 'the'. All right? I'm not going to try to trick you with no article and say, "Oh, the sentence was correct." In all of them, it's either missing a, or the. And I just want you to listen to it and think about where that article should go. And then I'll show you and talk to you about, well, if there's a general rule to follow, you can. Th it makes it a lot more challenging if you're listening to someone and they're talking and then maybe realizing like wait a second did they did they not use an article when they should have and that's where where people will make slight mistakes which again is when now I wanted to follow up on that tell you about my speaking course uh enrollment is now open if you'd like to join uh um here's the first one. Um I'm English teacher. I am English teacher. Okay, I just said that there's a article missing. Um, if you were to listen to that and think, okay, that that sentence it's not grammatically correct. I am English teacher. All right. And these will get a little more challenging, I think, as we go through this. So in that case when you're talking about your job or your profession um you're going to use a or an. So I would say the answer I am an English teacher. I am an English teacher. And again when these these articles they're not content words. They're not stressed. They're not emphasized, which is why often I think they can go unnoticed if you're listening to someone and maybe you don't hear one or even when you're speaking.

Uh it's easy just to to to not say them and really you might not even think about it. But you're going to use a or n when talking about jobs. I am an English teacher. I'm a firefighter. I'm a pilot. Uh and you're going to use those uh indefinite articles. The next one, I have to be careful because I don't want to just go and go on to the next one and give you the answer. So, if I were to say the following sentence, I got a call first thing in the morning. Okay, I woke up. I got a call first thing in the morning. All right. What would uh what what article is missing from that statement?

I got to call first thing in morning. What would you say? And I hope I think again because it's listening, I tried to make at least these first couple a little easier. It's a common expression that you would hear um which I'll point out in just a moment. I I got a call first thing in morning. Okay. So I think when you hear in morning, okay, when talking about those time expressions, we're going to use the okay in the morning. All right, those time expressions. So I got a call first thing in the morning. And I again I included some of them down there. I you've heard these before. They're very common. in the morning, in the afternoon, in the evening, during the day, during the night, and you're going to use the the next one that I have for you. Let's see. I got to keep my place so I know where I am. Um, if I were to say the sentence, we spoke in unified voice. We spoke in unified voice. We spoke in unified voice. I'm just repeating it. Repeating it uh again. So again, once again, there's a missing article a and or the we spoke in unified voice. What do you think? And again, this is if you're trying to just think about it quickly. What what feels natural? Again, um what do you think? So, I hope that you uh realized that the missing article is uh we spoke in a unified voice. And this one I maybe I kind of wanted to trick you a little bit. Unified. It starts with a a vowel, the letter U. However, what determines whether you're going to use a or N is not the actual letter, but the sound. So unified, it begins with a consonant sound that y unified. We spoke in a unified voice. So because of that, we're going to use a or I would pronounce it with thewah sound. Uh we spoke in a unified voice. All right. The next one, my sentence is she took strong interest in accounting. What do you think? She took strong interest in accounting. And and I think maybe I'm giving you the the isolated sentence. Uh and that's what I want. I don't want to make it too crazy and difficult, but if I were like telling a story talking about um you know my cousin, oh you know she getting ready to go to university and she started her classes. She took strong interest um she took strong interest in accounting. That's when I feel like again it can be a little more challenging to pick up these articles and understand okay which one was that a mistake or was it not a mistake. So in this case she took a strong interest in accounting. So the first thing I wanted to tell you is the meaning a strong interest in something. Um it it just means to be concerned with curious about or interested in someone or something. In this case we're talking about this person was interested. you take an interest in something and you're going to use a or an with certain phrases. So, in this case, to take an interest in something, uh to take an interest in something, you would use it with an because interest would start with that vowel sound. But in this case, I've I've added uh that adjective strong. So, now we're going to say take a strong interest in something. Keep that in mind. Take a strong interest in something or take an interest in something. And there are some other phrases which I've included. Take an interest in. Keep an eye out is another one. Make a statement. Well, we really need to to make a statement and and do something. So, there are certain phrases that are more fixed and these articles are a part of that. The next one, I almost uh just showed you the answer. if uh I'll I'll kind of private premise it instead of just giving you the sentence. I'll tell you a few things and see if you can figure it out or figure out where the um so you know I am from the United States. Um and I'm from the US and when I was younger I I grew up in upper Midwest. I don't know if you know that about me. I'm from the United States. When I was younger I I grew up in upper Midwest. I don't know. Perhaps you you didn't know that about me. Okay. So, in there in that short little those sentences, there was a missing article.

Uh I don't know if you noticed that. I'll say it one more time. So, I'm from the United States. Um you know, when I was younger, I grew up in upper Midwest. I don't know if you knew that about me. All right. So, I I didn't isolate the individual sentence to make it a little more challenging. I think a lot of you caught that the the missing article was the the I grew up in the upper Midwest. So, I I was saying I grew up in upper Midwest. But when you're talking about parts of a country, you're going to use the the upper Midwest, the South, the North, the East Coast, the West Coast. Um, so when talking about those parts, use the. Just something to keep in mind. The next one, uh, is right here.

Oh, you need some directions. Well, if you want to find the store, then just go straight and, um, the store is on right. Okay, that's where you'll find it. If you need some directions, just go straight and the store is on right. You'll see it. Uh, you you won't miss it. Okay, maybe I feel like I slowed down as I was saying that, which would have been a bit of a bigger hint. All right, what do you think? What's missing? A, and or the If you need directions, uh, you're looking for the store, just go straight and the store is on right. You'll see it. Trust me. Okay. So, uh, the missing article is the in this case. When you're talking about, uh, directions, go straight. and the store is on the right. So instead of on right, on the right and you would use um the if the if it follows that preposition on the right, on the left. Um so again, if you're just talking not following with a preposition, oh, you need to go right, you need to go left. So don't think of it as left or right. Think of it as you have that preposition and then you're going to follow it with the right or the left. All right? It's on the right. It's on the left. Okay. Then the next one is, you know, my friend is a little down and out. Um, but you know, I think he's going to he's going to get back in the game. He still has few tricks up his sleeve. Okay. My friend is little maybe down. Maybe people are think he's going to lose, but I think he's going to come back. He still has few tricks up his sleeve.

Okay. What do you think? So, in this case, the sentence, if I wanted to to isolate the sentence, he still has few tricks up his sleeve. Okay. There's a missing word in there. A missing article. He still has a few tricks up his sleeve. All right. The missing article in this case is the article uh he still has a few tricks up his sleeve. So once again, I'm giving you the meaning if somebody were if you're unfamiliar with this to have a few tricks up your sleeve. It just means um do you have a secret method, a trick, something that you can use when needed. But the going back to the the article usage, you're going to use uh with the expression like a few and a little. And in this case, it just means some. So it's like saying like, yeah, my friend still has some tricks up his sleeve. Has a few tricks up his sleeve. If we're talking about like few and little, meaning not much, then you're going to use no article. So think of this example. If I were to say um we still have a few choices. In that case, a few choices means some. If I were to say we have few choices, all right, that has a completely different meaning. I use no article. We have few choices. And that in that case, I'm saying, well, we don't have many. We we don't have much. We have few choices, which is different than saying we have a few choices. But just keep in mind you're going to use the article uh with uh those those expressions a few or a little.

Then do one more one more for good measure. All right. This is uh this is actually a famous uh apherism in the US and af or in English uh I should say. I it's attributed to um gosh I hope I don't get this wrong. Um Percy Shelly I think. Uh and an apherism is kind of just like a an expression in which like there's there's just some truth to it like a saying. Okay. And it is um rich get richer and poor get poorer. Okay. So that that's not it. There's missing articles in there. If uh I were to say, you know, a lot of people will say rich get richer, poor get poorer.

What's missing in there? what there there's actually two articles missing from that that statement that apherism rich get richer and poor get poor and I think some of you uh are right that the missing article is the and it's missing twice so the rich get richer and the poor get poorer and what the distinction I want to make down here the reason why I'm giving you this one is that you can use the with certain adjectives like in this case rich or poor to create a noun phrase that's going to refer to a group of people. So, in this case, when I say the rich or the poor, I'm referring to uh a group of people. All right? It's a noun phrase.

The rich, the poor. Uh I put some other examples down there. The blind, the elderly is another example. So in that case when talking about the group of people um you're going to use the article the the rich, the poor, the blind, the elderly. All right. So what I would like to know in those comments is how did you do on this quiz? Let me know down below if you got most of those rights, if you got most of those correct. I shouldn't say rights and put an S on it. If you got most of those right. Um, but what I really hope is that you learn something new with all of these lessons. I just hope that you learned something new. I know I covered a lot of different rules in here and I tried to present those to you, but just to reiterate once again, I don't think uh the best way to learn this is just to memorize rules. You can look at the rule, understand it, but just get, you know, more reading, more listening, and then of course more practice using these articles in speaking and writing. And of course, if you want more practice when it comes to speaking, just to plug it once again, you can check out my speaking course. That link is down in the description. If you enjoyed the lesson, please hit that like button. I appreciate all of you being here with me live. Um Vicki Gustav, um Llana, I know you're here. Teao, good to see you. Uh I heard uh had somebody uh join our community. Maria, welcome. Thank you for joining. Um and I will be posting these lesson notes for our um patrons, members, subscribers that are on Facebook. Um, I will be posting these. So, thank you again, Angela Shaheen, just give some quick shout outs. Zenat, um, Reesh, thanks for being here. Eloa the waffle, excory.

Um, thank you guys. Hope you have a wonderful rest of the day

LESSON 109 OF 749

ACHIEVE ENGLISH FLUENCY | Here are 5 useful tips...

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's talk about how you can improve your english in 2022 and i have some very useful suggestions for you and the first thing that i think you need to do and this goes without saying is to get more practice now let me tell you what i mean by that because when i say get more practice i'm saying that you need to get more practice than you did the previous year which means that you're going to have to put a little bit of effort into this and another thing that i want you to think about when i say get more practice specifically i'm referring to actually having to do something when you practice the language in which case i'm talking about more speaking and more writing now i think writing is available to you you can write to me right now in the comments down below and i hope you you do write to me in the comments and you can tell me well what are your learning goals for this year what are the things you hope to accomplish in 2022 write that to me in the comments and practice your skills now when it comes to speaking because i know many of you out there would like to get more speaking practice and it can be difficult to put yourself out there and try to make a new friend someone that you can speak to regularly in english there are other ways like techniques like shadowing in which you are speaking and actually trying to say things exactly as you hear them this is a great way to practice the the rhythm and flow of english many of you have told me that you like to shadow using these video lessons and you're shadowing me but something else you can do and i think this is the best way to get more speaking practice is to take an online class and you're in luck because i am getting ready to start a new speaking course in which you can practice and improve your speaking with me and the speaking course is all about trying to help you speak confidently speak clearly and speak naturally and the course includes weekly group lessons with me there are also lesson pdfs on a variety of topics in which we do different speaking activities there are lesson preview videos as well as pronunciation video lessons a couple of audio lessons there there's a lot so click on that link down in the description if you'd like to join and i have a special new year discount just for you because it is 2022 you can use the code speak 22 to get a 22 discount so check out that link down below if you'd like to enroll you can learn more about class times and availability if you have any questions please feel free to email me at info interactiveenglishvideos.com and this is a great opportunity for you to practice and improve your speaking with me and if this is your first time here and you're wondering who i am well my name is wes the channel is interactive english and it's really all about trying to help you improve and develop your fluency skills and if that's what you'd like to do please subscribe turn on notifications so that you will learn about future video lessons and there is a lot that we are going to go over this year so let's get back to some of my useful suggestions on how you can best improve in 2022 and the next thing i wanted to tell you which you're kind of doing right now is i want you to use technology to your advantage there are so many sites and apps out there that you can use and many of which are free and it's really going to help you improve your skills there are sites that allow you to practice and work on grammar there are apps to help you build your vocabulary and what i would also suggest is try to find something that that's more engaging that's more active and i when i say active i'm talking about active learning in which you need to do something so even though right now you're watching this video that's more passive learning but when i ask you to write to me in the comments now it becomes active you practice your writing skills you write to me in the comments that that is active that's more engaging and i i would also say continue doing what you're doing right now continue using youtube watch different english video lessons there is so much that you can find on just about any topic the next thing that i want you to do is make a habit of reading in english we just talked about active learning and in my opinion i think reading is the best way to passively learn the language because you see the correct grammar being used you you also see which words may commonly be used together they may be collocations and that's a great way to build your vocabulary you may also come across words that you don't know and you can try to put them in context another way of building your vocabulary so there are so many benefits to reading in english and i'm not saying that you need to take some of your free time and sit down and read a book what i'm suggesting is do something that you think is manageable for you to do so if you like to read um articles online maybe you're reading the news instead of reading it in your native language try to find an article in english and make that transition that is really going to help you a lot and it just requires a little bit of effort you can turn on captions with this lesson and read as you listen to me speak you can also go down there to those comments and read some of the comments write and respond so in that way you're practicing reading and writing you can even just read simple things like some funny memes like this one any exposure that you get is great i just want you to get more something else you should do is set short term goals don't just tell yourself i'm going to be fluent in english by the end of the year okay that that is a goal but you really need to map out how you're going to get from point a to point b

so the first thing you should do is think about well what are some of the things you need to work on maybe you want to build your vocabulary or or work on grammar or improve your speaking confidence then you need to decide when you're going to work on those things so maybe you tell yourself well in january and february i'm really going to work on my speaking confidence after that you need to think about well how are you going to do this so you could say well i'm going to join wes's speaking course that that is how i'm going to improve my speaking confidence i i just wanted to throw in one more reminder but you know what i'm talking about just be realistic about what you think you need to do the time that you want to dedicate to it and then how you're going to practice so that you can improve your skills and then this is probably the most important thing on the list and that is just have fun don't forget to have fun while you're learning english because language learning should not be a chore so so think about the things you enjoy those tv shows the music or movies if you're reading make sure that you're reading something that interests you like i said just transition from some of the things that you normally read in your native language and move that over to english if you are setting goals set the goals that you want to achieve instead of thinking about maybe well what you have to achieve so if you're able to have fun it's so much easier to stay motivated so that you can continue learning and continue improving so those are my five suggestions to help you start the new year and there are going to be many more video lessons this year because i want to continue supporting you as you continue to practice and improve your english so if you enjoyed the lesson please hit that like button don't forget click on that link down in the description if you'd like to join my speaking course and yeah that's it i look forward to seeing you throughout the rest of this year thanks so much for watching and i will see you next time so

LESSON 110 OF 749

ADVANCED AMERICAN PHRASES YOU NEED TO KNOW

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

let's not table this conversation it's very important so please scoot over make room for anyone else who may be around you and would like to learn these 12 advance phrases that are uniquely american and i promise you in this lesson and even in future lessons i will not jump the shark my name is wes and yes i am from the united states the channel is interactive english which is all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals so if that's what you would like to do please subscribe turn on notifications so that you will learn about future lessons this lesson in particular is all about helping you build your vocabulary but also improve your comprehension and what i'm going to do i will tell you the meaning of these different phrases i'll talk to you a little bit about them and then give you an example sentence so you can see how the phrase is used in context let's just begin with our first phrase which is to table something and i'm not talking about a table that you would eat at notice i'm using this as a verb to table something and basically what it means is to delay a discussion or subject or something that may come up in conversation and you're you're not going to talk about it now but you're probably going to come back to it a little bit later and you could use this casually with friends you could even use it at work if you're sharing ideas with people and you bring something up and somebody says look let's just let's just table that for right now and then we'll come back to it later here's another example that's a good idea but let's table that suggestion for right now and focus on the immediate future then we have scoot over and somebody also might say scooch over as well but if somebody tells you to scoot over what they're telling you to do is slide while sitting but really you you would probably hear this uh or even say this if you are maybe getting ready to go ride in a car and it's pretty crowded you want somebody to move over to make room for you you would tell them to scoot over or you could even say it to a group of people if it's a crowded room you're trying to sit down and you want people to scoot over can you please scoot over even just a little and make some room someone's two cents and this really refers to someone's opinion about something especially when that opinion is not asked for and that someone's i'm really talking about a possessive pronoun there so you might hear like my two cents or your two cents his two cents her two cents and this is uniquely american because well sense in the united states that's talking about change like one cent five cent 25 cents so if i were to make the statement and say well that's my two cents it really means the same thing is well that's my opinion but again it's really like well your your opinion's not asked for and you would say two cents i could say you know i think you should hit the like button i know you didn't ask me but that that's my two cents here's another example if changes at the company will affect the employees then they should be able to put in their two cents and the next one is just one word and that is period and people would use this they would say this to really emphasize something and they're being dramatic so a period is a punctuation mark that would come at the end of a statement and

really you would well you would say something and then follow it with period kind of suggesting that okay there's nothing else to talk about i have nothing more to say about this and one thing i'm curious about is that well in the uk it's called a full stop and i wonder if they use full stop the same way if you know let just just tell me down in the comments but people would use this if they're maybe debating something or even arguing a little bit and uh for example like students some sometimes in the classroom they would they'd want to play games and they would ask me and they'd say let's play some games and i might say look today today we're not playing any games period or maybe you're you're really debating somebody and uh this is i truly feel this way chick-fil-a is much better than in-n-out burger period

all right there there are some people that are very passionate about this and if you want to debate me debate me down below in the comments but chick-fil-a so much better period here's another example it's too late we're not changing our travel plans period then we have jump the shark now this is an idiom that people use mostly to talk about tv shows and really what it means is it's referring to a point in a tv show in which they're maybe trying to generate publicity and they they do something that's kind of a little ridiculous for the storyline and people kind of think about it as a point at which the show begins to lose popularity and that things really change and you could say wow that show it really jumped the shark i really enjoyed the first season of prison break these guys are in a prison they're trying to break out and the first season was great and then as the show went on they just really jumped the shark they got out of prison and then it the storyline changed into some crazy like worldwide conspiracy and it just it just was too much now the the idiom actually comes from the show happy days which was very popular in the 1970s and in one of the episodes the main character fonzie he's water skiing and then all of a sudden he jumps a shark it was pretty absurd it was pretty ridiculous in my opinion game of thrones jumped the shark once the show could no longer reference the books the next phrase which is certainly uniquely american is american dream and people would really talk about the american dream which refers to the idea that anyone could be successful through hard work and they would talk about well that's that's the american dream mostly

i think it's used in the context of business especially if you're talking about entrepreneurs people who want to start a business make a lot of money and they say they want to be successful that's that's the american dream oprah didn't grow up wealthy she worked hard and has become one of the most successful media personalities of our time it's truly the american dream i have another idiom for you which is bent out of shape and what this means it means that somebody's very angry or very upset so instead of saying like he was really angry you could say well he was really bent out of shape and often i think people might use this when they're you're telling somebody like don't get angry like hey don't don't get so don't get so bent out of shape here's another example i'm sorry it was an innocent mistake there's no need to get bent out of shape

then we have the phrase monday morning quarterback now this phrase is definitely american because well it refers to american football and what it means is to unfairly criticize someone for well their decisions or maybe their actions after it's already happened so it's like you have the ability of hindsight and you're you're criticizing someone else so in in the united states football games are typically played on sunday so what that means is that if if somebody made a mistake during the game on sunday the quarterback which is pretty much the primary position on monday it's like somebody's looking back and criticizing like well they should have done this why didn't they do this and it's unfair it's already happened so you would say well that that person is a monday morning quarterback if they are the one who is criticizing you i know i made a mistake there's no need for you to play monday morning quarterback

next i have a statement which is tell me about it and what this refers to is if you're talking to another person and they're telling you about some difficult situation or maybe saying that something is unpleasant and you want to tell them that you agree with what they're saying and that you are familiar with this you could just respond and say yeah tell me about it it means the same thing as like well i know what you mean that i i truly agree with you i've had the same experience tell me about it here is well a rather long example using this phrase also reviewing some of the previous phrases as well the boss was so bent out of shape when one of his favorite shows jumped the shark he wouldn't stop complaining ugh tell me about it uncle sam and this is it's not a person it's a phrase that really refers to the us government and it's represented by a picture of this tall thin old man with a tall hat and people would just instead of saying the government they might just say uncle sam it's not a phrase that you're probably going to use all the time but you may hear people talk about it if they want to refer to the government and you may also hear it in a tv show or movie uncle sam we all have to pay taxes to uncle sam or he's going to come looking for us

let's stick with the government for right now because i have another phrase related to that and that is fishing expedition and what this means is that you're attempting to discover the facts about something by by collecting a large amount of information and it's often done secretly so really you you have those two main parties the democrats and republicans if somebody is trying to maybe find some information about another party or another political uh person in that party just maybe to make them look bad or perhaps they think they did something criminal well then that party if they want to say like well you know what you're doing is just it's just wrong it's political they might say this is just a fishing expedition they're just trying to collect a lot of information just to find something that i did wrong and they would try to to downplay the situation and they might refer to it as a fishing expedition the congressional commission is merely a fishing expedition to make the other party look bad then we have sweep it under the rug and what this means is you're trying to hide or conceal something so it kind of means like like what it says you're sweeping something under the rug you're trying to hide it and interestingly enough in the uk people would say sweep it under the carpet it's it's pretty similar but still a little different if you're in the united states though just remember you want to sweep it under the rug he never expresses his emotions he just sweeps everything under the rug so i hope you enjoyed the lesson and learned some new phrases if you did you can let me know by hitting that like button or writing to me down below in the comments i always love hearing from you thank you so much for watching and i will see you next time so long

LESSON 111 OF 749

ADVANCED BANKING VOCABULARY | Words and phrases you need to know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

Hello and welcome to today's lesson. I have I think it's a it's a fun vocabulary lesson for you and we're going to be talking about something that I think we can all relate to because it is part of our everyday lives. So, the vocabulary that we're going to focus on in today's lesson is really just banking vocabulary. Really banking and finance. I I the way that I'm going to do this is I'm going to present this to you as a quiz. So, I would like you to participate in the lesson. If you're joining me live or even watching this later, you can write your answers in the comments. I love seeing that to know that you're you're actively participating in the lesson. So, I'll give you a few I'll give you a moment to think of the answer and then of course I'll I'll tell you what the word or phrase is and then we'll talk a little bit about it. And I will say that I think this is a little more like more on the advanced side, more advanced vocabulary, but with all of these lessons, the main goal that I that I hope for is that you just learn something new. So, are you ready? Here we go. Let's just go ahead and begin with our first question. So, the first question that I have for you um that I would like you to answer is this one right here. So, I'll I'll read it for you um just in case it's a little challenging to see. Uh this is talking about an agreement that allows you to borrow money from a bank, especially in order to buy a house is called a All right. What would you call that agreement? So I if you have bought a home in the past or then probably this is a word that you are familiar with um because it's something that exists in I think across all languages. So what what word am I talking about? If you're somebody who is a renter, um you may not have dealt with this with as far as a bank is concerned, but again, this is I think a useful word to know um because it's another word that you might come across if you're reading a newspaper or you're watching a TV show or movie. So,

I see a couple of great answers. Hello. Hello, everyone. Uh good good to be back because I know this has been a while since I've done a lesson live, but uh I'll give a few shoutouts here. Um, yes. Excellent. Angela, uh, Miriam, nil, perfect. So, the correct answer is, uh, mortgage. All right. So, this is what you would call that agreement with the bank is a mortgage. And you might have something like, uh, a 30-year mortgage on the home. So, like for 30 years, you're going to be making these payments. And again, it's useful because if you you have a mortgage with the bank, that means you don't have to pay all of that cash upfront in order to buy the home. So, this is a very this is a common way that that people will buy homes and they get a mortgage with the bank. The other thing that I want to point out, you can kind of see it down here.

pronunciation because you're not going, even though it's spelled with a T, you're not going to hear that T sound. So, it's just mortgage. Mortgage. Okay. So, yeah, this one, uh, again, the spelling and the pronunciation don't really match. That t is going to get dropped. All right. So, the next one, are you ready? Is right here. Um, person A takes money from person B to buy a car. Okay, so A and B. Who is the borrower and who is the lender? So I think again the the reason why I'm giving you this I don't think these are the most advanced words but these are words that are commonly confused. So person A takes money from person B to buy a car. Who is the borrower and who is the lender? Which person who is person A the borrower or lender or is person B the borrower or lender? All right. So, let I'll give you a moment to think about that, process that. It's good to see uh so many familiar faces.

Vicky Gustav, yes, good to be back. Um so, again, these are words that that can be a little confusing. I've done a lesson um with these words in the past and in case you're wondering. So, I'll read it one more time and then tell you just to remember remind you. Person A takes money from person B to buy a car. Who is the borrower and who is the lender? All right. So, in this case, uh seeing a bunch of answers now. Excellent. So, person A is the borrow borrower. They're taking the money. Person B is the lender because they're giving the money. And I mention borrow and lend can be confusing and sometimes people end up confusing them when they're verbs to borrow money or to lend money. But just to try and simplify this a little bit, when you think of borrow, think of take.

And when you think of lend, think of give. And then I again, if you're you're interchanging those, then it'll make a little more sense and you're not likely to confuse them. In this case, we're talking about nouns. Somebody is a borrower and the other person is a lender. So the borrower is taking the money, the lender is giving the money. So in this case, yeah, as Susanna mentioned, the bank is the lender in in most cases. Yes, the bank is the lender. Perfect. Um, the next question is just a I got this visual and I just want you to tell me what what is this? All right. This is a picture of a what? uh it's not I think it's uh not not something that you have to know what the meaning is but I think it is kind of common especially if you're talking about um children and you might give this to a child in and encourage them to to save money and put money aside and they're going to put money in this and it is called a what and I think Uh I I think uh you're probably familiar with it. I think it's a pretty common phrase. Yes. Excellent. Um Kevin, Kim, Sunny, Angela, perfect. The answer is a piggy bank. So it is a picture uh of you see the the it is a pig and again you're keeping money in it in order to save. So it's called uh a piggy bank. All right, the next one right here. When you put money in the bank, you're making a what? So again, you're putting money in the bank. This is referred to as oh, you're going to make a what. So in this case, uh you see the article before the blank, so you know it's a noun. And think about it in another context. If somebody were to say, "Oh, I'm going to the bank. I need to make a" and you're going to put money in the bank. What is that called? And this is a this is a noun that I is specific to banking. Um it's one that's very common. So again, if you don't know this one, this is a good one to learn, but it seems like many of you are familiar with this word. Uh so if you're going to put money in the bank, excellent. Uh Kevin, Maria, Sunonny, uh Sajid, you're going to make a deposit. Okay? So when you put money in, you are making a deposit. And like I said, a context you may use this um like, yeah, I'm going to go to the bank. I need to make a deposit. So you can also use this as a verb to deposit. I need to deposit some money and I need to put money in the bank. Okay, let's look at the next one. All right, so when you take money out of the bank, what are you doing? So in this case, it's the opposite. You put money in the bank, you're making a deposit. When you take money out of the bank, you're making a what? What do you think? So, another this is another I mean, very useful, very common banking word. Um, it's the opposite of uh deposit. So, what do you think? I see some good answers in there. Um, the correct answer is withdrawal. All right, you're making a withdrawal. So, remember to make a deposit and you could use that as a verb like to deposit money. In this case, it's not it's not the same exact word.

So, you're going to make a withdrawal and you're going to take money out if you're going to use it as a verb to withdraw to withdraw some money. And the other thing that I'll point out, same here, uh trying to put uh a little some pronunciation tips down here. This can be a little tricky, I think, because you have those uh the the R combinations or that R combination and that final W. So, I I tried to give you the phonetic spelling down there, withdrawal. So that w a l you have that schwa sound and it is going to be a dark l all and your tongue is being pulled toward the back of your mouth. Withdrawal.

Withdrawal. So you can practice saying that right now. Withdrawal. I'm going to make a withdrawal. I've had actually I've had learners tell me that this is a difficult word to pronounce. Um but it's very useful especially it's common if you're talking about banking. The next one right here. All right. So again, I'm you know what? What word would you use to fill in that blank? M fees occur when you don't have enough money in your account to cover your transactions. M fees occur when you don't have enough money in your account to uh cover the transactions. What do you think? So this is the actual this is the meaning of the word you if you you don't have enough money in your account and then you make a transaction and there's not enough money in there, the bank is going to uh penalize you and they're going to penalize you with a m fee. And what is that first uh what is that first word? It's an adjective. It is a mee. And like some of you had said, this is called an overdraft fee. So an overdraft fee occurs when you don't have enough money in your account to cover your transactions. It's an overdraft fee. So again, this is a it's it's a useful word. It's very specific for this situation um when you don't have enough money. So again, I think a lot of people depending on your account, you want to be careful to make sure there's enough money because you don't want to get an overdraft fee. Um because then they're basically trying to you're going to have to pay more money. Then we have this right here. This is another picture. I just want you to tell me what this is. This is a picture of what? And you will find these at a bank.

So, I'll give you a moment. Think about it. I've I think you've heard these phrases before or this phrase before. I'm guessing you've heard it. So, this is a picture. This is a picture of a safety deposit box. So, these are boxes. I've given you the meaning right here. These are boxes that are well, it says a lockable metal box or drawer, especially in a bank vault used for safely storing valuable papers, jewelry, etc. There's many things that you can put in uh a safety deposit box as long as they're small because typically they're not very large. Um, and you would keep this at the bank and people will store valuables in there. Uh, and they would get a safety deposit box.

So what word goes in there? All right. They purchased the home when the bank extended their m of credit. What do you think? All right. So, wow. I thought this one would be a little tricky, but some of you uh you some of you seem to you've heard this before. I'm guessing again like these are this is these are words that I think are frequently used together. Excellent. Eddie, uh Kevin, Carill, uh Angela, we're talking about line of credit. So in this case I've highlighted here it just the your line of credit means the meaning of this is an amount of credit extended to the borrower. So basically credit refers to capital. The bank is giving you some capital. Typically they're letting you borrow money. All right? Money extended to the borrower.

You're increasing your line of credit and then you could purchase uh something that might be a bit more expensive. So again, it's not uh something that you're you're going to hear all the time, but good to know. Like I said, as long as you learn something new, that's the most important thing. Then uh we have this one. Banks will provide you with a monthly detailing your transactions. Banks will provide you with a monthly detailing your transactions. What do you you have money in the bank typically? I think all banks are the same with this. Each month you're going to get this and it shows all of your transactions. Maybe you get it in in the mail. I think nowadays uh many banks have it all online. So, what do you think? Write your answers in the chat or write them in the comments. I think this one was a little bit easier. Excellent.

uh Karina Pac uh AV trying to throw out some different ones. Uh Win theory. So yes, the the correct answer is a statement. You you get your monthly statement and it shows all the transactions that you've made. Then here's another one. We're going to keep going. This one I have two blanks in here for you. So again, think of the context, the situation. If you take out a M and borrow money from the bank, talked about borrow and lend, you will have to pay some m, which is a small percentage. So these words I think are pretty common. So I imagine this might be a little uh easier. If you take out a m from the uh if you take out a m and borrow money from the bank, you will have to pay some m which is a small percentage. So in both of these situations, I give you the blank and then kind of follow it up with the meaning. All right? You take out a m in which case you're borrowing money from the bank and then you have to pay the second blank which is going to be a percentage. That would be the key word.

So the two blanks in there, uh, we're talking about if you take out a loan and borrow money from the bank, that is what you're doing. It is a loan. This is a noun. You'll have to pay some interest. And interest is a small percentage uh just to have the benefit of being able to borrow that money. You get a loan and you have to pay some interest on that loan. All right? So I think a lot of you got that one. Perfect. The next one is this one. Think about it. This is the difference between credits and debits in an account is the what? What do you think? So we have you know on the one hand we have credit on the other hand we have debit and when you talk about the difference between those then you have your what? So again, this is the meaning of the word. Uh I'm giving you the meaning and I'm just blanking it out. And the big hint in this one would be that picture right there. This image is what what what's going on. Uh so I think probably that made it a little easier. At least I hope so. But the the difference between credits and debits in an account is the balance. So, another this is a very again useful word. We're talking about a bank. You have an account. Um, you get your monthly statement and it's going to tell you what your balance is. Okay? How much money you have in your account. Um, knowing the credits and the debits and the difference between the two is is the balance. What is what's your current balance? Then here's this one. Here's another picture. Again, I think this one's a little easier. What is this? Okay. I'm not asking what the guy's doing. Just what what is he standing next to? What do you call uh I I was about to to say a word that would have you know made it a lot easier even though again I I think this is uh many of you are familiar with this. So this is a picture of what it is an acronym for bonus points. I don't know if you uh know what the acronym stands for, but as many of you are putting down there, all right, excellent. The answers are just rolling right in. So, this it's an ATM.

The ATM stands for automated teller machine. Okay. So, uh no matter where you are in the world, you find a bank, typically there's an ATM right outside. It allows you to easily uh withdraw some money. There's that word again, withdraw. you're going to withdraw money uh from the ATM. All right. So, this one is this one's a little more challenging. Okay. So, this is more specific to the United States, which is where I'm from. So, in the US, if a business is about to go bankrupt, right, they're they're losing money. This is a big problem. They may file for chapter what? So chapter it's synonymous with bankruptcy more or less.

So uh again this is uh a phrase well chapter which is more connected to the United States because it's part of the um the law. So, in the US, if a business is about to go bankrupt, they may file form. And again, this is another phrase that if you watch a lot of movies, TV shows, you'll hear you I'm sure you've heard this phrase before, but it's pretty specific. And if you don't know, then that's good if you learn a new phrase. So, what we're talking about, it seems like some of you have heard uh heard of this. We're talking about chapter 11. So, chapter 11 in like law is what it allows businesses to restructure well to restructure the business in order so that they can make an attempt to pay off some of uh uh their debts and to repay the creditors.

And then businesses will file for chapter chapter 11. they'll try to restructure and sometimes they you could say they come out of chapter 11 and then they start running their business again. Um, but this happens when businesses are losing money and yes, they're about to go bankrupt and they file for chapter 11. It basically gives them some sort of uh protection uh from lawsuits and allows them to attempt to pay pay off these debts. So, with all of these lessons, the main goal that I that I hope from all of this is that you learn something new. Here is um the vocabulary list. These are all the words and phrases that I had included in this lesson right here. Uh if you want because I know I had mentioned it before. Um you can I'm going to add it down in the description below if you would like to get a copy of this lesson PDF. Uh I'll throw it right here in the chat right here. Boom. Okay. You can click on that link, get a copy of these lesson notes. You're basically joining our email community. in which case I'll also send you some other cool and useful resources from time to time. All right, so thank you guys so much. It's good to do like another little live lesson and and get to connect and see everybody once again. I hope that you learn some new words and phrases trying to expand your vocabulary a little bit. I do think this is very useful when talking about banking and finance because it is a part of our everyday lives. So just to give you some shoutouts, thank you uh for joining Vicki Gustav, Talal, Angela, um so many familiar faces, Carill, Nil, uh Pac, Eddie, uh it's just great to see everybody. Hopefully, Maria, hopefully I'll be able to do another live lesson soon in the near future. It really just depends. My schedule's been very hectic these past few months. But it's been great seeing you and I will see you. Oh yeah, if you did learn something new, please hit that like button. I'll throw that in there right now. Please hit that like button. So I will

LESSON 112 OF 749

ADVANCED COURTROOM VOCABULARY | Incredibly Useful Words & Phrases

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello and welcome to today's lesson in which we are going to learn courtroom vocabulary so if you enjoy building your vocabulary which I think you do please subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher if you don't know me and you've never been here before my name is Wes the Channel interactive English it's all about helping you reach your fluency goals and vocabulary is essential when it comes to achieving those goals so also the other thing I'd like to point out if you would like a copy of the lesson notes you can access these the slides that you see right next to me click on the link down in the description if you are already a part of our community uh check your email because I have sent them to you so I will throw that in the chat right there you can click on that link or the one down in the description if you would like to access the lesson notes so that you can review because that is the best way to remember the words and phrases and continuously build your vocabulary so this it's a quiz lesson and I want you to participate I want you to write your answers in the chat in the comments you can also tell me your name I'd love to hear from you uh especially if you're new to the channel tell me where you're from so let's begin with some pre-trial words and phrases this is definitely I think a bit more advanced I think a lot of people watch TV shows movies relate that take place in the courtroom so this this is vocabulary you may have heard of before I don't know if you would actively use much of it because it's very specific but again it's good to know you'll read this articles uh like I said movies TV shows so let's let's jump into it here is the first question I am going to

I'll read it to you I'll give you a moment to think of the word or phrase and then I'll tell you the answer so the proceeding in which a defendant is brought to the court is brought to court informed of the charges and asked to plead guilty or not guilty is called and what so this is a word that again if you're reading if somebody if somebody's in trouble with the law and there's an article about it in the newspaper yes you may come across this word that's why it's important and it refers to this proceeding the defendant must come in and say whether they're going to plead guilty or not guilty what is that proceeding called there is one hint and the hint would be that article and because then that tells you that the next word word well it's going to begin with a vowel sound so what do you think

write your answers in the chat in the comments so all right this is good I like I told you I think some of this will definitely be new so if we're talking about that proceeding that proceeding is called an arraignment the defendant comes in and they must they're asked to plead are you guilty or are you not guilty that is the arraignment to give you some more examples because I thought maybe this might be new here are some news headlines using this word and again some of it's political because in the US there's been a lot of uh well some people that have uh are in trouble with the law so for example that first one it says Hunter Biden arraignment they're talking about Joe Biden son president's son pleads not guilty to gun charges this happened during the arraignment or NASA murder suspect waves arraignment ordered held without bail when somebody waves arraignment I think they're just saying look they they're just waving their right to be there they don't need to be there and then finally down here Donald Trump pleads not guilty to election charges in latest arraignment so if we're talking about that proed proceeding when the defendant comes in and they plead guilty or not guilty we're talking about the arraignment the next one right here so a m I almost said the word and just told you the answer a m is the testimony of a witness other than in open court often in the form of an oral statement made before an officer who is authorized to administer Oaths so think about the situation that last part this person is going to give testimony and they're a witness maybe it's not an open court but they're going before somebody who is an authorized official that can administer Oaths that means that this is more serious this person really should tell the truth they must tell the truth and they are basically giving a what a lot of times you're going to use it with the verb give to give a M it refers to the testimony of a witness and haven't uh seen the correct answer a lot of people trying to put uh indictment indictment is really this the charges that are are being brought uh against somebody and like somebody is indicted and they're being charged with with a crime it doesn't mean they're guilty or not guilty but I see that getting thrown in there a lot so in this case we're talking about the testimony it is you can tell me the word that I I'm I'm thinking of so you see all these folders there and there's that magnifying glass like you're looking through it you're trying to find information in general the word that I'm looking for I'll go ahead and talk a little bit about the meaning this is the process that both parties basically um the the attorneys the prosecutor the defendant they're going to share information or basically they're going to let all the information out that they have so that the other party can prepare and they can get organized and you're going to look through all of this stuff this is known as what and sometimes people don't go to court because they're work worried about this they don't want all the information out there but if you do go to court then this this is what this is how things get revealed a lot of um if you were following again the the Fox News defamation lawsuit there's a lot of information that came out in this process and I saw the correct answer yes uh tiura we're talking about I'm trying to describe Discovery this is the procedure in a lawsuit in which each party through the law of civil procedure can obtain evidence from the other party or parties and you it's referred to as Discovery and it Things become more known and it allows people to kind of prepare for the trial like I said this is the this vocabulary that we're looking at now is pre-trial words and phrases I know that was difficult I think this one will be a little easier don't worry don't worry if you're if you're thinking like oh goodness I I didn't know any of these when the court M uh I'm giving you the first letter of those two words it requires a person to appear before the uh sorry that should be before the court not the course that's a typo to give testimony or submit evidence when a c when the court m a m what words uh there are two words that are missing there and this is what requires someone to appear before the court and they give testimony evidence they have they have to answer questions so again this is different than the arraignment that's when the defendant would show up to say guilty or not guilty this is more about testimony evidence sometimes people don't want to provide evidence and that that is when the court will do this and they will the first word yes issue and that other words they're going to issue a what this is a common cocation which is why I included it Al together the court will issue a subpoena saw it Edward great job Angela nice so when the court

issues a subpoena then it it's more serious you don't want to you can get into a lot of trouble if you're not going to comply with the subpoena because this means that you are required to come in there give some evidence uh provide submit evidence give testimony talk about what you know if they issue a subpoena and remember that with the the pronunciation subpoena you're not going to hear that b sound silent but the pronounce subpoena if you issue a subpoena nice I think again I feel like you guys knew this one it's it's a pretty common phrase that's used when talking about like pre-trial and they want to get testimony if you learn something new please you can let me know go ahead and hit that like button that tells me okay you're learning new words you're building your vocabulary and again I don't expect you to remember all of this but as you continue to read about cases that are happening in the courtroom you will come across the the these words and phrases trust me so this is what is going to help you then remember it put it up here in your active memory so let's talk about some trial words and phrases and actually I feel like I'll go ahead and tell you I think as we go through this it will get a little easier for some typically it go the other way and I start out easy and get a little more difficult the way it's turned out this lesson with the pre-trial words and phrases I think that was uh the most difficult part we'll see so this next one is a false statement made under oath which a which is a criminal offense is called what so if you are under oath you shouldn't lie that's that's a big no no that's a problem but if you do lie and you make a false statement then what is this Criminal offense called and sometimes you may hear it used with the verb to commit to commit what and I saw some great answers in there excellent Magdalena uh sjad perfect perjury we're talking about perjury so uh raphaela nice excellent good to see you uh too hi if we're this is this is a I would say a false statement you could say a lie somebody lied under oath they commit perjury that is the criminal offense a lot of times people will use words like lying because it it's just more commonly used but if you specifically want to refer to the criminal offense you would say it's perjury to commit perjury great job La nice excellent here we go I I'm trying to all right all right hopefully what is this what is this you May if you're looking closely maybe you'll find the word in there somewhere I've I've actually blocked out uh the top part of it because that's uh what what it is but in general it's kind of what it says up there it's a sworn statement but what would you call this form this paper that you would submit and you're basically providing a sworn statement that hey this is what I saw this is what happened and a notary May acknowledge this now this doesn't mean that it's absolutely true people have again lied when they've filled out these statements so but a sworn statement in like this form this paper what would you call this again it is a word that I think is pretty common if you're going to read about some article of some who's in the courtroom and there's a there's a trial going on and you're trying to keep up with the information and again this is something that I think you will come across whether it's we're talking about politicians or famous people you're going to find people that are in trouble with the law all the time so the word that I'm talking about great job nice is an affidavit so you can see up there I kind of uncovered it in affidavit this is a written or printed statement made under oath so again it is more serious even though I feel like it does the reason I say it it doesn't mean that it's absolutely true because sure people lie under oath they commit perjury it happens uh but this is a great job uh give some quick little shout outs I heard like marrow nice bright future good so the other thing that I want to talk about quickly the pronunciation there are four syllables the stress is on that third syllable affidavit affidavit an affidavit so we're talking about that proposal that statement under oath and affidavit here is the next one you guys are I think you're doing well if a court or someone in Authority a decision or judgment they officially reject it I think this one it could be a little challenging because it's not a verb that I think is used often even outside of a courtroom and I'll I'll go ahead and tell you it is a verb if a court or someone in Authority a decision or judgment they officially reject it and you could think about it as a little bit of a collocation this verb and noun you're going to make a decision or make a judgment and once again you are rejecting it so in this case the verb that I'm looking for I'll go ahead and tell you I think this one is a bit more challenging is to quash so if someone quashes a decision or judgment they're rejecting it some other collocations I decided to include down here with this verb in the courtroom somebody could uh quash a motion and they reject it or they could quash evidence and they're saying look we're rejecting this it's uh you know we're not we're not going to use it and we're going to quash the evidence so hopefully maybe that might be a new verb for you this one I think is probably more commonly used than talking about quashing a motion or quashing a decision but in this case we're talking about the M of so again this is a phrase that's used together refers to the standard used to prove allegations in a court proceeding and I think the key word in there we're talking about the standard to prove allegations so to give you a little bit of a hint if there is a trial going on generally speaking I would say the M of M is on the prosecutor and you might follow it with that preposition is on this person and they are the ones who have to meet that standard to prove that the allegations are true and if they don't then probably the person is going to be found not guilty so I thought maybe that of may help you kind of jog your memory thinking about this phrase so when we're talking about the standard we're talking about the burden of proof and I mentioned that you may hear people use this and follow with on like the burden of proof is on this person so a lot of times it would be on the prosecution because they're the ones who need to prove Beyond reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty so the prosecution needs to meet that standard so the burden of proof is on them and again you're referring to that standard the burden of proof great phrase okay now let's get to the sentencing all right so we did pre-trial uh and then we talked about some words and phrases that are more commonly used when the trial is going on and let's say that it's now over and we're at the end and we're on the sentencing portion of this and let's talk about some words and phrases that have to do with sentencing so oh gosh all right I decided I used this picture bonus points if you can tell me who this is I think you probably know but and means that the defendant is found not guilty because the prosecution did not prove its case Beyond A Reasonable Doubt so the burden of proof I said is on the prosecution if they don't prove the case Beyond A Reasonable Doubt then there's likely to be n what once again there's a the key word in there n that article tells you that this next word is going to begin with a vowel sound yes great job Alex OJ Simpson and the reason why I included that picture of OJ because that is what happened in this case personally I think OJ was guilty but uh that that's not what happened there was and what this is another word that I think is pretty common in when you hear about sentencing if somebody's not guilty of course you could say I see many people like writing innocent sure you could say somebody is innocent but you're using it as an adjective in this case we're talking about a noun you would not say somebody is an innocent or in this case like it's not a uh a formal Court term that is used but I do see other people talking about yes all right excellent uh but remember you use it as a noun we're talking about an acquittal so you could say somebody was acquitted but in this case if I wanted to be picky and say we're okay we're referring to the noun in acquittal so an acquittal means that the defendant is not guilty they the burden of proof was on the prosecution they didn't reach uh meet that standard and there was an acquittal so the next one like kind of following up on this a little bit and maybe I don't think that's too much of a hint and means that you have been proven to have not committed the alleged offense or offenses what what word would you put here and again you see that article and you know that the word begins with a vowel sound so an acquittal is when the prosecution they don't prove it Beyond A Reasonable Doubt there was an AC quittal but like I said I gave you my opinion I thought O. J was guilty that I don't want to give it away too

the murderer so hypothetically if the murderer was found then you could say he was exonerated because okay we found the criminal we know for a fact that this person did not commit the crime so that in that case they are exonerated or you could say it's an Exon eration so there is a difference between an acquittal and an exoneration when you're exonerated there is proof that it was definitely not you which is not the same with an aquid how about this phrase right here after a defendant is found guilty they can M and or a request that a higher Court review the decision to determine if it was correct I think this is a phrase that you probably familiar with maybe you've heard it it's very common and I think this happens all the time in the judicial system there is a an initial judgment and if the defendant does not like that judgment they can what this is a and it is a phrase so I'm including it together they M and M so you would want to use it with this verb even though the the last part of this that last word that is the request uh that that some higher Court review it to determine well was this correct were things done by the book was this the right decision I'm a little surprised I guess I thought people uh might be familiar with this again it's a pretty common phrase uh lonel excellent to file an appeal so if the initial judgment comes down and the guilty party the defendant doesn't like it then they can they can file an appeal as long as they didn't represent themselves again I'm not a lawyer but I think people defendants can represent themselves in a court of law and I think if they do that then they lose their right to an appeal but if that's that's another reason why you would want to have a lawyer somebody else representing you so then if there's an issue you can you can try to file an appeal appeal but that is uh the word an appeal and like I said you're often going to use it with that verb to file an appeal how about this when a jury is unable to reach a verdict it's considered a what what would you call this jury they can't reach a verdict and you would call this jury a this is a little more challenging I don't think it's a phrase that you would hear as often especially is talking about filing an appeal because I think that's pretty common in the judicial system but specifically again this is very specific the jury can't reach a decision uh or the jury can't reach a verdict so you would call this a if you're not sure and specifically I'm talking about the jury what would you refer to the jury uh or actually the process I guess you could say I'm talking about if the jury cannot reach a verdict it would be called a hung jury a hung jury maybe that's new hopefully it is so these are the words and phrases that we talked about I told you I broke it into three different parts pre-trial trial and sentencing if you would like to get the lesson notes please uh click on that link down in the description if you're already a part of our community then check your email I think I've sent them to you very quickly because I got to get going actually I have a class right now uh starting in a few minutes how did you do on the quiz okay I'm going to say nailed it um okay and I need whoops um I need a lot more practice this with my courtroom vocabulary but let me know what you think if you enjoyed the lesson and you did learn something new of course I appreciate it you hit that like button that tells me that these vocabulary lessons are helpful I know with this topic it is rather specific but that's a good thing because I think in this case there are many people it's as often in the news if there's a famous celebrity or a politician someone is having legal troubles and they find themselves in the courtroom these are words and phrases that you're going to come across that you could use even if you're having a conversation and they definitely are a bit more advanced I appreciate you guys being here with me today thank you so much for watching the lesson and participating because I love that that is uh this is

uh interactive English after all and just looking at some of these poll results uh yeah I don't again if you said you need more practice that's okay uh the these are challenging words uh have

LESSON 113 OF 749

ADVANCED DENTAL VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello and welcome to today's lesson sorry I had a little bit of a mishap I just spilled water all over myself but that's not very important what we're going to do today is I am going to see just how much vocabulary you know when it comes to the dentist now this is something that I think is very useful because we all do this or at least I think we all should go to the dentist from time to time if you're like me then you probably don't enjoy going to the dentist but I was there a few weeks ago which is what really inspired me to do a lesson and talk about some of this vocabulary now I know that many of you are very proficient some of these words you may already know which is great I'm confident that you'll learn maybe one or two new words that are not as common in just general casual conversation but these are words that are helpful if you go to the dentist and you need to talk about a problem that you're having something going on with your tooth or teeth and yeah let's just go ahead and begin and see how much you know and of course I want you to participate in the lesson write your answer in the in the chat in the comments even if you're watching this later I also want to mention if you would like to get a copy of these lesson notes just click on the link down in the description and you join our email Community if you're already a part of the email Community then I've sent them to you already and you can check your inbox but I will throw that right there in the chat that link but it's also down in the description I like the little

Smiley Emojis all right so let's begin with some well I say must know words and phrases because I think these are very common when you go to the dentist and the dentist is going to be telling you about things you should do or things you need to do so I'm just going to give you the meaning and I want you to tell me the vocabulary word what word are we talking about and in this case we're talking about damage to a tooth's surface I'm having trouble saying tooth's damage to a tooth's surface so this I I kind of maybe giving a little bit of a hint talking about just how common this is but if you go to the dentist and they are checking out what's going on and you have some damage to that surface they may tell you that you have this what are we what are we talking about damage to a tooth's surface and this I don't don't worry don't think too much about the picture um and what I would say I I think the picture maybe makes you think of like a toothache but really what we're talking about is decay all right great job uh L dice yanu um this is a word that could be either a noun or verb the meaning is the same so I gave you a couple of examples down there your teeth have some Decay that is something a dentist might tell you or they could say you know your teeth are starting to Decay that that damage is starting to appear but this is a common verb or noun that you may hear if you're you're at the dentist and they may talk about Decay that's happening all right then we have no I think I think more of you will get this one a damaged area in the the hard surface of your teeth that develop into tiny holes what are we talking about here and again I've already mentioned that this first part these are words and phrases you need to know very common you go to the dentist and especially if you're traveling in uh whether you live in an English-speaking country or you're traveling in an English-speaking country and you may need to go to the dentist this is very useful so if we're talking about a damaged area in the hard surface of your teeth that they develop in you know into these tiny holes in that case we're talking about a cavity and I'm sure that well I don't know I can only speak uh for myself over the years of course I feel like I have had cavities from time to time I I think it's a normal thing that people many people experience when they go to the dentist they they have a cavity all right uh if you have ever had a cavity hit that like button all right that'll let me know kind of give me a sense of okay maybe wow a lot of people have cavities so the next one is think about the the process that we're following okay the dentist says yes there is Decay oh you have a cavity

now we need to treat that cavity what are they going to do this is used to treat a small hole or cavity in a tooth so that small hole again it's just a another cavity is another way of saying it that's that meaning so like I said this is this is actually what the the experience I had a few weeks ago the dentist talked about Decay and there a oh yes there's a cavity and we're going to have to do what we're going to you need a what this is used to treat a small hole in this case we're talk talking about a filling nice Julia Loi well done so once again if you've had a cavity then it's likely that you've also had a filling and this is what it's called in English if you go to the dentist and they may ask you stuff like oh you know when's the how many fillings

do you have or you know they can tell when they look inside your mouth you know how many fillings you've had over the years so again kind of going through that process to DEC cavity filling very common if you go to the dentist so now you can look at the picture the picture accurately represents the the word or words that I'm talking about this is a person who is trained and licensed to clean teeth take dental X-rays and provide related dental services and care this is somebody who works um well at a dentist office it's not the the title is not dentist but it's the other person or people there may be two or three that also work there what would you call this person generally they do the cleaning they take the x-rays this is again what happened when I went in there a few weeks ago I'm not talking about the dentist but the person who I I would say is helping out the dentist and doing some of these other activities what would you call this person I know everybody's thinking like you got dentist in your mind I think a dentist is also somebody who's train to clean teeth take dental X-rays but I'm not talking about that the person who works with a dentist so think about it like at a um Hospital you have a doctor and then the nurse would also take care of patients and help them but it's not a nurse because if we're talking about a dentist well in that case we're talking about a dental hygienist so a dental hygienist is the person who's helping out the dentist they may end up cleaning your teeth they'll do the x-rays so again this is a a good phrase or a good word uh phrase that you could know because it's a job that somebody uh may have and they say yes I am a dental hygienist and you also I mean just like dental school you go to school you have to go to school to become a dental hygienist okay now this is this was actually in a lesson that I did a few weeks ago unrelated to uh the dentist because that is our topic today but this is talking about the last tooth to come in at the back of each side of both both your upper and lower jaw and they are there sometimes they come in a lot I I think often people get them removed I know I had mine removed and we're talking about what and this is sometimes you may have this conversation when people are talking about their teeth when they're especially these teeth in particular we're talking about your what I think you guys probably can guess

this so again the last tooth at the very back and sometimes they don't come in and you don't need to get them taken out but if they do come in and you got to remove your wisdom tooth so you could say you know one would be your wisdom tooth but in general you have wisdom teeth on both sides at the very back of your upper and lower jaw your wisdom teeth well done so again the these are common words this is useful vocabulary dentist decay cavity filling dental hygienist wisdom tooth so the next part that I want to do because we're going to switch it up as we go through the lesson again if you're joining us just write your answers in the chat write your answers in the comments because this is interactive English it's all about participating and practicing your skills

now I want you to identify the pictures simple enough I'm going to show you the picture and I want you to tell me well what what is the word what vocabulary word am I talking about so here's the first one now I yeah I don't want to give it away I think you can look at the picture and tell okay this is what we're we're talking about what what word captures this picture right here it's something that again everybody I think should do the dentist for sure will tell you to do this each day and they say you need to use M or you could use it as a verb you need to M your teeth so the answer is floss nice LLY Manuel uh Julia so floss it can look like this you have those sticks with the the string between there that is the floss or you could it comes in a pack and you just take the floss wrap it around your fingers that's what I do each night and then you floss in between your teeth so like I said it could be a noun and the dentist says you need to use floss or you could use it as a verb to floss to floss your teeth what are these and this is something that uh people like I had them when I was younger and I think it's I I want to say it's fairly common honestly I I don't know I'm a teacher I'm not a dentist but once again when it comes to your teeth when it comes to taking care of your teeth this is something that you you see people have this and generally I think a lot of times when they're younger but even when they're older I've seen people um have these and we're talking about braces yes you have braces eliel Wally

Manuel uh viia great so again hopefully the some of this may be new uh I think a lot of this is pretty common right now when we do that final part I'm pretty sure there's a word or two you you haven't heard of before unless I don't know unless you're a dentist or a dental hygienist then maybe you have what is this uh we're looking at a picture of what right here and what I'm talking about is this liquid right here in the bottle that she's pouring into either the cup or the cap maybe I'm not really sure but she's pouring it in there and then she's well I don't want to give it away she's going to do what but what is she using that is also something that I think people use daily again in order to take care of their teeth and just practice uh good hygiene so we're talking about mouthwash okay she's using mouthwash nice haa yanu Tanya okay excellent then we have this right here now this one may be uh a little trickier what are what's this I I'll go ahead and tell you that these are not real teeth these are fake teeth but people will use them and I think in general older people use these or will have them again that's not always the case but uh in general somebody who's older may have what and this is a picture of them right here I kind of told you what they are they're not real teeth they're fake teeth and you would say that you have what see the answer in there you're right Lolly so we're talking about Dentures so Dentures are just yeah artificial fake teeth but again people have them they need them uh maybe I'm not really again sure what what what would lead to someone getting Dentures but generally speaking older people may have dentures and yes they are not real this is I guess you could say it's a it's a well part of our body it's part of our mouth and I tried to find an image that captures what I'm talking about so what part of your mouth right there she's showing you uh I'm assuming I think that may be a woman in the picture but she's showing you her what what what are those in your mouth and this is one of the reasons why I think people would also use mouthwash they use mouthwash to really have strong healthy what and the word that we're talking about are gums you want to have strong healthy gums and again I think this is more common um than than some of those others gums mouthwash I think these are things you hear all the time you go to the dentist that they tell you things you need to do you need to use floss uh try to use mouthwash I don't know if you'll probably may not be talking about Dentures um it depends on you know where you're at in your life and and the the maintenance that you have uh to do with your teeth but Vicki and Gustaf said they cost $8,000 I did not know that that Dentures were that expensive okay so the next part of this quiz is just complete completing the sentence I'm going to give you the sentence I'll give you the meaning of the missing word and I want you to tell me which word goes in the blank and each sentence there are two of them there are two missing words so the first sentence I was given some M when I had a m I was given some this is a it's the the condition of not feeling pain it's basically going to make the pain go away and they may give you this if you're having a dental procedure that they're worried about okay this is going to cause the patient this may cause some pain so we're going to give the patient some what when I had a so this is the a procedure used to treat infection at the center of a tooth and I do think these words are common and I actually was given some of this uh I have not had this procedure down here I may need it in the future and I am not looking forward to it I think everybody you kind of get that first one again to just take away the pain we're talking about anesthesia but that procedure that somebody may have you're treating getting an infection at the center of a tooth Claudia well claudio well done we're talking about a root canal so I was given some anesthesia when I had a root

canal and I think depending on what you're having done at the dentist they may give you some anesthesia or you may ask for some if you're worried that it's going to hurt and again I think a root canal is kind of a larger problem so in general when you have those cavities those holes you can get a filling but if it's a little more serious which mine is it's heading in that direction the dentist told me that maybe I I may need to get a root canal we'll have to see one thing I want to point out is the pronunciation anesthesia it kind of is pronounced the way it sounds the one thing that can be a little tricky are the two e's because that first e and it's the schw sound it's an unstressed V sound and that next e is the long e because that is the stress syllable that anesia anesthesia so that the the that is the stress syllable so that's why I think it can be a little tricky because both of those E's that first one's the schah the next one is that long e sound anesthesia okay was root canal good all right the next one one they took a m during my m not giving you much help with the context for these sentences so they took a what we're talking about uh an x-ray examination that captures the entire mouth in a single image okay what I I guess I'll go ahead and tell you like what type of X-ray is it so it has uh it's a phrase they took a m during my and this is we're talking about the process used by dentists to carefully review your oral health so this is a general meaning but I'm talking about the process this is what everybody would go in for like once a year you go into the dentist for your what and that is the second part right there the dentists they review your oral health they're checking your teeth to see if there are any problems but once a year you're going to go in for this appointment and that is that that process of them checking carefully so let's go back to the first one uh I'm surprised I thought this one would be I thought these would maybe be a little easier so we're talking about an x-ray again the entire mouth in a single image so in photography you can do this as well you start to the side and you go across and you get everything and if you're putting it in a single image well then that is a Panoramic X-Ray a Panoramic X-Ray and that General checkup you could just say like an annual checkup you do it once a year you could call it it may be called an oral exam a dental checkup an annual checkup there are different words that or phrases that you could use to talk about this just review that a dentist would do to see if there are any problems but maybe you need to go into the dentist and you say look yeah I just need to just come in for a dental checkup and then they know what it is that they want you to do a dental checkup excellent okay here's the next one unfortunately I had a tooth so I needed a root canal we just talked about that after the dentist told me I would need a a so the first one it is a noun I had a tooth we're we're talking about um tooth as an adjective but that noun is a pocket of pus that's caused by a bacterial infection this is a really more of a dental word it's not one that you may end up using in just casual conversation you may it it just depends uh uh but down here I think this is another one that's a little more common when you're talking about that tooth shaped cap it's placed over a tooth it's that that covering so what are we talking about here wow excellent great job uh nice Loi elel nice so that first one we're talking about um a tooth abscess unfortunately I had a tooth abs and maybe you could hear about it because it's not just used when going to the dentist you could use this anytime you're talking about like pus that that kind of builds up um and it's infected I had a tooth abscess so I needed a root canal and then after the dentist told me I would need a crown so a crown is that uh cap that's going to go around that tooth to protect it and you get a c fortunately I've I've never I've only had fillings um I was a little worried when the doctor told me or the dentist told me oh you may need a root canal we'll see but if that's the case then who knows maybe I'll also need uh a crown as well we'll see not looking forward to this I told you I'm not uh I'm not too keen on going to the dentist then we have this uh next sentence the dentist told me I had lost some tooth M because of my teeth once again that first one the protective outer covering of your tooth it's very specific it's not a word that you're probably going to use just talking to your friends whereas people they talk about their teeth they may talk about cavities or fillings or gums or mouthwash uh floss things like that um the the next one's a little more specific specific so maybe it's a new word but this I would say is common and you people would talk about this the the condition in which you Nash or clench your teeth what is that called the dentist told me I had lost some tooth because of M my teeth and yeah if you're doing this then you may lose some of that protective outer covering I always feel like when I say like oh this is a little more difficult word maybe uh it's going to be challenging everybody seems to just oh put it throw it down in there uh it seems like you guys know that which is great so that protective outer covering yes is called enamel well done Sarah book uh Olga great and that condition which I said is common because I think some people do this they have a habit it's it could be a bad habit and you're we're talking about grinding your teeth or clenching your teeth I think more commonly people would use the word grinding you're grinding your teeth sometimes this happens when people are sleeping and they end up grinding their teeth and they damage some of that um enamel now down here I included the medical term for teeth grinding is called bruxism but once again I think overwhelmingly you're talking to someone else even the dentist they may just say you know grinding your teeth or they may ask you have you been grinding your teeth like yeah that's not a good habit

try to you know stop doing that something like that along those lines so those were there were a lot of words in and phrases in today's lesson as I said I think some or many of them you already knew which is it's always great to get that review because this is very practical you wherever you live or you you got you're probably going to go the dentist or if you're traveling especially in english- speaking country and you have a problem uh with your teeth you may need to go to the dentist and these are some useful words and phrases that you may need to use or that you'll hear the the dentist use so once again if you want to get a copy of the lesson notes click on that link down in the description if you're a part of our email Community I'll go ahead and send them to you if you want to review and continue building your vocabulary if you enjoyed the lesson please hit hit that like button that tells me that I should do more of these lessons people are learning a lot and it's always good to build your vocabulary I want to give uh some quick shoutouts thank you uh for joining me today Loi Manuel uh elel Victor Gustav good to see you and yeah I hope that uh with all of these lessons I hope that you just learned something new so have a wonderful day and I will see you next time so long

LESSON 114 OF 749

ADVANCED DRIVING VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you need to know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello welcome to today's lesson we are going to talk about driving vocabulary and the first thing I want to tell you is that if you would like to get a copy of the lesson notes just the notes that you see up here right next to me you can join our community and I will send you them in your email I will send them to your email and if you are already a part of our community check your inbox they have probably already been sent to you but let me go ahead and I'll just throw that in the chat just as a quick reminder so this is something that we do a lot many of many of you get in the car every single day and that's why I want to talk to you about useful and important driving words and phrases that I think you're likely to come across so I want to begin talking about the parts of the car and this this is a quiz lesson so I also want you to participate write your answers in the chat in the comments and also if this is your first time here let me know tell me your name where you're from once again write to me in the chat or the comments I just love hearing from you so I am going to show you the picture and I just want you to tell me the word so here's the first one and I think it's it's evident based on the picture but what what would you call that what what is that in the car you get in sometimes you fix it you you turn it and what is it that you are looking I always got to be careful because I feel like as I talk I really want to just say the word but write that in the chat in the comments and then I will tell you the answer and if you don't know hopefully in this lesson you will absolutely learn something new so we're talking about the rear view mirror so this is your rear view mirror and down here below that on the side it is also a rear view mirror but if I wanted to be more specific I would say that is your side rear view mirror but the one that's really almost right in front of you as you get in the car that you look through quite often that is your rear view mirror excellent Angela talal vincias uh I'll try to throw out some shout outs as I go through the lesson what is that right there uh we're again we're talking about parts of the car and this is well it's going to come up later in a question and I'll when it comes up

I'll I'll mention it but what what is that what part of the car you see that that part right here would be in the front and that would be the back but this is something a part that I I think is a it's good to know and excellent all right seeing some great answers so those well are your bumpers so we're talking about the front like the front bumper or the back bumper uh just in case sometimes people will uh when they when they bump a car they bump into the car with their bumper especially if you're not uh going really fast the next one well done nil Jerry Stellar great job how about this I think again you can look at the picture you know what I'm talking about but do you know what it's called and this actually has a few different names so you could write I'll tell you all of them that I know and I think there is a little bit of a distinction between the US and the UK If you don't know I am from the United States so of course that that's the primary answer that I will give you but there are definitely several different phrases that you could use when describing this thing so I see some great answers I think you guys you guys know these parts of the car I'm talking about the glove compartment that that's what I would call it I would say Hey you know check the glove compartment is there anything in there you may also hear people say storage compartment or I think in the UK it's more common to say glove box I think there are also parts of the US in which people would refer to this as the glove box and I want to say maybe in the Northeast they may say glove box but in general you would say the glove compartment how about this is an easier one I I think you guys know this but I wanted to include it because this is an important word this is a part of the car that you you definitely should know especially if it starts raining and you're driving with somebody and you tell them hey maybe you should turn on your what what are these called because if it is raining it's definitely important that you you have them on because you want to be safe but what what would you call these and I hope that you're thinking of this word or words right here your windshield wiper now I see that some people are saying wipers that's perfectly fine a lot of times people will just call hey are you going to turn on your wipers but if you want it to be a little more specific because that glass glass window is your windshield are everybody's participating I love it love it when that happens okay now let's make it a little more challenging I think as we go through this I want to make it a little more difficult and these are some different driving phrasal verbs so I'm going to present you the sentence uh with the phrasal verb missing and I want you to try to put it in uh put it into context which phrasal verb would you use to complete the sentence that I'm going to give you all right so again if you're just joining us please write your answers in the comments in the chat that's what this is all about uh if you don't know me my name is Wes the channel is interactive English and I want you to participate because this is an interactive lesson I want you to write your answers down and participate in this quiz so the first one you can see the picture and this person might say my car on the side of the road now there are two blanks there so two words of course we're talking about a phrasal verb but how would you complete that sentence and I think this is a common phrasal verb one of the reasons why I put it I noticed as I done lessons and we talk about driving people sometimes just use one word and then I always have to kind of correct well in this context you would say that your car broke down on the side of the road so this person is looking at their car something is wrong my car broke down on the side of the road this is when a machine or vehicle stops working so again a machine could break down as well but generally speaking most of the time when you would use this or hear this phrasal verb being used people are going to be talking about their car and driving and as I mentioned sometimes when I would hear people tell a story and they might just say my car broke on the side of the road and that's when I would detail okay remember it's broke down your car broke down on the side of the road excellent Lolly takayo uh great to see you both nice Eric you guys rock that one all right we're going to get to one that maybe you don't know all right or maybe it's going to be a little more challenging so don't I mean read too much into the picture but he had to wait before he could um of the driveway he had to wait before he could um of the driveway now I guess I maybe you could say it's a three-word phrasal verb which would include of but there's only one you know verb and particle that's going to fit into this sentence nicely so that it uh makes sense and now there are actually there are a couple of different phrasal verbs that you could use and I'll talk about both of them in just a moment but what do you think he had to wait before he could um of the driveway so I told you there's one of two that I think really would fit this sentence and you could use either one so the one that I have is pull out you're going to pull out of the driveway and this is when you're you're moving on to the road now I saw uh some of the people put uh back out and I think that works as well you could back out of the driveway you have the car in reverse and you just back out of the driveway but I feel like if you're talking about more like moving on to the road you're gonna pull out of the driveway well done Rose um talal Angela nice of an association you nailed both of them well done so pull out pull out of back out of either one of those works and you're just moving uh out onto the the road all right here is the next one I I saw some uh different answers with that one so hopefully again maybe you you learned something new or again that makes sense thinking about pull out of back out of in that context this one I do want you to think more about the picture you see because somebody would just say a statement make sure you what and you could use that pink picture as a hint in order to guess the phrasal verb that I'm looking for and this is something that I think yeah you tell people you would you get into the car you would say this to your friend a family member a colleague make sure you what there's a phrasal verb you could see in the picture right there and kind of rambling on so give you a little more time to write your answer that you see the picture of the seat belt and another way of saying this would be hey put on your seatbelt but we're not talking about that instead I'm going to say the same thing but I'm going to say make sure you buckle up to buckle up is when you fasten the belt that keeps you in your seat and you would use this uh car you're on a plane you got to buckle up wear your seatbelt well done great job uh Jerry Ashley

let's see who else we got here Julia Ahmed or Melinda all right well done buckle up so that was the phrasal verb I was looking for that question how about this right here maybe this will be a little more challenging and I know every time I say that I think everybody gets the correct answer the thing about the the situation um I can't believe that car just um so this is a phrasal verb you're going to have that pronoun me in between the verb and the particle we could have had an accident right you didn't have an accident we could have had an accident because the car just um me um so this is something that happens when you're driving you're on the road and it can be frustrating I it's it's not safe it's not a good thing this is when accidents happen if some car just you know zoom and they um

so I I told you that I feel like everybody kind of nailed that one to cut off I can't believe that car just cut me off we could have had an accident it's when you're dry you drive aggressively into the path of another driver and you cut someone off all right if you guys are if you're enjoying the quiz and you're learning something new you can let me know hit that like button that tells me that I should do more of these vocabulary quizzes in the future well done uh Cinderella Cinema Park um Ahmed some names uh I can't read nil talal to cut someone off you're going to drive into their path I told you it's not a good thing how about this one right here what do you think last night I got um by a cop I think this is something that does happen in the United States quite often

if somebody is speeding they run a red light some problem and maybe I'm telling you I'm telling you a story I'm talking about this situation and I say hey yeah last night you know it was terrible I got um by a cop and that picture I think accurately sums that up right there once again you would hear this movies TV shows of course there's a lot of things that involve driving and nice job Edwin higher higherman um Niha talking about the phrasal verb pulled over last night I got pulled over by a cop that's not true it didn't happen but it's happening in that picture right there is when the police would stop uh you're gonna stop your car at the side of the road you're basically gonna pull over but if the cop pulled you over it's like the police is that's the one who made you did this who made you stop your car at the side of the road and you got pulled over but again you could use it just in other another context like oh can you pull over I need to stop at the side of the road and you might have to pull over for a number of reasons here is the next part that I want to do this is we're going through this quickly and I want to see if you can identify these different driving phrases so the first one is right here and for this one I'm really giving you the meaning and I'm just blanketing it blanking out uh the word or phrase that I want you to tell me and again the picture is associated with this meaning so we're talking about a um is when you have a large number of Vehicles close together and unable to move or moving very slowly so when just like that picture when you have all these vehicles they're just close together it's moving slowly or just not moving at all it's a really really annoying situation I imagine most of you would agree with me and I could see the judges everybody talking about this probably you can I feel like I can sense your frustration as well just thinking about this word great job uh we're talking about a traffic jam um nice vancia Jackie Julia mochika uh let's see Oleg a traffic jam is when you have like all these cars close together you're unable to move it's moving slowly and you could use it with verbs like you know stuck you're stuck in a traffic jam and that is a bad situation that I don't think anybody enjoys it can be really frustrating then we have this phrase right here this is informal all right so informally a minor collision between two Motor Vehicles is called a what and you can see I told you I would bring up that uh that word the those bumpers right there that the front bumper of one car has hit or uh the the back bumper of the other car and what would you call this type of accident this minor Collision and I would say it's informal I think it's often used in the U. S I'm not so sure about the UK and I'm gonna wait I'm gonna wait and see if I if it's not it is a car crash but again car crash it could be a range especially I feel like if I think of a car crash I think of something maybe a little more severe this is minor and that's the key word here if we're talking about a minor traffic accident great job Cinderella I saw Rose uh had the first one of an association a fender bender so offender Bender is a minor collision between two vehicles so if somebody were just to casually tell you yesterday I was stuck in traffic I was in a traffic jam it was moving slowly but it just had such bad luck and I I got into a fender bender so if somebody mentions fender bender then you know that it was a minor accident probably that nobody but got hurt it was a fender bender how about uh so yes that's a good good picture of a fender bender right there how about like this uh this pick this guy right here I think it sums up the meaning so the meaning of this phrase I will I'll go ahead and tell you it's a phrase there are two words and I'm talking about anger or violence between drivers often caused by difficult driving conditions is referred to as what and I think again me being from the U. S in the U. S a lot of people have to drive to go everywhere and sometimes there are really bad and annoying driving conditions whether it's a traffic jam maybe someone cuts you off and you have this anger that just overtakes you and you're like this guy just yelling out the window what would how would you refer to that I could see that many of you put the right answer in there we're talking about road rage so that anger or violence between drivers it's referred to as road rage and yes that guy is experiencing some serious serious road rage right there the next one hmm is a time during each day when traffic is at its heaviest I I want to make a little distinction because that picture looks similar to the other one maybe we talked about a traffic jam even though that looks like a traffic jam that's not what I'm talking about the key word here is time like the time of the day so when you use this phrase you're you're talking about this specific time of the day traffic is at its heaviest likely there is going to be a traffic jam in that situation and we're talking about well done uh Angela Lolly Rush Hour so if you want to just refer to that time where most cars are there maybe alongside a road and in line with other parked vehicles so what this car is doing right here what what is that word giving you the meaning up here a method of parking a vehicle alongside a road and in line with other parked Vehicles is called what and this is something when you're driving it's important to learn because people should know how to do this especially if you live in a city you probably have to do this quite often and you are going to need to learn how to what what this car is doing right here is we're talking about parallel parking excellent Manuel Claire Diana nice parallel parking is the act of or the method of parking a vehicle alongside a road and you're really in line with those other cars and you are parallel parking or maybe you need to parallel park quite common if you are driving or you live in a city and you see this all the time but now you know what it's called if this is new for you you see a car they kind of stop next to the other car in front of them and then they back up and they parallel park let's see I'm curious to see how many of you know this one and I think this is this picture's a a good picture uh capturing this phrase a passenger in a car who gives the driver unwanted advice may be referred to as a what so you can see uh in the car maybe she's giving advice that he doesn't really want or he doesn't he want to hear and maybe it bothers him it annoys him but you could say in this context that she is a what and I think maybe the picture is too much of a hint because I see many people throwing in the correct answer and what I'm talking about is you could call that person a backseat driver so if somebody in the car is giving you unwanted advice they're telling you what to do hey go over move them to that Lane right there maybe you should go a little faster slow down a bit you could say that person is a backseat driver they're not driving the car but they're telling the driver what he or she should be doing and you could say somebody's a backseat driver excellent well done you guys I think a lot of you uh got that one so and again I think the picture maybe it makes it a little easier at least I hope so if you would like to get these lesson notes once again click on that link Down Below in the description if you are already a part of our email Community check your email I will send them to you

here's a little bit of review of the words and phrases that we talked about in this lesson different car parts phrasal verbs useful car phrases my hope is always that with these quiz lessons that you learn something new my last question and I'm going to type it in here I just want to know and I'm going to give you a little bit of a poll how did you do in today's lesson um how did you do on the quiz and give you a chance to answer uh I'll say all of them correct all right and uh I got most of them and then the last choice would be okay I need more practice all right which is fair I think if there's something that we're not familiar with it's always good to get a little more practice I told you that my hope is that you always learn one or two new things with these lessons I I do I would I would be familiar with many of these I do think this is a bit more advanced because these are very specific when you're talking about driving if you live in the U. S you probably spend a lot of time in the car if you live somewhere else in Europe or another part of the world you may not spend as much time driving so some of these words and phrases uh may be new all right so uh I I hope that you enjoyed the lesson uh again I hope you learned something well most not I don't have many doesn't seem like many of you got all of them correct and the fact that most of you are like I got most of our I need more practice makes me think that you learn something new and if you did learn something new and enjoyed the lesson please hit that like button that's all I have for you today have a wonderful

LESSON 115 OF 749

ADVANCED FLYING VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you need to know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello and welcome to today's lesson we are going to talk about some Advanced flying vocabulary and the first thing I want to say is that this vocabulary is very specific it's all about travel now if you are someone who flies often then you may not think well oh this is not that advanced I've heard these words and phrases before and I think that's great and then in that case you'll just get a little review but I say there Advance because you know some people fly a lot others don't fly very often but if you get on an airplane you go to the airport this is vocabulary that I think is useful and you may come across from time to time and I also want to let you know that if you would like to get a copy of the lesson notes these notes right here then check out the link down in the description you can join our email

community and I you can access the notes and from from time to time I will send you notes if you're already a part of the community check your inbox I have sent them to you uh for those of you who don't know me my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals and let's let's begin this is an interactive quiz so I want you to participate let's start out with uh you know talking about the airplane different parts different areas of a plane and I'll well I'll show you the picture and let you know give you information the definition down there and I want you to write your answer in the chat in the comments I want you to participate in the lesson that's what it's all about these are these are this is active learning so what would you call the compartment for the pilot in an aircraft there are actually well a couple of different words or phrases that you could use I think this part is will start out a little easy or easier and then we'll get a little it'll get a little more challenging as uh we go through this so the compartment for the pilot in an aircraft is called the cockpit or you could say flight deck either one of those works great job uh SSI excellent great to see you uh fatty acid slana Lazaro excellent so uh I'll give a few shout outs here and there as we go through this so you could say either the cockpit or refer to it as the flight deck if you are flying on an airplane and they make an announcement uh the flight attendants you may hear them use flight deck and they say that phrase the next one if you're you on a plane I'm sure you've seen this part of the plane before not many many of you may not have been into in the cockpit pit uh but if we're talking about the section of an aircraft of a plane where the passengers travel what would you call that section this section right here you get on the plane you go find your seat you sit down but that whole area that section is referred to as what I feel like some of you probably fly quite often you're like oh I know these you're gonna you're gonna uh pass this quiz with flying colors but like I said it's always good to get review and I I think there probably will even if you fly a lot there's going to be something new today at least that's my hope so uh as many of you have said in the chat you would call this the cabin so the area where people sit uh where the passengers travel they will call this the cabin and you will when you get on the plane they'll make an announcement you will definitely hear this word well done uh Julia uh Angela excellent the next one how about this right here I I'm not I know we're still it's we're in the cabin but I'm really referring to this specific this place above the seats where you can store luggage you have your bag you put it up there and then you can close it what uh excuse me what uh what would you call this it actually has a few different names and I'll accept um all of them so what what would you say then again the I think this is useful you you're on a plane you're people are going to talk about this um so one of the key words in here would be overhead so you're going to use overhead and then I would follow it with either well one of other one one of three words um but they would say overhead because it is it is over your head where you're sitting so the answer is well I told you one of three you guys uh I think you guys got it so you could say the overhead compartment I know a lot of people I just saw you putting in compartment there sorry excuse me overhead bins or even overhead storage all right either uh any one of those phrases works and this is something that we were I was traveling yesterday with my wife and we were talking about hopefully there's enough room in by the time we board the plane hopefully there's enough room in the overhead compartment so we can put our bags up there excellent great job uh Vicki Gustaf good to see you nice um the

don't know do I have another picture are we moving on to a different part of this yes this is the I think the last part of this well this part of the quiz and then we'll uh look at something else I have a little bit of a story to tell you and we'll do some fill-in the blanks but how about um this right here these are seats directly behind the interior dividing wall that separates cabins so there are different cabins when you board the plane you have well economy or first class and there may be this dividing wall now the seats right right next to the dividing wall right here what would you refer to these seats as and there's really well I I don't want to give it away and this is a part of the plane to be honest I I've heard some people enjoy sitting here at this at these seats right here I don't personally I don't really like it um the answer is not the aisle because there are many uh there are many aisle seats on a plane these specifically that are behind that dividing wall what you know that's that area what kind of seats would you call those write your answers in the chat in the comments I just want you to participate practice build your vocabulary so the the seats right here the dividing wall is called the bulkhead Rich chub rby nice so the the seats would be like it's bulkhead seating so if somebody if I were sitting in this seat and somebody were ask me oh how was your flight where did you sit and I was like yeah it was a you know bulkhead then that basically means those are the seats that are right behind that dividing wall so that wall that dividing interior wall is called like that is the bulkhead so if we're talking about the seats you could say bulkhead seating or some people might just say bulkhead um but just keep that in mind there are different well there there may be several different Dividing Walls several bulkheads um on the plane depends how large it is so now I want you to complete the sentence I'm actually going to tell you a story we were traveling I don't want to say yesterday maybe it was two days ago it was a long flight and the first part of this and as we go through these are all different words and phrases related to Flying um yesterday or I guess I could say maybe two days ago again it's all blurring together yesterday we took an M flight from San Francisco to Budapest it's a true story now there are different different words that you could fill in there and there's really one specific that I'm looking for and the picture it's a little bit of a hint another hint um there is that that article an so that tells you that the next word begins with a vowel sound and I told you there are several several words that you could fill in there so there are quite a few answers that you could uh put put in there but you'll you'll see where I'm going with this when uh um when I show you what the the answer that I'm looking for yesterday we took an flight from San Francisco to Budapest I see a lot of people saying International that is true you could that works it is an international flight but that's not uh what I'm going for uh some people said direct flight actually I wish I wish that it were a direct flight it was not a direct flight but you could say uh

maybe an indirect flight but that's also not the answer I was looking for uh I heard people put some people put in a red eye yes but what I was actually going for was an overnight flight so in overnight flight this is also informally called a red eye so we took an overnight flight and I tried to give you a picture you see that it's dark outside uh we took an overnight flight from San Francisco to Budapest again true story this is a flight that it departs at night and arrives the next day it's an overnight flight pretty much means what it says but informally and I think this is actually more common in the United States people may refer to this as a red eye that you fly overnight you get in the next morning to you arrive at your destination and you were on the red eye and they call they call it this because if you don't sleep much maybe your your eyes uh can be a little red and that's why they would call these flights a red eye uh so yesterday that's true we took an overnight flight from San Francisco to Budapest now our flight from San Francisco to Budapest it was not a direct flight it was an indirect flight and we had to Frankfurt what what what phrase are you going to use I've gone ahead and told you that this is a phrasal verb we had to M Frankfurt what do you think so this is a phrasal verb that you would use when you know you're flying it's not it's not a direct flight and what would you use see some uh good answers um so you I I know what you mean transfer if you're actually going to use transfer that's not a phrasal verb you would need to follow it with a a particle and you would still you would use it you could say transfer but you need to follow it with another particle uh stop over no I see some people lay over no so the phrasal verb that we're talking about because that would uh that would complete the sentence now of course I could say we had to stop in Frankfurt but that's not what we're that's not what I'm looking for so the the phrasal verb that I'm talking about is wow it's surprised nobody nobody got it connect through so we were connecting through Frankfurt some people put transfer that would work but again you would want to use through as well you're going to transfer through Frankfurt actually flying and this may be more American English I'd say it's probably a little more common to say connect through instead of transfer through both of them would work but if you connect through this is when you train you change from one plane to another in turbulence and once again you're on a plane the you hear these announcements this is a word listen for it you experience turbulence this is when they're I give you the meaning down here it's an Abrupt these are abrupt uh caused by abrupt irregular movements of air that create a sharp quick up the sharp quick updrafts and downdrafts so basically the plane is just shaking and there is some turbulence and sometimes it's pretty mild other times it can be it can be intense actually we had uh one period on the flight that yeah it lasted for like 20 25 minutes uh and it was uh yeah it was a little intense uh so we experienced some turbulence and I felt a little uneasy now while in Frankfurt we had a three-hour you can see these people sitting there uh on those chairs kind of just chilling out and again this is this is true I'm kind of using these words and phrases to talk about my flying experience from San Francisco to Budapest uh so as you as you can tell yes I'm back in Hungary we're back home uh and we're still I'm still maybe take another week before we get back onto our to our regular schedule uh we don't often have these Friday lessons but while in Frankfurt we had a three-hour what and I I'm going to actually talk about two different words and talk a little bit about the difference so well done Julia Allen we're talking about a layover while in Frankfurt we had a three-hour layover so a layover is a period of rest or waiting before a further stage in a journey and you could use a layover when talking about any type of travel whether it's planes or trains uh it doesn't really matter you just have this waiting period and then you continue I think overwhelmingly people use it when talking about flying now some of you had put in stopover so there is a difference between layover and stopover and let's talk about that right now layover versus stopover so the main difference is that really just the length of time so you can see right there it says stopover rules vary by Airline but are essentially longer layovers at least 24 hours in length layovers meanwhile are connections less than a day in length depending on if you're flying domestically or internationally so generally I well I think most of the time people are going to have a layover if they are connecting through you know one or more cities a stopover is a longer period of time sometimes think if you have a stopover you may go into the city do some sightseeing and then you come back to the airport because it is longer it's a day could be two days and some people like to travel this way but just keep in mind yes there is a slight difference between layover and stopover most of the time you're going to talk about layover two-hour layover three- Hour 4 Hour 5 hour layover so why when we were traveling we were really tired we were really tired especially because we were lugging around several M bags to to Lug something is you're you're carrying something and it's kind of difficult um and you would say you're lugging this around a lot of times people use this verb when talking about suitcases cuz they're heavy so we were really tired especially because we were lugging around several M bags so I want you to think you can see this bag right here when you're traveling what the bags that you take with you what would you call those bags kind of telling you right now what would you call those bags generally I think each person can bring one some Airlines uh let you bring more or it depends on the status you have with the airline and I see a lot of people know this one where I'm talking about yes the carry-on bags so the carryon bags the ones that you would take with you on the plane we each had one um my I had one my wife Emmy and we also had three personal bags and also traveling with Emmy it's a little challenging so we were having to carry her at certain points as well but a carryon is the luggage that can be brought on board plane and stowed in the cabin you put these up in the overhead compartment or the overhead bins your carry-on bag well done all right and now uh this one I think I saw this in the chat before because of the time difference we have serious and this is I'm I have I feel like this right now because it's it's 2 o'clock in the afternoon and I am exhausted I could probably go to sleep right now but I need to fight through it stay up and try to uh get used to the the time now because there's a big time difference I think nine hours between San Francisco and Budapest and because of that right now I have yes jet lag great job uh Whitney Sam Julia lar perfect so jet lag is extreme tiredness could have other physical effects felt by a person after a long flight across different time zones so we have like a 9h hour difference this morning actually wasn't too bad I woke up at I think 5:30 in the morning hopefully tomorrow I don't know I'm expecting I'll probably get up around 4 or five we'll we'll see I'm going to bed early but I'm going to try to stay up and hopefully this won't last maybe more than a couple of days few days we'll see now uh Le let's talk about if you're at the airport I'm going to show you a picture and I just want you to tell me what is it what are we looking at so here's your first one I think these some of these are easy some of them are a little more difficult so at an airport these are not carry-on bags you might check your bag and it goes under the plane um or under the cabin and then you're going to pick up the bag where where would you go pick up this bag what would you call that area these this is a phrase that you will see on signs throughout the airport if you are trying to pick up your luggage now I heard a luggage carousel that is what the this machine this conveyor belt would be called what would you call that area so that the plane and you may use those I know I definitely use them here when we fly in and out of Budapest but there are a couple different words that you could use I think it has a couple of different names but what would you say what is that right there write your answer in the chat or even in the comments I just want you to participate get involved in the lesson see some where's my passport I don't know it's a good question I know I have mine I made sure to really keep up with that yesterday so this right here this this ramp that passengers would use to either board the plane or when they're disembarking you could call that the gang way or the jetway this walkway or platform that provides safe access to the plane the gang way way or the jetway so maybe this I don't know if this is new for you that's great uh if you learn something new today that's all that I hope for here's an easier one that uh that that that strip right here that runs all the way from the bottom of the picture all the way to the top what is that called that you see the plane on there it's getting ready to go down the what I I think you guys know this but it is another uh if we're at the airport yes you you will see these if you're flying on the plane the plane's going to go down the the answer I'll just go ahead and give it to you because I think you guys know it is the runway well done hardi Julia asai sum uh perfect so the runway is the this hard level roadway and other or other surface from which the aircraft take off and on which they land that is the runway

now something else that's well this may be a little more difficult we'll see but this picture right here what would you call that the ground here so the runway is where the plane goes and then it's going to take off what about the ground here in this picture so I'm not talking about the terminal right there and the gates and you can see those other jetways that are go across and connect to the airplanes talking about the ground where these planes are parked what would you call that this is a little more difficult it's not a word or phrase that you may need to know but again the goal is to to learn something new remember I'm not talking about the terminal there the building that you see I'm talking about the ground that paved ground and there are actually couple of different answers all right see good so in general well what I was I think what it's commonly called especially in the US even though it may not be is the tarmac it's like the parking lot for airplanes so this is the area of an airport where airplanes taxi that is a verb that you could use to taxi is when the plane it it starts to take off and the plane is leaving from the gate going out to the runway in order to take off so you would call this the tarmac where think of it as like I said the parking lot for airplanes well done uh uh Vicky Gustaf nice said taxi way I I think maybe that would work I I haven't really heard that much I feel like taxiing is used more as a verb that the plane is getting ready to taxi uh the one thing I wanted to say because I heard saw one answer in there ramp ramp would also work because this part is also called um like the apron the airport apron or the airport ramp and something that you may or may not know I actually didn't know this it says an airport apron or ramp is sometimes incorrectly referred to as the tarmac which basically means any pave Serv including the runway Landing Strip air strip and taxi way oh there it is taxi way all right the apron at airports often paved uh the apron at airports are often paved with concrete not tarmac so even though it's called many people will call it the tarmac I would that the airport Aon mostly concrete or asphalt tarmac it comes from the that there was tar used uh in making that ground a lot of the way the roadways um have it in there I think it just makes it a little more uh rain resistant so that's why it says it's incorrectly referred to as the tarmac because most of the time at the airports they they don't use tar when they are making those um runways but again at this point like I said most of the time people are going to refer to that area that airport parking lot as the tarmac okay so hopefully uh this made sense personally I've actually never used apron before the airport apron I might say ramp um and somebody else said mentioned taxi way yes that works as well so here is a little review these are the different words and phrases that we were talking about in this lesson a lot of different vocabulary all related to flying again I said it's Advanced vocabulary but if you are somebody who flies often maybe it didn't feel too advanced to you and I I completely understand but I would like to know how you did on the quiz so I started this little poll I'm always curious to see how you guys performed on this let it lets me know if I should probably make it a little more difficult or maybe even a little easier in the future and if you enjoyed the lesson and learned something new I would really appreciate it if you hit that like button uh it tells me that uh you enjoy these interactive quiz well not too many of you seems like uh just by looking at the results not too many of you rocked it uh and I some of these were definitely a little more difficult than others for example talking about the gang way or the jetway or the tarmac uh or the galley the part of the plane th those can be a little more challenging but in general seems like a lot of you did really well I really appreciate you guys being uh here with me today I apologize for the inconsistencies with the days and the times it's only because of the travel and in the coming weeks we're going to get back to the the regular Wednesday lessons I don't know if we'll do it next week I may have it Thursday just to space things out we'll see but I'll make an announcement and let you guys know but I hope that you enjoyed the lesson learned something new and of course I will see you guys again in the future thank you for joining me just some last minute shout outs Vicky Gustav great to see you uh SSI uh nice tal Julia Sam Angela Cly thank you uh hope you guys enjoy the upcoming weekend and of course I will see you again

LESSON 116 OF 749

ADVANCED HEALTH VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you need to know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

This is an incredibly important topic because we're talking about health. This is something that we discuss all the time with friends, colleagues, family members, and I I really want to go deep and talk about some advanced vocabulary when it comes to both physical and mental health. We're going to look at some idioms, individual words, useful phrases. And before we begin, if you are interested, if you're someone who likes building your vocabulary, practicing, and improving your speaking skills, check out the link in the description if you would like to join my speaking course. It's for upper intermediate to advanced speakers. And the course is all about helping you speak confidently, speak clearly, and speak naturally. So, click on that link down below if you'd like to learn more or join the course.

And yeah, I hope to speak to you soon. So, let's go ahead and get going because I I there's a lot that I want to cover. I actually have quite a few words and phrases that I want to go over. And we're going to start with some idioms. Idioms that are related to health in one way or another. Of course, I want you to participate and write your answers in the comments in the chat because after all, this this is interactive English. This is what this is what you're supposed to do. This is my expectation. So, I'm giving you part of the idiom. Uh, it's not good to keep things m up.

If you're having problems, you should talk about them. So, there's one word missing. You can see that the part of the idiom is up. It's not good to keep things m up. If you're having problems, you should talk about them. So, what what phrase are we talking about that would fit this context? And yeah, this is one that I feel like you would often use. It is an idiom. So, I think it is a little more uh often used in casual conversation, but still one that I think is useful. One that you can use in casual conversation, especially if somebody is going through a tough time and they're, I don't know, they're keeping things in their anger, their frustration, and you say, "Hey, it's not good to keep things bottled up." I saw a couple answers. Perfect. Excellent. Well done. If you're having problems, you should talk about them. So, in this case, we're talking about to bottle something up. And that means to suppress or hide emotions. This is something that, to be perfectly honest, we can all relate to this. I I think at one point or another, something's happened. We've had some emotional distress and we just bottle things up. It's not a good thing.

It happens. And that's why I said I feel like this is one that you could certainly use in conversation. and you're talking to someone and you're talking about yourself and yeah, I just bottled things up or talking to someone else. Hey, don't you shouldn't bottle things up. Here are a couple example sentence sentences. I just want to give you a little more context so that it it has you have a better understanding, especially if this is new. If you keep bottling up your anger, it might eventually explode at the wrong time. I think that's true. So, to bottle something up, very good phrase. All right, let's keep going. I saw some uh great answers in there, especially All right, from our members, Lai Kevin, uh good to see you. How about uh what do you think about this one?

After crying for a while, she m together and face the situation. So I gave you two of the the mm to indicate that there are two missing words and the final word in this idiom this phrase is together. Think about the context. After crying for a while she m together and faced the situation. So, this is another one that I feel like is often used because we're in these situations where there whether you're you're crying, uh you're sad, you're really angry, there's a lot of emotion. And I'm kind of giving you a hint. That is a key word when thinking about this phrase, emotion. And I see some people like put yourself, not put yourself together.

You're close. You're on the right track. So, in this case, we're talking about the phrase to pull yourself together. She was able to pull herself together and face the situation. So, if you were to use it or you're telling someone else, look, you need to, you know, you need to pull yourself together. In that case, you're talking about regaining control of your emotions, whether it's sadness, anger, uh, and any, it really it would be more of a negative emotion and you're trying to tell someone, "Get control. Pull yourself together." Or maybe you're talking about yourself. I need to pull myself together. Keep in mind, we are going to use that reflexive pronoun, myself, himself, herself, yourself to pull yourself together. just because I thought this was a humorous picture right here like this this cat uh sitting there nonchalantly just saying hey pull yourself together that you know the cat has it under control emotionally then yeah I think uh telling the other person pull your pull yourself together so one thing to keep in mind is pull yourself together is talking about emotion there's another phrase that sounds similar is to get your act together to get your act together is more about getting organized and doing things efficiently and effectively.

Sometimes I hear people confuse those two. So, pull yourself together is more emotion. Get your act together is more organization. Let's keep going because I I told you I have quite a few words and phrases that I want to share with you today because this topic is it's very important but there's a lot to discuss when it comes to our health. What do you think about this? Sorry, I forgot. I've got on right now. So, there is uh there are a few words missing. And I think I I would not be surprised if uh there is another phrase idiom that would fit, but I don't think it would be the best in this situation.

We're talking about health. But again, maybe so I I don't I'll leave it there to give you a moment to think about this idiom. Sorry, I forgot I've got on M right now. So, I'm giving you part of the idiom. Hopefully, it makes it a little easier to think of the phrase that I'm referring to in this context. Somebody forgets something. What would you say? I mentioned that there's probably one of two responses at least that I can think of right now, but the one that I I'm trying to lead you towards as far as forgetting something and that would be the the primary thing that we're referring to in that case like uh I've got a lot on my mind right now. The other idiom when when you got a lot on your mind in this case you're you're talking about you're mentally preoccupied and when that happens you forget something you you just we're talking about in this case like mental health you got a lot on your mind and you're just preoccupied the other phrase which I'm seeing right now yes when you get a lot on your plate that would all that would fit in that sentence and sometimes if you have a lot on your plate you forget things But when you have a lot on your plate, we're talking that's more, you know, you're busy. There's a lot of different things going on, uh, and you got a lot of work or other responsibilities. You got a lot on your plate. It's really about being busy. Whereas, when you got a lot on your mind, then you're just preoccupied.

You're worried about things that could be related to finance or uh, family issues. And in that case, I think it does cause this, you know, mental stress. And you could say you got a lot on your mind. You're thinking about a lot of things. So there is a difference between those two phrases to have a lot on your mind or have a lot on your plate. But both of them would work in that sentence. To give you a couple more examples with this uh phrase right here, I've had a lot on my mind lately with work deadlines and family issues or he couldn't focus during the meeting because he had a lot on his mind. So just keep in mind the distinction between those two. When you have a lot on your mind, you're just thinking about a lot of different things, not necessarily the things you have to do to make you busy, which would be more you have a lot on your plate. Okay, so I hope that makes sense the distinction between those two. And let's let's keep going. Let's move right along with the next one. What do you think? Uh this is one that well I don't want to he hasn't been getting much sleep so lately he has had a really short there is one word missing and the idiom this is a well a phrase two-word phrase a short so if somebody's getting not they don't get a lot of sleep lately you can think of this picture right here this person seems really angry they're not they're not getting a lot of sleep and because of that maybe it just causes them to get angry. I feel like I would uh get angry too if I were having to use a rotary phone from from decades ago. So there once again there are a couple of words that work. Now you could say somebody has a short temper. That's perfect. That that works. That means the same thing. The other word that I was thinking of means the same as short temper, which is more of an idiom, is to have a short fuse. So whether you said short fuse, short temper, they're interchangeable. They both work. But the idiom, if somebody has a short fuse, it just means that they have a tendency to get angry quickly, they lose their temper quickly. But in this case, short temper, short fuse, they mean the same thing. So, generally you're going to use it with the verb have to have a short fuse.

And I thought this is a good way to remember it, this little comic right here, because you can kind of visualize where this comes from. And you have this couple there. They're both bombs. And he says he always has a short fuse. So, think about like that that bomb. The fuse is the time that you would typically have before the explosion. And if there's a short fuse, then it's going to go quickly before that explosion happens. So just as a visual reference when it comes to this phrase to have a short fuse and you get angry quickly. I imagine again this is something that we can all relate to. Try to make an association of a time when you maybe had a short fuse. You were frustrated. Maybe you had a lot on your mind and you just had a short fuse and you got angry quickly.

What about this one right here? Um, despite his age, he's fit. Now, they're actually there's two blanks, but they're actually more words. There are three missing words. And this is an idiom. It's an expression that you would use to talk about, well, I don't if I give you the meaning, then I'm giving you too many hints. But can you think of an idiom that begins with the word fit? And in this context again, we're we're kind of using it as a compliment. So it has a positive connotation. And I see some great answers. I think once it uh comes in then yes. Yes. Everybody's like, "Oh yes, I know the answer." Uh well done.

Um Lai Gunara uh Miranda fit as a fiddle. So, this is an expression or an idiom that you can use when talking about somebody's physical fitness and you're just saying they're in good health, that you are fit as a fiddle. Now, it doesn't necessarily you have to use this for people that are older. You can, but really just commenting on anybody's health and saying that yes, they're in really good health, fit as a fiddle. So, one thing I'd like to point out because we're using as this is a simile. We're making a comparison. Now, with simileies, you could use like or as. In this case, you wouldn't use like.

You wouldn't say fit like a fiddle. This, think of this as more of an idiom. It's a fixed expression. Fit as a fiddle. Somebody's fit as a fiddle. You just ran a marathon. You must be fit as a fiddle. Despite working long hours, he manages to stay fit as a fiddle with daily workouts. I would like to think that I am fit as a fiddle, but that's just uh it's just not true. Uh, I'm not fit as a fiddle. I would like to be. I'm trying to be. So, what do you think? Uh, here's the next one. After a few weeks of rest, this is like, think about the doctor is saying this to you as the patient. You have some injury and the doctor saying after a few weeks of rest, you will be m on again. There's more than two words missing. I don't know why I didn't put to all the the individual spaces but there there is uh we're going to use on.

So you will be on on in no time. Now a key indicator or something to help you think of that final phrase in no time. This is a collocation with the idiom you will be m in no time. So, what idiom are you going to use in this situation? You're injured and the doctor says, "Look, you just need to get some rest, but then you'll be m on in no time." Look at the picture because I'm using that to try to give you a little bit of a hint. And in this case, I don't see no I don't see any answers just yet. The the phrase the idiom that I'm talking about is back on your feet.

You'll be back on your feet in no time. So when you say somebody is going to be back on their feet, it means that they're going to recover from an illness or or some trouble. So it nec it doesn't necessarily mean that you have to have an injury to your foot. Maybe you have some illness and because of that you have to stay in bed and get a lot of rest. you could still use this and say, "Look, I hope uh you'll probably be back on your feet next week and you'll feel much better and you recover from this illness or injury." To give you a little more context with this, I thought I'd share some news headlines with you.

Let's see if you understand the first one. It's supposed to be it's a it's just a joke. So, the first headline is podiatry team getting you back on your feet. All right, very hilarious pun. So, uh podiatrist is a foot doctor. So, they're trying to use this idiom to make a joke, saying that the foot doctor is, of course, going to get you back on your feet. And then the next uh headline, four steps to get back on your feet financially after identity fraud. I chose this headline because I wanted to share with you that it can be used in other examples as well. when you think of recovering from something an illness or trouble of course we think of our health but you could also think about well one's financial health and it also can be used in that context like you something happened you know financially it's like look I you know I need to get back on my feet and recover from this trouble this issue so well let's let's keep going I forget how many idioms I I have because then I'm going to move into some other different topics. But what do you think?

I've been feeling m lately from all the travel. In this case, I'm not giving you any word because I feel like if I did, it would just make it incredibly easy. Uh, but what do you think? What phrase would fit here? And there are probably quite a few different well words that you could use when you're trying to express this. you've been feeling m lately from all the travel. So, if somebody's traveling a lot, they're probably feeling extremely tired. And in this case, you could say you've been feeling lately from all of your travel. Of course, you could use a word like exhausted. That works. uh drained and but that a phrase that has a similar meaning and we're talking about one that you would use when talking about health.

Um worn out that I mean that would work. That's not the phrase that I'm thinking of. Under the weather that might happen, but under the weather is more uh you're getting sick. That's that's not the one I was thinking of. But again, the there are multiple words or phrases that could fit this situation. what I was thinking of um or what the one I want to share with you is run down. So again, I saw a lot of answers like exhausted, jet lag, burnt out, those all work. Uh because this is what happens when if you're traveling a lot, you're tired, you're exhausted. But rundown is another phrase that you can use that means you're just feeling very tired or exhausted and you feel run down. Here are some examples.

he was so run down from stress that he caught a cold. Or I always feel rund down at the end of the semester and you're just exhausted. So think of this phrase more as a synonym for really exhausted and really tired and you just feel rund down. So here here is the last idiom actually and then we're going to move on to the next part. This is one that maybe maybe this is new for some of you, maybe not. I feel like every time I say that then I see all these answers in the chat u and everybody's they get the right response. He had to go mthem to repair his shoulders. So, we're talking about an idiom that includes the verb go and then a missing word the another missing word repairing the shoulder. Look at the picture. The picture should help because that's basically what the idiom means and what is happening. So he had to go mthem to repair his shoulder. So in this picture you can see that some um individual is having surgery. So in that case I'm basically giving you a major hint. What idiom could you use that means the same thing to have surgery? Of course, you could say I I mean you had to undergo surgery to repair his shoulder. That works. But there's another there's an idiom that means the same thing to undergo surgery. It is an idiom. So it's more casually used. And yes, the answer to go under the knife. So if you are telling somebody like next week I got to go under the knife and they're going to, you know, do something, you're basically just saying you're going to have surgery to go under the knife. I feel like in this is one that you're not probably going to use as often. I feel like when people are talking about surgery, it is more serious and they may choose a little more formal phrases like to undergo surgery in in that case I think would probably be more commonly used because idioms are more casual. But uh

if you want to use another idiom that means the same thing to go under the knife. Here is again just to give you a little uh visual context. This is a comic for Halloween. It's a Halloween comic. And he says, "I went under the knife. Do you like it?" And he had that surgery and now he is a jacko'lantern. So, let me know. We're going to keep going. But if you if you learn something new, a new idiom, let me know. Let me you can hit a heart or a like or something in the comments right there. And that way I know you're you're building your vocabulary. You're learning new words and phrases. Just because you get exposed to an idiom for the first time, I don't expect you to remember it. It's all about getting exposure, learning the word, tr seeing how it's used in context and then slowly making, you know, changing it from your passive vocabulary to uh to making it active vocabulary, putting it up here in your active memory. Let's talk about some common acronyms when it comes to health. So, the first one, again, this is fill-in-theblank. It is just one acronym that is missing. People with m often struggle with focus, but many also show remarkable creativity and energy. I'm giving you the meaning essentially when I give you this example sentence. So, what acronym would you use? And then I'll tell you the answer and I'll actually tell you what the acronym means and uh again give you some more examples. So these I think are highly useful and and commonly used when people are having discussions about health or talking about some someone else and what they're going through. So people with what this condition often struggle with focus but many also show remarkable creativity and energy. What do you think? I'm actually this is I think a very common acronym when it comes to one's health. So, I'm surprised I'm not seeing any answers in there. Just Okay, now they now they're now they're coming in. Perfect. So, yes, you guys you guys are right. ADHD, that is the acronym that I'm referring to. And this is something that I said it's it's common because I think a lot of people experience this and it's not like again I'm not a health care professional. It's I don't feel it's like it's either you have it or you don't. It is a little a bit of a spectrum. So you could be on like the low end of having ADHD or some it could be more severe for some people. It stands for attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and it's characterized by inattentive hyperactivity and impulsivity. I I I'm confident and again I I'm sorry I don't know all of you personally but I imagine that you know somebody who who has ADHD. I know I can think of a bunch of people just off the top of my head that I've met that are have a a some level of ADHD and I imag that's why I said I imagine you do as well. So this is a very common acronym that you're going to hear and you'll hear people talk about it a lot. You're not going to hear people use really attention deficit. They may say attention deficit disorder but it's most of the time people are just going to say ADHD. Uh, I think overwhelmingly that is the acronym they're going to use. I thought just to just to keep it light, I thought these were um a little humorous. ADHD, your secrets are safe with me because there was a good chance that I wasn't listening.

ADHD. How about this one? This is another, I think, common one. Many veterans return home with Mhm. this acronym requiring long-term support and therapy. So most of the time I feel like it's used in this context when we're talking about um soldiers who have gone off to war and uh it it affects people profoundly and deeply and then they come home and they experience what what what acronym fits in here. So, I I told you that I think overwhelming you'll hear it in this context when talking about people that were in the military that served uh you know in some capacity and were in war and they may return home with PTSD. So, PTSD, as I think some of you already wrote in there, you you beat me to it.

Um post-traumatic stress disorder. It is a condition caused by experiencing or witnessing a traumatic event. Now I I told you that I feel like often you'll hear it in the context of uh veterans or soldiers who are in war. It does not mean that you you it has to be it has to involve some type of war. There are numerous trauma traumatic experiences, traumatic events in which somebody could then have experience PTSD and develop this. So, it doesn't have to be war. I just want you to keep that in mind. It's really this condition caused from well it could be a number of traumatic events but it would be something that would be I'm really emphasizing the word traumatic because that is what uh it would uh it would entail. So here is the next one. The doctor scheduled an to get a clearer image of the patient's brain. Once again, I think you'll know this because this is something that's common and I think obviously an acronym that you should know if you go to the doctor. This is something you may need. And I don't know if you need to communicate in English, but if you're in a situation where you do, this is a great acronym to know. So, you kind of have an idea of what the meaning is, a clear image of the patient's brain, and you schedule N. The other key word here is that we're using the article N uh which tells you that the vowel sound of this acronym is going well the acronym is going to begin with a vowel sound. So the acronym that we're referring to is an MRI. The scheduled an MRI which stands for magnetic resonance imaging. And this is again, it's an acronym that you're going to use. You're not often going to hear people use the individual words. They're just going to say MRI. This medical imaging technique used to visualize internal body structures. But again, one that comes up quite often, even if you're not in the doctor and you're telling somebody about this treatment that you had or you uh had to get an MRI or you knew someone else that needed to get an MRI. So, keep that in mind. This is a good acronym. I I feel like in a way, all of these acronyms are fairly common and hopefully you're familiar with most of them. If you are, again, let me know. Hit that like button. It tells me that uh that that this is a good reminder if you've learned this before and just to bring these words and phrases back up uh and hopefully you're learning some new ones as well. The M is equipped to handle patients with life-threatening conditions. So in this case we're talking about well I'll give it away like to handle patients with life-threatening conditions. This is a part of the hospital and you're handling patients with life-threatening conditions and I would say the ER stands for emergency room. I guess it would fit in this. I'm thinking after after you go to the ER, which is where you may go under the knife and have surgery, but if you have to stay in the hospital, then you may they may keep you in this part of the hospital where you are have this life-threatening condition and this is the area where those people these patients may stay. And I think a lot of you again you got it um the ICU it stands for the intensive care unit.

This is an acronym that you may hear people say the individual words and they say, "Well, they, you know, so and so was in the intensive care unit or they were in intensive care." Or you could just say the ICU, a hospital unit that provides treatment for critically ill patients, the ICU. This is I I'm curious with some of these I'm always curious to see how people respond if you actually know them. This is probably one that I feel like is a little more difficult than the other ones because it is well, we're referring to a specialist here. I'll go ahead and tell you. So, if you're having issues with your sinuses, you should probably go see an what what acronym? What specialist would you go see? I've already told you that this is a medical specialist.

And if it's problem with the sinuses sinuses, then this is the specialist that you would make a doctor's appointment with and you would go in and see them. Of course, this person is a doctor, but it is a a again, you would say they're a specialist and what do you think? So, problems with the sinus or with your ears as well as with your throat, that would be the specialist that you would go see because they're really they're really all connected. So, we're talking about an ENT, ear, nose, and throat doctor. That's simple simple enough what it stands for, ear, nose, throat. So, an ENT is a medical specialist dealing with conditions of the ears, nose, and throat. Of course, let's Oh. Oh, this last one. This and then we're going to I got again I got some more. Don't Don't go anywhere. I told you I got a lot of words that I want to go through today. My roommate is constantly washing his hands. I think he has. Now I I said at the very when we started doing these acronyms and we talked about ADHD and I said this a very common one. I think this is another one that is commonly used and people will use this acronym loosely in my opinion that it is a condition that you know you would be uh somebody would be medically diagnosed and so okay yes this person has this condition but I feel like it's used loosely to refer to a lot of people who uh I don't want to give it away I was about to say it but I think you you guys I I said the Fact that everybody's writing the response in there tells me yes, you're familiar with it. You've heard of it. We're I'm talking about OCD, obsessivecompulsive disorder. So, I said it's used loosely that if people have certain obsessive tendencies like whether it's washing your hands or like the the shoes need to be lined up perfectly, they may use this loosely and say, "Oh, yeah, you know, my brother's OCD or this person's OCD even though they technically have not been medically diagnosed." So OCD, what it really this involves are unwanted thoughts, obsessions, and repetitive behaviors, which are the compulsions. And you could say somebody has OCD. I I forgot this was in here, but this is uh I this was perfect as far as like OCD. It says, "The hardest OCD decision of my life."

That the the sale is $39.99. Of course, you want to round it up to 40, but as soon as you do that, then it's uh you're not going to get the 10 gallons exactly. Uh and this is referring to uh filling up gas at a gas station, but I thought this was funny and uh really encaps encapsulates this idea of OCD. So, whoops. Sorry about that. Okay. Uh let me see. Hopefully uh maybe this is going to um maybe I'll readjust the this as we go through this. So, let's talk about mental health again. I have some words and phrases that I want to go through and quiz you on this. And yeah, I'm going to have to adjust myself as we go through this. Autistic individuals may identify as what I'm giving you. First letter of the word and the meaning describes people who whose neurological development is atypical. This is a picture from a movie and bonus points if you can tell me who that is in the name of the movie. Uh but uh we're talking about autistic individuals may identify as what? What is the word that we're talking about?

This is a word that I feel like is more commonly used nowadays. Um, and it is one that you'll I think you'll hear from time to time. Uh, whether you're having a conversation or you're reading an article in a newspaper. And yes, I think you got it. Excellent. Um, Paulina, well done. Christina, Sarah, neurode divergent, and I apologize for the just having to correct these videos as we go through this. So autistic of ind individuals may identify as neurode divergent. The meaning a person whose neurological development is atypical and you could say someone is neurode divergent. Paulina well done. Bonus points for you. This is a picture of Dustin Hoffman from the movie Rainman a long time ago in which he his character in the movie uh is uh autistic.

Excellent movie. In case you haven't seen it, it it is I guess maybe gosh, how old? About 30. Gosh, I feel like I'm old now. Like feel this movie was back in the early 90s maybe. Um, so one that I still recommend. Uh, great movie. Her headaches were determined to be th this is more difficult. I feel like the this vocabulary, we're getting a little more specific. I told you this is advanced, but we're talking about physical symptoms caused or worsened by mental factors. And you could say that well again I don't want to give it away, but the word starts with a P. Her headaches were determined to be these physical symptoms caused or worsened by mental factors. So if you have these uh you know me some mental stuff going on and it actually worsens these physical symptoms then this can be referred to as anyone buler buler.

No. Well excellent psychosomatic. Yes. So that is the word that we're looking for. Her headaches were determined to be psychosomatic, which refers to these physical symptoms caused by worsened or mental factors. Uh again, this is a little definitely a little more specific when it comes to mental health. Here is my next question. Obesity is often seen as a in patients with type 2 diabetes. Obesity is often seen as a M in patients with type two diabetes. The meaning of this is the presence of more than one disorder in the same person. Once again, this is a word that you will more likely come across if you're reading uh an news article about health or listening to a report on health. You could still use it in a conversation depending on the, you know, who what you're talking about, but obesity, type two diabetes. So, we're talking about the presence of more than one disorder. So, if we're talking about the presence of more than one disorder, the same person, we're talking about a comorbidity. That is the meaning of this word. So, I told you that this is a word that you may not use as often in just general conversation, but one you could still come across if you're reading um it doesn't even have to be a health journal, but a news article talking about health and a new scientific discovery and you may come across that word and they're talking about a comorbidity. How about this? Starts with an R. Can be cultivated through therapy and support. We're talking about the ability to recover from setbacks or trauma. Now even though this is used medically as far as uh you know mental health is concerned this is a word that is used in other context as far as well I don't want to again give it away but this is I think a more uh common word because it's not only just used in mental health but somebody's ability to overcome problems or issues or setbacks. So if we're talking about the ability to recover from setbacks or trauma can be v c cultivated through therapy and support um I'm talking about uh not not rehab um but resilience. So I told you that this word is more common because you might hear people use it in other context as well. your ability to overcome a tough situation. And you could say uh not just resilience as a noun, but say that somebody is resilient and use it as an adjective. How about uh this right here? So setting boundaries to pre setting boundaries is essential to prevent two words. I'm giving you the first letter of each m in high stress environments. We're talking about this feeling mentally and emotionally exhausted. You're run down. All right.

So, when you're run down, this this feeling of mental and emotionally exhausted. You're you're emotionally run down. You could say that you're experiencing what often due to to chronic stress. Two words. I feel like this is uh especially uh the second one is one that you hear. So what we're talking about I think everybody you got the first word emotional but what I'm referring to is emotional burnout. So burnout is a word that I think is very commonly used when talking about uh mental health. you experience burnout from a lot of stress or uh you could just say you're burnt out. But if we're talking about emotional burnt out, burnout, then it is just this really feeling emotionally exhausted for one reason or another.

Now, you you could say to prevent if I wanted to get grammatically um I would say prevent an emotional breakdown in high stress situations, but I think that that that phrase works as well. If we're talking about an emotional breakdown is another common collocation and another phrase that yeah, you'll hear people use when talking about one's mental state. This is I think just trying to capture this idea. when you leave things for tomorrow and tomorrow arrives. This is an example. I was trying to find an example of emotional burn burnout and I think Kermit the frog that's that's kind of what it looks like. Uh you you postpone things till tomorrow and then that day here and you're just like oh gosh I can't do it. I can't do it.

So let's do I have one more and then I want to talk about some physical um physical health vocabulary. He began practicing two words. All right. Daily to to to stay present and focused. We're referring to methods to stay present and reduce anxiety, especially uh panic or trauma related disorders. And you're methods. The second word is more of a kind of a synonym for methods. What are you going to say? We're talking about what you're trying to stay present. So that is a key word that you to to think about. So if you're trying to stay present, you're reducing anxiety. You're going to practice quite possibly some different grounding techniques. So that is the phrase that I'm I'm talking about these methods to stay present reduce anxiety and grounding techniques could be something as simple as just you know breathing exercises and you could refer to them as these grounding techniques to stay present. Let's look at the the last part physical health and once again I have some other words and phrases related to physical health. Some of them I think uh are a little more commonly used than others. But what do you think? This I think is definitely a word that you need to know and you probably are familiar with it already. But if we're talking about um exercise can significantly improve heart health. So what type of exercise? The the meaning of this word is just related to the heart and blood vessels. So, this is a word that I feel like you probably have heard of. Again, depending on the context, I don't know how often you may use it in casual conversation, but I think it's incredibly important.

This is a useful one when you want to talk about the heart. So, I wouldn't really say heart exercise. Instead, I'm going to use another word which is a common collocation, exercise of the heart. I I now I see cardio. Yes, I would say cardio. Uh I guess you could say cardio exercise. I'd probably instead with when talking about exercise, I'd probably just say the whole word and say cardiovascular. Uh so cardio is simply short for cardiovascular. Uh cardiovascular exercise can significantly improve heart health. what I was trying to say before I I guess you could say um cardio exercise that works. Sometimes I feel like you could just say cardio and just say look cardio can can really significantly improve health improvement. Sometimes I feel like when people talk about cardio they're referring to cardiovascular exercise but uh I I any of those would work. So well done. Like I said, I feel like you you know that this is another one very important, very common. Back pain can greatly reduce quality of life. So in this case, we're talking about a condition that persist over time. That is the meaning of this word commonly used when talking about physical ailments like your back. And this is something that I I experience uh and I'm dealing with it. I'm trying to manage it. And I'm talking about m back pain persisting over time. So the key word in this case, well done uh Lai cookbook. Nice. Chronic chronic back pain. So this is an adjective that you can use quite often with a lot of different like chronic uh back pain, chronic stress. And if any condition persists over time, you can use it with this word chronic something commonly used. So like I said, a word that I definitely think you should know. Uh we're using it in this next example sentence. Chronic can lead to serious diseases. So this is where the the meaning is the body's response to injury or infection often causing redness, swelling or pain. So that redness, swelling or pain is really the meaning and we're talking about chronic what what do you think? Uh so when we have this this swelling, this redness in response to something, another word that I feel like you've you're familiar with, maybe you use it actively, which is great, and this is just a reminder, chronic inflammation. So inflammation is another word that you could use with chronic and somebody experiences chronic inflammation and it just persists over time. So what do you think? [Music] He's now I'm giving you the three words. There are three missing words for someone in his 60s. This is just means physically fit. It is more commonly used. So once again, I think if you don't know this phrase, this is a good one to learn. But I think it is more common. So you may be familiar with it and hopefully yeah, this hopefully you're able to use this phrase because you uh may commonly you may talk about somebody instead of like saying, "Well, he's physically fit." I would say, "Oh, he's in good shape." Or, "He's in really good shape." All right. Well done.

Excellent. Saw some good answers. Well done, Lilly. So once again I have some news headlines to give you a little more context. So we talk about good shape to talk about physically fit of course but you can use it in other context as well talking about like a good condition the economy is in good shape you know growth is on track or five signs that your heart may not be in good shape that your heart may not be in good condition and diet tips to improve the heart and health. So think about that. It can be used in different contexts, but a very common and useful phrase. great shape, that's uh excellent shape.

There are other adjectives you could put in there. How about this? Getting enough sleep can. This is a little more challenging. We're talking about strengthening your body's defenses. So, when you hear body's defenses, maybe it does make you think of this two-word phrase, but I'm I took out the verb uh as well as a possessive adjective, even though I probably could have included them, but this this is true. In order to strengthen your defenses, you got to get enough sleep. And that can what what would you say? So when I say body's defenses, hopefully then your mind might go to I'm just giving you part of it. I immune system and you want to get enough sleep to do what? To your immune system.

Well done, Julia. To boost your immune system. So your immune system is a a is a phrase that you need to know. your body's defenses. To boost your immune system is a common collocation with this. So, you wouldn't really raise your immune system or anything like that. You want to boost your immune system. How about this? This next one, a increases the risk of heart disease. So, we're talking about a way of living with little or no physical activity. This is another phrase that I think is becoming more commonly used because people such as myself, you work remotely, you're not getting out as much. You feel like you need to get out, be a little more active, and sometimes, yeah, I feel like I have a and then I use this phrase. And in this case, it does. It can reduce the risk of heart disease, but we're talking about a way of living with no phys with little or no physical activity. So what we're talking about Yes. Well done. A sedentary lifestyle. So sedentary just refers to little or no movement. And of course lifestyle, you know the meaning. So this is a collocation. A sedentary lifestyle is one with no little or no physical activity. Not generally a good thing as far as your physical health goes. that it's always good to be well active and and get some exercise. Uh I gave a lot of examples with cats today. I don't know why. I thought they were all kind of cute. So this is a good one. Sedentary lifestyle is unhealthy. Um but I choose recumbent. So this is funny in in case you're wondering. Recumbent just means like lying down. Uh so it's like you don't want to say, "Well, it's not a sedentary lifestyle." I'm just saying it's recumbent. Uh I'm lying down. And yes, that cat does have it does, you know, look recumbent. So here are all of the words and phrases. Again, I apologize for this uh little mishap with the video. I I went over a lot today. We covered a lot. Hopefully, you are familiar with many of these words and phrases. I do think they're a little more advanced only because we're talking about a specific topic. And all of these words and phrases are related to your health. If you didn't know some of them, that's great. You learned some new words, phrases, acronyms, let me know by hitting that like button. You can hit the like button right now or hit it in the chat or the hearts or whatever. That just tells me that you learned something new and you're getting some value out of these vocabulary lessons. And just once again, if you're interested in practicing and improving your speaking skills, check out that link down below in the description if you want to join my speaking course. So very increant topic, very useful.

out, try to to use some of these words and phrases because I think we talk about health all the time, whether it's physical health or mental health. So, I thank you guys for watching and participating in this lesson and I will see you soon for another lesson in the future.

LESSON 117 OF 749

ADVANCED HOSPITAL VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello welcome to today's lesson which is really about trying to help you build your vocabulary i have these well they're more advanced words and phrases but i think they're also very important because we're going to be talking about hospital and medical vocabulary so if you are you go to the hospital these are some words and phrases you may hear or if you're watching a tv show or movie and something uh is happening at a hospital again these are words and phrases that that you may come across and like i said they are a bit more advanced so hopefully i well like all these vocabulary lessons i just hope that you learn something new today at least one new word or phrase um before we jump into it i want to say hello to everyone if you are new here please write to me in the chat or tell me your name in the comments uh if you love building your vocabulary please subscribe and hit that like button then i i can become your teacher i always want to to build and expand our our classroom i do want to say a quick uh hello um and i'll give shout outs as we go through the lesson vicky gustav welcome good to see you lali yashar sleepwalker angela a lot of familiar faces so the way this is going to work is i'm going to present these words kind of like a quiz so you'll have the opportunity to write your answers in the chat or write your answers in the comments i always want you to participate because this is interactive english i want to make it a little more interactive and have you actually participate in the lesson so let's go ahead and begin with our first um let's go ahead and begin with our first question and i want to start with some

some acronyms okay so actually wait a second uh yes there it is all right so the acronym i've maybe you can see it here i've pointed out is er and the way that i'm presenting this to you is this is actually the a headline that you would come across in a news article so in this case nb they're talking about i believe new brunswick in canada so they're saying nb says primary care expanding to try and relieve er overcrowding so if we're talking about the hospital and you hear the the two letters the er what are what does it stand for what are people referring to when they say er that is the first the first question that i have for you and i the first few of them there there are acronyms like this and this is a this is something you'll hear i think quite often especially if you're watching a movie or tv show about hospitals they may mention the er all right so if somebody is talking about the er then they are referring to the emergency room all right excellent uh great job uh anna what uh yashar good to see you shar lucy and duty um let's see who else i saw some other answers in there um virginia excellent uh shaheen yes lali er is the emergency room and i think most of the time people are going to use that that acronym they're going to say er instead of emergency room the next one you guys rock that one awesome

the next one is icu so again i'm just trying to show you how these are these are words and phrases that you will come across this is another article it says overwhelmingly overwhelming majority of icu patients in switzerland unvaccinated show show the the data okay so this is an article referring to um the pandemic the covid pandemic so overwhelming majority of icu patients in switzerland unvaccinated show data so if we're talking about the icu this is another um another acronym that you would come across that you're going to hear talking about hospitals medicine what does icu stand for okay and i'm actually i feel like i told you these are advanced but we're starting out a little i think a little easier and we're going to kind of ease our way into this and the icu it stands for as many of you have uh pointed out excellent the intensive care unit intensive care unit if is what somebody's referring to when they say i see you great job uh vicky gustav theresa um isan natalia angela sleepwalker ava perfect great i love it you guys everybody's participating very nice um so again if you just happen to be joining us we are talking about hospital and medical vocabulary so i do think i think this is really useful um useful vocabulary not that i hope that anybody ends up in the hospital but again this is a part of a part of our lives and there are also many tv shows and movies that have to deal with hospitals so the next one um this is the last uh the last acronym that i have for you for right now it's not a it's not all acronyms um it says once again it's another article heading guilfoyle ambulance offering free emt classes so if we're talking about emt what does that stand for all right emt and the the picture right there it's a it's a little bit of a hint you see this is a picture of an ambulance so ambulance offering free emt classes so if if you meet somebody and they say well what do you do for a living and they say well you know i'm an emt okay then you'll know oh okay i i know what this person does so if somebody tells you that he or she is an emt what that means is that this person is some of you got it an emergency medical technician and again once again overwhelmingly i think people are just going to use those three letters and they'll talk about an emt i'm an emt i'm an emergency medical technician so um excellent job like the thinking uh the thinking emoji that means okay you're maybe learning learning some new words excellent um great job anna what uh lucy and doody um who else got that angela vicky gustav some of you very close i think um emergency medical but the t at the end is talking about a technician emergency medical technician

the next one that i have for you so an emt would they're gonna they're going to be in the ambulance all right let's follow up on that okay so still let's think about um think about the ambulance okay i just you just saw a picture of it before so this one is a the the meaning the definition is a health care professional whose primary role is to provide advanced merging emergency medical care for critical and emergent patients who access the emergency medical system in general this is also someone who would work in an ambulance they may be in an ambulance so there are two different types of people like positions you have an emt and you also have this person right here that would fit this description so what is the other word for somebody who may work in an ambulance all right that's kind of following up on the previous question so as many of you correctly pointed out awesome you guys know that word i'm talking about a paramedic so again give you the the meaning of paramedic they're providing that primary role advanced medical care so great job uh lolly virginia um ceasar just throwing out some uh al al raza sorry if i mispronounced some names shaheen yashar perfect uh vicky gustav that's what i do perfect excellent um so the one thing i want to point out is sometimes if you don't know the difference between a paramedic and emt this is this is what i got from i think it was like the maybe the mayo clinic was the source so what it says is like emts can handle most of the basic healthcare procedures like performing cpr and using oxygen on a patient and paramedics can perform more complex procedures like inserting ivs administering drugs and more so basically i think paramedics there there's a lot more training um involved to become a paramedic and i believe i i could be wrong that somebody would you know become an emt and then maybe they study more and then they become a paramedic but a paramedic has more advanced training all right so more easier questions okay yes i told you this was going to be this is going to be an advanced some advanced words and phrases but again like i think useful vocabulary you meet people if somebody says yeah i'm an emt or i'm a paramedic then you know okay i kind of know what they do now uh here's some some pictures this is something that you may see if you go to a hospital and my question is just what is it what do you call this right here so this is it's not just something you would see um at a hospital i mean you would see them but even if you just go to a clinic and you visit and go see the doctor

they they may be wearing this um and i'm sure whether you know the name or not i'm sure that you have all seen this um when you've gone to see your doctor so this is just a picture i just want you to tell me in the chat in the in the comments if you're watching this later what is this okay so being able to to put the the name with that image and you guys rocked it out um maybe just a few spelling uh for some of it but it's a it's a stethoscope okay so you would the definition it's a medical instrument for listening to the action of someone's heart or breathing and they would use a stethoscope and again if you're wondering this is the picture that i want you to put in your mind when you think you hear stethoscope okay

the next one another picture one that i want you to tell me what it is in english this right here what is this um here linda excellent stethoscope emoji wow cool i've actually i don't think i've ever seen a stethoscope emoji very cool thanks for sharing so this right here it has two names i'm looking for the more specific name so i'll go ahead and tell you that some people may call this a stretcher all right that is not the word that i'm looking for okay i guess you could say it's a type of structure but more specifically what would you call this all right and as soon as i say that i know everybody's writing putting down stretcher stretcher stretcher all right that's that's not that's not the answer okay you could say it's a type of stretcher um but i'm looking for a more specific and when i say more specific notice how it's designed okay it's on wheels so you have this stretcher on wheels you would call it what all right and i know i see some correct answers in there anna shashank um vicky gustav mickermault perfect yeah you got it it's called a gurney so a gurney is technically like a wheeled stretcher used for transporting patients at a hospital so this is something uh a gurney is something you would really you would see uh at a hospital stretchers could also like i said people generally could call this a stretcher but a stretcher is also one that's more i think it's flat and like two people would carry it so for example if they're thinking about a sporting event like a football match and somebody gets really injured and they have to carry that person person out they may carry them out on a stretcher and two people are holding one person at each end but this prognosis which one is which all right looks like you were severely dehydrated and then he says get plenty of rest and you'll make a full recovery okay so i think um i think many of you guys you guys got this that's awesome awesome uh love it many people participating in today's lesson so let me give you i'll tell you the answer the first one because remember a and b a is the diagnosis and b would be the prognosis and i think many of you you got that um which is great because i think this is a these are words that you will use if you're talking to um your your health care physician you're talking to your doctor they may talk about the diagnosis and the prognosis so basically to to sum up the difference show you the meaning of them the diagnosis is more identifying a present disease illness or problem through examination and that is the diagnosis they're telling you what the problem is in general the prognosis is well as i said i got this from the dictionary refers to predicting the course of a diagnosed disease illness or problem and determining treatment or an outcome so you could think about it like the simple terms um diagnosis like the problem and the prognosis the treatment like what should you do what do you need to do in order to recover okay pri pro diagnosis versus prognosis okay um so you guys rock that one thank you guys for all those answers um i think a lot of you got that one correct this one may be a little more challenging so i'm interested i'm interested to see uh how many of you get this one correct and i think this could be a new word so we're talking about a separate a separate room in a hospital typically one allocated to a particular type of patient what would you call this room or i think in a hospital it may be like one it could even be an area um maybe more than maybe it's a few rooms but this one section this one area or like i said a separate room what would you call it to give you a little bit of a hint look at the picture so you see in this picture this is a picture of a hospital but it's very colorful it's um it's a little soothing and because of the colors who would uh you know who would typically who is this room for all right um and that's trying to kind of lead you into the into the answer and wow i think uh a lot of you a lot of you got this excellent uh sleepwalker manu um very good shaheen so what we're talking about is this separate room is basically referred to as the ward all right so a ward is a separate room in a hospital for a particular patient and you may hear it being used with other words for example what i was going for with this picture you could say this is the children's ward all right it's very colorful and therefore yeah it's the children's ward or you may hear people talk about the psych ward or something like that but the separate room separate area for a particular patient then we have i actually have um quite a few words for you this lesson and i'm trying to present it in different ways as well but overall you guys are i'm i'm very impressed with some of this uh advanced um these advanced words that you guys know maybe they're not too advanced after all so this is from an article and basically i've i've blanked

out the word and i want you to put it in context what do you think it's talking about i know it's a little small i couldn't make it bigger so i'll read it just in case you can't really see it too well so it says it's a misconception to think that when most patients are um from the hospital they're back to normal so dr milan han chief of pulmonary and critical care medicine at the university of michigan health in ann arbor okay so just really i want to focus on the first part of this where i've blanked it out it's a misconception to think that when most patients are um from the hospital they are back to normal this is the doctor talking which word goes in that blank all right when most patients are um from the hospital and i think the word i'm hoping that from is kind of a bit of a hint somebody is um from the hospital it's a collocation that i think is it's one that you will hear if people are talking about the hospital and i can already see that many of you got this one correct well done kudos to all of you we're talking about discharged all right when somebody is discharged from the hospital great job vicki gustav um lolly lucy doodle yusef sleepwalker yashar virginia shawshank um uh hijron you're new here excellent well welcome hey who else we got uh some people some of you put released i i think released in this context would also fit um you know fit well it would also work but i think discharged is to give you the meaning to tell someone you that officially that they can leave or must leave a place or a situation and i think it's that really word official that uh captures the meaning of discharge so somebody may be discharged from the hospital or maybe they might be discharged from the military those are collocations with with this verb if somebody is discharged um the next one you guys got that one excellent here is another article headline and i've blanked out one of the words that i i think i don't know i think maybe you guys can get this one um it's pretty recent from a couple of weeks ago it's saying that this top agent ra raula i i'm sure i'm mispronouncing it um i think this from in italy raoula has um checkup okay so top agent has um checkup all right so the first thing i think you would need to know and understand is well what is a checkup and then what's what are some words that often go before checkup so top agent has um checkup to give you a hint okay look at the

there's like no no there's nothing to worry about it was a routine checkup there are other words that you can use with a checkup somebody could go in for an annual checkup when they go once a year you could go in for a wellness checkup um just to see how you're doing so there are other i think words that would fit in there if you're talking about a checkup i think the the clue was the saying they're denying that it was urgent it was just routine i was supposed to go in anyway um but that's good those are some good collocations with the word checkup so routine is like a reddit a regular medical examination by your doctor just to you know to confirm that things are okay and there's nothing wrong with your health then we have another some more pictures for you what is this what do you what do you call this right here and i guess the to make it a little more specific i'm really thinking about like that that tube right there okay so what would you call well i should say these because there are many there are several there are four of them but what is that called this is just a picture and you um thinking well what is this what is this vocabulary word i'm talking about this thing so it is a noun okay and i told you like really referring to that that tube so wow you guys uh you guys know this vocabulary okay excellent um i don't want sleepwalker uh where is it eva talal seed so uh referring to uh syringe okay so the meaning of uh syringe you can see the picture right here uh and it's really like i said the tube is an important part the way the dictionary defines it is a

holland a hollow cylinder shaped piece of equipment used for sucking liquid out of something or pushing liquid into something especially one with a needle that can be put under the skin okay so that that tube like a syringe excellent then we have this right here at a hospital or or even a doctor's office people might patients may have to wear this and they put this on and it is called a what what would you what would you call this um recently i had uh well very i just got a mole removed this was several months ago um but yeah i put uh i put this on right here so what what do you think what would you call this that a patient would wear all right and i see excellent um great job mohit the word that i'm looking for is a gown okay this is a robe worn by a patient in a hospital some of you had put um scrubs in there which i think if i'm again i'm not a medical professional but i think the scrubs would be what the like the the nurses or the doctors that's that's what they would be wearing the patients would wear a gown um a hospital gown is what and typically i think most of the time they are blue but imagine not always but this is what it says for a gown a robe worn by a patient in a hospital very good so then we have this i've given you the picture and the meaning um a procedure where a needle inserted directly into a vein to deliver liquids to the blood what what would you call this um and it's well i don't want to i don't want to give it away we've actually already talked about it in one of the the meanings of one of these other words before but hopefully that picture what does that that person have um that that's going into their their hand right there um and that this is the meaning that i found online the needles inserted directly into the vein and i think that that's a key word right there or phrase into the vein so the correct answer and some people i think you guys got this um the correct answer is an iv and i saw like yes angela caesar um vicky gustav uh perfect sid and an iv is short for intravenous and i think what the like the literal meaning of it is like into the vein um intravenous and this is they defined it as a procedure where a needle is inserted directly into the vein to deliver liquids into the blood and sometimes you might hear people talking if they're talking about their experience at the hospital and they say yeah they hooked me up to an iv because they had to get these liquids into their blood somebody was hooked up to an iv uh all right so i think a lot of you are familiar with uh iv which is good the next one this is a a drug treatment so you can see that this person has hooked up to an iv a drug treatment that most of that most often um the most often used to treat cancer by killing fast-growing cells in your body i've included this because again cancer is something that i think all of us um you know know about many are affected by this whether if it's not directly uh yourself but you know someone a family member a friend who uh is is dealing with this so i wanted to include this word the the drug treatment that most often used to treat cancer by killing fast-growing cells and many of you it seems like you guys are familiar with this because again this is a common treatment that people will talk about not just in real life but also in movies tv shows um it's a it's a pretty common word i'd say and like many of you said we're talking about chemotherapy so the drug treatment that in specifically it uses powerful chemicals to kill fast growing cells in the body chemotherapy is most often used to treat cancer since cancer cells grow and multiply much more quickly than most cells in the body all right then we have like following up on this following up on chemotherapy and talking a little bit about cancer i have another where i'm blocking out two words and they're both adjectives um and they're somewhat opposites i'd say so there's two parts a and b i'll read the the paragraph in case you're having next part is saying the the other the brain tumors do not invade nearby tissues so a is a one adjective that you may hear people talk about and b is another one um and i i included this with like talking about brain tumors again this is another um article that i found online and just block those out uh you may hear people use these words when referring to brain tumors so i think again like it seems like a lot of you are familiar with uh some of these words you guys are getting uh a lot of them correct it's great like i said i think it's great and very important vocabulary to know and i try to to teach you new vocabulary as often as i can related to a topic um so that we can stay on the same topic so let me show you the answers um

so whoops let me move myself over okay um so it's saying the first one a is talking about malignant malignant brain tumors can invade or spread and then the next one that's saying they don't invade would be benign so it's really talking about the difference between malignant and benign and to give you the meaning and show you them to you right here once again there malignant means like likely to grow and spread in a rapid and uncontrolled way that can cause death so basically a malignant tumor is is a is cancerous so if you you're referring to a tumor and they say it's malignant that would be cancerous if it's benign then it means like mild type or character that does not threaten um health or or life so specifically talking about um a tumor it's it's not always cancerous but if it's malignant then it would be cancerous if it's benign then then no

um so these again i think are two useful and important adjectives to learn when you think about um hospitals or health or treatment or medicine so these are kind of bringing it back around these are all of the words um that we went over today's lesson for those of you who are uh and what i want to say is that i think that like i said not only is this useful but these are words that you are going to come across um in it probably likely to come across in just your daily life alright so uh the next thing i did want to say i hope you guys enjoyed the lesson if you do if you like what we do i'm going to post these for the patrons and members if you like what we do and want to show a little love support you can join um get a youtube membership patreon saw a lot of members and patrons today lolly vicky gustav takayao um always appreciate the the support thank you guys so much for for joining me again my my goal is that i i hope that you guys learn something new a new word a new phrase um that you can take with you and hopefully put up here in your active memory so thank you guys for participating um again just throw out some quick goodbyes and ava uh caesar ario uh lolly um thanks for joining um vicky and gustav uh where is it takayo yashar good to see you mariano uh aguirre thank you um good to see you uh namrata eddie jane i think i could go on and on today it was a lot of uh i think there was a lot of great participation in today's lesson and of course uh in the future i will come back again with some of these more interactive lessons so please enjoy the rest of your weekend if you did like the lesson hit that like

LESSON 118 OF 749

ADVANCED MILITARY VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

welcome to today's lesson we are going to be talking about Advanced military vocabulary and if you are someone who enjoys building your vocabulary Please Subscribe turn on notifications that way I can become your teacher my name is Wes the channel is interactive English it's all about trying to help you reach your fluency goals and I in this lesson I have some rather specific vocabulary that's related to the military now now if you would also like to get a copy of these lesson notes that you see right here next to me click on the link down in the description you can join our email community and I'll send you lesson notes from time to time I'll also go ahead and throw that in the chat as well if you're interested if you are already a part of our email Community that's great check your inbox I've already sent them to you so why is this useful and helpful because because from time to time you may watch a movie or TV show that involves the military or let's say that you're reading a newspaper article in the New York Times or the Washington Post some of this is vocabulary you may come across so it's really going to help your comprehension now it is specific if you're having a conversation you may be able to use them but the one thing I guarantee is that you're going to learn something new and I I can I can say that confidently only because we're going to start out talking about some slang terms and some of this I I didn't even know before creating the lesson it's very inform these are informal words and phrases that I think are specific to somebody who's in the army or the Navy and the other thing I'll go ahead and tell you is that a lot of this vocabulary may also be specific to the United States which is where I'm from so th this in in other words this vocabulary is related to uh us vo US military vocabulary I'll I'll go ahead and throw that out there but again it's something you may come across reading an article watching in a movie TV show so because I I said this is a bit diff difficult I'm I'm making this part multiple choice there are three different parts to this quiz and I want you to participate write your answers in the chat or in the comments after all this is interactive English I want you to take part in the lesson so nowadays m is a common term for an Army soldier this is one that I maybe you will know because there's something uh this this word is related to something else that you may be familiar with so which which name is a common term for an Army soldier specifically I would say a US Army soldier I'll give you a moment think of the answer and then I'll tell you and um for these slang terms I try to give a little explanation as to how they came about and why they exist so the answer excellent as I see I'll try to give some shout outs great job uh Julia Angela John the answer is a Joe so nowadays Joe is a common term for an Army soldier I thought maybe you've heard of this before because there is a a toy character gii Joe I think it's also a um a cartoon but just so you know during World War I a soldier was generically referred to as a Johnny so originally a Johnny eventually the term changed and even before World War II soldiers were being called gii Joe's which is where that the toy comes from as well as the cartoon GI Joe then we have this question right here a soldier who is a United States Army Special Forces member may be called a what do you think a this is again specific to an army Special Forces member you may refer to this member as a what this is informal it's slang lot some of these words and phrases I think think you perhaps if you're going to come across these maybe not in an article in the New York Times but maybe you're watching a movie or TV show this may be how soldiers talk to each other and they may use this term so I'll give you a hint for this one it I think it originally came about during the Vietnam War I don't know if that really helps you at all is trying to determine which one is which so I'll I'll go ahead and start breaking it down Tommy knocker it's not a Tommy knocker this is actually I think a like a mythical creature feel like there was a book written by someone I don't know Stephen King Tommy knockers Shyer it's not Shyer this is a vulgar term that it's an informal term that refers to a dishonest person which then means the answer is nice mic John Snake Eater a soldier who is a United States Army Special Forces member may be called a Snake Eater so special force me forces members were known as snake eaters during the Vietnam war because of survival training it was a common thing to do as a right of passage so I can only infer from that that as a write of Passage if somebody is um you know part a member of the Special Forces Unit then they might eat a snake as far as joining this and becoming a member so this would be a Snake Eater the next one you could use to refer to someone who's scared but it is not a military term so I just told you it's not b or c which means the answer is a squirter nice Angela tal a squirter is a person assumed to be an enemy running away from a military attack and this uh says right here it was defined elsewhere in glossies of the war in Afghanistan as an Insurgent Runner leaving a Target and as a person to attempting to escape a a cordoned area if you're unfamiliar a cordoned area is an area that is protected by maybe military police or it's kind of guarded and somebody's trying to escape that area they may informally be called a squirter so now you know and knowing is half the battle that is a phrase from the from the the cartoon G Joe A M was a slang term for a morse code intercept operator a morse code intercept operator what do you think is the answer this is again refers to a person a morse code intercept operator May informally be called what a musketeer a code cruncher or a diddy bopper so I think many of you are probably familiar with Morse code as this way of communicating a long time ago it's not as often I don't think used today but a long time ago this term for a morse code intercept operator was called I feel like a lot of people would probably think code cruncher cuz that that is a phrase you may use somebody who's trying to break a code but that is not the correct answer the correct answer is a diddy bopper all right I had no idea before putting this lesson together that a diddy bopper was a slang term for a morse code operator Morse code is used by I guess nowadays amateur radio operators around the world and this is you know food for thought there is even an international Society called the international Society for the preservation of Morse code and this uh Society I guess is active in many different countries so now you know that a morse code intercept operator was is well was referred to as a diddy bopper since it's not really used today I I assume that people are uh not using this very often at this point the next one a sailor aboard a Navy ship who has successfully crossed the equator may be referred to as a what take a guess if you're not sure participate write your answer in the comments in the chat what do you think so somebody who is a part of the Navy and they cross the Equator what what might you call this person a shellback a crisscross or a beiner specific to the Navy again uh this is slang so it's probably not something that I don't know maybe you've you've come across or maybe you have heard of it I'm not sure so the correct answer for this one if somebody's a sailor they've successfully crossed the equator they may be referred to as a shellback I think some of you got that one well done so Sailors who have already crossed the equator are nickname there are several names shellbacks Trust trusty shellbacks honorable shellbacks or sons of Neptune many many slang words for this those who have not crossed are nicknamed poliwags or slimy pows or sometimes simply slimy wogs good to know okay so the the next thing that I want to move into I told you that I'm sure some of those slang terms were new for you they were new for me but uh I thought that would be a fun way to start out the quiz begin the lesson with some new new words and phrases when it comes to military uh military vocabulary let's talk about some acronyms and I think you're probably going to be more familiar with these acronyms which you would come across in movies TV shows and in even in certain articles so what I want to do is I'm going to give you an acronym and I want you to tell me what it stands for so what what does the acronym stand for and I'll I'll put it in a sentence for you write your answer in the comments in the tra in in the chat and I think this one's a common one the troops went awall to express their complaints about the camp so the acronym awall may be used when talking uh about something in the military but this is an acronym that actually has become a part of just uh

you know General English depending on what you're trying to convey or the context of the situation you may or you could would use This Acronym so what does it stand for awall a w l it's a military acronym that has what meaning and if this is new for you I think that's great because I I told you this is useful you may come across this in conversations people may use this to describe someone who is not not around so awall stands for of absent without official leave or sometimes I think commonly I know see some people um absent without leave um Iran SSI Loi uh John I think that works as well absent without leave I guess technically speaking you would have to put in that official leave absent without official leave that somebody is absent from one's post or Duty without official permission but without intending to Desert so it's not like this person intends to leave but they they just took off and they did not get permission and you could use this if uh somebody is supposed to show up for an important meeting they're not there nobody knows where this person is and You' say yeah I don't know John is's they're they're awall I have no idea where this person is and and they just left so again you could use this in just general conversations it's a good one to know the next one you can check out that picture right there I'm sure somebody somebody looks familiar in that picture tourists are allowed to visit the DMZ between the two koreas so this is a picture of me actually at the DMZ this was a long time ago back when I used to teach in South Korea and there is a DMZ between North and South Korea there are I think I I tried to tell me what this where this picture comes from first lieutenant so he was the CEO of easy company I think even if you're maybe unfamiliar with Co perhaps you could just put it together what This Acronym actually stands for Co would refer to your but first lieutenant so he this is uh maybe that makes sense to some of you maybe not this is from a I think well-known TV show that came on it was on HBO I think a long time ago if you can tell me the name of the show then you get bonus points but otherwise what is This Acronym Co stands for what what do you think I think you guys got it excellent uh Tom Aaron we're talking about a commanding officer an officer who is in charge of a group of people in the mil military or of a military camp or base this is your commanding officer

this is your C oh so first lieutenant so he was the CEO of easy company and nice well done Aaron Band of Brothers this was from the show Band of Brothers I think it it was uh about uh World War II it was a really good show and again you watch some uh show like that that is related all about the military that's when you start hearing some of these acronyms some of these terms the co the commanding officer

the next one which again I think is also very common in just general English nowadays it's not just a military acronym after the failed rescue attempt some of the soldiers have been been declared Mia so MIA this is originally and still is a military acronym I want you to tell me what this acronym stands for what do those three letters stand for for Mia but once again we can apply this to other situations that maybe don't involved the the military and you could just say well somebody's Mia and because of that because I think there is regular usage of This acon Acronym in everyday English imagine again it's one you've heard of even if you're not exactly sure what the acronym stands for but some of you did excellent well done uh Loi uh Angela Julie Miss Julia Sabine trying to give some shout outs here and there missing in action so MIA missing in in action this is when a member of the Armed Forces has not returned from fighting in a war but it's not known uh or certain to be dead so somebody's missing and they don't know whether this person or group of people are alive or dead they may be declared Mia but in just casual everyday English if somebody is Mia they're just they're just not there so to use that example before that I mentioned somebody's supposed to show up at a certain time for a meeting or negotiation or a presentation and they're not there and you don't know where they are well yeah they're you know they were they're Mia or you see this person again like wait you were Mia why didn't you come to the meeting or the presentation excellent well done um Loi Peter great job so let's uh let's do another one the Pentagon is the headquarters for the dod I mentioned at the very beginning that this lesson on Advanced military vocabulary is really associated with American English or I guess you could say the US military once again because I am from the United States so this is again very us specific of course the the Pentagon is the headquarters for the dod but whether you may be watching an interview with somebody talking about the military or again in reading an article in the New York Times this is an acronym that you may come across and somebody May refer to the dod which stands for what I think already you guys uh got this one excellent perfect so the dod is the Department of Defense great job Peter Sunday Aaron uh da Tom great the department of the defense this is the department charged with supervising all agencies related to National Security

the US Arm Forces so it's kind of it's it's at the top uh the dod the Department of Defense okay let's move into some more General vocabulary that not only acronyms because I mentioned as we went through that through this some of those acronyms uh like Mia or um um uh what was the other one I already forgot I'm drawing a blank right now um awall is another one more used in general English and these are are as well so the military term ten Hut is a contraction for which command I think these are going to be a little easier because once again you you would maybe hear this uh more often in movies or TV shows not that you're probably going to use ten Hut in regular General conversation this is a military command but it's a contraction for which word if somebody says T Hut i m I'm sure you've heard this in a movie or a TV show with the soldiers are doing this so in this in this situation this is when a soldier would salute possibly their Co their commanding officer but it is not a contraction for uh salute the ten Hut is a contraction for the word good job nice talal attention so it's a contraction for the command attention but that is what that that is what somebody is supposed to do when they say ten Hut you're supposed to then salute your commanding officer your Co but ten Hut is a contraction for the command attention and sometimes you may hear somebody say attention and that's when you're supposed to stand firmly and salute the other person

now to follow up on this if somebody says tan Hut there's an officer now possibly you've seen this movie in bonus points if you can tell me which movie this picture is is taken from it's a good movie and the the the phrase actually there's an officer on actually has to do with one part of the military and we'll talk about that when I mention what movie this is from but you may recognize this picture and you know that the movie ah okay I've seen this movie before and then it may make sense this is a direct quote from the movie at the very end this character says 10 Hut there's an officer on and then they salute Tom Cruz so there's there there's your hint as to what movie I'm talking about so we we are talking about the Navy all right that was Tom Cruz's character he was a part of the Navy but I I haven't seen it wow interesting it's not there's an officer on board I feel like if some people say bored um uh we got the right movie It's A Few Good Men the answer is deck there's an officer on Deck so I mentioned that you would say this to someone who might be in the Navy and the Navy you're on a ship the deck of a ship that's kind of where it's coming from 10 Hut there's an officer on Deck this is an officer in charge of a naval vessel for an assigned period as maybe I don't know a 4-Hour watch who is stationed on the bridge while at sea or on the quarter deck while in Port and who represents the commanding officer this is from the movie A Few Good Men which again I think is another it's another good movie it's from a long time ago 1992 but once again you come across some of these terms Tom Cruz's character was part of the Navy which is why the quote says there's an officer on Deck excellent well done the next one I've given you some army military rank Rings here and I think this is somewhat I guess useful vocabulary that you may hear these rankings being talked about uh at at one point or another so it basically starts um this is actually the lower level and it goes to the higher level down here so second Lieutenant this is a lower level and then first lieutenant then captain and then what that's the one that I want you to try to to think about and then we move on down here and then general of the Army is the higher rank the higher position on this list I know typically we'd like to think of things at the top being the highest but in this case it kind of goes the other direction but which rank is uh is blanked out there so second Lieutenant first lieutenant captain and then we have well done um Aaron Julia n I Peter Sunday sepen uh Tom major now uh I said somebody M you put sergeant in there that also works because I think technically it's sergeant major so instead of Sergeant people Ma just in saying sergeant major they would just say major but I think Sergeant would also be an acceptable answer so second Lieutenant first lieutenant Captain then major then lieutenant colonel colonel Brigadier General Major General tenant General General general of the armor many different rankings as you can see well done though you guys uh you guys knew that one I I'm I'm impressed how about this um the president said he had no intention of ground troops now there probably there maybe a couple of different verbs that you could use there's one specific verb that I'm think thinking of that is specific when talking about the military and that is the verb that I I put here even though I I think you could uh you could use a couple of different verbs in order to complete um or in this case a couple of different jirens to complete this sentence the president said he had no intention of ground troops so the verb that I'm talking about or in this case again it's used as a jiren but often it's used as a verb to M troops is one that you guys know and I think it's useful if you don't know it but the answer well done lli Peter Manel Manuel deploy to deploy means to move troops or equipment into position for military action to deploy ground troops now I mentioned there are other verbs that you could use I guess you could say of sending ground troops mobilizing ground troops of course those would work but the answer that I was looking for was or that I wanted to teach you that I wanted you to be aware of this verb to deploy is when you are moving and our troops or equipment into position for some type of military action to deploy the next one the office buildings were used as M for the soldiers the office buildings were used as for the soldiers this is a word that you again may come across you're watching a show like Band of Brothers or you're watching a movie like A Few Good Men I think in both of those movies this word is absolutely mentioned the office buildings were used as M for soul soldiers and I think the picture there may give it away because as you can see that looks like uh your standard or stereotypical housing for a group of soldiers and that building you would refer to as the barracks excellent nice uh Manuel uh Sabine Julia helina nice so Barracks would be the building um or group of buildings where soldiers live and again you would use this specifically when talking about housing Soldiers the army barracks the military Barracks but as I just mentioned you would come across it in movies TV shows or again reading an article uh that has to do with the military and you may hear or come across this word Barracks so when you hear Barracks think of like okay where the soldiers live or are currently living the barracks well done nice uh you guys did a a fabulous job here's a little review some of the the words and phrases again we started out with those slang terms which I don't think I I'm sure that many of those are new for you but it's probably not something that you're going to come across uh all the time or probably even use the other vocabulary I definitely think is more relevant like those military uh acronyms specifically awall m you could use in other context DMZ dodco would be acronyms you would certainly come across if you're reading something an article that has to do with the military as well as that vocabulary that we just looked at ten Hut officer on Deck Army rankings uh went looked at all of them deploy and Barracks so of course my question right now is how did you do on the quiz I'm going to put this little poll in there uh and I want you to let me know how you did on the quiz and um you could say let's see I um I am a general let's put it this way uh I'm a general would be you did perfect um let's say that would be like 100%

let's say we talked about the word major I am uh our are yeah major would be 50% maybe you got half of them right and then I'll add another one I M A first uh Lieutenant would be let's say less than 25% correct all right there are the options that I want to give you for this um okay wait a second uh oh wait this was a quiz I keep doing these polls sorry about that um I always choose the the wrong the the wrong one um oh no that was it I don't know why it didn't let me post that okay anyway you can let me know in the chat or the comments how you did on the quiz but with all of these my goal is that you just learn something new and that with each of these lessons you can participate at interact take part in the lesson and try to slowly and continuously build your vocabulary and yeah hopefully if anything maybe if you're not if you don't end up using a lot of these words in speaking or writing you come across them when you're you're listening to something or reading it's just going to help you improve your overall comprehension so I hope you enjoyed the lesson learned something new if you did please let me know by hitting that like button and of course I will be back with another lesson in the future

LESSON 119 OF 749

ADVANCED PHARMACY VOCABULARY | Words & phrases you should know

Watch the original lesson on YouTube

hello and welcome to today's lesson I have a vocabulary lesson for you and this I think this is a very important lesson and I know I say that often but this time I really mean it because we're going to talk about something that is a part of our everyday lives and that is just going to the pharmacy this is something that we have to do from time to time so that's why I think it's very important that we're able to express our thoughts and opinions when we are there and this vocabulary that I'm going to go over with you today I think is very useful and I would say that it is more advanced vocabulary but because we people go to the pharmacy often I think some of these words you've probably heard of which is great because I like again they're very important but again it's good to get a little bit of a reminder if you already know some of them and I as always I really hope that you learned something new and as we go through this it's going to get a little more difficult so some of the more difficult words I've saved uh until the very end so let's go ahead and begin I'm going to present this to you as well a little bit of a quiz to test your knowledge so that you can participate in the lesson I want you to write your answers in the chat or uh write your answers in the comments even if you're watching this later I just want you guys you know it's interactive English I want you to participate so the first question uh I wanted to start out with something well probably one of the most important words so this is referring to a piece of paper on which a doctor writes the details of a medicine or drugs that someone needs what do you call that piece of paper and this is an important word again if you go to the doctor they may give you this and then you're going to take it to the pharmacy in which case then they will give you the the drugs or the medicine that you need all right so excellent uh great Lolly great to see you perfect uh Takaya good to see you Muffin Oleg so the answer I'll try to give some shout outs as we go through this is a prescription so if you go to a pharmacy or even a doctor this is a must know word very important but just based on the the chat it seems like this is a word that many of you are familiar with that's wonderful we're talking about a prescription one thing thing that I want to point out very quickly is just the pronunciation has three syllables the stress is on that second syllable prescription prescription so again you want to make sure that you are pronouncing this word correctly if you go to a pharmacy and you tell them okay here is my prescription and they will give you the medicine that you need the next one okay let's keep uh let's keep moving right along all right so this is talking about uh a medicine or chemical that can destroy harmful bacteria in the body or limit their growth all right what what would you call this okay what are what are we talking about here so again this is a word that I think is very important Anonymous started that's why I said these are must know words a medicine or chemical that can be uh that can destroy harmful bacteria in the body or limit their growth is called excellent good job uh Rafaela good to see you so not Uh Kevin so again I think you guys know some of these words right off the bat which is great we're talking about an antibiotic so this is what you may ask for or the doctor May tell you you go to the doctor they tell you that in order to get over your illness you are going to need to take some antibiotics and you'll go to the pharmacy and they will give you them excellent you guys rock that one Vicky Gustav good to see you perfect I I also want to follow up uh because you know a prescription antibiotic very important words so again I want to highlight the pronunciation quickly so you've noticed I've been saying antibiotic the stresses on that fourth syllable antibiotic now I've been saying it more definitely with that that British pronunciation in the United States because I know that um you may be someone who lives in the U. S or you travel to the U. S and this is specific to the American accent sometimes when that t it follows an n Sound it may allide and it's going to go away not always but you may hear people say an antibiotic antibiotic and you don't really hear that t sound so that is specific to the American accent but I wanted to point that out that does not mean you'll always hear everybody in the U. S say it like that again often people would say an antibiotic and you hear that that true T zone so I wanted to point out the pronunciation with this one as well because very important word um just to start out so the next one we're talking in in this case about the amount of medicine that you should take at one time what word uh you know has that meaning captures that meaning the amount of medicine that you should take at one time and this is something the next one again you guys are you guys are rocking this I told you it will it will get more difficult as we go through this so I'm I'm confident there will be some words that you will learn especially toward the end it definitely becomes more advanced so the next one this is uh well I don't want to give it away the blank I'm just gonna say we're talking about drugs that are bought in a shop without first visiting a doctor so think about a pharmacy you don't always go to a pharmacy after you go to a doctor you may before going to the doctor uh you may go visit uh you may go to a pharmacy just in order to to get some medicine to get some drugs and in this case you don't need a prescription so what would you say these are medicines drugs that you can buy and again the picture is a little bit of a hint uh but uh good job again I like the you guys are are rocking this uh Victor I know what um YouTube kalencia sorry if I mispronounced some names Mina Lolly uh Vicky Gustav we're talking about over the counter so you go to a pharmacy you don't have to have a prescription there are many other medicines that you can buy without a prescription and that would just be referred to as these are over-the-counter medicines uh drugs that you can just purchase it could be something like cough medicine something that's not too severe but if you feel if you have a cold you might get some of this medicine that's over the counter so that is a good uh good phrase to know and I was about to say phrase and I thought well that makes it a little uh maybe a little too easy then we have uh this one right here so this is a word it's referring to products that do not have a trademark and are sold without the name of the company that produce them all right what what word would you use to refer to these products all right the there's no trademark it doesn't have the name of the company that produced them and again this is a word that is very it's relevant to when talking about a pharmacy but it's a word maybe you might have in conversations with friends or something talking about the the medicines the drugs that you have uh excellent good job Lolly rafella um Vidya muffin the word that uh we're looking for is generic so I've given you an example down here so you see that Advil Cold and Sinus so Advil this is the trademark this is the brand name this uh Advil is I believe it's owned by Pfizer so Pfizer is the company that produced the the this drug and this is their brand Advil on the other side over there you can see the generic drug and even on the label there it says uh you know check uh the active ingredients Advil Cold and Sinus it even says that on the front of this generic drug and typically if you're talking about the difference between the brand drug and the generic drug I think primarily the the main difference is the price you're going to pay more for Advil Cold and Sinus the brand name then you would the this the generic drugs so I think that's really the main difference so I have one more for for the must-know words and phrases and again because I think there must know I think you guys know most of these this is good review this is a word that's referring to well something that's continuing for a long time especially uh when talking about a disease or just something bad and to give you a little bit of a hint think about the that picture right there all right and you're talking about something that's continuing for a long time this is a word that you may use when you're trying to describe something or explain it to the doctor and you're talking about your situation your condition awesome I think you a lot of you guys got this one we're talking about the word chronic if you say that something is chronic it means that it's continuing uh for a long time and that picture somebody might say that they have chronic back pain so if they say it's chronic back pain then you know okay they've they've been dealing with this for some time it's chronic uh so you might hear like chronic back pain chronic chest pain and it's a good word

if you're trying to describe uh what you're going through what you're enduring and trying to describe that when talking to a doctor or a pharmacist so those were some must-know vocabulary words and now I want to look at some collocations these are words that are frequently used together and again these are good phrases to know the next time you go to a pharmacy so let's go back to the very first word that I said is so important which is the word prescription so what word would you use to fill in the blank here to to complete this sentence I need to go to the pharmacy in order to um my prescription I need to go to the pharmacy in order to um my prescription which word completes that sentence and then I'll identify the collocations uh the word the collocation the words that are frequently used together so when talking about a prescription

there is a well there's a common word that you may use when talking about a prescription so there actually another well there's some there are some phrasal verbs you could use that's not uh that's not what uh it was going for so again I think I saw some correct answers exactly Kevin zero gamer so the word that I was looking for is you're going to fill your prescription this means I've given you the meaning down here to supply and sell a dose there's that word again uh or set of doses of a medicine as prescribed uh to one by the doctor and you want to fill your prescription you could again you some of you use the phrasal verb which fine you you're going to drop off your prescription because maybe you're you're going to have to go back to the pharmacy and then pick up your prescription so though again those phrases work in this lesson uh pretty pretty recently we're talking about effects so effects that's you see it starts with an E we're talking about the noun and to complete this sentence excellent uh we're gonna we're talking about side effects side effects this refers to the unpleasant effect of a drug or medical treatment in addition to the main intended effects so I think oftentimes medicine may have some side effects or people may experience some side effects when taking uh different medications so this is something that you want to be aware of and you may want to ask the pharmacist about any side effects or they may just go ahead and tell you and say hey be careful this this medicine is going this could have some side effects and a good very important phrase to know very important collocation also I wanted to mention too if you would like to get a copy of the lesson

notes click on that link down in the description if you are already a part of our the my the email Community I've gone ahead and sent them to I wanted to I'll Make a reminder of that at the end but if you want to get these lesson notes learn these words review them you can get this ebook right here that that I'm showing you the next one you can check the label if you'd like to see the medicines ingredient this is another well this is another collocation that's that's already come up once in this lesson so I I think again maybe you see that noun ingredient think about what word is commonly used with that so you can check the label if you'd like to see the medicines ingredient right your answer in the chat or in the comments if you're watching this later I just want you guys participate take part in these lessons

so excellent we're talking about the word active all right you can check the label if you'd like to see the medicines active ingredient and I've gone ahead and highlighted the collocation so the active ingredient refers to the main ingredient in a medicine that produces a its chemical or biological effect now to go back to something that we talked about earlier if you're trying to decide between the brand name medication or the generic medication this is something that I I might do I might look on the back and check out the active ingredient to make sure that okay this is the same it's the the same amount and then you know okay well I can you know if I want to save some money I can just buy the the generic drug but again it's good it's helpful to look at the active ingredient make sure it's the same then we have this last one again maybe you can use the picture if you would like a hint I think maybe it makes it a little too easy but if possible I'd prefer to use a um spray sometimes medications they come in the form of a spray but you would use this collocation when referring to this instead of just saying a spray which is fine people would commonly say a um spray if possible I'd prefer to use a um spray so just you know simple enough you would use a spray think about where it goes how are you going to take this medicine you're going to take it uh you're gonna you know put it up uh in your nose and therefore it's referred to as a nasal spray all right excellent job uh rafella um anawit was it Irene alamit Perfect all right give some more shout outs so a nasal spray is just a liquid medication it's inhaled as a spray and I think you know sometimes people think I I agree I think sometimes it's easier and just uh not as invasive sometimes to take a nasal spray especially if you experience some congestion so now that we've kind of gone through uh some of these collocations once again I want to switch gears and I want to test your knowledge when it comes to some drug vocabulary and I will say this is a little more difficult than the words and the collocations that we've just discussed so I told you that it's going to get a little more challenging as we go on so this is some drug vocabulary and we'll see you know see how much you know but if you go to a pharmacy these I think are important words and phrases so when talking about medicines that are often used to relieve symptoms of allergies such as hay fever hives and reactions to insect bites or stings these medicines are referred to as what so just this kind of like the the collective group of medicines so if you for example in the spring I get allergies and I would need to take a what right so especially I think a lot of people experience allergies and in that case you would need to take an antihistamine so this is a great word to know when talking about allergies as well as some of those other things and you might uh you know go to the pharmacy and say look I've some you know bad allergies oh look here you know over there you'll find some antihistamines and you can choose one and that's going to help with your allergies and antihistamine excellent uh Vicky Gustav rafella Ronnie nice work then we have this this is a drug used to treat fever swelling pain and redness by preventing the body from making a substance that causes inflammation all right I've got the these meanings from the you know online from the dictionary and again these uh I think maybe you I'm sure you may have heard of some of these words they're very useful very important go to a pharmacy so again they were talking about the drug so the drug that's used to treat the fever swelling or pain has a specific name and again I would say think about a headache all right you have a fever or again pain like a headache what are you gonna take if you have a headache I see some answers not the one that I'm looking for this would be really the I believe it would be the active ingredient what I'm referring to so we're not talking about like like a painkiller um in general you could say that you're going to take some ibuprofen so ibuprofen ibuprofen would be if you

